Was enough time given for review of class?

By MELANIE PLENDA Staff Writer

A contoversial new health class at Northville High School has parents questioning the district's review process for new classes.

Members of the health advisory committee said they were not given enough time to view the health curriculum and administrators were evasive in the presentation of some materials. Further, they said most members, including themselves, didn't view all — if any — of the videos contained in the curriculum and voted.

"It's everybody's responsibility to do the work. They are volunteers. I can't make them do their homework," said curriculum director and assistant superintendent Linda Pitcher.

Pitcher said there is no oversight 'for the committee. She could not speculate if there would be any oversight in the future when the comittee reconvenes to review the curriculum again. The committee's work is one step in a three-tiered review process, ending with the school board's approval.

Teachers, administrators, clergy, physicians and parents composed the 24 member committee. Their charge was to review the final drafts of the health curriculum. and make a recommendation to the district as to whether the materials were appropriate and met state benchmarks. The vote was taken Feb. 23 with 17 members present:

Four-way forum plans parks' fate

Elected officials from several government bodies have a "plan for action."

Now all they need is the action. The Northville Township board of trustees, Northville City Council, Northville board of education and Northville Parks and Recreation commission met March 27 to discuss the Year 2000 Plan for Action. Several residents also attended to voice concerns that they felt they were being ignored by the commission.

The Plan for Action was developed by the Northville Parks and Recreation Commission and focused on the different governmental bodies working together to improve recreation for the area.

"The group has worked long and hard and given their all to allow us to plan for bringing the best programs available to the community," said Dick Henningsen. Northville Township supervisor.

The purpose of the meeting, according to Northville Parks and Recreation commission chairperson Brad Werner, was to develop a common agreement on Northville Parks and Recreation for 2000 based on the plan. The commission presented a report on possible goals based on several surveys done in the community as well as information provided by the school district

Laws assist victims of stalking

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH Staff Writer

When Jennifer Laing drives down the road, she constantly looks in her rearview mirror and has a .9 mm pistol close by.

She lives with the fear, she said, one day she may see the man who haunted her life for almost 10 years after they dated for just one month in 1988.

Unfortunately, Laing's problem is a scene that's become all to familar in today's society. And when she was stalked she had little to do but "be careful."

But things have changed and the bottom line is victims don't have to take it anymore. For instance, a Northville Township woman was being harassed in March by a man who would call her work. She used the law to protect herself from the man who was arrested.

Despite the weapons victims nd may use to fight stalking, it still it- can be a frightening experience, Laing said.

The man she calls "one sick puppy" followed her, threatened her family, assaulted her, called her work, left unwanted gifts and slashed the roof of her convertible three times.

Choirs lift voices to state success

Euphonious mixtures of dulcet song and laughter leak into the hallway outside of the choir room at Northville High school.

Despite all the fun the students are having, these music makers worked hard enough to sweep the state competitions with the highest scores.

"This is something that is hard to do and they work so hard to achieve, so not only does it give them a sense of purpose but they can have fun doing it too," said choir director Mary Kay Pryce.

The self-described choir family is just one facet of the music program at NHS. There are several choirs including concert, chamber, symphonic, TrebleMakers and BackBeat.

U-M club members share love of school

The members of the University of Michigan Club think to the tune of "Hail To The Victors" and would bleed maize and blue if given the chance.

These die hard folks are more than just fans. They believe in all U-M represents.

"This really is more about tradition than anything," treasurer Richard Potchynok said.

The club, 10 years in the making, is an extension of the U-M Alumni Association. It is a non-profit organization of people who are graduates, relatives of graduates, or anyone who ever knew a graduate of the university. Those who are not graduates are designated friends of the university. Club members must pay $20 for their membership. First year bachelor's degree graduates are eligible for free membership.

President Bob Oxley said one of the greatest things about the club is that its members get access to out-of-the-way places at U-M because of their association with the club.

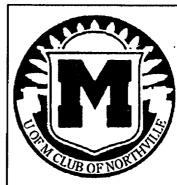

"This April at our annual meeting we will get a private tour of the new International Media Center and the sentor citizens residence area." Potchynok said. "In years past we have toured the Clemens Library and Schembechler Field. Surprisingly. the library drew more people."

Possible re-zone for former Ford plant

BY ANDREW DIETDERICH Staff Writer

A downtown Northville building once constructed to manufacture valves for Fords may soon be home to more "community-friendly" businesses

R & D Land Development Co. has received preliminary planned unit development approval for the old Ford plant at 235 E. Main Street. The building currently houses the Water Wheel Health Club, All-Star Gymnastics and Put One in the Upper Deck along with manufacturer R & D Enterprises.

The preliminary approval now moves to the Northville City Council, where if approved, will go back to the planning commission for final approval.

Robert Seaman, co-partner in R & D Land Development Co., said the approval sets the stage for changes at the 73,000-square-foot auto plant built in 1935.

What our long term aspiration for the building is, is to move away from manufacturing in the building and the PUD zoning allows us to make an orderly transition." Seaman said.

The building was constructed by Ford Motor Company in 1935 and was placed on the national registry of historical buildings in 1996. The property is on the corner of East Main Street and Griswold Street and incorporates 4.48 gross acres. The property currently is zoned as PR-1, or performance related industrial.

The planned use for the building is tentatively 22,600 for industrial use by R & D Enterprises, 21,800 for education and recreational uses by the Water Wheel Health Club. Upper Deck and All-Star Gymnastics and 21,770 for office space.

The health club, baseball facility and gymnastic center can all operate in the building now because of a quirk in city ordinance that allows gymnasiums to operate in the PR-1 zone, Seaman said.

The ultimate goal, Seaman said, is to have an all-commercial building and no manufacturing.

"All of the new businesses we've brought in have been commercial," he said. "To bring in other commercial businesses, like offices, we need to have a more flexible zoning treatment. The old zoning won't allow us to make any changes."

Seaman said it is likely the basement of the building, about 18,000 square feet, would be used for office purposes. The area in the east section of the building on the second level could be used for a business such as a restaurant to overlook the water wheel attached to the building.

If the rezoning goes through there will be many more possibili-ties," Seaman said.

Jim Allen. member of the Northville planning commission, said the commission liked the plan for the building.

The PUD simply allows them to have more mixed uses than they have now," he said. "Their plan has many different used that would compliment the downtown better than their existing zoning."

State cracks down on sex industry Police Reports

By MIKE MALOTT HomeTown News Service mmalott@homecomm.net

Owners of pornography shops in Michigan, "adult entertainment establishments," found out they have few friends in the state legislature last week.

Lawmakers passed a series of bills, the main pieces of a 13-bill package, aimed at bringing such shops under control by licensing them. Those licenses could be revoked if inspectors find the business to be a "hazardous site," one with high rise sexual activity going on on the premises, or a public nuisance. It would also give residents who live around such businesses the power to sue on the basis the businesses have become a nuisance, and recover attorney fees should they win.

The main bill, House Bill 5124. was approved by representatives in a 92-13 vote last week. Opponents mainly objected that the system would require some businesses to have duplicate licenses, because some already hold Class C liquor licenses.

But sponsor Rep. Mike Bishop, R-Rochester, noted that not all adult entertainment businesses have liquor licenses, so his bill would address the remainder.

Other pieces of the package passed 104-1. The sole dissenter, Rep. Clark Bisbee, R-Jackson, felt license fees were too high, perhaps as much as $13,000 for a single business. But Bisbee supported most the rest of the package.

He also pointed out that the law as written would allow only residents to recover attorneys fees against the businesses. That would be unfair, he said, unless businesses were also allowed to recover attorney fees if they prevail. Bishop said he agreed with that last point and will work to amend the bills in the Senate when they are taken up there.

But Bishop felt the license fee amounts were correct. Licensing will be conducted through the Department of Consumer and Industry Services, and when it is done reviewing applications, issuing licenses and inspecting all the adult bookstores, adult motion picture theaters, adult cabarets, massage establishments, exotic dance studios, encounter studios, sensitivity studios, model studios and escort services in the state, it is expected to have expenditures of $4 million to $4.4 million.

The bill simply divides that amount among the businesses to be licensed. As estimated, the price could come to $13,000 for a license, Bisbee pointed out.

To an individual, the fees that businesses pay sometimes sounds high," Bishop countered. But when you look at it relative to the industry, to the multi-billion dollar industry it is, to the money these types of businesses make, it's not that much.

And Bishop argued that taxpayers should not end up paying for the licensing of these businesses.

Bishop argued the package is intended to help communities control adult entertainment stores. Communities have found it ineffective to attempt to ban them or to zone them into certain areas. Yet, crimes rates, rape, prostitution and high risk sexual activities often increases in a neighborhood after such businesses open their doors, according to Rep. Laura Toy, R-Livonia. She sponsored the portion of Brighton, did not vote.

the package that calls for Department of Health inspections of the facilities. Adult entertainment stores can then be ordered to fix health code violations found on their premises within a period of time, or their licenses may be revoked.

Bishop explained that licensing would not apply to all businesses with adult materials for sale. such as conventence stores that may have a rack of adult magazines. To require a license, a business would have to allocate more than 20 percent of its floor space to adult entertainment.

The main portion of the package, which includes HBs 4327. 5124-34 and 5469, now moves to the Senate.

Most of the bills passed in 105-0 votes, but on the main bill, 5124, Reps. Nancy Cassis, R-Novi, Paul DeWeese, R-Williamston, Ruth Ann Jamnick, D-Ypsilanti, Ruth Johnson, R-Holly, Mike Kowall, R-White Lake, Gerald Law. R-Plymouth. and Patricia Lockwood, D-Fenton, voted yes.

TOWNSHIP MAN ARRESTED FOR DOMESTIC ASSAULT

A 19-year-old Northville Township man was arrested for domestic assault after allegedly kicking his sister.

The incident happened March 21 at 9:12 p.m.

According to a Northville Township police report. Northville Township police responded to the home on Ridge after a 12-year-old called police and said she'd been assaulted. The report said the girl told police she asked her 19-yearold brother to turn down the TV. He eventually turned it down and then back up. The argument continued and the 19-year-old ended up kicking the 12-year-old in the back.

The mother arrived shortly after police and it was suspected the 19-year-old ran to a neighbor's house by the mother. Police went to the neighbor's house and found the 19-year-old. The report said he told police he did kick his sister but they were just playing around.

He was arrested and released on bond.

entering attempt at Hamlet's Party Store, 1051 Novi Road.

The incident happened March 24 at about 1 a.m.

According to a city of Northville police report, city police were dispatched to Hamlet's on an attempted breaking and entering. A police investigation revealed a thin crack in a window pane and pry marks around the edges. Police suspect an attempted break-in because a similar method was used to gain entry to the store last year.

Nothing was missing from the store this time and there are no suspects or witnesses.

REDFORD MAN ARRESTED FOR STEALING SODA POP AND MONEY

An 18-year-old Redford man was arrested for embezzlement and possession of marijuana at Meijer in Northville Township.

The incident happened Match 24 at 11:35 p.m.

According to a Northville Township police report, Meijer officials watched the Meijer employee select a soft drink without paying for it and take $10 out of a cash register. As the man was searched a small bag of marijuana was found on the man.

He was arrested and released on personal bond.

Surprise! State may be part to blame for gas prices

Northville High School presents Grease

Cast of 'Grease' says show has been a fun team effort

By MELANIE PLENDA Staff Writer

The cast of Northville High School's production of "Grease" go together like ramalamadingdong.

Not only has the group of young rock and rollers worked hard for several weeks to master dances and songs of Fifties, but members said it's the universal theme of puppy love and friendship that gives the show its spark.

"I directed this about 20 years ago and they love it as much now as the kids did then," director Kurt Kinde said. "It's the teen-universal theme of romance, kids who are cool kids and who are not. There's just a truth to it."

The story follows two young lovers divided by the pitfalls of teen bravado and sock hop misadventure during the 1950s.

Kinde said he tried to make the set reflect the fun of the production. He included several oversized stage pieces including a juke box, big guitars and even a donated 1948 full size Chrysler.

The cast also seemed to be reflecting the enthusiasm of the set and material. "The last two productions have been so fun." Rachel Klimek (Marty) said. "You just really get to know a lot of people and your all working towards a common goal and having fun in the process."

Lead actress Dana Crawford (Sandy) said her enjoyment of the production didn't just stop with the fun she'd had on the set but the fulfillment of a lifelong dream to play Sandy.

"I've seen the movie about a thousand times since I was little and always pretended to be her, so its really cool that I get to actually play her," she said.

However, Klimek said if audiences are expecting a reprise of the classic 1978 film version, they will find the stage production much different. In addition to some different songs, she said the cast has added some new twists and offers a freshness to the musical standard.

Kelly Wright (Jan) said she just hoped audiences pick up on how much fun they have all had doing the production.

"I just hope everyone can tell we're really having a good time up there," she said. "We've all become a big group of friends and we are doing all this for the fun of it."

Kinde's hopes, however are pinned to a good crowd turnout.

"Everyone has worked so hard on this and we wished we could run it over two weekends but it just didn't work out. so hopefully people will take advantage of the Wednesday and Thursday shows and not wait until the weekend." he said.

The show will go up April 14 and run through April 15. Tickets are $8 for adults and $5 for students and seniors. Those interested can make ticket reservations through the school office until 7:15 pm of the night of the performance by calling (248) 344-8425. Tickets may also be purchased at the door. All shows start at 7:30 and Kinde said the production was not long. "Everyone will be home for the 10 o'clock news," he said.

While waiting for the curtain, some fun facts about 'Grease'

With all the drama happening on the stage, it's not hard to imagine there's some behind the scenes, as well. Here are some fun facts to impress friends with at dinner before the show:

• The first show director Kurt Kinde directed starred the parents of lead actress Dana Crawford (Sandy).

• The theatrical version of Grease is very different from the movie version. There are several additional songs, "Freddie My Love," "Raining" on Prom Night." "Mooning," "Since I don't Have You." and "Alone at the Drive in Movie." Songs not included in the stage version are "Hopelessly Devoted to You," "You're the One That I Want" and "Sandy."

• Northville High School was originally going to do Stephen Sondheim's "Into the Woods." However, musically it proved to be too difficult and "Grease" won out.

•Kati Pryce will have some big shoes to fill when she plays character "Betty Rizzo." On Broadway, the character of Rizzo has been played by Rosie O'Donnell, Brooke Shields, Lucy Lawless, and Deborah Gibson.

•Joe Tracz (Roger). learned the show must go on when a student had to back out of NHS's last production. Tracz filled in with only three days to prepare.

•Ryan Downing (Kenickie) and Mike Jones (Doody) both plan on going into the Air Force Academy after graduation. Jones said he hopes to join their renowned singing team once there.

• A full size 1948 navy blue Chrysler will make its NHS stage debut during the "Greased Lightning" number.

• Joel Underwood who is helping with set construction attends Michigan State University but is an NHS alumnus. Underwood volunteered to come back and help Kinde with the project.

"Grease" takes audiences back to the 1950's when a night of fun included a bonfire. a pep rally and mooning people on national television. In that age of innocence, we meet Danny, a rebel with a heart of gold and an intellect to match. Danny finds some summer lovin' when he meets the shy and wholesome Sandy who is visiting the States from Australia.

As all good things do. Sandy and Danny find their summer romance must end as the school year begins. Unbeknownst to both the lovers, Sandy gets a reprieve and ends up attending Rydell High, which is — of course — Danny's alma mater. However, teens and cliques being what they are (too cool for chicks), Danny must hide his love for Sandy from his friends the T-Birds, much to Sandy's chagrin.

But Sandy picks up her chin and marches forth through her year at Rydell, hitching her hopes to a group of bad girls known as the Pink Ladies.

Eventually. Danny grows a backbone and decides his love for Sandy is greater than being cool, and decides to remake himself into a jock image that might be more acceptable to the pure Sandy. Miscommunication being what it is, Sandy also gets the bright idea to remake herself into an anti-Sandra Dee.

Meanwhile, the T-Birds have gotten themselves into a spot of trouble. Things heat up when they get themselves into a drag race with a rival faction. The problem is they don't have a car with which to race.

So the 'Birds must build a car from the 'hunk of junk' Danny's best friend Kenickie has been driving.

Despite some ups and downs. Danny wins the race and the girl, too. Sandy gets her man and a new reputation. While the T-Birds and Pink Ladies. Kentckle, Rizzo, Doody, Jan, Marty, Roger. Frenchy and Sonny all find they go together, everyone lives happily ever after in rock 'n' roll heaven. Joe Tracz (Roger) kisses Kelly Wright (Jan) as the two rehearse a scene from "Grease."

Field study: teens may be judged by their dress

When a teenager walks into a mall, should he or she feel comfortable? Well we would hope so. They shouldn't feel like they are being interrogated by adults' eyes.

In a recent experiment conducted by the two of us, we discovered that adults do judge teenagers by their appearance.

We took Adam Sinkus, Northville High School junior and Mac McDonald, 15 (Tracy's brother) to Twelve Oaks Mall.

We placed them both in the same stores and observed adults' reactions.

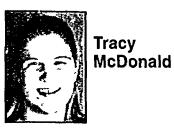

In most cases, Mac was the one kept a close eye on. Store clerks would follow Mac around at a fair distance but still a noticeable one.

Mac, who dresses as a "skater," wore baggy jeans, a T-shirt with skateboard logos on it and a baggy jacket with a baseball cap.

Adam, on the other hand, wore haki colored cargo pants. running shoes, a fleece pullover and a ballcap.

Not many people really paid attention to Adam when he walked into a store. They just looked up. then looked back down to what they were originally doing. It was a different story for Mac. though.

Mac, who is from Canada, says he gets looks from adults wherever he goes and he knows that it's because of the way he dresses.

"They don't know the real me." Mac told Melissa and me.

Back in Canada, Mac gets top grades in almost all his classes and maintains a high grade point average. For fun he plays bass guitar in his band, which he is very committed to.

Lisa Paladino. Northville High School junior said, "I don't think people should perceive us as they do. Not every teenager steals. They shouldn't pressure us about it."

Stereotyping teenagers doesn't only happen at the mall, though. One day, while Mac and my mother were walking to her car to warm it up, a lady walked over and accused Mac of keying her car. My mother told her she must be mistaken, because Mac was with her the whole time and was walking on the side furthest away from the

The lady claimed that someone seen him near her car. In response, my mother said just because Mac's a new face and he dressed like a skater, they think he keyed your car.

Her answer? 'Yes, I guess that is why.

This just proves that adults only have a one-way vision of teenagers and how they dress. Adults expect us to respect them. They should respect us in turn by trusting us.

Diabetic NHS freshman leads charge for a cure

By MELANIE PLENDA Staff Writer

Northville High School student Allison Troutman has diabetes, a disease some statistics say kills more people than AIDS and cancer combined.

However, three years after she was diagnosed, Troutman will tell anyone who will listen of her disease and what they can do to help her and others to win their fight.

"I think (diabetes) has changed my life but for the better." she said. "At first I wouldn't say that, but I joined the ADA (American Diabetes Association) and now I feel like I am a better person for helping other people." Troutman is part of a nation-

Troutman is part of a nationwide movement to raise funding for diabetic research for a cure. Due to Troutman's impressive recruitment of several of her friends and the gathering of more than 2,500 petitioned signatures, she earned a trip to Washington D.C.. While in Washington, she joined in a march and classes to help raise awareness of the disease and the lack of funding being funneled into research. Later this year. Troutman will participate in another march on Belle Isle and is considering organizing one in Northville.

"We are in the brainstorming stages for that one and hope we will have something put together this year," she said.

Troutman has Type I diabetes, which means she depends on insulin for her survival. Thanks to a new pump, she gets a constant stream of insulin into her system. A tube is attached to a pager-sized machine she keeps in her pocket which houses her insulin for the week. Every day she programs it to give her the correct amount of the hormone for that day. It is devices like these that research has helped to devise to make the diabetic's life a little easier. Ordinarily, most diabetics administer shots to themselves two to three times a day.

But for Troutman, that's is not enough. She said she wants to see a cure and believes it is within reach.

Troutman, like other diabetics may be able to control their diabetes with diet, exercise and shots. However, it is a degenerative disease that without a cure ultimately leads to death from complications. "As I get older. I can lose my sight, most amputations are diabetes related, and my circulation will also get worse, which causes other complications " she said other complications," she said. Sue Troutman, Allison's mother and supporter, said the complications are what most of the federal monies collected go toward, and not research. But it is the research, she said, which will ultimately lead to a cure and a better life for her daughter and others who suffer from the disease.

Allison Troutman said she believes her dedication to the fight is what has saved her.

"I used to never talk about it and I was angry that I had this when I first found out, but now I feel empowered I feel like I'm not just accepting this disease, but that I am doing something about it," she said.

Troutman said she is currently collecting signatures and raising money from sponsors for her walk in September.

Anyone who is interested in sponsoring or simply being a part of the walk her may e-mail her at dcaptain4walk@hotmail.com.

Sex ed review committes: more time was needed seven parents. one clergy, five administrators and three teachers The group voted in favor of the curriculum 13-4. Of the seven parent representatives present. four voted down the curriculum.

Following this committee's decision, the curriculum council committee looked at the curriculum and voted it in unanimously.

Parent and member of the health advisory committee Cathy Ponder said she voted no because many of her concerns went unanswered, and since a vote had to be taken that night, she voted no.

"The meeting ended at 6 p.m. and it was (5:55 p.m.) and we were going to vote without any further discussion," she said. "That is why we voted no. I would hate to see it voted in the way it was and know we could have stopped it."

The committee was first formed two years ago and has since reviewed and made recommendations on the elementary and middle school curricula.

On Feb. 3, the committee received the written "Scope and Sequence," a detailed outline for the curriculum approximately 50 pages in length. A list of 10 videos were sent to the members.

However, parent and committee member Susan Hawksford said winter break fell into this time period leaving eight business days to view the videos. Since the videos could only be viewed at the school or taken home overnight, many said it was nearly impossible for 24 people to view approximately a dozen hours of tape for just the sex education portion of the class.

There was no way I could see all of them." said parent and committee member Karen Bennet. "We all have very busy lives. I think we all did as much as we could. There absolutely was not enough time."

"They presented a bare minimum search of the grab bags for the sake of time.

> Cathy Ponder Health advisory committee

Bennett also voted down the curriculum.

However, Pitcher said there was more than enough time for reviews to be done.

"We held 10 sessions in that time where parents could view the videos and they had the option of checking out the videos. We couldn't help that winter break was in there," Pitcher said.

But many committee members. regardless of how they voted, did not get a chance to see all of the videos, including Rev. Kent Clise, who voted for the curriculum.

"I saw part of half of the videos." he said. "I looked at enough to satisfy me. I felt I was dealing with people who were credible."

Several parents said they asked for a show of hands as to who had in fact viewed all of the videos at the meeting. Though only a few raised their hands, Bennet said, the vote was taken anyway.

Though the second committee approved the curriculum unanimously, those committee members too said they did not view all of the materials for the curriculum.

Parent Mary Ellen Wolbers said she voted in favor of the curriculum because she did not want to vote down an entire curriculum based on one segment of it. She also said she did not view all of the materials.

"We are not teachers and so I trusted the teachers and administrators that these were good and appropriate materials," she said.

In addition to video viewing, committee members felt the administrators conducting the meeting were not forthcoming with information.

"They presented a bare minimum search of the grab bags for the sake of time," Ponder said. "We had to encourage them for a more detailed view of them."

The health advisory committee is set to reconvene in the near future to review the changes to the high school health curriculum. In response to some of the concerns, school board secretary Thomas Gudritz suggested it may be better to take a consensus vote rather than a majority vote from now on.

"I think it would be worth considering to adopt a process of consensus instead of a process of majority. " he said. "It may take longer, but ultimately it avoids many of these problems in the long run."

With Dr. Audrey Bruell LASER HAIR REMOVAL

To fully understand laser hair removal, you must realize that there are three stages of hair growth anogen (the growth stage), catagen (the regression stage), and telogen (the resting stage). At any point in time, there is hair in all three stages And, because the laser must be applied to the hair follicle during the anogen (growth) stage to attain long-term hair reduction, a series of laser treatments will likely be required. Having said all that, studiereviewing the results of various laser hairremoval techniques indicate that a 40%-90% reduction of hair can be expected PS. I aser hair removal works through the three months after a single treatment. Results vary according to hair color (because laser light is attracted to the pigment in hair) and laser type. sign anti-campus riot legislation

By MIKE MALOTT HomeTown News Service mmalott@homecomm.net

A year after riots erupted at Michigan State University after a Spartan appearance in the NCAA basketball tournament, a bill to crack down on those who participate in such disturbances sits on the governor's desk awaiting his signature. Since Senate Bill 525 was presented to Gov. John Engler March 21, he'll have until April 4 to sign or reject it. Bill Sullivan, aide to sponsor Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton, said Engler is expected to approve the bill. The new law would go into effect June 1.

So if there are further outbreaks this weekend when the Spartans again appear in the Final Four, the law won't yet be ready. The bill would add a penalty for those arrested on riot-related charges on or near college campuses in Michigan. Students convicted of a misdemeanor related to a riot within 2.500 feet of a college campus could be barred from college property for up to a year, at the discretion of the judge.

For those convicted of a riot-relat-ed felony, a judge could order them to stay away from college property for up to two years. Students could be ordered to pay restitution for riot damages, as could those who are not students but get caught participating in a campus riot, if the judge decides to apply those penalties.

According to legislative aides, some of the rioters caught in the disturbances at MSU last year were students from other colleges. The riot at MSU a year ago spurred the introduction of the bill, but it was just the last in a string of incidents on campuses, according to Bennett. Previously, there have been similar disturbances at the Universi-ty of Michigan, Western Michigan University and Central Michigan University.

Bennett introduced the bill last April, and it was quickly passed in a 30-6 vote in the Senate last May. The state House of Representatives just took the bill up in March, voting approval 71-36 after tacking on several minor amendments.

It also faced some opposition.

College boards have the authority to enact policies that punish individuals who act inappropriately and even expel them if they see fit. This legislation usurps the local authority of such boards," Rep. David Woodward, D-Madison Heights, said. "Amendments were offered to strictly punish violent rioters, but were defeated. Had they been passed 1 would have supported the bill. Since they did not, I could not support such poor public policy." Rep. Ruth Ann Jamnick, D-Ypsi-lanti, contended there are already laws on the books to punish offenders. "My opposition to this bill is based on it containing 'unlawful assembly' as a reason to be banned. Unlawful

But included in all the fun is a sense of giving back to the university they love so much, Potchynok said. To help with that, the club offers seven scholarships each year to local students who have been accepted to U-M.

What is really wonderful about it is that the money goes directly to the kids. It doesn't get funneled through the university first. It goes directly into their bank accounts and they can spend it however they like," Oxley said.

ABOUT, THE SERIES

Northville is many things: quaint, charming, historic, friendly. But it is its sense of community people remember long after they have visited or moved away from Northville.

It is for those people that the Northville Record will be embarking on a series of articles highlighting the groups and individuals who help run the festivals bake the cookies, and bring fellowship into the hearts of their neighbors.

Members of clubs and civic organizations are encouraged to send their information for subsequent articles.

Northville received the academic scholarships and one student received the club's arts scholarship. "The university has a wonderful arts program and they are always looking for good candidates." Potchynok said.

Overall. Oxley and Potchynok were impressed with the club's sense of community. "It's almost tribal in a way." Potchynok said. "We have this spirit of community that's tougher and tougher to find these days.

LIVONIA SCHOOLS TO HOLD SPRING BREAK SYMPOSIUM

With spring break close at hand, safety on trips away from home is key. It is for that reason Churchill High School in Livonia will be hosting a presentation on Spring Break Sexual Assault Awareness and is inviting members of all surrounding communities. The presentation will be held April 11 at 7:30 p.m. in the Churchill Library. First Step. the Western Wayne County and downriver project on domestic and sexual violence, partnered with Churchill High School in Livonia to respond to a growing need for sexual assault prevention and awareness services with high school students. The Churchill peer education program and the Churchill PTSA will give a presentation focusing on the dangers associated with spring break, specifically risk of sexual assault and "date rape drugs." It is open to all students in the surrounding communities as well as faculty members and parents. The purpose of the session is to inform participants about the dangers and raise awareness regarding risk reduction methods and the available community resources. The presentation is approximately one hour, including a question and answer session.

MEADS STUDENTS PARTICIPATE IN MATH-A-THON

Meads Mill Middle School recently participated in a Math-A-Thon for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital. Math-A-Thon, now in its 21st year, is an educationally-based fund-raising program in which students obtain sponsors for the number of math problems completed in special workbooks provided for students in grades K-9. The program is sponsored nationally by Six Flags Theme Parks, which provide free passes to their parks for every student raising $35 or more. The students who participate in the program learn to do more than just math problems. They also learn the importance of helping children who are less fortunate than themselves. Through the Math-A-Thon, they are able to help provide a future for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. Children with more than 200 forms of cancer and other catastrophic discases find hope at St. Jude. had to prepare two pieces of contrasting styles. It may seem simple enough, but Pryce said it was easier said than done.

"Students are given 20 minutes to sight read and perform a piece they have never seen before." Pryce said.

The piece consists of an eight- to 12-measure piece specifically written for the competition. To prepare for the piece, students spend a portion of their classes throughout the semester studying sight reading and learning how to handle the impromptu portion of the competition.

"They are very familiar with this process by the time they get there, so really the competition is almost more for Northville to see how well we are preparing them." Pryce said.

Pryce said the other benefit to the process is that once a student learns to sight read, it is a skill that stays with him the rest of his life.

But there is something else students said they would take with them into their lives: friendship.

"It has introduced me to so many different things," choir mem"...really the competition is more for Northville to see how well we are preparing (the choir members)."

ber Dana Crawford said. "I met my best friend in this class. I can't even imagine her not in my life and I never would have met her if it hadn't been for this class."

Crawford, as well as her friend Emily Liu, said the test of the class was the commitment of its members. Liu said it is the mentality that the group was only as strong as its weakest members that gave them all a vested interest in helping each other out. She said the experience not only improved her appreciation for music, but also gave her skills she could take into any career she chooses. Pryce agreed.

"These kids can go into any job interview and say they have been in choir and people know they know how to work," Pryce said. "It takes a lot of effort and dedication to do something like this. That's what employers are looking for. although I am trying to get (Crawford and Liu) to go into teaching.

The girls laughed in response to Pryce's comment and indicated this was not the first time they or others have heard this kind of advice from "Mom Pryce."

"She is the mother of 86 kids," Mike Jones said. "We are all a family and she is the head of it."

Students said they don't hesitate to come to Pryce and see her as a positive role model they can talk to. "She's just the best," Jones said.

Though the class is an elective. many students volunteer to go to competitions and rehearsals falling outside of the parameters of the classroom.

"It was really cool to see people here on the weekends who just wanted to be here." Liu said. "I think that's why it's so fun. it's because we all love what we do and just want to be here."

Police, victims aided by changes in stalking laws

law, and without witnesses, police had few options other than to tell Laing to be careful.

"It was hell," Laing said. "It really changes your perception on things in general.

simply for calling her at work earlier this month.

Those are the kind of results victims and law enforcement officials are getting with three of the best defenses against stalking - Michigan stalking laws, personal protection orders and common sense.

Chip Snider, director of public safety in Northville Township, said implementation of the stalking laws has helped police protect the public better.

"It was long overdue," Snider said. We'd get complaints that met all the criteria for stalking but it would be difficult to apply to any law."

DEFENSE LINE NO. 1: THE LAW

Laing first became involved with the man who stalked her while she was a 23-year-old medical student at the University of Michigan-Dearborn. The two dated for about a month, but it didn't work out, Laing said.

*I soon realized that still waters do in fact run very deep," she said. "Abysmally deep."

Laing said the man, also a student, began following her. He would find out her rotation in the hospital she worked at. He harassed her mother. He threatened Laing's brother, also a physician at the University of Michigan.

She said she was surprised. This wasn't some guy with earrings and tattoos," she said. "He was a very attractive, clean-cut individual who actually resembled Tom Hanks. Laing said she had very little options on how to handle the situation of him following her.

Pretty much my only choice was to go to court and try and get a restraining order." she said. "But that kind of time and money are things medical students don't really have. From 1988 to 1993 there wasn't a whole hell of a lot I could do.'

Things became so bad he actually physically assaulted her and received one year of probation and wasn't to have contact with her. There wasn't much that changed 1 11/15 though. "He would drive through Garden City, where I lived, when he lived in Northville," Laing said.

In 1993 Michigan's stalking laws went into effect. Laing contacted the police in Garden City after the man left a stuffed animal on her porch.

It was the first time anyone really took me serious," Laing said.

The laws gave police something to work with and Laing a wall to hide behind. The crime of stalking was legally defined for the first time.

Stalking means a willful course of conduct involving repeated or continuing harassment of another individual that would cause a reasonable person to feel terrorized. frightened, intimidated, threatened, harassed, or molested and that actually causes the victim to feel terrorized, frightened, intimidated, threatened, harassed or molested." the state act reads.

From 1997 through 2000, there were 12 stalking cases reported in Northville Township and the city of Northville.

The criteria for stalking doesn't have to be as obvious as one person following another home or looking in windows either.

It could be a simple as appearing within the sight of another. approaching or confronting another person in a public or private place, contacting by telephone or sending mail or e-mail to a person.

The Plymouth man who was arrested earlier in March was arrested after he called the woman at work and said, 'You better watch what you're getting into." It was enough for police to charge and arrest the man who received two years of probation.

When Laing's stalker left the stuffed animal on her porch he ended up getting probation and said he was moving out of town.

"It was just the sleeping of the volcano." Laing said.

In 1994, Laing was working at Oakwood Hospital in Canton and was leaving work to discover someone had "keyed" her car. She said she didn't think much of it. But then someone slashed the roof of her convertible -- three times. The third time Canton police set up a video camera right on her car. The man was caught in the act of slashing the roof.

He served three months in jail and had to wear an electronic tether for reached one year. Rend to a some the more freezes

DEFENSE LINE NO. 2:

While stalking laws have given police the authority to act on such complaints, one of the best weapons those who feel harassed can arm themselves with is a personal protection order.

A personal protection order, or PPO, is a court order that prohibits a person from having any physical or verbal contact.

PPOs are so useful and in demand that the Wayne County Circuit Court recently decided they warrant the full-time attention of one judge.

We issue over 1.000 PPOs a month in Wayne County. I know firsthand the seriousness of this problem," said Judge Richard Halloran.

In Northville Township, there are 38 PPOs on file. In the city of Northville, there are 14 PPOs on file.

"It's another tool the public has to act on." said Det. Dave Fendelet, city of Northville Police Department.

PPOs not only give the public something to act on, but the law as well, he said.

"We suggest to people a fair amount of time that obtaining a PPO is a fair alternative for them to go and get," Fendelet said. "If they qualify and do obtain a PPO we can act on it."

DEFENSE LINE NO. 3: COMMON SENSE

Laing said despite the help of the law and PPOs. there are several things suggestions she has for those who feel they are being victimized.

"Initially, the biggest mistake I made was trying to reason with him and be friendly," she said. "But you cannot have any kind of an amicable relationship with a person like this. That's how they sucker you back in. They are like children in that they will try and get any amount of attention they can."

Additionally. Laing said. victims should pay attention and be careful about their surroundings, keep track of things that might be considered harassment and most importantly, break off all contact with them.

"It doesn't matter if you talk to them because they already are angry," she said.

WHAT TO KNOW, WHERE TO GO

Stalking is defined as:

A willful course of conduct involving repeated or continuing harassment of another individual that would cause a reasonable person to feel terrorized, frightened, intimidated, threatened, harassed or molested and that actually causes the victim to feel terrorized, frightened, intimidated, threatened, harassed or molested.

Stalking takes many forms including:

- Following or appearing within the sight of another.
- Approaching or confronting another individual in a public or private place.
- Appearing at the work place or residence of another.
- Entering or remaining on an individual's property.
- Contacting by telephone.
- Sending mail or e-mail.

that when a source wants to give a reporter information "off the record," and the reporter agrees to take it that way, that it becomes an obligation for that journalist to do whatever is necessary to protect the identify of the source.

But what if the information the source gives turns out to be untrue? What if it turns out to be, by all appearances, an outright lie? Worse, what if the lie is tantamount to background character assassination? And what if its purpose appears to be nothing less than covering up a government foul up?

But, the source went on, because of that, Ellis was not coming into the office. He was staying away most days. And while absent, he could not sign the waiver needed to allow Northville schools to go ahead with the setting of its schedule.

All that was explained to Rezmiers-You may recall that Northville ki, who has publicly been blaming the state for the slow down. Rezmierski has since admitted that there really had been several phone calls and communications from the department to the Northville staff. So it turns out the "off the record" comment from another Northville administrator was apparently a ploy. an effort to cover up the Northville administration's foul ups with the application for the waiver. By giving the information off the record, the administrator could pretend he was being a good guy when he was really being anything but.

Guilty as charged — it's my fault

It's appropriate that I write this column for the April Fool's edition of the Record, because I'm feeling a little foolish

That's because the last two weeks — and the March 23 edition in particular - have been a nightmare for yours truly in the typo department. I've received more than a couple of phone calls from readers who are quick to point out that certain words have been spelled incorrectly, names have been transposed, grammar is out of whack and about a half-dozen other things have been wrong with the copy.

Each item brought to my attention cuts like a knife, and a serrated one at that.

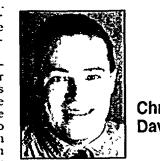

Let me go on record as saying this: if you read it in this newspaper. it's ultimately my responsibility, Reporters report and write, but I'm the guy that the phone calls should be coming to if there's a problem with a story.

I won't try to weasel on this one. either. It's my fault if there's something wrong with the stories you read, the headlines you scan or the cutlines you review.

Let me say it again - it's my fault. Period.

I could say that I'm new at this editor thing and that the nuances of the job have distracted me. Of course, that wouldn't fly. I've been writing for seven years now, and four of them professionally. I could say that outside issues have influenced what you've seen in print on Thursdays. Of course, that wouldn't fly, either. I'm Chris Davis outside of this office, and Chris Davis: The Editor in It. I think I'm pretty good at being able to change hats effectively.

No, none of those things will excuse lax attention to detail on my part. I'm guilty as charged. And if you're one of the people who have telephoned, stopped by, or e-mailed to make me keenly aware of my shortcomings. I throw my hands in the air and my journalistic self at the mercy of the court of public opinion.

Everyone in this office and this company works hard at putting out a quali-ty product, and the awards this newspaper has won through the years are evidence of it. I have no intention of letting the reputation of the Record head south on account of an 'i' before an 'e' (except after 'c').

I often draw the comparison of a typo being like a zit on the beauty queen's forehead. No matter how wonderful everything else may look, it's impossible to take your eyes off that seemingly minor Imperfection.

You, the readers, deserve what you pay for. Fifty cents isn't a lot, but you wouldn't be paying for it if you didn't expect quality. The way I look at it, a pack of gum costs a quarter, but if it tasted like garlic, no one would want it.

I'm pretty far from being a Jedi knight in the editor's chair, but I'm learning each day about how this job works. There are a zillion elements to being an editor, many of which I would have had no idea about until I got here. Editors don't just edit. They lay out pages, manage an office, engage in public rela-tions, write reports, and (when afforded the opportunity to do so} have a home and family life.

As I drift from my role as reporter, I have to remind myself that the fundamentals of journalism are as much a part of the job now as they were then. Every word in a story is a color on a palate. Put them together the right way and you get a painting. Put them together the wrong way and you get muck.

So I come before you this week making the solemn pledge to do a better job at my job. I couldn't help but notice that the root of the word "editor" is edit.

Will I ever live to see the day when a newspaper is 100 percent perfect? Not likely. But it'll be a cold day in youknow-where before I quit trying.

Chris C. Davis is the editor of the Northville Record. He can be reached via e-mail at cdavis@ht.homecomm.net.

Chris C. Davis

ANDREW DIETDERICH

Reporter

Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski blamed it all on the state and said it kept Northville schools in the dark the entire time.

You may also recall that the Department of Education had a whole 'nother take on it.

Mike Williamson, state assistant superintendent, had a beef with that story. And it was a legitimate one.

He was the guy who was quoted as saying, "That's false. It's wrong. It's pure unadulterated bu----. Nothing could be further from the truth."

Yes, Williamson did believe the state had kept the Northville administration informed. He said he had made calls to the district while the special education waiver was pending. StateSuperintendent Art Ellis also made another three or four calls to the district, he said.

But you can always quibble about such matters. Williamson explained. If the state gave information, the district could argue that it should have been more. If they informed the school district about the status of the waiver, the district could always argue that it should have come a week earlier.

What really "warranted the stronger response." what Williamson was really reacting to, where accusations leveled against Ellis.

Back when Northville administrators were trying to justify and explain the slow down to parents. one administrator had attempted to explain in an off-the-record conversation. Ellis is retiring, the source told the reporter. And that's true

۱ ا

He was claiming the cause of the foul up was the absenteeism of the state superintendent, but he wasn't going to be the bad guy who would point the finger.

He wasn't going to be the one to blow the whistle on a state superintendent getting ready to retire. It was a classic attempt to manipulate the media.

Off-the-record comments are supposed to be a tool journalists use to get the truth to the public when it might otherwise not come out. They are not intended to be a way the government officials can lie with impunity.

Unlike our brethren in Washington, who live by off-the-record statements and leaks, we here at the Northville Record have a policy to use such comments sparingly and with great caution.

This is a real good example as to why.

Great balls of fire

Northville High School student Chris Duggan works on making a polyurethane ball in an industrial oven at Oakland Technical Center.

A zinger in the case of urban sprawl

It was truly a shame. I thought, when the Michigan chapter of the National Federation of Independent Businesses released survey results this month showing that the state's "Main Street business owners and family farmers reject the notion that state spending should be skewed to influence land use.

The survey, unveiled by NFIB Michigan Director Charles Owens, showed that twothirds of small business owners in Michigan object to the idea of directing state spending on roads, schools, utilities and other services away from outlying areas "in an attempt to restrict suburban growth." Only one in four supported the concept.

It's a shame because it is exactly those folks -- Main Street business owners and family farmers --- who lawmakers are trying to help most with their anti-sprawl initiatives.

Downtowns and small towns are among those most hurt right now by sprawl. When a new mall or strip center opens out on the interstate, it's usually the older established business centers that suffer the most. Keeping Main Streets healthy across the state is exactly what lawmakers are hoping to do.

Family farmers get hurt now by sprawl too. The big corporate farms will always be able to survive, but the family farmers are the ones who can barely make a profit when their land is taxed according to what it could be sold for if it were to be developed as, say, condominiums. Assessing land based on its value when used as farm land — rather than on its potential according to what it could be developed as - will allow family farmers, not the taxman, to determine how long they'll stay in agriculture and when to put the acreage on the market.

But here is the part that really stings.

Recently, there has been a growing temptation among state lawmakers to slip language dealing with these issues into budget bills," Owens said in unveiling the survey results. It's a 'back-door effort to rob Rural Peter to pay Urban Paul, all in the name of addressing our alleged 'urban sprawi' problem ... On issues this important, Michigan deserves better than 'stealth legislation' tactics.'

Ouch. State lawmakers aren't trying to hide their activities. They've been quite open about the ways in which they are trying to address sprawl. But those who are familiar with the initiatives should also be able to understand where Owens and the NFIB are coming from.

There are dozens of initiatives aimed at dealing with sprawl spread out all over the place - legislation, a constitutional amendment, budget bills, administrative programs, committee research - and none of them carry a title with the word 'spraw1" in it.

For example:

· Gov. John Engler has proposed a constitutional amendment for the ballot this fall to set tax assessments on farms at their agricultural use rather than on their "highest and best use." Although it is intended to address sprawl by taking property tax pressure off farmers, sprawl is nowhere mentioned in the proposal.

Nor was it when the governor's brownfield redevelopment tax credits went through.

• It won't like be in the verbiage when the issue of purchasing development rights and moving them to brownfields is taken up later this year.

• Yes, budget bills have been used. Rep. Patricia Godchaux, R-Birmingham, for instance included a program in her budget for the Michigan Economic Development Commission in which it would attempt to redirect development toward urban areas.

• Rep. Gene DeRossett, R-Manchester, has a bill that would coordinate construction codes across the state. But it doesn't carry the sprawl label.

· And DeRossett is the chair of a ninemember committee studying sprawl and ways to address it. But its title refers to land use, not to sprawl.

The reason is that the policies in place now that encourage and exacerbate sprawl, that actually spur growth further out in greenfield areas in an artificial manner, are also spread out all over the place.

Of course, when they were instituted in the first place, we didn't have a debate that concluded we should encourage sprawl. But now that we want to curtail it, folks like Owens. I think legitimately, feel we should have a debate to determine whether reversing the process is what we want to do and the best ways to do it are.

This is where DeRossett's committee could really do the state a favor. By taking its show on the road throughout the state and giving voice to all who have pro or con sentiments about the issue of sprawl, the committee could provide the forum the state needs on the overall issue of sprawl.

If that doesn't happen, some in Michigan will continue to feel that lawmakers snuck it by them. And that would indeed be a shame.

Letters to the Editor Candidate defends position on vouchers

To the editor:

On March 16, you ran an article announcing the candidacy of John Stewart of Plymouth for the 20th District House seat. He is one of my opponents for the state House of Representatives, and I would like to set the record straight regarding my education platform.

My opponent claims that he is the only candidate that is not supporting school vouchers. Since the beginning of my campaign in June of last year. I have touted the importance of public education. At no time have I ever endorsed, eluded to, or implied support of the proposed school voucher ballot referendum, Kids First! Yes! Furthermore, at a candidate forum back in December, the other candidates also said that they did not support the voucher program.

I come from a strong family of public educators and administra-tors and I am a product of Northville public schools. I am proud of my education here, and I will continue to fight as long as I am able to ensure that other children have the same wonderful opportunities I had.

I would like to ask that between now and the Aug. 8 primary, we keep this campaign honest and forthright. Let us remain true to the issues, and stop the politics of personal destruction. (Northville) deserves a campaign based on the issues and fresh ideas, not slander and half-truths.

Liquor column doesn't add up

To the editor:

The editorial and opinion column by Mike Malott which ran in several HomeTown newspapers earlier in March represents one of the most misinformed examples of journalism I have read. The piece portrayed HB 4752 by Rep. (Nancy) Cassis as a restraint on trade and an imposition on wine fanciers. That simply isn't true, so let's examine the facts.

HB 4752 merely requires that properly licensed persons selling alcohol over the Internet must verify the age of the purchaser, prop-erly label the shipping container as containing alcohol, and requires that the delivery agent verify proof of age at the time of delivery. This is nothing more than common sense and provisions that your readers would surely support. In fact, surveys taken in Michigan and throughout the nation have found that over 80 percent of the people favor regulating Internet sales of alcohol to ensure that minors don't have and greatly improve the lives of thousands of others.

Think about the impact of these gifts. In 1999, 10 Michigan children received a heart transplant and eight received a kidney trans-plant. Eleven children under the age of 18 received healthy livers and 26 were given the gift of sight with a cornea transplant. These children will now have the opportunity to grow and lead healthy lives, graduate from college, have children of their own, and see their dreams come true.

The families who said yes to donation not only helped these children but they also bestowed a precious gift on the families, friends, schoolmates and communities of those children and all the others who receive transplants.

The "gift of life" is perhaps the most extraordinary gift, yet we rarely hear about those families who bestow this gift upon strangers and how their lives are forever changed. We rarely get a glimpse into the lives of those who are micropluch cover by strang are miraculously saved by giving. caring Michigan families who say yes to organ and tissue donation.

Every one of us can make a difference simply by pledging to become an organ and tissue donor. Here's what you can do today: talk to your family about your decision; sign the Michigan Donor Registry (registration cards are available at all Secretary of State branch offices or through the Gift of Life Agency of Michigan, 1-800-482-4881); and sign the back of your driver's license.

Need a good reason to talk about organ and tissue donation? Think of those 36 children who received an organ transplant in 1999. Think of their families and imagine yourself being in their shoes. Think how grateful they are to those strangers who saved their child's life. It's something we all would want for our own families. The families who said yes to donation have left behind an incredible legacy. Talk to your friends and family about donating life. Sign the Michigan Donor Registry today. Judy Beyersdorf

EDITOR'S NOTE: We initially interviewed Mr. Lashbrook when preparing the story, but he did not attern subsequent phone calls attempting to Clarify certain points." Parents care about education

To the editor: I am a parent of six children. We in Northville during have lived and dedication of the fine teachers we have in our district. Let them concentrate on excellence in core curriculum. Sex education should be the private responsibility of parents. Only they have the relationship needed to deal with physical, emotional and moral aspects of human sexuality. The government should not usurp this role.

Terri Buckshaw

Children need school and parents Library grateful

To the editor:

Based on the overflowing attendance at the recent board of education meeting. Northville parents care a great deal about sex education. They care whether or not sex education should be mandatory in their high school.

They care about how the material is being presented and what is being emphasized. They care about having the option to teach their children in their own manner. Such concerns seem reasonable, even worthy of laud.

But while parents of young children have the possibility of screen-ing outside influences, high schools' young adults are not so easily con-trolled. Their views and behavior are more likely to be in conflict with their parents' than in sync. Few young men and women are comfortable asking their parents about sex. Ideally. I would like my children never to endanger themselves. Realistically, I am aware that I can only minimize the risks and hope that whatever happens, they will turn to my husband and me for help.

A couple of weeks ago, a friend asked me what I'd heard about the high school's sex ed program. Not being informed, I asked a group of senior girls to fill me in. Their eyes lit up enthusiastically, each wanting to tell me how much they liked the program. Two are currently in Ms. Tibble's pilot class. They have great admiration for their teacher and genuinely feel her methods were effective. From these students' perspective, the class activities were both informative and successful in getting the students to feel comfortable discussing difficult subjects. I asked them if they felt comfortable asking their parents about sensitive sexual issues. They all shook their heads and nervous laughter erupted. How about Ms. Tibble? Abso-lutely — they felt they could ask her anything.

When it became necessary to speak to my oldest son about sex, I ran into a problem which I hadn't confronted before: how to talk to him about being prepared without sounding - on some level - as though I condoned having sex at his age. How does it sound to say, "Abstinence is absolutely the only option, but if it should come up please use a condom." At that point, I was very grateful and very relieved to be able to fall back on the schools' sex education, knowing that the topic of venereal disease and prevention were covered. I know, because I checked, that the school program stressed repeatedly that no method is completely foolproof. I was able to talk to my sons about our family's beliefs, in a moral sense, and then conclude with, "You did cover the physical facts in school, didn't you?" His affirmative response to that question effectively closed the conversation. Perhaps it is the word "mandatory" which has parents so upset. In many people's minds "mandatory" connotes a curtailing of freedom. loss of control, a potential for the erosion of civil liberties. But whose rights are we curtailing by not assuring the education of our youth in a matter so basic to the country's health and future? It is the job of the government to ensure its future by helping shape each generation. Dominique Moroz financial rewards nor appreciation go with teaching in our country. Rewards for new college graduates are now so high in the private sector that potentially good teachers are bid away from the teaching market. Not until we change our attitude about the status we accord our teachers, we'll continue to wrestle with the problem of why "Johnny can't read."

for area support

To the editor: The Northville District Library has benefited again this year from the very active support of our Friends group, which just held their annual meeting and elected new officers. As usual, the event was festive with pizza, a magic show and a wonderful evening for all. The outgoing president, Lynn Parkllan worked hard over the last two years to develop creative new fund raising ideas, including the very successful Fantasy of Trees. Lynn, the Friends Board of Directors, and many volunteers were instrumental in raising funds to enhance library service including more books, circulating CD-ROMs. new shelving, a local history computer, and much much more. We appreciate so much their many hours of work and creativity on the library's behalf.

In addition, the Cadette Girl Scout Troop No. 134 put in many hours hauling, sorting and selling used books for the recent winter used book sale, raising more than $2,000 for the library. This troop of seven girls along with their leaders. Sally LaPle Perry and Brenda Engels, deserve our thanks for all their efforts.

These many labors of love for the Northville District Library continue to translate into better service for the community, and we are very grateful for the dedication and support of our Friends.

Technology helps students learn

To the editor:

I'm impressed Mr. Skrbina persists in his line of thinking regarding the use of technology in education. He is certainly entitled to his opinion, but his monochromatic views and dramatic dialogue do little to provide a realistic course of action for schools.

Here are a few other examples of unknown or ignored facts by Mr. Malott. The column suggests that Michigan wineries will no longer be able to sell over the Internet. That's false. Michigan wineries can continue to sell in this manner. Is it too much to ask that they take a couple of small steps to ensure the purchaser is of legal age? How about the fact that there are over 16.500 brands of beer and wine registered with the Michigan Liquor Control Commission for sale in Michigan? Your column stated that only wines of the top 50 to 100 wineries in this country can be served by the licensed wholesalers and retailers in Michigan.

Your credit card/paper trail argument as a reason why minors will not purchase over the Internet does not hold water when you consider that a significant percentage, if not a majority, of college kids today have their own credit cards. It won't be mom and dad's card that these 18-21 year-olds use. Lastly, and most importantly. Internet sales are not limited to small family wineries and vintage wines. If one surfs the net, you will find hundreds of Websites of large liquor stores across the country selling and shipping all kinds of liquor, beer and wine.

There was a reason that Rep. Cassis's legislation passed the House unanimously. It's good public policy, and it is legislation the vast majority of your readers will support.

Organ donation can save a life

To the editor:

Did you know that in 1999, 824 Michigan families consented to organ and tissue donation? The unselfish actions of these families helped to save hundreds of lives their school years. Each one was educated in private schools. This year we decided to send our 12year-old to the public middle school. I believed that I would find just what you have described in your editorial (March 23), "The problem is not a teacher, folks." I believed that my child's peers would be products of parents to busy to give the moral guidance necessary to raise decent citizens. Here is what I found. No parking space at back-to-school night. even though I arrived 30 minutes early. I thought I would outsmart everyone at parent-teacher conferences and arrive even earlier. Parents were already lined up down the hallway waiting to gain access to their child's teachers. I was grateful that the administration suggested to bring something to read during the long waits to talk to the teachers.

Regardless of what Mr. Jackson believes, my experience has been that the majority of parents in Northville take their parental responsibilities very seriously. They are teaching their children about human sexuality.

The problem it seems is the school district doesn't agree with the position most parents take when discussing sexuality with their children. Human sexuality is primarily a matter of moral, not just physical health. Most parents do not encourage their children to consider sexual activity apart from marriage and family life. Some parents believe that some forms of sexual expression are disordered and should be subject to moral judgment. Some families' religious beliefs forbid contraception and birth control. It seems that a lot of parents believe that in a public school, where teachers must teach on sexual matters without reference to moral authority, the courses could result in a vapid, contextfree presentation of sexual mechanics which degrades and debases the meaning of relations between the sexes.

America's youth is lagging behind most of the world academically. Let's not waste the talent

Education reform starts with attitude

To the editor:

Historically, we've been getting those who teach our children on the cheap. The teacher is the one we frown upon when he/she joins a union to get almost the same pay as a prison guard or garbage hauler.

Education Secretary Richard Riley has urged that we make teaching a year-round profession and raise the pay and status of the people who educate our children.

The politicians can talk about education reform until the cows come home, but Johnny won't be reading or writing better until we do what is necessary to draw into teaching the cream of America's talent.

Somehow, we think that dedication will make bright students ignore the reality that neither ment, I have done the research. My work includes year-long empirical studies of students using the Internet for science investigations. collaboration in university research projects, and of course, a thorough review of research literature. In a different setting, I have worked with students for 10 years as a classroom teacher. Other than implied research articles, I am unclear of the basis for Mr. Skrbina's authoritative comments. Should schools do as Mr.

Skrbina suggests and eliminate computers from our classrooms, curricula and schools? I doubt the majority of parents in our community (like Ms. Nash - thank you for sharing your views) would agree with this perspective, as they understand its implication in their children's present and future lives. Value judgments aside, shouldn't we be asking how students and teachers can use technology (and in what settings) in ways to enhance learning?

Students can benefit from technology when appropriately supported by teachers. I am convinced students can use technology for entertainment, but they need to be taught how to maximize its use for learning. For example, the World Wide Web is a large source of information, and students often have difficulty making sense of the facts they find. Teachers need to encourage students to process this information deeply by engaging them in conversations, asking clarifying questions, requiring reflective writing, and critiquing their in-process understandings. Students can - and do - learn in these technology-based, teachersupported environments. I believe computers do have a place in schools along with textbooks, test tubes, rulers, calculators, field trips, encyclopedias, videotapes, and the like. As I stated before, computers are simply tools for learning. Let's spend our time and effort discussing how to use these tools in productive ways.

Rock bands to take over Victorian Fest

Chamber director says

fresh approach may help

By BYE BIRDIE Washed Up Wannabee

Move over, barber shop quartets. Your time is up.

The Northville Chamber of Commerce announced this week a decision to allow heavy metal rock bands to perform during the annual Victorian Festival.

Chamber executive director Laurie Marrs said the change was critical to the continued viability of the festival. which last year drew in an estimated 50.000 people.

"People get sick of Andrew these brass Dietderich bands after a while, so we decided to try a new approach." she said. "Blistering guitar and ear-bleeding drum riffs are the way to go."

Among the bands that will be getting top billing: Kreacher Uv Habit. fronted by Northville Record reporter Andrew "Deetch" Dietderich. With such tunes as "Throw A Bone." "Ants" and "Numbgun" to their credit. Kreacher Uv Habit was expected to whip the crowd into a frenzy during the Saturday evening headline performance.

"Parasols are great in mosh pits." Dietderich said. You can lay a lick into someone's jaw pretty effectively if you do it right."

Marrs was so certain that the new, cutting-edge style of music at the festival would be a success that she contacted Saugerties, N.Y. Chamber director Harvey Whimpleman for advice on how to handle the expected crowds. Saugerties has been the site of the original Woodstock music festival and its anniversary presentations since then.

"He said we should be prepared for chaos, confusion, garbage, rancid stench and decibel levels that could smash glass in a heartbeat." Marrs said. "Other than that, it sounds as if everything should be A-OK.

Other acts that may be added to the bill include Metallica, Corosion of Conformity, Morbid Angel, Kid Rock and newcomers The Brainsuckers.

In preparation for the mass of humanity expected to descend on Northville for the festival, Marrs said Hines Park and Meadowbrook Golf Course would be converted into tent cities to house the fans for the weekend event. Likewise, the rooftop of MainCenter Apartments would be rigged with super-sized speakers capable of generating some 75.000 watts of output.

"If I lived in those places, I'd either be buying some earplugs or making plans to be out of town for the weekend," Marrs said.

Marrs said the city stood to take in $10 million in revenue from the event, but would likely spend $9.9 million on private security, cleanup and reconstruction costs.

Record managing editor Bob Jackson said Dietderich would continue his duties as a reporter through June, when he would take a three-month sabbatical in prepa-

The decision was made after several failed attempts by the federal government to convince OPEC nations to increase production of oil, thereby reducing the cost to American consumers.

U.S. Energy Secretary Bill Richardson said the Mill Pond area would provide "the perfect inland waterway for shipment of petroleum products across Michigan and the Midwest.

The plan called for the Mill Pond to be dredged to a depth of 350 feet - or almost 90 times deeper than it is now. The Rouge River will be widened to approximately 100 yards. Richardson said those living along the affected corridor would be assessed based on the amount of water frontage owned.

Once the reconfiguration is completed, Richardson said an estimated 20 barges would traverse through Northville each day. carrying more than 3 million barrels of crude around the Victorian village. The shipments were expected to commence by September.

The decision was met with fierce merges into the St. Lawrence opposition from the Alliance for Responsible Environmental Policy. Spokesperson Melissa Roosen described the plan as "diabolical," and said any attempt to reconfigure the waterway would be met with stiff resistance."

"It's the most irresponsible concept we've ever heard." Roosen said. "Why not just build a nuclear power plant while they're at it?" Roosen said Alliance members planned to tread water in the Mill Pond to prevent any earth-moving equipment from doing its work. With an estimated membership of 30,000, Roosen said the human blockade would prevent any such excavation from taking place. Richardson wasn't impressed. "Let 'em bring 3 million, for all I care - we need that oil." Richardson said. "These SUV's aren't cheap to drive, you know." Roosen said she would be con-

Smorgasbord of questions, answers on etiquette

Some questions you wondered about but were afraid to ask:

g. I recently received an invitation to a party. I do not have anything else planned for that evening and will not be busy. Nevertheless, I do not wish to attend the party. How do I gracefully refuse the invitation and not feel guilty about u?

A. Going or not going to the party is a matter of free choice. Since you chose not to go, you simply say. "I'm so sorry but I can't make it." You do not have to give any excuses, explanations or reasons. And, above all, you do not have to feel guilty.

As an extra note, do not ever refuse an invitation giving the false excuse that you are not well or that you will be out of town or that you are staying home and studying for an exam or whatever excuse, and then accept another invitation for a different affair for the same evening. No town is large enough where someone won't see you and word gets around. Then is when you need to feel guilty.

Also, if you are the host and are doing the inviting and a would-be guest states they cannot make it to your affair, do not ask why and start to cross-examine them. Simply accept their answer, say you are sorry they cannot come and you look forward to seeing them another time.

9. A co-worker in the office where I work borrowed $20 from me saying she would pay it back the following week. It has now been over two weeks and she still has not paid it back. What's more, she has not even mentioned it. How can I go about reminding her of it?

A. Ah. how right Shakespeare was: "Never a borrower or lender be!" I can understand when it is said that more marriages break up and more quarrels take place over money than anything else.

"forgotten" the loan, you need to use a tunately, not all women are ladies. direct approach and say. "Do you happen to have that $20 I lent you two weeks ago?" Whether you are the borrower or lender, don't pretend you forgot about the loan - you both know you haven't. Did you ever notice when you are paying back a loan to someone, that person will pretend he's "forgotten" he loaned it to you? No way. It's been on his mind everytime he saw you.

9. My friends and I could not agree on the correct length of a tie that is worn with a business suit. Could you help us out?

A. A tie should be worn so that the bottom tip comes down to the middle of the belt buckle. No shirt should be seen between the belt and the tie. Also, the tie should not overlap the buckle.

G. I will be speaking to a group of businesswomen at an upcoming event. What is the appropriate term for me to use when I address them - "females." "ladies" or "women?"

A. The most accepted and preferred term is "women." That being said, I must Since your co-worker seems to have add that all females are women but unfor-

9. My daughter has taken to wearing a baseball cap as have all her friends, both boys and girls. It seems they wear them all the time whether they are indoors or out in school, shopping malls, homes, and even at the dinner table. I may be from the old school but I find this habit appalling. I was always taught hats should be removed when indoors.

A. Except under certain circumstances such as the Jewish kipah or yarmulke. males should always remove their hats when indoors. Women do not have to follow this rule. However, since the baseball cap is a unisex cap, it is still considered a man's cap, therefore, it should be removed by both males and females when indoors. Sorry guys and gals, but that's how it is.

G. I was at a gathering recently and walked up to two friends who evidently were in a deep conversation. When I joined them they made me feel as if I were intruding and I felt embarrassed. As I don't wish to have this happen again, how do I know if its proper to approach someone?

A. Actually. at a casual get-together. you should feel free to mix and socialize. It is not a time for heavy, long-winded or personal conversations or heavy business discussions.

Also, it is not a good idea to spend the evening in a corner with a few close friends or relatives.

Your host invited you so you could add life to the party. A social gathering is a time to mingle, make light conversation and meet new friends.

Your friends were wrong to make you feel unwelcome. It is they who should be embarrassed. Greeting you with a handshake and including you in their conversation would have been the thoughtful thing to do.

For your information, however, the next time you encounter this situation, take not of their body language.

When two people are in conversation and facing each other directly, they are saying they do not want anyone to join them, when they are standing at an angle with their torsos forming two sides of a triangle, it is an invitation for a third party to join them. Body language — you are telling the whole world about yourself without your uttering a word.

Doing 'Whatever It Takes'

Teens weave web of fake e-mails, plotted phone calls, and mistaken identities

When two couples weave a web of fake e-mails, plotted phone calls and contrived double dates, they mess with fate and mess everything up in the edgy, outrageous "Whatever It Takes."

OK. he does play the accordion and his mom is the school's sex-ed obsessed nurse, but Ryan Woodman (Shane West) does have one thing in common with the coolest segment of the male population at Gilmore High — he has a massive crush on the most luscious knockout ever to walk its hallowed halls. Ashley Grant ("She's All That's" Jodi Lyn O'Keefe).

Enter Chris (James Franco), resident babe magnet, who's pining after Ryan's best friend Maggie (Marla Sokoloff), a girl-next-door with beauty, brains and heart. Ryan and Chris join forces and hatch a plan which. if successful, will land them both with the right girl — or so they think.

"Whatever It Takes' is set against the backdrop of dating in high school." says writer and coproducer Mark Schwahn of the film. "It is about the journey that Ryan. our modern-day Cyrano, takes to overcome his feelings of inadequacy and be comfortable with who he is."

The project got off the ground when producer Paul Schiff, whose credits include the offbeat hit "Rushmore," read a script of Schwahn's call "The Mulligan" and was intrigued by the young writer's unique voice.

"I thought he would be perfect for 'Whatever It Takes' — a contemporary story for a young audience," says Schiff. "Mark brought a lot to the project that wasn't in the original idea." Schiff recognized that the often humorous, occasionally heartbreaking themes behind the story packed universal appeal. To that end. Schiff and his vice president of development/co-producer Matt Berenson collaborated with Schwahn to create a screenplay that would attract a broad range of moviegoers without losing the essence of the original idea.

"When Mark turned in his first draft. we were thrilled." says Schiff. "He had a unique and exceptional voice."

"I believe all writers created from a place that they know and develop their voice from life experience," adds Schwahn. "Relating to the adolescent social terrain was easy. The challenge was to make this story unique, fresh and textured."

Explains Berenson: "When approaching the filmmaking process, we looked at our audience."

There are 60 million teens out there and not a lot of great stories being told about them.

This story is a perfect thematic fit because high school is about learning that it is okay to be yourself and learning that the most important relationships are often those we take for granted.

"It's a wonderful comedy with heart." said David Raynr, actorturned-writer-director. "It's about Ryan, who is in love with the untouchable Ashley Grant. Ryan's best buddy is the lovely Marla Sokoloff, who stars as 'Maggie."

After a foiled spying attempt on the girl's P.E. showers, the popular, cocky 'Chris' approaches Ryan with a deal, and Chris convinces Ryan that they should help each other get the girl they both know the other wants so badly.

Each character changes personalities until Ryan realizes that he liked being a nice guy, that he is who he is — and that he is really in love with Maggie." describes Raynr. "Sometimes you miss seeing the things that are closest to you."

"Whatever It Takes," currently playing in theaters, is rated "PG-13"

NASA launches 'Mission to Mars'

The year is 2020 and NASA has made another giant leap for mankind, successfully landing a team of astronauts on Mars. Shortly after their arrival on the Martian surface, however, Mission Commander Luke Graham (Don Cheadle) and his colleagues encounter something bizarre, shocking, and chilling that brings about a catastrophic and mysterious disaster that decimates the crew.

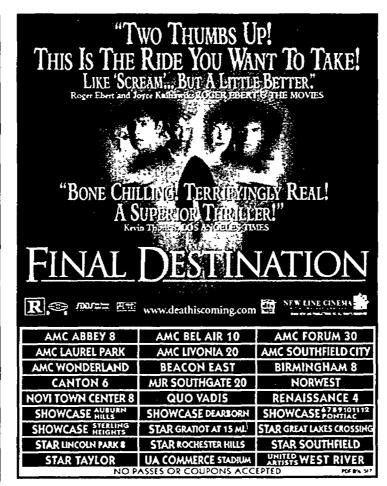

Graham is able to send one hasty: cryptic message back to Earth before his nightmare begins.

Haunted by the enigmatic last communication received from the ill-fated Mars One crew, NASA hurriedly prepares and launches a rescue mission to investigate the tragedy and bring back survivors — if any.

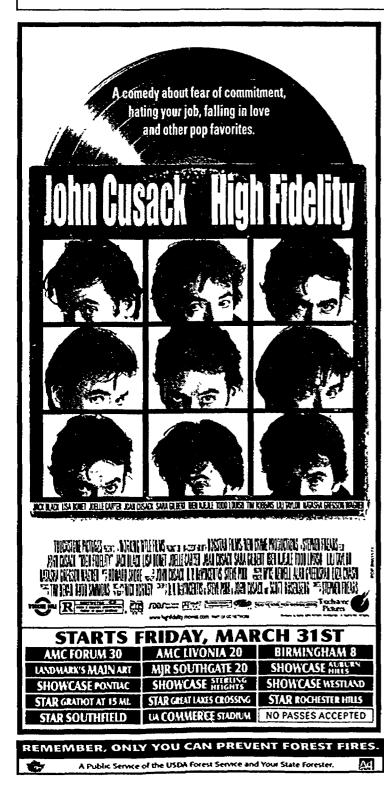

Co-piloted by Commander Woody Blake (Tim Robbins) and Jim McConnell (Gary Sinise). with colleagues Dr. Terri Fisher (Connie Nielsen) and scientist Phil Ohlmyer (Jerry O'Connell) on board, the astronauts set out on a heroic six-month journey to Mars.

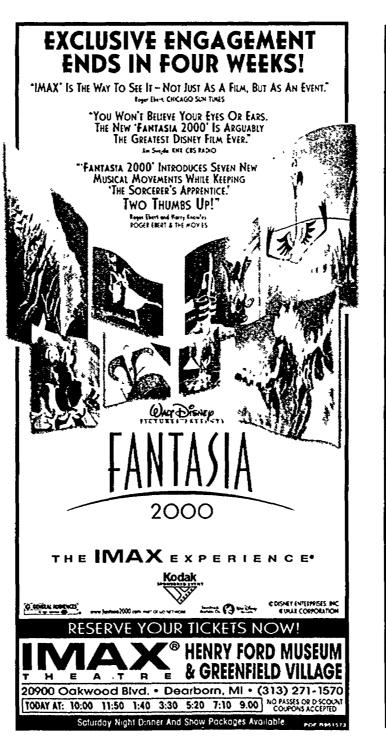

"Mission to Mars" is the extraordinary story of the astronauts of the Mars Recovery Mission, the nearly insurmountable dangers that confront the heroic crew on their journey through space, and the amazing discovery they make when they finally reach Mars. Touchstone Pictures presents a Jacobson Company production of a Brian De Palma film, "Mission to Mars."

Kings of the Rink

All-area team boasts offensive threats galore

This year the Kensington Valley what they came up with. Conference was full of surprises.

Not necessarily overachievements. but surprises with players and teams coming out of no where to make their mark in the league. Take for example Novi, which transformed from a middle-of-the-pack first-year program to a co-KVC champion (with Milford). The team was as talented as any in the league, but to many it was a surprise finish.

Look at Novi's top player. Brad Zarem. The junior winger came out of no where (actually a good AAA program) to lead the league with 32 KVC points and was the top votegetter at the all-KVC meeting held after the season. Did he play above or beyond his level? No, he just came out of no where to surprise some people.

Milford lost its top player (Cory OToole), yet still had enough depth and talent to win a second-straight conference championship. Northville picked up its play in the second-half of the season and stormed back to take third place in a tough Western Lakes Activities Association conference. Were they that good all along. yes. But they came out of no where late to surprise some people.

South Lyon had a pair of scorers (Dan Merritt and Rick Wosek) who had people wondering, where did they come from. Well they came out of no where to surprise some people this year.'

In an area of many surprises. HomeTown Newspapers takes a closer look at the best of the best by selecting the six best players Northville, Novi, Lakeland, Milford and South Lyon could offer. Here's

Brad Zarem

Novi forward-HomeTown Player of the Year

There's not a KVC award for newcomer of the year, so Zarem went ahead and earned HomeTown's 2000 player of the year honor after posting astronomical numbers in just his first year playing high-school hockey.

The junior set school records with 42 goals and 28 assists while leading the area with 70 points. His 21 goals and 11 assists gave him a leaguehigh 32 points in KVC action. He was first team-all KVC and firstteam all-state, one of just 12 forwards to receive the honor.

Travis Malott

Novi senior forward He and Zarem formed the best 1-2 tandem in the league and one of the best in the state.

The senior captain scored 24 goals and assisted on 24 others. His 25 points in league play was fourth best as he earned second-team all-KVC honors.

"He's the kind of player who can control a game," Novi coach Dan Phelps said. "He can dictate the pace of a game and what the outcome will be. Now that's a quality player."

Malott has been invited to tryout for the Michigan High School Showcase all-state team, which is limited to invited high school seniors only.

Paul Schiebold Milford senior forward

The other forwards on the first team have more gaudy numbers.

HomeTown's all-area first team includes (I-r) Milford forward ford defenseman A.J. Perrault. Northville forward Rob Ryan Paul Schiebold, Novi forward Travis Malott, Milford goalie Jason Mulligan (on net), Novi forward Brad Zarem and Mil-

For myself, working behind a sports desk many hours a week. I rarely get the chance to thank people for everything they do to make my job easier. Whether at be the coach or athletic director taking my call or going out of his way to call me, or the anxious mother or father dropping off a needed photo and culline for their child's hockey or soccer team. No matter where you start on the team, it's loaded with skilled players. The defense is led by junior Emily Carbott, a perennial all-conference player who has also made HomeTown's first-team all-area squad two years running.

"She's one of the best sweepers in the state," the coach said. She was great as a sophomore. but as a junior she's even better. She really runs the show back there."

Joining Carbott on defense will by senior co-captain Colleen Thompson. Meteyer describes her as being a great complement to Carbott with her size and strength. 'She's our enforcer out there," the coach said.

Both senior Lorianne Blair and sophomore Kelly Anderson will play at the stopper position and "wreak havoc" on opposing team's offenses, according to the coach. Blair is described as being shy while Anderson is coming off reconstructive knee surgery and won't be at 100 percent right away. Senior Anna Schovers and junior Jenny Sykes will also play defense this season, along with juniors Jessica Zwiesler and Katie McLaughlin.

Northville's second of three captains, Laura Kozub will lead the team from her midfield position. Meteyer tried Kozub in the center, but feels her speed could land her on the outside.

a select group of individuals who maybe mean as much to my section and special sections as anyone. It's a group of people who not only gather information and give it to us here at the paper, but they also shell out the bucks to make my sections and myself go.

I'm talking about the many advertisers who so gencrously purchase the advertisements which give me an opportunity to spread the good news of some 47 high school teams, along with hundreds of other club or individuals who appear in the sports publications of the Novi News and Northville Record.

Many times the editorial staff of a newspaper takes little time to look at just who's helping to pay their salaries. We see our sections each week, but focus our attention on the hard copy we just spent 40-plus hours putting together. It's not all that uncommon. but that's just the way it is.

But when I spend numerous hours putting together special sports sections such as the 1999 and 2000 District Basketball Previews along with The Battle of the Millennium football special from this past fall, I also took the time out to see which area businesses helped me put it all together.

And at this time I'd like to thank them, or at least mention each of those people who made my projects

Northville players celebrate after a goal earlier this season.

Ryan joins 1st team

Rob Ryan Northville junior forward

All anyone needs to know is that Ryan carned first-team all-league honors (one of three forwards) in one of the toughest conference's in the state (Western Lakes Activities Asso ciation).

He finished the season with 23 all-state selection at forward this goals and 22 assists in 26 games.

Northville finished third in their league behind Livonia Stevenson and Livonia Churchill.

"He's a pure goal scorer," his coach Brad O'Neill said. "He's scored goals in every way for us. And he only had 20 penalty minutes all year. He was there when we needed him on the ice."

Ryan was an honorable-mention season.

Block "saves" a spot on second team

Although a few stood out above the rest, there were many talented players who stepped and made plays when their teams needed them most.

HomeTown Newspapers allarea second team is composed of a bunch of tough hockey players who definitely know how to put the puck in the net. just ask South Lyon's opponents.

Cam Kiesgen

Milford junior defenseman Kiesgen missed the first half of the season with an knee injury, but still ended up as a secondteam all-league pick. As a sophomore. Cam was a talented and important member of Milford's 1999 team. He was much better in 2000, as he was able to stay on the ice to take advantage of those talents.

"He worked hard, and kept his penalty minutes down," Milford coach Gary Johnson said. "It was a shame he missed half the season.

Perrault will be gone, but with Kiesgen, Darren Terry, Darrell Kalis and goalie Brian Cervin all coming back, next season the Redskins will again have the best defense in the KVC.

Pat Klein

Lakeland junior forward One of the best skaters in the league, Klein was honorable mention All-KVC. He was Lakeland's leading scorer with 21 goals and 29 assists for 50 points. In KVC play he was the fifth-leading scorer with 11 goals and 13 assists.

"Klein was our offensive catalyst." Lakeland coach Frank Zack said. "He's the one we went to."

Dan Merritt

South Lyon junior forward A lurker, a sniper, Merritt is a big kid with eyes only for the net. He came out of nowhere to finish the year as the KVC's number two scorer, with 11 goals and 19 assists in the league. A physical player, as well, Merritt led South Lyon in penalty minutes, too. He was voted second-team All-KVC by the league's coaches.

Rick Wosek

Defense was South Lyon's Achilles' Heel all season. As the season wore on, coach Marc Pouliot entrusted more minutes to his younger forwards, and moved his top senior - Wosek to defense. With their best passer holding it down on the back line, the Lions began playing their best hockey of the season. Others took notice, and Wosek was named second-team All-KVC. He was the league's number three scorer, with eight goals and 19 assists.

Jered Genso Novi junior defender

Definitely the workhorse and unsung hero in the Wildcat's run towards the KVC and regional titles. Genso played on average 30 to 35 minutes a game for coach Dan Phelps.

"He's the backbone of our defense," coach Dan Phelps said. Tve got a blessing with him coming back next year."

Genso's defense allowed just 29 goals in 12 KVC games this sea-

South Lyon senior defense- son. He was a second-team allconference selection.

Josh Block Northville goalie

The name says it all for this Northville senior.

His 2.90 goals against average was very solid, but what was more impressive was that the Mustang netminder faced 544 shots this saved 96.7 percent of season and Josh Block them. "He's had an incredible year,"

Northville coach Brad O'Neill said. "He has the attitude of 'I want the game.' He wants to win the game for us."

Block was all-division, Western Lakes selection and was voted MVP by his own teammates. He posted a 16-7-2 record and started all but two of his teams games.

Even when the Northville defense was not on, Block had to be. And most of the time he was.

Junior Katle Jones will be spelling Kozub and her coach has been particularly impressed with her anticipation of the ball.

Junior Michelle Manarina and sophomore Maggie Ossola will be alternating starts at a midfield position. Ossola's growth over the last few years has given her long legs, which Meteyer said has contributed to her tremendous speed.

The lone freshman on this year's team. Nicole Cauzillo, could make tremendous waves in her first year at the high school. She's an Olympic Development Player who's played at high levels for several years now. Meteyer said she's special, but his biggest concern will be how durable she'll be at her size (5-foot-3).

"There's not a coach in the state who's not aware of her," Meteyer said. "There's not a better freshman around. She's so aggressive and quick." The coach said there's a noticeable difference when Cauzillo is in the game.

Gathering most of the goals this year will be a trio of veterans with a ton of playing experience behind them. Senior captain Angela Maile and sophomore Larisa Fill share similar traits, and will start at the forward slots.

"They've got good shots with both feet and they screen the ball very well," their coach said.

Lindsey Dunmead rounds out the players in the field and will play at both forward and in the midfield. The sophomore is aggressive, sometimes too much for her coache's liking.

"She has very little concern about hurting herself. So think about what she thinks about hurting the other team," Meteyer joked. "She doesn't back down a bit. She gets right in there."

The key to this year's team may lay upon the shoulders of junior goal keeper Alex Katona. It's long been known that she would love to play in the field, and she has all the athleticism to do so. But in the past she has used her superior netminding skills to help her team out.

"She's very good, but she's sucked it up because she knew we didn't have another goalie here," the coach said. "I want to get her out on the field, so we're working with one or two of our JV goalies to help get them ready to take over for her."

Katona was last year's team MVP and can keep her team in a game single handedly.

Meteyer said he had 60 girls out for soccer this spring, and he kept 19 on varsity and eventually had to cut 18 from the program. With only a varsity and junior varsity team to play on, there were simply too many girls. There is currently a proposal which would add a freshman team and open up needed opportunities for more boys and girls.

Meteyer was mostly pleased with his teams reclassification back into Division II this year. Last year the Mustangs were a D-1 school which played against the likes of Plymouth Salem. Livonia Stevenson and Novi. This year Northville is in a district with all three of the Farmington schools. Redford Union and Livonia Ladywood.

The Mustangs opened up their season last night against Brighton, and continue against Novi tomorrow night at Novi High School. That game begins at 6 p.m.

Take care of our Earth. It's the only one we have!

RECORD

Alivia will hear all about it

Sixteen-month old Alivia Anderson of Sparta, Mich., doesn't realize it yet, but she's already made medical history three times over. When she's a little older, she'll hear all about it from her older brothers and sisters - and that's the most amazing part.

Alivia, born deaf, is the fifth child in her immediate family to receive the gift of hearing at the University of Michigan through the use of a medical device called a cochlear implant. She and five others of the eight Anderson children were born with a genetic condition that left them severely or profoundly deaf. Besides the five with implants, one sibling uses a hearing aid.

As if the national record of five implants in one family weren't enough. Alivia is also one of the youngest patients in the nation ever to undergo the cochlear implant operation, at 13 1/2 months. She's also the 500th patient - and the 300th child - to receive an implant at the U-M, as part of one of the nation's busiest and oldest cochlear implant programs.

"It's like life is starting anew for her and it's exciting that she now has the opportunities that other children in our family have." says her mother, Darlene. We definitely consider all of them a miracle. We don't even want to think where our children would be without the implants because of the benefit they have received.'

Of all the Anderson children. Alivia may receive the most benefit from her implant, says Terry Zwolan Ph.D., director of the U-M Cochlear Implant Program "We're seeing that the sooner a child gets an implant, the sooner we can tap into speech and language development.

In fact, she and U-M audiology chief Paul Kileny Ph.D. have just completed a study of 102 children who received their cochlear implants at different ages. They found that children who received their implants at a younger age did better on word and sentence recognition tests.

Advances in technology also help. Alivia and two of her sublings have the Nucleus-24 Cochlear Implant System, made by the Cochlear Corp. Two others have a slightly earlier version.

"About ten years ago, cochlear implants were nothing. says Zwolan under more getting such a numbers are acceiving their implants as yours and we're getting such a numbers are acceiving their implants as yours ince results that criteria have expanded to as 18 months. nice results that criteria have expanded to as 18 months." "? include adults and children with severe to profound hearing loss." About 200 adults have received cochlear implants at the U-M.

Alivia and her hearing-impaired siblings were all born with what's called the Mondini malformation, in which the cochlea - the snail-shaped part of the inner car that channels vibrations to the auditory nerve and the brain - is malformed. Instead of a hollow spiral for sound to travel through, their cochleae are incomplete, preventing or limiting the ear-to-brain communication that makes hearing possible. That's why the surgically inserted cochlear implants are such a good choice for the Anderson children and thousands of others each year.

Cochlear implants transform speech and sound into electrical signals that the brain can interpret. They bypass the normal function of the outer car, hair cells and cochlea, using surgically implanted electrodes and digital signal processors worn on the ear or body to do the work that the damaged or malformed ear structures can't do.

The first step is capturing sound: A small magnetic microphone on the outside of the head, held in place by an implanted magnet, picks up sounds and sends them to a processor. After the processor's programming translates the signals, the impulses travel through a coil to a receiver inside the ear. The implant transmits these signals through dozens of electrodes to the auditory nerve and brain, allowing the wearer to detect and understand speech and noise.

The Nucleus-24 model that Alivia was fitted with uses the first miniaturized device worn behind the ear, as well as a second processor the size of a pager worn on the body. It will allow her audiologists to fine-tune the sound she hears and the way speech is interpreted.

"Hearing aids and cochlear implants are very different instruments," says Zwolan. "A hearing aid amplifies normal sound and uses the hearing that a person has to let them process that sound. It's simply making sounds louder. A cochlear implant replaces the hearing inside the cochlea - that's why it's reserved for people who can't benefit from hearing aids."

As a result, Zwolan explains, hearing impaired children as young as 3 months can be fitted with hearing aids, but the more profoundly deaf may be unable to hear appropriately even with the most powerful hearing aids. So, through the use of cochlear implants, physicians at the U-M and other centers are Zwolan and others are beginning to see proof that intervening at such a young age can help children develop the normal speech and language skills that hearing children acquire at about the same age. The Andersons hope that

Alivia will have an even easier time adapting to the implant - and to being able to hear - than their children who received implants at older ages

But, Zwolan says, not until the first group of early-implanted kids reaches school will researchers know for sure. "We have great hopes for these children that they will lead a normal hearing life." she says. "But it's so recently that we've started to do these really young children that only time will tell if we're able to fully mainstream them into normal hearing classrooms."

Added Darlene Anderson after Alivia's implant was turned on for the first time and the toddler first reacted to sound. "This is only the beginning. We know that now that she has this ability, we have to work with her to teach her to listen to sounds and to help her in her language.

That life has already begun, with Alivia's parents and siblings teaching her simple songs and reading books aloud to her. Someday, they'll be able to tell her the story of how she made medical history.

UM-FACTS

Facts About Cochlear Implants

. More than 25,000 people in the world have cochlear implants, most of them with the Nucleus system used in the Anderson children.

 Cochlear implants are used in more than 80 countries.

. The devices were approved for use by the Food and Drug Administration in 1985 for adults and in 1990 for children.

· Patients currently receive a cochlear implant in one ear.

. The operation to insert a cochlear implant lasts about 1 1/2 hours and costs around $50,000, which is usually covered by insurance. About four to six weeks later, an audiologist will add the components outside the ear, turn the implant on for the first time and tune it up. Additional tuning at later checkups helps customize the sound and speech nocessor for each patient. Conclusion inplants in a second rise and chil-ther who have severe to procomprise rug loss in both ears, limited benefit from healthy aids and a strong desire to be part of the hearing world. Children who receive the implants are placed in educational programs to help them develop auditory sills. * • * * · ·

HOW TO Asphalt driveway can be repaired

By Gene Gary COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

Q. We have an asphalt driveway that has developed cracks and several sunken spots. It was resurfaced just before we purchased the property three years ago. Can this be repaired by simply applying another, thicker layer of blacktop over the existing surface? Is this a project for a do-it-yourselfer?

A. An asphalt driveway that has been resur-faced several times and is deteriorating overall should probably be removed and a new driveway installed. The feasibility of restoring the existing driveway depends on the condition of the foundation.

Blacktop, in and of itself, has very little tensile strength. It derives the greatest portion of its strength from the base or foundation. Herein lies the source of most cracks in blacktop. The base for many blacktop driveways is crushed gravel. This base is more often than not applied directly on the soil. Both the base and the soil have to be able to support the loads that will be placed on them.

If a quality foundation was installed to begin with, an older driveway can often be restored to like-new condition by some relatively inexpensive maintenance steps. The first step is to give your driveway a thorough inspection. If serious cracking covers 75 percent of the surface, don't consider resurfacing. The existing driveway should be removed.

If the surface remains fairly intact, with a few cracks and some potholes, it is likely that you can repair these yourself. Loose material in potholes or crumbled areas should be dug out to the earth base of the driveway. Weeds growing through cracks or holes should be pulled out by the roots if possible, and the entire driveway should be swept clean of loose dirt and hosed down. The entire surface should be cleaned with a special asphalt-driveway cleaner or scrubbed with a strong detergent and rinsed thoroughly.

The basic materials needed for blacktop repair are bagged, premixed asphalt patcher for filling potholes, badly damaged areas and large cracks: asphalt crack filler for cracks up to 1/2 inch

Want to turn your ugly duckling bathroom into a beauty? The Spring Home and Garden show may have all the magic you'll need

By ANNETTE JAWORSKI Special Writer

It's bad enough to deal with morning breath and pillow hair without having to face an ugly bathroom.

Visitors to the Spring Home and Garden Show at the Novi Expo Center can try their luck at winning a whole new look to their morning by entering the Mathison Kitchen. Bath and Plumbing's Ugliest Bathroom Contest. They'll rescue one lucky person who submits a photo of the most gruesome bathroom.

Mathison's Kitchen Bath and Plumbing of Livonia are among the sponsors of the award. Last year, the contest received 500 entries. In the past two years they've sponsored the contest, Frank Mathison, co-owner of Mathison's, says that's he's seen it all.

'In the entries, we've had everything including a bathroom with wall-to- wall, I guess I should say, ceiling-to-ceiling shag carpet." he notes.

An ugly typically bathroom has fixtures. tiles or colors that have seen better years.

Many times it's something that's old, or worn out, according to Mathison. It's not going to be the person that didn't clean their bathroom for a year.

Remember the fluorescent colors of the 1970s? He's seen harvest gold and avocado green fixtures together. And one entry with pink and black tile and a green toilet.

Ugliest bathroom could earn new look

"They're clean, they're just ugly," he said.

Some changes are easy. It may be just a matter of getting rid of that lime green toilet seat. It's also possible to replace a sink or a medicine cabinet to update a dull bathroom. Tubs and things involving detailed plumbing require a more extensive and expensive overhaul, he points out.

It's hard not to look beautiful with today's new bathroom fixtures. How about a sterling swan shaped goose neck faucet by Harden? Or an elegant shell-shaped pedestal sink?

The lowly throne is now coming in a variety of colors like saffron vellow or Venetian pink. There's even a special Blues Brothers edition with the skyline of Chicago surrounding the bowl. But if you have an older toilet, keep it, is his advice. You'll prefer the flushing power, should we say pressure, to the newer water-conserving models.

With today's new and improved materials, fixtures are more resistant to corrosion. Even shower doors are coming with smaller tracks so they're easier to clean and maintain. When replacing fixtures, many of the newer faucets have improved finishes that resist hard water build up, often a problem with well water users.

The new PVD brass finish is available on any finish for lifetime finishes. It's good for customers with hard water," Mathison said.

How about the crowning glory - a new Jason Air Masseur bathtub? It comes with 62 air jets, a blower and heater to warm the back and neck area. A light with a dimmer switch and different lenses, depending on your mood. And to really put a smile on your face, it's self-cleaning and self-maintaining.

wide: and surface sealer (called coater by some manufacturers).

When patching, clean out all loose asphalt and gravel. Scrape around the edge of the hole until you have a solid edge. Fill the hole to within 1 inch of the top with asphalt patch mix. Use a 4-by-4inch timber to tamp the mixture into the hole. Make sure the mixture is pressed firmly against the edges. Add additional patch mix so the filled area is about 1/2 inch above the level of the driveway. Finally, tamp this area flush using the timber.

If the hole you're filling is deep (3 inches or more), you may need to place a board over the patch and drive your car over it to firmly seat the patching material. After filling cracks and patching holes, you have to wait a while before sealing (follow manufacturer's direction on recommended timing and specific application instruc-The purpose of tions). sealers/fillers is to prevent moisture from working its way into the asphalt, since it causes most of the damage to asphalt driveways.

In colder climates, the water expands and contracts when it freezes and thaws, breaking up the asphalt. In warmer areas, water can wash away the asphalt base, which leads to low spots or depressions in the driveway's surface. If you proceed with repairs.

be sure the weather conditions are be done again in the future. If you University Heights, OH 44118. The in your favor. Avoid any possibility of rain during the process. Most manufacturer's recommend the temperature be at least 55 degrees or above. Warmer and less humid conditions will speed drying time.

Asphalt driveway sealers usually come in 5-gallon containers, which cover 200 to 300 square feet. Sealer is best applied with a special long-handled brush-squeegee, sold wherever sealer is sold. There are two types available: sealer or sealer/filler combination, which has tiny fibers that fill hairline cracks. Generally, you're better off using the sealer/filler. since most driveways always have some cracks. Remember that a sealer is a preventive coating, not a repair.

Crack filler is available in 1-gallon, pourable liquid containers or caulk tubes. The caulk type is neater, but you'll use more tubes than liquid, making it more expensive overall. Asphalt patch is most often sold in bags weighting about 60 pounds, containing about 1/2 foot of patch material which is enough to fill a 1-by-2-foot hole to a depth of 3 inches.

For a complete resurfacing, and a more permanent surface repair, hot-mix patch. fillers and sealers are used. The hot-mix materials and equipment, however, are not available to the do-it-yourselfer. For that reason, the repairs you make with cold patch may need to

Q. The enclosed photo is of a pink marbleized celluloid dresser set. My father gave it to my mother in the mid-1930s. It is in excellent condition, and the nail buffer appears to have never been used.

I'd very much like to know the approximate value of the set.

A. Celluloid is an early plastic that was invented in 1868 by John Wesley Hyatt. It is a highly flammable material and often yellows with age. Celluloid was used from the late 1800s to the 1940s. It was used to make imitation tortoise shell, ivory and amber. Several companies used celluloid to produce sewing items, plano keys, jewelry and even false teeth.

Your dresser set would probably be worth about $125 to $150.

Homework helpers

ClubZ tutoring company helps kids with school studies in their homes

By Annette Jaworski Special Writer

If you've got school age children, chances are you've experienced the homework hassles.

If nightly study sessions are more like a battleground. Club Z Tutoring Services wants to call a truce.

"It's practically impossible to tutor your own child," says Direc-tor of Club Z, Dean Thompson.

"It's so frustrating for both sides, often it's the mother that calls and is at her wit's end."

An outside force takes the stress off the family relationship when it comes to homework, and is often the best catalyst for change, he notes.

"What they often need is some good one on one time with the subject, and to just get it done."

Small step by step successes help to build the student's confidence.

*Confidence is the key, no matter what subject you do, whether it's math or English." he said.

What often happens during that time is a mentoring process, which is highly beneficial for the student.

"Our philosophy or goal is to make kids life-long learners. We'd like nothing more than to have our students be so successful they don't need tutoring," said Dean Thompson.

Wife Kathryn, co-director, with over 24 years experience teaching in six school districts agrees.

"The main goal of our company is to educate the world one by one by creating life long learners."

Her background gives her invaluable insight to the world of learning.

"I understand where they're coming from as a parent, and as an educator, I can see it from the classroom and teacher's point of view," said Kathryn Thompson.

With society placing more demands on working parents, it's a relief to have someone that comes into the home, as opposed to having one more place to drive. as in center based tutoring, she points out.

There's also more demands on today's student's time and pres-

The process begins with a free consultation.

Meeting face to face gives both parties time to be comfortable. It also gives the Club Z representative a chance to see the child's working environment.

They'll ask relevant questions about their study habits - such as how much time do they spend doing homework and reading.

Also they'll find out how much time they spend watching TV or on the computer.

The individual needs of the student will then be discussed and a plan presented as to the best way to meet those needs.

About 45 hand selected tutors represent Club Z, covering a wide variety of backgrounds.

They're chosen after a lengthy interview and background check. Many are retired, qualified or certified teachers. Some have successful careers in the business sector, and others are active students from the University of Michigan. Most important is their ability and desire to work with children. Dean and Kathryn Thompson also own a successful Club Z franchise in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Locally.. Club Z's tutors cover a wide area including Plymouth. Canton, Novi, Northville, Farmington Hills, Brighton, South Lyon and some areas of Green Oak Township and Ann Arbor. Contact them at (734) 844-0078 or toll free (888) 817-5225. Or visit their web site at www.clubztutoring.com
