Schools: 'There is no cheating'

By JENNIFER NORRIS
Staff Writer

A Michigan Treasury Department report that Winchester Elementary had irregular Michigan Assessment Test results has Northville school officials furious over the allegations.

The Department of Treasury claimed last week to have found test irregularities on the fifth grade writing portion of the Michigan Educational Assessment Program test taken by Winchester students, as well as students in 71 other Michigan districts earlier this year.

"I am frankly very disappointed and outraged," said Northville superintendent Leonard Rezmierski. "There was no cheating involved."

Bridget Medina, spokesperson for the Treasury Department, said that the test irregularities indicate that students' written responses were either nearly identical or had similarly-phrased answers on their test.

"The answers were irregular in that there were similar answers and similar wording, and in some cases verbatim items," said Medina.

She said the actual test answers were sent to the districts and each district is required to respond with an explanation for the test results by the end of the work week.

Rezmierski said he was angry that the allegations were made public before the district even had the test papers in hand.

"We were tried and convicted and we didn't even know what the charges were," he said. "It's unconscionable. We are expecting nothing short of a full-blown apology from the state Department of Treasury. We were published as part of a group that had cheated."

Rezmierski said that he received an initial

Colligan given interim position

By JENNIFER NORRIS

The Northville school year may be drawing to a close, but the search for a permanent Northville High School principal isn't.

For the time being, though, the new face holding the top spot at NHS will belong to assistant principal Dennis Colligan, who was selected to be the interim principal of Northville High School for the 2001-2002 school year. Colligan's new duties will begin July 1.

Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski announced at the June 11 board meeting that Colligan had agreed to accept position as interim principal.

According to Colligan, the interview process began on April 30. He said he was ready to take the reigns of Northville High School.

"I'm ready to move forward and do the best I can," he said.

Colligan has been a part of Residents living at Northville's Allen Terrace will now be able to feast their eyes on new pieces of artwork created by Northville High School students.

A reception was hosted at Allen Terrace June 7 to publicly acknowledge the students for their work and put the pieces on display for the residents to see.

Students involved with the art club at the high school presented framed black and white photographs and a painting to the residents of Allen Terrace.

The pictures portrayed picturesque locations around Northville or areas that were meaningful to the students.

"I hope they get as much enjoyment looking at them as we did making them," said Phillip Maza, a junior at the high school.

Housing director Joanne Inglis, said the art would be a welcome — and very visible — addition to the building.

"We can always use more art," she said. "It's really great how much interaction there is with the community."

Inglis said she appreciated Northville's Pictures Plus Gallery for their assistance in the project.

"I learned photography in two days," said Kate Andary, a 2001 graduate of Northville. "I think it's a great way to give back to the community. I've always wanted to do art."

Aesthetics, design hamper Cambridge

By LON HUHMAN
Staff Writer

Amid changes and even more changes, the June 26 Northville city planning commission meeting may prove to be a crucial step for the future of the Cambridge Place development in downtown Northville.

A public hearing was held at the Northville city planning commission meeting on June 5 in order to have the planning commission receive input from residents and business owners on the proposed Cambridge Place planned unit development. Cambridge Development Company, L.L.C. is seeking preliminary PUD approval for the Cambridge Place development. The development is proposed to be a mixed use five-story building that will be located on the south side of Cady Street and east of Center Street.

"A PUD customizes a site."

Rick Birdsall
Northville Planning Commissioner

Some of the residents attending the hearing asked the commission to better define a PUD. Commission chairperson Jay Wendt said a PUD was a way around the city's ordinances because in some situations — such as Cambridge Place — applicants don't adhere to city ordinances, thus prompting PUD designation. Wendt said even though Cambridge Place sponsors are seeking to work outside city zoning ordinances, the commission can put restrictions on the project and request modifications.

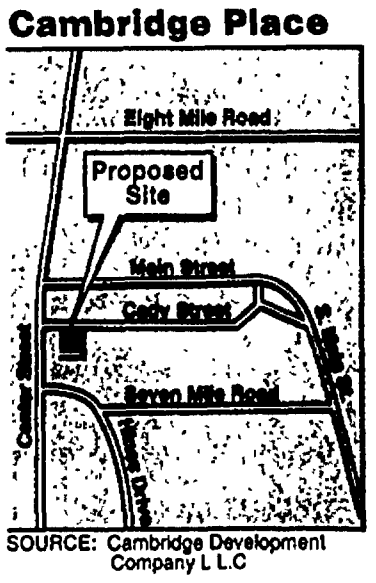

"A PUD customizes a site," commissioner Rick Birdsall said.

Concerns with the development were first raised by resident Jim Perkins. Perkins said he was concerned about the increase of traffic volume in an already busy downtown area, specifically on Center Street during morning and afternoon hours. Perkins said that in his opinion the access points for the development are not adequate.

"One main concern I have is that the ingress and egress routes are not capable of handling the increase in traffic this proposed develop-

Inking of agreement sets rec future for Hillside space

By LON HUHMAN
Staff Writer

The future recreational use of Hillside Middle School has been secured well into the future.

The Northville city council concurred with the township board of trustees as well as the Board of Education and approved the Hillside recreation center lease agreement at their June 4 meeting. The township board of trustees approved the lease at a special meeting on May 10 and the Board of Education approved the lease on June 5. The lease agreement involves community use of the recreation center at Hillside for the years 2001 through 2016, with two 10 year extensions.

According to Northville Parks and recreation director Traci Sincock, the Hillside lease agreement involves a 15-year lease and the use of selected Hillside facilities.

"The Northville Community Center lease, which was prepared by attorneys for the city, township and board of education, was used as a basis for the Hillside lease agreement," Sincock said. "The history of the lease agreement began in 1997 when the Northville School District

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Editor

At one point during his trip to Antarctica, Rick Denomme couldn't even get his equipment out of his satchel because soil on the frozen beaches was blowing so hard.

"It just would have been like a sandblaster on the lenses," said Denomme, a Northville wildlife photographer. "There's no way it would have worked."

Antarctica is just one of the exotic places Denomme and his wife, Connie, have traveled. In fact, they've been to every continent except Asia and Australia.

"We'd like to get back to Africa," said Denomme, who spent several days in Kenya and Tanzania. "We're hoping to return there in the next year or so."

> You can wait and wait and wait, and then you have to fire off all these shots in a matter of seconds."
>
> Rick Denomme
> wildlife photographer

Denomme got his start in photography more than 20 years ago while he was employed with Farmer Jack. At the time, shooting pictures of animals was little more than a hobby for him, but weekends at Kensington Metropark were a regular part of his week.

"I started out shooting a lot of songbirds and raccoons," said Denomme. "People seemed to like them, so I decided to take things a little bit further."

When he's not shooting, he's planning trips. When he's not planning trips, he's taking trips. When he's not taking trips, he's scheduling appearances at art shows (like Northville's Art in The Sun festival), and when he's not scheduling appearances at art shows, he's shooting.

Getting the shots themselves can be more than a little challenging. Unlike studio photography, animals don't make appointments for appearances. And when they appear (or rather, if they appear) it's usually not for long.

"You can wait and wait and wait, and then have to fire off all these shots in a matter of seconds," Denomme said. "You've got to be ready for the moment, because you never know when it's going to come."

Wildlife can also be somewhat dangerous. While shooting at Theodore Roosevelt National Park, Denomme came upon a herd of around 200 bison near a river. Thinking that a head-on shot would be the best-looking, Denomme positioned himself downstream and moved in for the shot.

For reasons still unclear, the bison began thundering in his direction. Had it not been for a 4-foot culvert cut into the edge of a riverbank that Denomme was able to jump into, there's a good chance he would have been steamrolled.

"All I can figure is that they wanted out of that water," said Connie Denomme, who watched the episode unfold from a safe location. "There was something about being there that just really got them unnerved."

All of Denomme's work comes from prints generated from internegs — oversized color negatives. (Speaking of color, that's the only way his images appear. Denomme says black-and-white animal shots just aren't in demand.)

Denomme is able to keep tight controls on the finished quality of the work he does, mostly because all the prints he creates are made in his own basement darkroom. And no — there's no technological wizardry involved in the shots. What you see in a shot is how the animal appeared when Denomme shot it.

"I don't even own a computer," Denomme said. "I want to retire from this job before I get one."

Denomme said he'd still like to shoot pictures of tigers — one of the few photogenic animals he hasn't captured on film as of yet. There's an entire universe of animals out there, but Denomme said the old favorites — seals, polar bears, birds, deer and leopards — are the most popular at art shows.

"People want what they know," he said.

Hollywood has helped Denomme's cause, too. Just by coincidence a few years ago, Denomme returned from a trip to shoot orca whales in British Columbia at the same time "Free Willy" was released in theaters.

"People went crazy for those shots," he said. "The timing couldn't have been better."

Denomme said he doesn't tire of shooting, even though it is his full-time job.

"Just this morning I got up and saw some cranes outside, so I thought I'd go out and shoot them," he said. "It's what I love to do."

Festival promises art of all varieties

By LON HUHMAN
STAFF WRITER

The beginning of summer has been wet, but this weekend things should brighten up in Northville with the annual Art in the Sun festival.

The 13 annual art show presented by the Northville Chamber of Commerce will be held in downtown Northville on Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Northville chamber of Commerce director Laurie Marrs said the art show is a great day for showcasing Northville. Marrs said the art show will take place on Main and Center streets.

"Main and Center streets will be closed down and this is where we will have our 135 exhibitors located," Marrs said. "Each exhibitor was selected by a jury that consisted of person with art backgrounds. We received over 300 applications for this year's show."

According to Marrs, the 135 exhibitors come from all over the country. Marrs said the selection will be wide and varied. She compares the art show with the annual art show that takes place in Ann Arbor each summer.

"One goal of the art show is to bring visitors into our community and fill the town," Marrs said. "There are other aspects to the show to go along with the viewing and choosing art show visitors will be doing."

Marrs said there will be an outdoor cafe with food and beverages next to the Kitchen Witch. The Straw Hat Brass Band will also be playing in the city's band shell, she said. In addition, there will be guitarists and other musicians performing at each street corner.

"The atmosphere will be great. A visitor can enjoy the outdoor dining while listening to the entertainment in the vintage band shell. Downtown merchants will also have special sales going on," Marrs said. "There will also be several radio stations on hand, and Ameritech will be giving away a PT Cruiser as well."

Marrs said the art show is expected to bring up to 30,000 people into Northville throughout the weekend.

She's making the art you can wear

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
Editor

The guardian of the studio is a tiny lovebird named Mia.

About the size of a sparrow, she's normally content to stare at the colored beads and mirrors in her cage, and doesn't appear to be the least bit tempted to fly out of the gaping hole. Katherine Wickersham reaches in and takes hold of the yellow feathery aviator, which quickly scurries up the front of her shirt.

"She's hiding," Wickersham explains. "Probably a little shy right about now." That being the case, she's relegated back to her white steel confines, where she happily gets back onto her perch.

The table where ordinary white linen or denim is transformed into a menagerie of color and prints overlooks Wickersham's backyard. Today, it's rather gloomy outside. Under normal circumstances, though, birds and small animals can be seen through the large sliding glass door.

"Nature is really my inspiration," says Wickersham. "That's kind of how I got my start."

> "I've always been inspired by nature. Color is definitely my thing."
>
> Katherine Wickersham
> wearables designer

How she really got her start (at least, after she received her master's degree from New York City's Pratt Institute) came about 15 years ago. At the time, Wickersham was spending most of her time working in watercolor paintings and as an art therapist.

Her husband, who worked for Boeing, needed to change jobs, and soon the Wickershams found themselves uprooting from Atlantic to Pacific seashore, this time in Seattle. While in the Rose City, Wickersham whipped up some T-shirts with imprints of salmon for a fishing derby that was to take place.

The shirts were hot items, and soon Wickersham found herself shifting gears from paintings to garments, due in no small part to the advice of friends, who suggested she pursue her craft on a larger scale.

Pursue it she has, and today, the Northville resident's basement is stuffed to the gills with everything from paints and dyes to order blanks and computers. Casual art buff no more, Wickersham's love for colored and imprinted fabric has now spilled over into a full-time business.

Still, it's the artistic element that keeps her going.

"I've always been inspired by nature," said Wickersham. "Color is definitely my thing."

The orders for her work have come in from as far as Colorado, but most of the shows she participates in take place in Michigan. Three racks of completed items await the public in a converted bedroom around the corner from her studio.

"Shows are great because you really get a chance to talk with the public and find out what they're looking for," she said. "It's a great opportunity to learn about what everyone is interested in."

Preparing for shows, like the Art In The Sun festival, isn't easy. Dozens of pieces — many of them mirror images of one another — need to be made for sale. In such instances, the passion for creation can sometimes be stifled. When that happens, Wickersham said she shifts gears and begins working on something else.

"I might do a scarf or something else, and before long, I'm back into it," she said.

The demand for Wickersham's work has been high. She's considered the possibility of bringing someone else into the loop to assist with the process, but that idea has never gone beyond much of a passing thought, she said.

"You'd lose your spirit and your soul as an artist," she said. "The entire process would get too mechanical for me. It's the art that I'm interested in."

Chris C. Davis is the editor of the Northville Record. He can be reached at (248) 349-1700, ext. 114, or at cdavis@ht.homecomm.net.

See? Through it all, Cambron's work is clearly unique

By CHRIS C. DAVIS
EDITOR

The best part of Nina Cambron's job comes when she cracks open the lid to one of the kilns in her basement. At that moment, the fruits of her labor are revealed in all their shiny glory.

Cambron, a Novi artist, specializes in fused glass. It's a unique look, in which tiny bits of glass are laid upon sheets of the material, and are interspersed with strips of brass and copper.

The result? A suncatcher with style.

"The fun of this is when you open up the kiln and see what you've created," Cambron said. "You can control quite a bit of what you do with the glass; but there are some things you just can't predict. That's the joy of the finished product. There's a certain romance to it."

Cambron — who will be participating in the Northville Art In The Sun festival — is an artist in every sense of the word. Educated at the Cleveland Institute of Art and the University of Michigan, Cambron's first passion was in drawing. Her shift into glass and ceramics occurred more as a result of necessity than anything.

As the story goes, Cambron needed a piece of tableware for a dinner she was hosting. Not seeing what she wanted on the store shelves, she took a chance with a kiln. The finished product set into motion a career path she's followed for the last five years.

"I've been doing tiles for the last five years and glass for the last two," Cambron said. "I consider my fused pieces to be drawings in glass, using metal inclusions like copper and brass. It's just more fluid and magical than pencil on paper."

Cambron's prices for her work aren't exactly dime-store level. The reason for that is simple: the cost for raw materials is very steep. Using a special kind of glass called 90COE, it melts at a rate different than conventional window glass.

Sold in terms of its weight, many of the sheets of glass Cambron keeps in her studio sell for $25 to $35. In one instance, a single piece of glass cost Cambron $50.

And then there's the cost of running the kiln, which needs to heat up to a mind-blowing 1,400 degrees Fahrenheit.

"I figure it costs me about $10 every time I run this thing, so I don't ever do it unless the kiln is full of pieces," she said.

Cambron's background in drawing has already allowed her to make a name for herself in the greeting card circle. Her drawings appear on many commercial printed goods, usually with a sly feminine humor slant.

For as passionate as Cambron is with her glasswork, Cambron said she doesn't get attached to the pieces she creates, many of which are on display at Dancing Eye Gallery in Northville.

"This is what I do for a living. This is how I make my money," Cambron said. "I'm a one-man show. I take inventory, I place orders, I do deliveries and I do accounting. But it's what I enjoy doing."

Just the same, it's more meaningful to Cambron to interact with customers who purchase her works through shows like Art In The Sun.

"You're able to educate people about how you make these things and answer the questions they have," she said. "You're much more able to communicate with them this way."

As a result of the art club, Andary said she not only learned new skills but also received another special benefit.

"I made some really great friends out of it," she said. "It's rewarding. I hd never taken a photograph. It was one of the biggest things I've ever done."

Resdident of Allen Terrace also expressed their appreciion of the artwork.

"They are so beautiful," said resident Mary Blakeman, admiring one of the photographs. "They are such a talented group of people. I'm impressed. They're all very good."

District fires back at state allegations of test fraud

call from the state on Thursday, but the paperwork did not arrive until approximately 12:35 p.m. the following day.

Within the paperwork were test answers written by three students from Winchester. In their written responses, the papers were noted as using the same four of five words about a parking issue, said school officials.

Rezmierski said there was a simple explanation for the similarity. He said that within the written essays, students had written about a parking problem at the elementary school. Just prior to the test, students had been actively involved in helping to resolve the problem of limited parking availability.

Nancy Raynes, principal of Winchester Elementary, said the question on the MEAP test asked students to describe a situation where they worked with others to solve a problem.

Raynes explained that in order to help create more parking areas, a blacktop area — which was initially used as a play area — became utilized for parking. She said she soon began receiving letters and e-mail messages from parents and students requesting that she reconsider that idea.

"The blacktop was intended for play," she said. "I was trying to find a way for the safety committee to review the safety aspects of the parking lot and the walking areas for students. [The students] were very engaged in that whole situation."

Raynes said students wrote letters and a few even made signs.

"Everything was done in a very acceptable manner," she said.

Since the students were actively involved in helping create a solution and worked cooperatively with others, school officials believed this was an ideal learning experience. And three students chose to write about the blacktop issue when a question on the MEAP test asked test-takers to describe a situation in which they helped solve a problem.

Raynes said she was stunned that state officials believed there were "irregularities" in those three tests. She said each of the three papers were noted as using four or five similar words but the phrases were not identical.

"They chose to write about it from their perspective," said Raynes. "For three students to write about that particular problem obviously suggests our students did experience a significant and personal [problem] to them. How wonderful they chose to write about something they were directly involved in."

She also expressed dismay at how claims of "test irregularities" were made.

"It's a very serious allegation," said Raynes. "It appears that Winchester's reputation has been challenged by this process. We had no idea what the nature of the concerns were. The element of time was not given to us. This announcement was made without an opportunity for us to respond. I believe the process should involve the school prior to a media release."

Raynes also said she would have welcomed the opportunity to review and discuss concerns about the test, but was not given that opportunity.

After examining each of the three test responses written by the students, Raynes said she found no indications of cheating or unethical behavior.

"I see three totally different points of view," said Raynes, addressing the test responses which ranged between two to five pages in length.

"I really consider these to be great papers. It's really sad for me to see what has evolved in terms of the classification that the state chose to put us in."

Raynes also said that the end of the school year should be a time to celebrate and focus on the students, but she has had to address the allegations of test irregularities during the final days.

"I'm devastated," she said. "In my 29 years of education, I've never seen anything like this. I feel like some of us have suffered. I think it's pretty unfair. We have not violated anything in terms of giving this test."

Officials have asked each district that is under suspicion to respond by the end of this week.

Rezmierski said he will provide a statement and have it turned in early.

"I'm still outraged over the waste of time, effort and money," he said.

Rezmierski said the topic of the students' essays made perfect sense to address for the test.

"They were engaged in this issue," he said. "They chose to write about that. They did a brilliant job with it."

He further said that the district was not afforded due process and said the charges were almost laughable.

"This couldn't be further than the truth," he said, adding that the press knew of the charges before the districts did. "This is not true at all. They have a right to be critical of us, but there is a due process. I'm most worried about those students and teachers that were singled out. If this is what MEAP is turning out to be, then we need to reexamine the purpose of it."

Joan Wadsworth, president of the Northville board of Education called the situation "appalling."

"For [the Treasury Department] to accuse all these schools before the schools even see the specifics is just intolerable," she said.

"They wrote about the blacktop problem," she said. "The issue was parents were concerned about parking at Winchester. The kids got involved. It was an issue that mattered to them. It was an issue near and dear to their heart."

Wadsworth joined Rezmierski and Raynes in her insistence that the integrity of the test was not compromised as a result of dishonesty.

"I believe there was no cheating. This is just appalling. I'm sure there are other districts like ours. There needs to be a great deal of care in investigating irregularities of a test."

Other school officials on the state level agreed that cases of cheating or test irregularities must be examined carefully.

"What went wrong is circumstances forced a list to be made public which wasn't ready," said state board of education member John Austin. "It was unfortunate that the list of irregularities was made public before the districts had the chance to do their own investigation."

Austin also said that officials will be talking with the Treasurer's office to prevent any mistakes from happening.

"Some schools were wrongly on the list," said Austin. "If there was any cheating, that's unacceptable. We've got to have a process for investigating cheating allegations."

Here is an explanation of what readers are told to consider as they score the writing portion of the MEAP test.

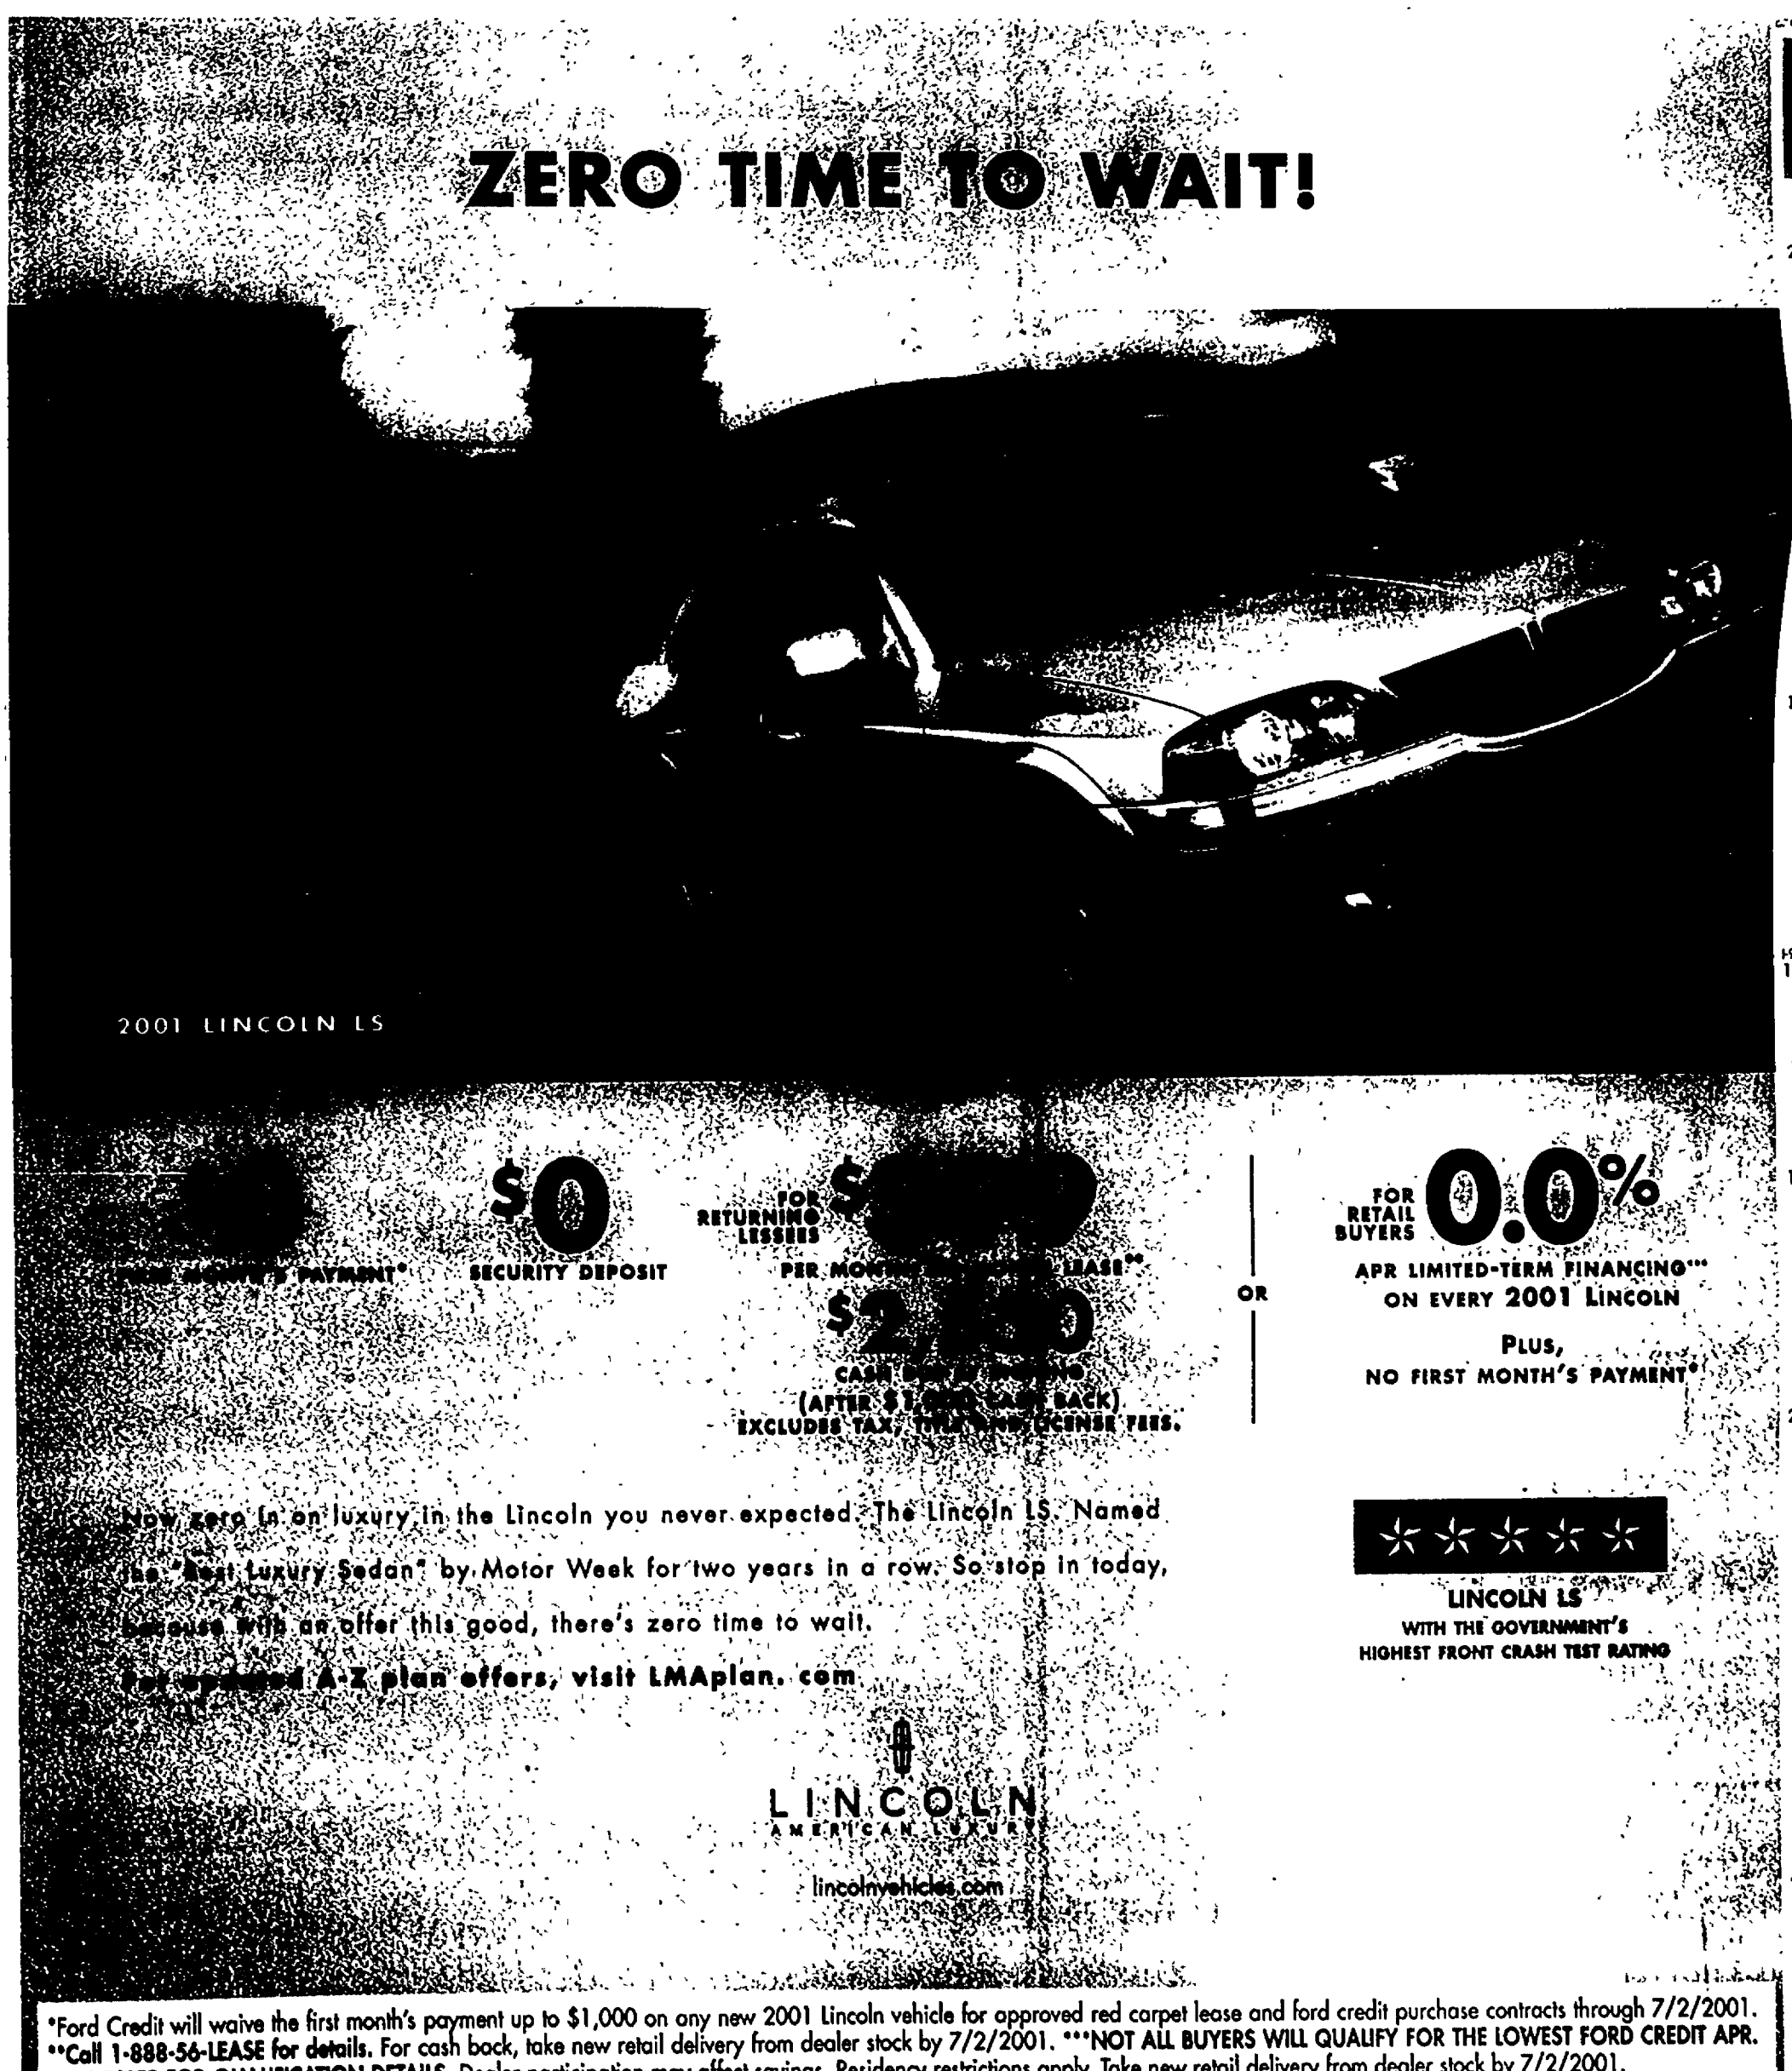

4 — Central ideas may be clearly developed through details and examples. The writing may have a natural flow and a clear sense of wholeness (beginning, middle, end); the organization helps move the reader through the text. A clear and engaging voice is likely to be demonstrated through precise word choice and varied sentence structure. Skillful use of writing conventions contributes to the writing effect.

3 — A recognizable central idea is evident and adequately developed. The writing has a sense of wholeness (beginning, middle, end) although it may lack details or have extraneous details which interfere with unity. Appropriate word choice and variable sentence structure contribute to the writing's effectiveness. There may be surface feature errors, but they don't interfere with understanding.

2 — The writing shows a recognizable central idea, yet it may not be sustained or developed. There is an attempt at organization although ideas may not be well connected or developed; vocabulary may be limited or inappropriate to the task; sentence structure may be somewhat simple. Surface feature errors may make understanding difficult.

1 — The writing may show little or no development of a central idea, or be too limited in length to demonstrate proficiency. There may be little direction or organization but, nevertheless, an ability to get important words on paper is demonstrated. Vocabulary and sentence structure may be simple. Minimal control of surface features (such as spelling, grammar/usage, capitalization, punctuation, and/or indenting) may severely interfere with understanding.

Not ratable if: Off topic, illegible, written in a language other than English, blank or refused to respond.

Summer concert series returns to city's bandshell

By LON HUHMAN
Staff Writer

That's not music from a car stereo or Poole's Tavern.

The sweet sounds that can be heard every Friday night throughout the summer are coming from the Northville city band shell. The longtime Northville Clock Concert series is beginning to pick up along with the summer temperatures. Northville Arts Commission chairperson Ken Naigus said there are some good upcoming concerts that are free of charge for residents looking to spend an evening outside listening to live music.

"The weather has hindered some of the concerts so far, but now with the weather looking better, residents should be able to better enjoy the 2001 concert series," Naigus said. "It's a great time for residents to socialize, sit and listening or just wander around and enjoy themselves."

The arts commission sponsors the concert series. The concerts begin at 7:30 p.m. and end around 9 p.m. Tomorrow, Rich Eddy's Rockin' Oldies Band will be playing.

Naigus said a number of local community bands will be performing at the band shell this summer, including the Novi Concert Band, performing classic concert music, Plymouth Community Band, Farmington Community Concert Band and Schoolcraft Wind Ensemble, which features some of the college's finest musicians.

"A new band being featured this year is the Bugs Beddow Band. They are a hot blues, rocking R&B band," Naigus said.

A special Sunday night concert is being held on June 24 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. According to Naigus, the special concert band is the Air National Guard Band of the Great Lakes from Toledo. The concert will also take place at the bandshell.

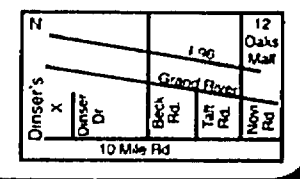

"For those who enjoy the community bands we feature each year, I am sure you will enjoy this 36-member band from Ohio," Naigus said.

With a flip of the tassel, Class of 2001 bids farewell

By JENNIFER NORRIS
Staff Writer

The class of 2001 has become official alumni of Northville High School June 9.

During the ceremony, class president Kelsey Jenney gave the formal welcome and a poem reflecting four years of high school memories was read by Dustin Kubas and Ashley Pyatenko.

Attorney General Jennifer Granholm also addressed the graduating class encouraging them prepare for their future and strive to meet all of their goals.

Many graduates said they have plans to attend college and spoke of fond high school memories.

"I'm never going to forget anyone," said Krista Luhtanen. She also said that she felt both happy and sad simultaneously.

"I'm excited about getting out but sad it'll be a little different," she said.

Luhtanen plans to attend Schoolcraft College in the fall.

Merrick Goodman said he was excited graduation day had finally arrived and said the one thing he'll remember most about high school is his friends.

"I'll miss hanging out with my friends and going to school events," said Goodman.

Don Patrick, a 2001 graduate, said he plans on going into the Army in August.

"I'm ready to get out of here," said Patrick, but added that he will miss his friends from school.

Moments after graduating as families and friends made their way towards the doors, the finality of graduation seemed unfathomable to some graduates.

"It hasn't hit me yet," said Dan Ferrara. He said he plans to attend Arizona State and possibly return to teach at Northville High School.

"I never thought this day would come," he said.

All-Night party thrills NHS graduates

By JENNIFER NORRIS
Staff Writer

"The decorations are amazing. They must have put so much work into this."

Kate Houren
NHS senior

Northville High School students had a night of fun as they participated in a specially planned "road trip" during their senior all-night party.

After many months and hours of work, the high school hallway can various rooms were transformed to resemble major cities and locations across the United States.

Event planners and organizers said that approximately 90 percent of the 2001 graduating class came to the gala event.

"It's awesome," said Kate Houren, a 2001 graduate. "The decorations are amazing. They must have put so much work into this."

Other seniors agreed that this party was one to remember.

"I think it's really well organized," said Stephanie McNellance. "We really appreciate it."

Some of the attractions among the hallways included scenes from New York, a Chicago-style coffee house, carnival games and even Las Vegas casino. Enormous inflatable obstacle courses were brought in and special Mustang horses were decorated to reflect various students. The horses were used as a fundraiser for the all-night party.

McNellance said the variety of activities made for an interesting party.

"It's better than I expected," she said.

CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN ORDINANCE NO. 100 CHAPTER 26 ADOPTION OF THE STATE OF MICHIGAN ELECTRICAL CODE OF 1999

An ordinance to designate an enforcing agency to discharge the responsibility of the Township of Northville under the provisions of the State Construction Code (Act No. 230 of the Public Acts of 1972, as amended).

The Charter Township of Northville ordains:

Section 1. AGENCY DESIGNATED. Pursuant to the provision of the 1999 Michigan Electrical Code, in accordance with Section 9 of Act 230, P.A. 1972, as amended, the Electrical Official of the Township of Northville is hereby designated as the enforcing agency to discharge the responsibility of the Township of Northville under Act 230, P.A., 1972, State of Michigan. The Township of Northville assumes responsibility for the administration and enforcement of said Act throughout its corporate limits.

Section 2. REPEALS. All ordinances inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed.

Sub-Section A

The State of Michigan Electrical Code based on the 1999 NFPA National Electrical Code shall be known as the Electrical Code of the Township of Northville.

Sub-Section B

The permit and inspection and fees for all electrical work shall be as set forth in the fee schedule established by resolution of the Township Board of Trustees of the Township of Northville.

Sub-Section C

Any person who shall violate the provisions of this Chapter or who shall install electrical work in violation of an approved plan or directive of the Building Official or Electrical Inspector of a permit or certificate issued under the provisions of this Code shall be responsible for a municipal civil infraction, unless a different fine is specified in connection with a particular section:

(1) First Offense. The civil fine for a first offense violation shall be in the amount of not less than $150.00, plus costs and other sanctions for each offense.

(2) Repeal Offense. The civil fine for any offense which is a repeat offense shall be in an amount of not less than $300.00, plus costs and other sanctions for each offense.

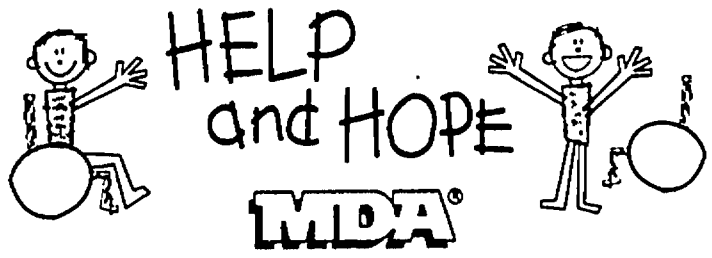

Sub-Section D

Any person who shall continue any electrical work in or about the structure after having been served with a stop work order, except such work as that person is directed to perform to remove a violation or unsafe conditions, shall be subject to the penalties noted above.

LET'S TALK Jewelry WITH GARY S. WEINSTEIN GEMOLOGIST

RARE AS RUBY?

Emeralds, diamonds and sapphires take a back seat to rubies of the same quality when it comes to price because rubies are the rarest of gemstones. And, when one takes into consideration that this colored gemstone is as durable as it is beautiful (second only to diamond in terms of hardness), it is easy to see why ruby sells for such premium. The most prized examples of ruby come from Myanmar (formerly known as Burma) with a clear, medium red color that somewhat approximates that of a traffic light. Those that come from Thailand, the world's primary source of ruby, are brownish red. If ruby from either of these sources is too rich for your blood, consider red spinel.

The important thing to keep in mind when it comes to buying gemstones such as rubies, is that one should choose a true professional. For anyone not totally familiar with fine jewelry and gemstones, knowing and having confidence in his jeweler is of the utmost importance.

PREVENT FOOT PROBLEMS

Of the more than 300 possible foot ailments a person can develop, most would be prevented if people stopped abusing and neglecting their feet. Proper foot care increases comfort and helps prevent painful conditions. It limits the potential for related medical problems that can occur with foot disorders, including arthritis and circulatory disease. Foot care reduces the possibility of infection and helps people stay mobile as they age, which helps keep them out of nursing homes and other institutions. To keep feet healthy, wear properly fitted shoes with a firm sole and soft upper. Avoid tight-fitting socks and pantyhose that can constrict blood flow. Bathe feet in warm water with a mild soap, then moisturize. Trim toenails straight across.

Because your feet are the foundation of your entire body, keeping them strong and healthy is fundamental to your well-being. If foot problems point to trouble elsewhere in the body, or result from other conditions, we will work with the members of your health care team to ensure your good health. Keep your body's foundation in the best of health - call us at NOVI FOOTCARE ASSOCIATES, 248-476-1500. Our office is located at 39555 West Ten Mile Road, Suite 307.

Obituaries

WILLIAM R. BARNARD

William R. Barnard, 81, died June 5 in Arbor Hospice, Ann Arbor. He was born in Detroit Feb. 23, 1920, to Ralph and Mabel (Teagan) Barnard.

Before retiring in 1977, Mr. Barnard was a manager and vice president with Standard Federal. He served the company for 37 years. Mr. Barnard was an Army veteran of World War II. He was a first lieutenant in the infantry whose unit saw action in the Rome Arno and North Apennines Campaigns. Mr. Barnard was awarded the Purple Heart for injuries he sustained.

He is survived by his wife, Betty and daughter, Susan Field, both of Northville; one sister, Jean Schoolfield, and one granddaughter, Kimberly Field.

COLLEEN S. BEYER

Academic honors get their due at honors night event

By JENNIFER NORRIS
Staff Writer

Years of hard work have finally paid off for Northville High School students.

Members of the graduating class had their chance to shine at an honors convocation on May 30 hosted in the theater of Northville High School.

The students were honored for a number of accomplishments via scholarships, certificates and recognition from family and friends.

Students who have earned a grade point average of 3.0 to 3.49 are ranked Cum laude. The next highest ranking, Magna cum laude, is granted for those students with a GPA ranging between 3.5 to 3.79. Finally, students with a GPA between 3.8 to 4.0 graduated Summa cum laude.

Students were also honored with various department awards, individual student awards, special awards and scholarships.

In addition, many students were recognized with the State of Michigan Competitive Scholarship Certificate of Recognition, Michigan Merit Awards and the Presidential Academic Fitness Award.

"It's time we have a chance to honor students who have worked so hard," said Dennis Colligan, assistant principal of Northville High School said. "All the students here tonight have excelled in the classroom."

Senior Rachel Klinck had a similar opinion.

"It's a time to celebrate what we achieved as a class and as individuals," she said.

Students also said a night of awards and honors helps highlight student accomplishments.

Jessica Anchor, a graduating senior, said, "It's exciting to honor [students] in your class and recognize them for the wonderful job they've done."

She also said she had no idea that so many scholarships and awards existed and were being awarded to deserving seniors.

"All that you've worked for is starting to come together now," Anchor said.

Safety Town gears up for summer youth programs

By LON HUHMAN
Staff Writer

Learning about safety can be fun.

The very popular Safety Town program headed by the Northville Parks and Recreation Department is set to begin another summer of teaching children the importance of community safety on the school bus, in the home and in traffic. According to Safety Town program coordinator Pat Brown, the program helps children learn all aspects of safety. Brown said the program, which is also nationally recognized, is geared for the children entering kindergarten in the fall of 2001.

"Children are taught safety lessons through movies, guest speakers, art projects, games as well as much more," Brown said. "A typical session day will involve a specific topic that will correspond with an activity."

Program speakers and visitors will include Northville policemen, an ambulance driver, a lifeguard and representatives from CSX Transportation and Detroit Edison. The program will be held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church. Brown said the program is great preparation for the children.

Brown said the program topics will include a police officer teaching the children how to use 911 in the case of an emergency and the dangers of strangers. A Northville schools bus driver will also make an appearance to demonstrate the proper way to sit on the bus and also the general bus rules. The representative from Detroit Edison will teach the children about electrical safety inside and outside of their homes. In addition, water safety lessons will be given by a lifeguard.

"One unique program day is when we teach the children about traffic safety by using a mock town that is painted in the parking lot. The mock town even has constructed traffic signs," Brown said. "This is a very realistic, but fun way for the Safety Town children to learn about what specific signs mean."

Brown said one important part of the program is the work of the volunteers. She said Safety Town relies on many volunteers to get the job done correctly. A large segment of the volunteers are made up of area teenagers who perform the volunteer work because they want to as well as liking to work with children and fulfilling community service hours for school or other organization requirements.

"Our volunteers, specifically the teen volunteers, make it happen," Brown said. "The program would not run if it wasn't for them."

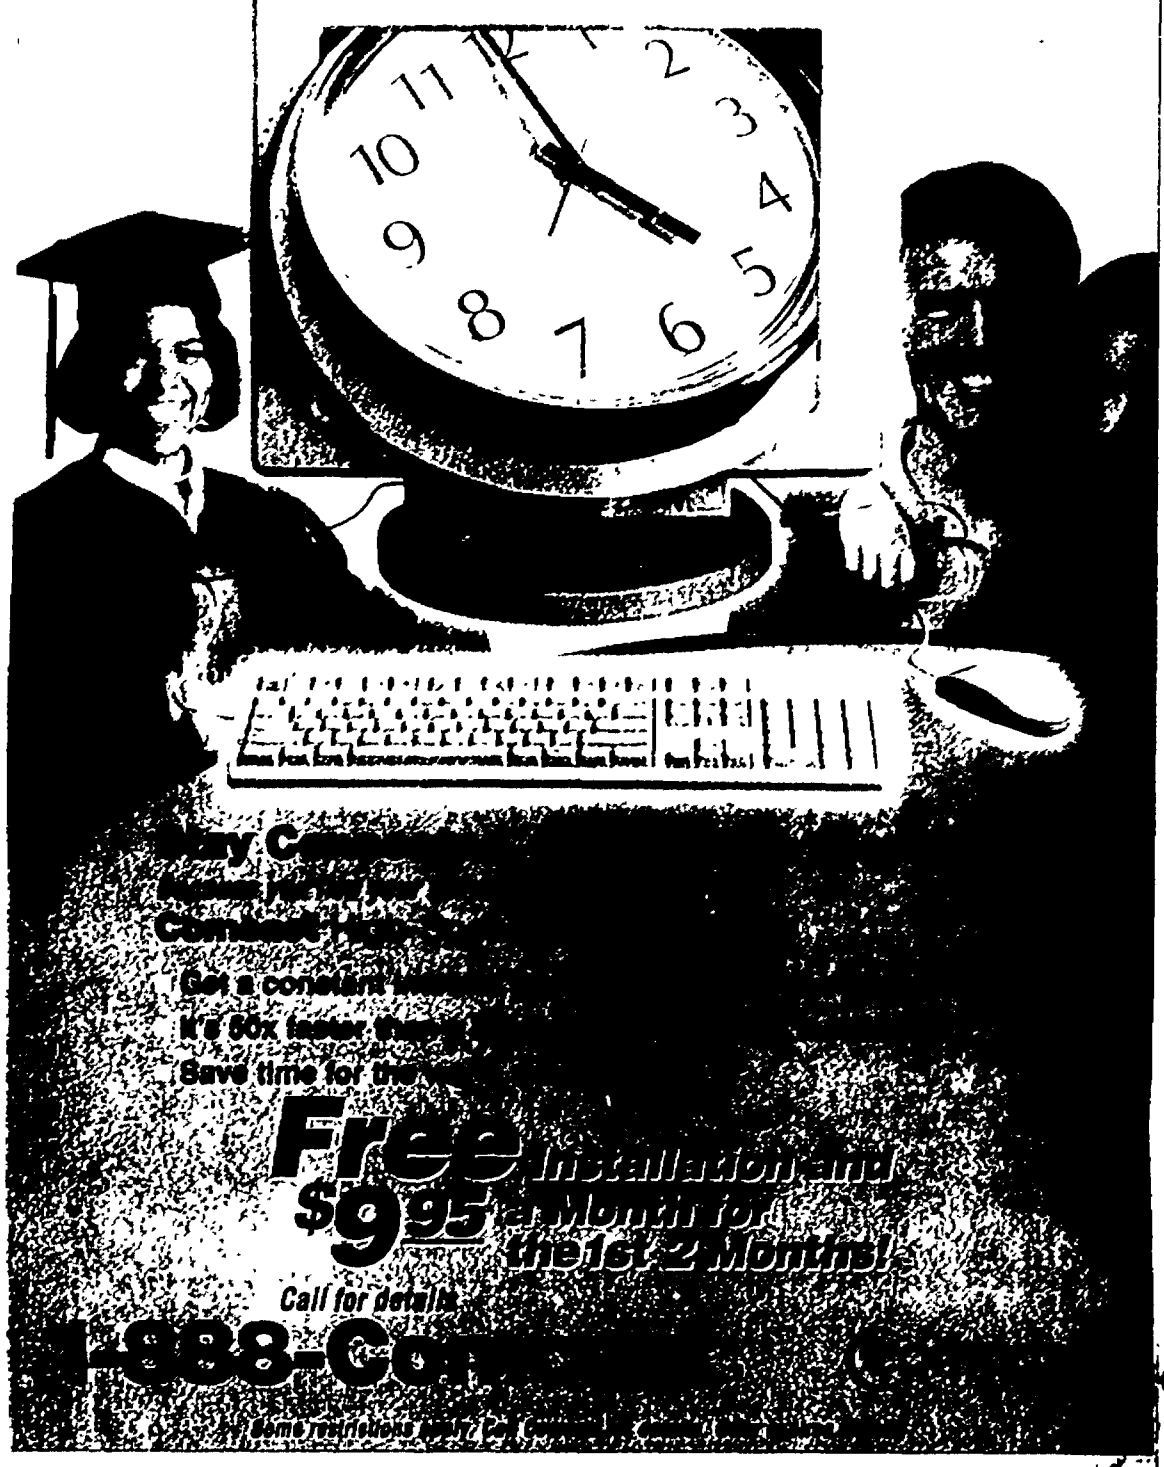

According to Brown, volunteers are still needed. A volunteer would have to devote two hours per day for two weeks. Brown said volunteering is ideal for teens, parents or grandparents.

"Registration started on Monday and session spaces have filled up quickly," Brown said. "Interested parents can call the Northville Parks and Recreation Department in order to find out if there is any more available space."

The parks and recreation department can be reached by calling (248) 349-0203.

Hair today, gone tomorrow: NHS buzzes for charity

By JENNIFER NORRIS
Staff Writer

Several teachers and administrators have lost a few pounds ...a few pounds of hair, that is.

As part of what turned out to be a school-wide fundraiser for the Make-A-Wish foundation, several Northville High School officials volunteered to have their head completely shaved.

When the last penny was counted $9,063 was collected for the foundation, said teacher Bob Boshoven, who was in charge of the fundraiser.

Students in his three consumer math classes were responsible for initiating the drive and encouraging students to donate. Approximately, 70 went to work collecting pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters and cash as well as returnable cans and bottles.

According to Boshoven, this was a staggering and unexpected amount of money raised.

"We raised it eight days," he said.

This donation will provide enough money for more than one wish.

Boshoven said it costs approximately $6,000 to grant one wish through the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

He said when the project first began, the group hoped to raise $1,000, which was the amount raised last year through a sumo-wrestling event.

"Our goal was to get as much as last year, [but] we were already there two days into it," he said.

Boshoven said he would like to thank the principals and the high school staff for their participation and patience.

Kurt Kinde, a teacher at the high school, also was one of the staff who agreed to have his hair shaved off.

He said he thought its purpose was for a good cause and said it would be something students would remember for a long time.

"We'll all be back to normal in six months," he said with a smile.

Assistant principal Gail Weeks was slated to have her hair shaved, but opted to contribute a sizable donation to the Make-A-Wish foundation instead.

However, principal Tom Johnson and assistant principal Dennis Colligan received an extremely short trim.

"The students were absolutely fantastic. It really brought everybody together. It was just wonderful."

Hillside's future to be rich with rec opportunities developed a bond issue proposal for voters to consider, which included construction of a new high school."

Sincock said as a part of the bond proposal the school district offered the use of space at what is now Hillside for community recreation purposes. She said the existing partnership between the schools and the city [illegible] with the demonstrated need for additional indoor recreation facilities made the offer a desirable one. The next step was an extensive evaluation of the Hillside space by architectural and construction management firms.

"After eliminating several more costly renovation proposals, in Oct. of 2000, the parks and recreation commission presented a preferred plan of building improvements to the city council, township board of trustees and board of education," Sincock said. "With approvals from the community elected officials to proceed with the project, the final details were developed."

After improvements are made residents will be able to utilize Hillside's pool and adjacent locker rooms, multi-purpose rooms, former weight/fitness rooms, and former concession stand. Sincock said the activity center gymnasiums and surrounding offices will also be used.

"I would like to express my thanks to the board of trustees as well as the board of education for getting this lease agreement finalized so quickly," mayor Chris Johnson said. "This lease agreement will provide residents with additional recreational opportunities."

Colligan named NHS interim principal

Northville Schools district for 27 years, serving as a special education teacher, head football coach, district athletic director and most recently, assistant principal.

He said he believes that his collective experiences within the district will help transition himself into his new position.

"I'm just looking forward to leading the high school in a positive direction," said Colligan. "I'm ready to get started. I'm looking forward to the change and offering everything I have."

Northville board of education president Joan Wadsworth said members of the school board are slated to approve Colligan's position at its June 26 meeting and said she was looking forward to him beginning his new responsibilities.

"He's done a great job for the school district," said Wadsworth. "I think it's a good appointment."

Two assistant principal positions at Northville High School are yet to be filled.

Wadsworth said the district will repost the position of high school principal sometime during the 2001-2002 academic school year.

Assistant superintendent David Bolitho said the district is in the process of paper screening applicants for the position of assistant principal that Colligan is vacating, and also said he was happy about Colligan's new appointment.

"I'm excited for him," he said.

Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski said Colligan will begin doing transitional projects right away and will be closely involved in filling the positions of the two vacant assistant principal positions.

"I have every confidence in Dennis to do the job," said Rezmierski. "He did a lot of deep thinking on this."

Rezmierski also said that in his years with the district, he has seen Colligan accept and handle greater responsibilities and looked forward to working with him and building the administrative team at the high school.

"I am again extremely confident in the choices we have made," he said. "He's the person that can lead us. I have every confidence in him to do an outstanding job."

Jennifer Norris is a staff writer for the Northville Record. She can be reached at (248) 349-1700 ext. 107 or by e-mail at jnorris@ht.homecomm.net.

MARGARET M. LUBISCO

Margaret M. "Peggy" Lubisco, 75, died June 8 in Providence Hospital, Southfield. She was born in Queens, N.Y. Dec. 12, 1925, to James Joseph and Mary (O'Connor) Mahon.

Mrs. Lubisco was a secretary with General Motors for 20 years prior to her retirement.

She is survived by daughter, Peggy Ann (Frank) Gilroy of Bellmore, N.Y.; son, Michael (Veronica) of Northville; one sister, Veronica Parker of Bethel, Conn.; and 10 grandchildren.

Mrs. Lubisco was preceded in death by her husband, Nicholas D. in 1998.

A funeral Mass was celebrated on Tuesday, June 12 at Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church; the Rev. Steve Wertanen officiated.

Arrangements were made by Northrop-Sassaman Funeral Home of Northville.

Richard Theodore Martin, 89, of Lake Havasu City, Ariz., formerly of Northville, died June 4 at his home. He was born July 18, 1911, in Detroit, Mich.

Mr. Martin moved from Northville to Lake Havasu 30 years ago. He was a graduate and member of the University of Michigan Alumni Class of 1933. Additional memberships included the Elks Club, Lake Havasu Lodge, and the Reserve Officers Association. Mr. Martin was president of Warren Products Co. of Northville until his retirement. He served in the Navy during World War II.

Mr. Martin is survived by sons, Richard G. (Shirley) of Plainfield, Ill., and Francis W. (Vesna) of San Clemente, Calif.; stepdaughter, Rhoda (Robert) Norton of Las Vegas, Nev.; and 5 grandchildren.

Mr. Martin was preceded in death by his wife of many years, Rhoda Gamble and his second wife, Eleanor Smith; and two brothers, George B. of Bloomfield Hills and Frank J. of Northville.

A memorial service was held on Thursday, June 7 at Lietz-Fraze Chapel in Lake Havasu, with Pastor Mel Soderberg officiating.

DAVID E. SATERFIEL

David E. Saterfiel, 56, died June 2 in University Hospital, Ann Arbor. He was born in East Cote, England, July 18, 1945.

Mr. Saterfiel was tinsmith with Ford Motor Co. for 28 years. He has been a resident of Northville since 1976.

He is survived by his wife, Judy K. of Northville; son and daughter, Tom and Ann; two sisters, Patricia and Anne; and one brother, Michael.

Private services for Mr. Saterfiel were held for the family.

GLADYS TOMALTY

Gladys Tomalty, 96, died June 6 in Whitehall Convalescent Center in Novi. She was born in White County, Tenn., Sept. 12, 1905, to Allen and Collis (Pettit) Roe.

Mrs. Tomalty was a homemaker. She was a current member of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church in Dunedin, Fla., and a former member of Redford Presbyterian Church in Old Redford.

She is survived by a son, Dr. Richard (Elaine) of Northville; two sisters, Georgia Helton and Ila Mae Mason, both of Tennessee; two grandchildren, Kristin Anderson of Clarkston and Jill Tomalty of Nashville, Tenn.; and one great-grandchild, Benjamin Anderson.

Mrs. Tomalty was preceded in death by her husband, Lyall J. in June 1969.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday, June 12 at Northrop Sassaman Funeral Home of Northville. The Rev. Dr. James McGuire of Ward Presbyterian Church officiated.

Interment was in Acacia Park Cemetery in Southfield Township.

LIBRARY HOURS

The Northville District Library, 212 W. Cady St. near city hall, is open Monday-Thursday, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and closed Sundays during the summer. Parking is available off Cady Street. For detailed information about programs or services, or to request or renew library materials, call (248) 349-3020.

READING ROAD TRIP USA! SUMMER READING PROGRAM

Kids ages preschool through sixth grade – the library is your place for summer fun! Enjoy craft programs, storytimes, magicians, jugglers, puppeteers and visits from live animals. Enter the drawings to win weekly prizes and record the books you read or have read to you. The Youth Summer Reading Program runs through July 31, with a special party at the end. Start your "Reading Road Trip" by signing up at the information desk starting June 15.

SUMMER DROP-IN STORYTIMES

A special feature of this year's Summer Reading Program will be a series of drop-in storytimes, open to children of all ages and best suited for those 3 and over. Storytimes will be held June 20 and July 12 at 11 a.m. and June 27 and July 25 at 7 p.m. No registration is required and families are welcome.

JOSH CASEY VARIETY SHOW

Children of all ages can enjoy juggling, comedy and other wild entertainment with non-stop, high-flying action in this first special event of the Youth Summer Reading Program. Join in June 19, from 2-3 p.m. in the library's Carlo meeting room. Free tickets will be available on a first come, first served basis starting at 1:30 p.m. that day. Children 4 or younger should be accompanied by a caregiver.

CREATIVE CRAFTS

As part of the Summer Reading Program, kids are invited to drop in and have fun creating special crafts on June 21 and July 19 at 2 p.m. in the meeting room. No preregistration or tickets are needed for these events, and children of all ages are welcome. Caregivers should accompany children 4 or younger.

SCIENCE ALIVE: DISCOVER A WORLD OF ANIMALS

Children ages 5 and older are invited to meet and learn about a variety of live animals. The library is offering this popular program at four different times, with a limited number of free tickets available at 1:30 p.m. the day of the program. This program will be held on two days, June 25 and June 28 at 2 or 3:30 p.m. This program is part of the Summer Reading Program but children need not be in the program to attend.

VIEW PROPOSED SCULPTURES

The Northville Arts Commission invites you to view the five proposals for a public sculpture to be erected near the band shell in downtown Northville. Models and sketches are on display at the library on the main level near the fireplace.

The commission invites residents to indicate their favorite, and this input will help in the selection process.

HONOR THY FATHER

Through the Friends of the Library Gift Book Program, you can have a library book plated to honor or memorialize a loved one.

Police Reports

NORTHVILLE TOWNSHIP POLICE REPORTS

GIVE ME LIBERTY, GIVE ME TIRES: According to a Northville Township report, an unknown suspect stole the wheels and tires from a Northville man's vehicle that was parked at his residence on N. Northville Trail. The larceny of automobile parts occurred on June 6 or 7. The report said the man's 2002 Jeep Liberty was placed on bricks that were removed from a brick walk way along the side of the residence.

There are no leads or suspects at this time.

GARDEN STATE GREETINGS: On June 10, a 37-year-old man from Long Valley, N.J. was arrested by Northville Township officers for operating a vehicle under the influence of liquor.

According to the township report, a township officer was traveling southbound on Haggerty Road just south of Seven Mile Road when he observed a Pontiac Grand Prix speeding. The officer was in the left lane directly behind the suspect, who was also weaving and crossing the center line. The radar clocked the suspect's vehicle at 63 mph in a 45 mph speed zone.

Once stopped the man informed the officer that he was on his way to the Marriott Hotel and that he only had "a little" to drink. The preliminary breathalyzer test registered in at 0.165 percent. The man was arrested and is due in 35th District Court on June 15.

OUIL: A 22-year-old Northville male was arrested after telling the township police officer who stopped him while driving that he may have had to much to drink.

On June 7, a township officer stopped a Chevy Blazer at Harbor Village Drive for going 62 mph in a 45 mph speed zone. The report said the officer detected the smell of intoxicants and the driver's speech was slurred. The man was arrested after registering a preliminary breathalyzer test of 0.187 percent.

THREAT? According to a Northville Township police report, on June 6, a 15-year-old Northville High School student was overheard saying he would blow up the school by other students in detention. The students informed high school principal Thomas Johnson of the incident and a meeting was set up with student's mother. At the meeting the student denied the charge and said the other students were lying.

Township officer Michael Wildt informed the student that he would be detained and the student responded by saying he would run when the police vehicle arrived because he did not want to go to jail. The police eventually convinced the student to go peacefully.

The case has been forwarded to the Wayne County Juvenile Probate Court.

NORTHVILLE CITY POLICE REPORTS

FIVE DAYS AND ONE BOTTLE TOO SOON: A Northville city police report said a 20-year-old Novi man was arrested for possession of alcohol in a motor vehicle, speeding and driving with a suspended license. On June 10, the driver was stopped for going 40 mph in a 25 mph speed zone. The report said that when the officer looked at his driver's license the expiration date was hole punched out.

A computer check on the driver's license indicated that it was suspended until June 15, so the driver was place under arrest. The officer also found a whiskey bottle in a check of the vehicle. The man is due in 35th District Court on July 12.

UNDERAGE CONSUMPTION: On June 10, a Northville city police officer was dispatched to the playground on the northwest corner of Baseline and Carpenter Roads on a report of a disturbance taking place. Upon arrival, the officer lit up the playground with a spotlight and found five individuals at the playground. Three were sitting on a piece of playground equipment and two others were near a tree.

The officer reported seeing empty beer cans and a case of Busch Light beer, as well as one of the individuals near the tree emptying a beer can onto the ground and then throwing it aside. The 21-year-old man near the tree said the beer was his, but later became agitated when he was placed under arrest for furnishing alcohol to minors.

The other four individuals were all 20 years of age and were arrested for underage consumption of alcohol.

RECKLESS DRIVING: A 36-year-old Novi woman who was with her 5 year-old daughter at the time reported to Northville city police that a man driving a white Saturn had been recklessly driving behind her on May 30 while she drove down Eight Mile Road.

The woman said that when she arrived at the intersection of Eight Mile and Beck roads the man drove up behind her and honked. The man then bumped her vehicle three times.

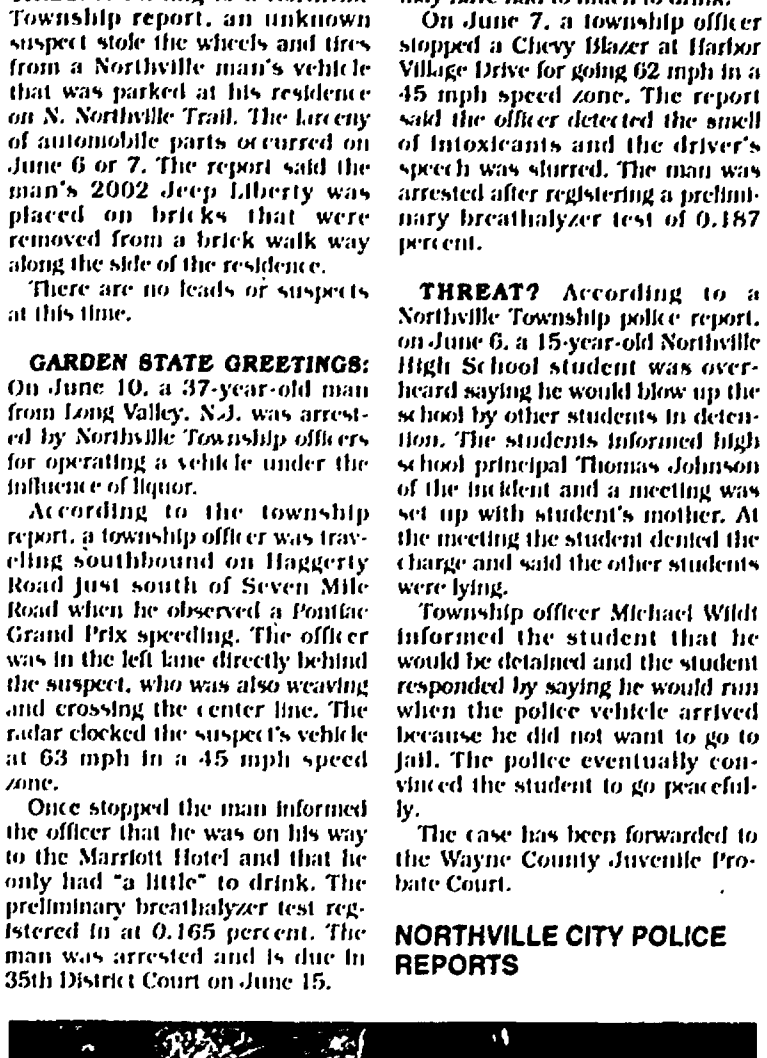

The woman informed the police that she was stopped at the red light waiting for it to turn green, even though there is not a "no-turn-on-red" sign at the intersection. She said was stopped and waiting because of the usual traffic. Once both vehicles turned onto Eight Mile, the man went further with his reckless driving by passing the woman and another vehicle on the right side, gravel shoulder of the road.

The woman took down the man's plate number and gave police a description of the man as well. Upon follow up the police questioned the man and admitted to the reckless driving, but said the woman was not in any danger. The report said the man had no idea the woman's vehicle was also occupied by a child. The woman's complaint is now being followed up

Fountain springs forth on library grounds

By LON HUHMAN
Staff Writer

The fountain of youth can be found in front of the Northville city hall.

It might not be the famed fountain of youth Ponce de Leon was looking for, but it can bring a smile to a person's face when they see it. An all copper water fountain has been placed in front of the hall as a part of the Northville city beautification commission's plan to refurbish the lawn in front of the city hall, according to beautification commission co-chairperson Linda Lestock.

"In our plan to re-do the landscape in front of city hall we needed something to act as a focal point," Lestock said.

Lestock said Northville resident and local artist Tom Holleman had a fountain at his home that the commission believed could act as a good focal point at city hall. According to the city's director of public works James Gallogly, the history of the fountain had its start over a year ago. Gallogly said that after the commission approved Holleman's fountain proposal, it had to appear in front of the [illegible] to present the fountain proposal.

Artist Tom Holleman, Northville Beautification Commission co-chair Linda Lestock and DPW director Jim Gallogly look at Holleman's new water fountain, located outside the library.

"The city council approved the fountain proposal a year ago and after some work was done, such as the granite work and bench placement, the fountain was finally put in place," Gallogly said. "It's a very unique fountain."

Holleman said the fountain is a salvaged artifact and was originally a fermenting vat used at a brewery in Iowa. He said the vat is around 90 to 100 years-old and these type of vats have been out of commission for sometime.

"It's made out of copper and was hand-crafted. My partner Robert Grant and I did some clean up on it by stripping it down, drilling it out and inserting the water pumps," Holleman said. "I have a fountain similar to this one as do several of my neighbors."

Lestock said the commission has also planted flowers and done other landscaping work at city hall. Gallogly said the monument dedicated to the Grand Army of the Republic and the soldiers and sailors of all wars that was erected in 1930 has also been relocated and placed behind the fountain.

"The beautification commission is honored to have the fountain on display, especially because it was constructed by local resident Tom Holleman" Lestock said. "After hearing about Mr. Holleman's work we decided to meet with him and discuss the possibilities. We were pleased to see the work he had already done."

Lawmakers miffed over accusations of MEAP cheating

By Mike Malott
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
MMALOTT@HOMECOMM.NET

It was like issuing a list of suspects before knowing whether a crime has occurred. That's how state lawmakers are characterizing the Michigan Department of Treasury's handling of its announcement last week that it had found "irregularities" in the answers given by students on the latest Michigan Education Assessment Program test.

Those "irregularities," identical or similar answers to essay questions given by several students, may indicate cheating, according to the Department of Treasury.

"The examples were very compelling," Bridget Medina, spokesperson for Treasury, said. "It was not our purpose to cast undue suspicion on schools, but there were similar sentences, similar phrases, identical down to the placement of the word 'the' in some cases. They went through three sets of hands, including retired teachers and MEAP experts who agreed that at a minimum they demand a response. Some of the superintendents have said that the examples at their schools did not rise to that level. Okay, give us an explanation. We'd be curious to know."

But the list of 71 schools was released before superintendents and school administrators had a chance to respond. State Treasurer Doug Roberts held a press conference Thursday, June 7, to release the list. Northville's Winchester Elementary and Brighton's Hornung Elementary were included, although most of the schools included were in Detroit.

Superintendents were sent a package explaining the irregularities seen at their schools, which they had a first chance to review last Friday. That's what has state lawmakers mad.

"It's unfortunate. I don't know what the fire was that they could not have let superintendents have at least 24 hours to review the irregularities before releasing the information," Rep. John Stewart, R-Plymouth, said. Winchester is located in Stewart's district.

Sen. Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, also represents that area and was equally unhappy with the Treasury department. He questioned why a release was issued before schools had an opportunity to respond to the "allegations."

Medina explained that releasing the information on that timeline had not been the way the Treasury Department planned it. Leaks to the media about potential cheating led to early articles and forced the department's hand, she said.

"We felt it was going to come out anyway," she said. "We wanted school districts to hear it from us rather than read it in the newspaper. All we had time for was to give them a phone call and let them know the information was coming."

Official responses from school districts and superintendents had not begun to arrive at the state as of Tuesday. Medina said she expected to receive them late this week.

"I hope that the manner in which this information was rolled out does not overshadow what we are trying to focus on, which is that everyone has to play by the rules and that the 98 percent of schools who are doing it right aren't penalized for following the rules," Medina said.

If cheating is found, Medina said, students' scores on those tests will be disqualified. Students would also be disqualified from Merit scholarships based on those tests. But she said state aid to schools or school districts will not be impacted.

One error in the list has already been identified. Brighton's Hornung Elementary was incorrectly placed on the list because of an incorrect school code. Roberts has already issued an apology.

Northville administrators told the Record three students at Winchester had written about the same topic, a topic discussed in class earlier that week and one students cared about intently, their playground. While similar phrases appeared in their answers, identical sentences did not.

"Is this the level at which we put the black cloud of suspicion for cheating on a school system?" Stewart said.

He thought the release of the information by Treasury might be politically motivated.

"I would hope that the motivation for Lansing is not to use the MEAP test as a political weapon to put down a school district in order to pressure the legislature to raise the cap on charter schools," Stewart said. A vote on the cap is scheduled in state House this week.

McCotter said he also thought the department was "playing politics."

"No, absolutely not," Medina said to that charge politics played a role. "If I respond further, I'm afraid my answer will be angry. So, no, absolutely not."

State's handling of MEAP bombs out

Back in 1996, the FBI announced that it had located a suspect in the Atlanta Olympic Park bomb incident, a man by the name of Richard Jewell. The mustached former security guard was outed by the feds before any formal charges were brought against him.

Mr. Jewell's name was plastered over every television broadcast and newspaper headline in the country. But when he was completely and totally cleared of any wrongdoing a few months later, the feds made that announcement with far less bravado.

This doesn't reek of conspiracy. This reeks of lessons sinking in and students reflecting on an experience.

Last week, the state department of Treasury announced suspiciously similar answers had appeared on MEAP writing tests at 71 Michigan schools, including Northville's Winchester Elementary. The accusation came by a telephone call made to Northville administrators less than a day before Michigan media outlets ran with the story.

There's a big difference between what happened with Mr. Jewell and what's now happening with the Treasury department's MEAP study: in Atlanta, there was no question that a bomb had exploded. In the case of the MEAP, there is no substantial evidence to convince us that something illicit has taken place.

And for that, we think the state ought to be ashamed of its handling of the MEAP matter.

If an inconsistency was discovered — as it was — then the proper method of handling the matter would have been to contact the schools privately and individually. If the juiciness of the story was just too much to bear, then the state at least owed Michigan's schools the courtesy of keeping individual suspect districts anonymous until further investigation could have been completed. Would it have killed the state to simply say that 70 districts were under investigation, then to give the districts being examined a chance to explain its situation?

To us, the answer is a resounding, deafening 'no.'

Further troubling are the red flags that sent the Treasury Department on its mission: similar words or phrases used on essays written by fifth-grade students.

This isn't like John Q. Student just turned in an "original" piece named "Hamlet," which includes lines like, "When yond same star that's westward from the pole / Had made his course to illume that part of heaven / Where now it burns, Marcellus and myself / The bell then beating one."

No. It's more like students reflecting on the same in-school problem-solving task regarding playground space. The MEAP writing test asked students to provide an example of an instance where they cooperated to find a solution to a problem.

To us, that doesn't reek of conspiracy. That reeks of lessons sinking in and students reflecting on their experiences, which is precisely what education should be about.

Mr. Jewell was eventually cleared of charges against him. We're curious to see if the Treasury Department, which hasn't exactly been the Crowned Prince of Tact in this matter, will do the same down the road.

■ Execution teaches the wrong lessons

At 8 a.m. on June 11, Timothy James McVeigh, rightly or wrongly, legally cashed in his right to be a member of our society. Was it justice, or was it retribution?

Perhaps I do not have the right to comment on which of the two words, justice or retribution, fit the occasion of McVeigh's execution, since none of my loved ones have been victims of his dastardly, deadly deed.

Recently, I've had letters printed in the Northville Record (April 26 and May 10), on the subject of capital punishment, assserting that it is impossible for a civilized society to teach that killing is wrong by killing.

The burden of grief suffered by the loved ones of the 168 victims whose lives were snuffed out on that unforgetable day in June of 1995, is unmeasurable. By executing McVeigh, we've managed to increase the amount of grief in our society — the grief of McVeigh's loved ones.

Again, what about the moral aspects of our 'civilized' society when that same society vengefully imitates the very same deed perpetrated by the McVeighs in our midst?

I wonder how the prince of peace would look upon 'civilized' man's way of handling matters of life and death.

■ Thanks for help at Winchester fair

Winchester Elementary Sports Fun Fair was one of the best, according to many parents, students and faculty. A special thanks goes to those parents who were very creative in coordinating their sport game. The children loved your efforts. The obstacle course and the sport injury clinic were enjoyed my many and I would like to thank Nondo Basoukeas, Susan Bawden, Linda Juenemann and Sherri Hanovich for their time and help with these events.

Robin Benjamin, your continued help in many small ways, helped me in many big ways. Maryanne Ziginow, I thank you for your suggestions and your expertise with the facilities along with the entire custodial staff. Many thanks goes to Karol Ostrowski for her time in scheduling our volunteers and to Steve Patrone for your enthusiasm and ideas. I would like to thank Crystal Clear Sound for providing great music along with wonderful raffle items.

Recognition goes to Bounce R Us for the Inflatable Slide that I believe every child tried not once by many times. Thanks to Robin, Bev and staff from Food Service for their efficiency and finally, a very warm thank you to the Winchester Volunteer parents and faculty who helped throughout the evening in many different, but needed ways. All of you made this event a night our children will remember for some time.

You've made it. Twelve years of education has been finished, and now it's time to revel in your success. You've worked long and hard for this moment, putting in the hours in the classroom, on the field, at home and in your communities. With diplomas in hand, you're officially alumni of Northville High School. The first alums, we might add, to graduate from NHS: Episode VI Mile.

Now the bad news. It's over, but it's really not over. Rather, it's only just begun.

Make no mistake about it: life won't be easy, and it won't always be fair. Expectations will grow and demands will be high.

True enough, you've completed a dozen years of schooling and made an indelible mark in the community, but the story doesn't end there. It's just the end of Chapters One through Twelve. There are entire volumes of history yet to be written, and it's your responsibility to make it happen.

And make no mistake about it — it won't be easy. Life, as you'll soon discover, isn't always fair. The safety nets that protected you for all this time won't disappear overnight, but you'll notice that they show up fewer in number with each passing day. Expectations will grow and the demand for success will mushroom right along with it. Mistakes, which were once buffed out with a last-minute extra credit assignment, won't be so easily ignored.

But let's go back to the good news again. The choices which will be placed in front of you are infinite. The paths and opportunities made available to you will astound you. You will become the masters of your own destiny, free to do the things you want and to carve out your own little slice of the pie.

It can be a daunting feeling, having to leave the security of the routines and rhythms that made up your life since age six. But there's no turning back now.

It's like feeling the roller coaster crest the top of the first hill on the ride: sure, you'd like to get off and return to the familiar territory of the solid ground below, but you're on board, and you have to ride this one out.

Besides — if you didn't stick around, you'd miss out on the thrills, despite the initial anxiety you might feel.

Congratulations and best wishes to the class of 2001. On this new ride called Life, you need not keep your arms and legs inside the car at all times.

Those were the days: 1977

Perplexed by the rapid growth and evolution of today's technology, an old curmudgeon writes:

Gather around my friends and tiny ankle-biters, and I shall avail ye' o' tales of olden days when technology was but a wee child.

The year was 1977. It was a era of innocence and grace: of Disco and Jimmy Carter's 'Killer Rabbit', of a non-Disney-fied Las Vegas and pet rocks.

John Helder

Our nation celebrated its 200th birthday, Hollywood made films you could take your grandmother to without needing smelling salts and the Dallas Cowboys meant "America's Team" not "America's Felony Team."

Thundering herds of bison roamed the parking lots of most area malls and Americans did things the old-fashioned, bare-knuckle hard way or we didn't do them at all!

1977: When an "answering machine" meant you, your sister, your parents, your Aunt Bea or the guy that came to install your new "aerial" answered the phone.

Many times it was that you'd miss a call. That's right. You could go minutes or hours or even days without knowing that 'Joe' called from the garage to tell you that the part that you ordered for your '73 Chrysler Newport was in and ready for you to pick up at any time.

We didn't have any of this here new-fangled e-mail. In them there days, "E-mail" meant you were getting a letter in the post from "E" which could either mean Elizabeth, Eric, Edison, Erin, Eddie, or Eminem. I tell you these were trying days, 1977, when your friends couldn't send you this electronic mail "spam" or .jpeg movies that in most grownup businesses would get you fired in two seconds.

And we got our smut the old fashioned way! We slinked into the "adult bookstore and novelty outlet" in the bad section of town praying to God that we wouldn't see any of our neighbors, coworkers or fellow church parishioners and dressed in a dark raincoat where we were lucky to find some lame-ish Nordic country publication featuring scantily-clad gals playing beach volleyball.

Nowadays you can go "on-line" to www.sinforyoureyes.com and find things of a lurid nature that would make a seasoned merchant marine blush and pass out.

These were days when cable TV meant that you were staying in a motel with such suspect guests that they bolted and chained the 19-inch Motorola to the heating register. You got four or maybe five channels and you were darned pleased about it! The choices were CBS, NBC, ABC, PBS, and some "VHF" station or two that broadcast the farm report, roller derby leagues and well-worn reruns of "Bonanza."

You didn't have 80 channels of programming to choose from, I tell you. And if you didn't like what was on the set, you got yourself up, wiped your hands on your pants and by God you changed the channel on the ol' Philco!

Remote was just another word for being distant, that's all.

And what's the need with these cellular phones, dang-nabbit! Why in those glorious days you used your home phone — that was all!

I tell you no one needed to take calls at the grocery store and tell "Amanda" that 'yeah, I'm just here at the Super Shoparama getting some yogurt and something for Bill's stomach cause it was hurting him last night after the Mexican fare which was a little too spicy for my tastes too and by the way, did you hear that we're having our lawn reseeded and some fertilizer put down?'

Yes, the home phone was it and they were the ones mounted on the wall near that kitchen that you couldn't pick up and carry with you willy-nilly wherever you wanted to go. No siree, Bob, we had no "cordless" option then.

You made your calls in that kitchen and you were happy to do so. And it might take you a whole minute to dial as there was something twenty-four years ago called "rotary dial" phones and if you were out of shape in the finger-strength department, you might get winded calling somebody long distance.

A "CD" in those days meant something you were investing in, younguns. They sure weren't anything associated with Peter, Paul and Mary, I can assure you.

You played your music on long playing vinyl records and they sounded scratchy after the fifth playing and you were tickled pink that you could listen to the other side of the record by simply picking it up and replacing it face down on the spindle. "Programming" meant that you simply lifted the needle off the record and moved it ahead because you didn't like what the Beach Boys were insinuating in that song.

And by gum we took our time cookin' things! We never heard of such things as 1000 watt microwave ovens that emitted only slightly dangerous levels of radiation - nor did we need them!

It took 30 minutes to prepare a meal for one person, not thirty seconds. If you wanted a cup of boiling water for a cup of delicious instant Sanka, by golly you waited the five minutes it took for the tea kettle to heat up.

OTHER OPINIONS

Hats off to President McDowell

Sure, Michigan's big-time universities are among our crown jewels. But for everyday use, I'll take our system of local community colleges — a system that has grown and flourished remarkably over the past 30 years or so.

Take Schoolcraft Community College, tucked in between Livonia and Northville Township in Western Wayne County. When I started my newspaper company back in the mid-1960s, the original campus site on Haggerty Road north of Six Mile was mostly rolling country. Today, it's filled with new buildings and crowded with students at nearly all hours of the day.

Phil Power

Schoolcraft was founded in 1961, an early expression of the general idea that people in Michigan needed something cheaper, more accessible and more flexible than the four-year universities. The thought was to give high school graduates who were not going on to college another two years of practical training. Indeed, the idea of financing community colleges through a local property tax looks a lot like the funding system for K-12 schools. Schoolcraft's millage of 1.8195 applies to property in Livonia, Plymouth, Canton, Northville, Novi and Garden City.

Schoolcraft progressed steadily for a time, but 1978 saw a bitter strike between the college, at that time led by President Nelson Grote, and the faculty and clerical staff. The wounds were deep and all eyes were on the new president, Dick McDowell, who was hired in 1981 from the Community College of Allegheny County near Pittsburgh.

In short order, McDowell figured out it was better for management and labor to work together by adopting a new system of labor relations. Called "cooperative collective bargaining," the idea was to try to solve problems as they came up rather than hold grudges until the contract expired. McDowell sent teams of his staff, the board and the union to a workshop to see how cooperation at the bargaining table might work. They came back converted, and labor relations at Schoolcraft have been excellent ever since.

In fact, the relative placidity of McDowell's term has obscured the fact that he is retiring on June 30 after 20 years on the job — the longest and by any measure the most successful president in the history of the college. Consider these milestones:

- McDowell inherited an annual budget of around $14 million. The coming fiscal year's budget will be just over $48 million.
- Schoolcraft today has a total enrollment of around 30,000 students per year, with 17,000 students involved in the continuing education and customized training programs for businesses, up from 1,800 when McDowell started.
- McDowell has been a fantastic fundraiser. When he arrived in 1981, a meager $1,700 in contributions was booked. He was the main force behind the Schoolcraft College Foundation, which today has an endowment of nearly $10 million and distributed almost $400,000 for scholarships.

McDowell is quiet, thoughtful, an inclusive delegator. For a president who's been around for a long time, he is astonishingly well-liked. I called Bill Nichels, the chemistry professor and former president of the Faculty Forum, the teachers' union. His take: "It was a great experience working for him. He had our differences, of course, but we always found a way to work them out between us. Those years of his presidency were precious ones at the college." Those are amazing words from the union leader who led the bitter strike in 1978.

Schoolcraft progressed steadily for a time, but 1978 saw a bitter strike at the college, at that time led by President Nelson Grote, and the faculty and clerical staff. The wounds were deep.

When I asked McDowell what sticks in his mind after 20 years, he talked of the visit last year of the North Central Association of Colleges, the group that pays accreditation visits to member campuses. "They were very thorough," McDowell says, "so I was nervous, sitting on the edge of my chair when it came time for them to give their report. Their leader said, 'We haven't found a perfect community college yet, but Schoolcraft College is as good as we've seen.'" McDowell concluded.

What McDowell's done deserves to be better known around our state, for he's been as good a community college president as they get and he deserves a happy retirement.

The MEAP's failure is complete

After this week, I'm starting to think that students who successfully complete the Michigan Educational Assessment Test ought to be given a chunk of cheese instead of a state-endorsed diploma.

That's because I'm more convinced than ever that in the minds of Lansing bureaucrats, gradeschool students are little more than lab rats for the state's latest-and-greatest ploy to tinker with education.

Chris C. Davis

It's nothing short of a miracle that the class of 2001 was able to get through this truly laughable mess the state has created, all in the name of improving education. Given the latest tripwires the state Treasury Department has put in place, students will now not only experience the joy of being taught for a test, but also get the added thrill of living in fear that one of their writing samples may contain the same word or two as another kid's.

If you thought an IRS tax audit was scary...

As far back as five years ago, when Lansing was mobilizing itself to become the Manhattan Project of standardized testing, I spoke with school administrators from all over the state about what they thought of the MEAP test. Since most of them were diplomatic-types and had to keep in mind they worked for a publicly-funded district, their responses were usually reserved. (Of course, while they spoke in subdued tones, you could almost see the smoke billowing out of their ears.)

But a couple admins didn't mind popping off about what they thought. In their minds, the MEAP had mutated into some new and awful form. The worst part, they said, was that because the test was continually being "refined" (read: "monkeyed with") it was impossible to gauge one class' success versus another. It wasn't even apples-to-oranges. It was apples-to-grapes-to-bananas-to-strawberries-to-watermelons.

I didn't really want to believe the hype, but the longer I listened and observed, the more convinced I became that the MEAP was now the CREAP: "Can't Really Evaluate Anything Pertinent."

The supernova that is the MEAP manifested itself this week, when the Treasury Department issued Northville's Winchester Elementary and 70 other schools (only one of them a charter school, might I add) notices informing them that cheating had apparently taken place on some of the schools' MEAP tests.

Never mind the fact that state officials delivered this cheery news to superintendents a whopping 12 hours before a huge story broke in the Detroit dailies over the matter. And I'll set aside, if only for a moment, the fact that the state named names and called districts out to the mat before any investigation took place.

No. Instead, I'll focus on what was supposedly unearthed. The smoking gun?

A few simple words that apparently were used on multiple essays written by the students. Words, according to Northville superintendent Leonard Rezmierski and Winchester principal Nancy Raynes, that were used because of an in-class project students had taken on, that had apparently stuck in the minds of a few pupils when the writing portion of the test had commenced.

The worst part of all this is that the Treasury Department is now trying to wash its hands of the matter, insisting that the story was going to break anyway, so what was the point of keeping silent about it? By the Treasury Department's line of thinking, there was nothing they could do, so why not go with the flow?

Northville administrators — as well as our local state legislators Thaddeus McCotter and John Stewart — are angry as hornets this week, and they've got every right to be. The district is being asked to prove its innocence when guilt hasn't even been determined.

If Northville wanted to be the first district in Michigan to bail out of this silly cart-before-the-horse method of testing, it would have my blessing. This thing is out of control, and what happened this week is just the latest in a series of bumblings that has convinced me the process has been "fixed" so many times, it no longer functions.

Simplify our own complexities

Our ancestors would have been beside themselves if they could have seen some of the modern trinkets of today's society.

Whatever happened to studying or reading quietly in the evening by the flickering flame in a lantern or in front of a crackling fireplace? Chances are you never had to haul water indoors from a well, prepare all your meals from scratch, or spend an afternoon cleaning clothes in a washtub with nothing but soap and plenty of elbow grease.

Jennifer Norris

In fact, I rarely even see clotheslines in people's backyards anymore. I've noticed plenty of new buildings springing up like weeds in the area lately, new facilities and homes complete with intricate stone walkways, towering brick archways, impeccable landscaping and swimming pools, but never any clotheslines. Maybe it's a public eyesore now to have socks, sheets and shorts flapping in the wind and suspended with wooden or plastic pins.

While my family and I certainly enjoy the conveniences of living in the 21st century, I wonder just how many more gadgets and gizmos are going to be put on the market to "enhance" our quality of life.

I use electric lights, enjoy indoor plumbing, eat pre-cooked meals, and even press a simple button to open my garage door, lock my car doors and turn on my favorite TV show. And yes, I even have a clothesline. (It's in the backyard tied between our back deck and a walnut tree.)

These days, people get bent out of shape trying to remember PIN codes, e-mail passwords and when to recharge their cell phone.

The same devices that were supposed to make our lives easier, seemingly create more problems and additional stress. How ironic.

Just this past weekend, I discovered that there are infinite more products out there on the market just waiting for some poor buyer to come along and say, 'I could really use that.'

Recently, I was flipping through the television channels and had a hard time finding anything but lengthy infomercials to watch. I found out there were pills out there designed to allegedly burn fat in X number of days, machines said to make your muscles look like a pro wrestler's, devices that claim to make your posture more erect, cookware that's believed to prepare macaroni and cheese and lobster tail simultaneously, knives that are advertised to cut through metal pipes, and pots said to cook meals in the freezer.

Sound incredible? Well, that's what the ads were pitching.

If there's something that can seemingly save time, save energy or save money, chances are your deliverance is only a 1-800 number away.

Is it really necessary to have a carrot peeler that doubles as an portable radio? Maybe not. I've yet to come across one. But I have heard of some crazy gadgets that advertisers seem to think we just can't live without anymore.

If you need to paint your house in a day, make the finish on your old Plymouth Duster look like new, or vacuum marbles out of your carpet, there's products that claim they can do the job.

Sigh.

I can just imagine Thomas Edison kicking himself for not inventing non-stick gourmet cookware or a car wax that supposed to withstand repeated trips through the car wash.

I believe many products available today just aren't what they're cracked up to be. I tried a leg hair remover lotion this past week that took off a layer of skin rather than unwanted hair and left me with an ugly rash as well.

While I'm not one to complain about the comforts of modern technology such as answering machines, electric blankets and caller ID, I question the need for these so-called convenience products that claim they'll make our lives less complex.

Would I ever dish my hard-earned cash for a vacuum cleaner that claims to suck up marbles? Probably not.

I think I'll invest in a state-of-the-art, never-needs-parts, fail-proof, automatic clothes dryer that's guaranteed to pass the test of time...a new clothesline.

Opinions vary on Cambridge development

ment would bring," Perkins said. "At this time, Center Street has traffic backed up to Seven Mile during the peak hours. A project such as this will only greatly add to a growing traffic problem."

Perkins' concerns stemmed from the size of the development. At the May 1 commission meeting, the project was proposed to be 106,084 square feet, but at the public hearing the square feet increased to 109,119. Birdsall countered Perkins by saying a goal for increasing the vibrancy of downtown was to increase downtown traffic flow.

Mary Poole, owner of Poole's Tavern and Little Italy co-owner Jeff Jepko both voiced their support for the development. Poole said she preferred the original development artist rendering over the updated version. Varying opinions on which rendering was better became a popular detail throughout the meeting.

City council member Kevin Hartshorne said he disapproved of the development for a number of reasons, with the height of the building being one of his main concerns. Design architect and downtown development association board member Greg Presley said the structure would have an average roof height along the north elevation of 65 feet and slightly taller heights from the south elevation from a lower grade. Northville chamber of commerce president Michael Haggerty said he supported the development because it would bring people into the downtown.

Overall, there was no definite planning commission consensus for the development. The main differing point among the commission's members was the appearance of the building — specifically, the roof. Cambridge Development president Mark Guidobono said at the June 26 meeting the look of the building may have a combination of both designs.

"The project has been evolving since day one," Guidobono said in a project update at the DDA board of directors meeting on Tuesday morning. "Our hope is to get preliminary PUD approval at the June 26 planning commission meeting."

Guidobono informed the DDA board, which support the project, that the development would have at least one restaurant on the first floor and maybe a bank as well. One updated change he presented to the board was the increase of outside space on the fifth floor for terrace space. He stressed the importance of Cambridge Place appearing as if it were separate buildings instead of one big building.

To do that, the outside design will have break ups in the structure's outside design, Guidobono said.

"It will appear to be three different buildings by having three different details in each one. There will be at least three different types of brick used," Guidobono said.

Guidobono said ensuring security for the residents is important, so in turn the development will have an underground parking area with 60 spaces. The residential section will also have a separate lobby. Guidobono said another highlight to the project is the 40 foot by 30 foot central plaza.

"This is a very expensive building, so properly accommodating the potential Cambridge Place residents is essential" Guidobono said. "Our goal is to have the grand opening in August or September."

Wendt said the overall approval process still has a long way to go, but described the hearing as going well, and indicated that good communication with Cambridge has been ongoing. According to Wendt, the input received at the hearing will be seriously considered by the commission.

All-Area Tennis

He easily made his mark as one of the best Milford tennis players in recent years

There were no amazing upsets, or "out of nowhere" teams during the 2001 season. Things went pretty much according to prediction, as Northville and Brighton captured the most headlines.

Northville remained the best team in the area this year, finishing second in the Western Lakes Activities Association and at the regional (both to North Farmington). During the regular season the Mustangs went undefeated for their first 12 dual matches, before finally losing in the season finale, to none other than North Farmington. At the Division 2 state finals, Northville was able to finish ahead of their Raider rivals, and swat themselves to a fifth place finish, a spot better than the 2000 squad.

After owning the KVC for so long, Novi surrendered the league title to Brighton last year. This year the Wildcats again made a valiant run at the league title with a very young team, but in the end it was the Bulldogs' singles lineup, and depth that was the difference in their second straight KVC championship.

Milford finished third in the KVC thanks to its dominant singles players up top — freshman Brian Schubert and senior Kyle Jasieniecki — and some gritty doubles performers, perhaps best personified by the number three team of juniors Erik Hawthorne and Pat LeClerc, who were KVC champions.

The Mustangs were the clear-cut best team in the area with their senior dominated line-up, but terrific tennis was played by a host of the area's teams. With a bounty of young talent dotting the flights on the KVC teams, spots on future All-Area teams will be very hard to come by.

Singles

Brian Schubert
Milford freshman

Schubert came in with a stellar résumé as an experienced and successful tournament player. But that doesn't always translate into success in a team setting.

"Sometimes a young player might have trouble adjusting to the team concept because there are different priorities than in USTA," Milford coach Rich Kynast said. "That wasn't the case with Brian."

The ninth-grader made up for what he might have lacked in physical maturity with tennis savvy.

"His game is very mature," Kynast said. "Brian knows the important times in the match and understands how to win those points."

Schubert went through the regular season undefeated. He reached the final match of the KVC tournament and the second round of the Division I regional at Troy.

Kyle Jasieniecki
Milford senior

Jasieniecki makes his second straight appearance on the first team All-Area team. The senior closed his career with a fine year, helping his team finish third in the KVC.

Using a powerful back hand, and a cool focus, if its possible Jasieniecki was even better in the KVC than he was a year ago when he strung together a 16-2 overall record.

Kyle Dehne
Northville junior

On a team packed with senior talent it isn't easy to stand out, but this gifted junior did just that for the Mustangs in 2001. Dehne won the conference, and regional championship from his spot at third singles, and entered the state tournament with an undefeated record. His accomplishments earned him a fourth seed, and he parlayed that into a second straight birth into the semi-finals. In the semis he battled in a three set match that lasted well over three hours, but in the end fell just short of a state championship.

By going 19-1 this season, Dehne has a combined 35-6 record the past two seasons.

Steven Mills
Northville senior

Northville's other singles regional champ, Mills racked up a solid 16-4 record, and a win in the Dearborn Invitational during the season. Although he entered the state playoffs unseeded, he was able to win, and advance into the quarterfinals before finally losing in three sets.

Doubles

Scott Eller
Northville senior
Chris Gerlica
Northville senior

Northville's talent didn't stop with its singles teams, as the senior tandem of Eller and Gerlica were only thwarted by their North Farmington rivals during their 15-3 overall season. They were runner-up in both the conference and regional tournament.

The duo earned themselves a third seed in the state finals, and used that to advance to the quarterfinals, but it was there that their final season came to an end.

Andrew Laskowski
Novi junior
A.J. Sansom
Novi junior

Although the tandem from Northville had a better record then these two juniors from Novi, it was Laskowski and Samsom's KVC championship that gives them the slot in the first team.

At the start of the year, these two weren't even a team, as Laskowski participated at third singles for the first several dual matches. But soon after these two were paired, it was quite obvious they were capable of something special. A weak flight soon became a strength for the Wildcats, as Andrew and A.J. bested all comers on their way to the KVC title and an 18-7 overall record.

In the regionals they beat the team from Belleville, but were ousted by a superior Ann Arbor Pioneer team in the next round.

Adam O'Donnell
Northville sophomore
Phil Gutowski

Northville senior

The sophomore O'Donnell, and he senior Gutowski enjoyed great success at their third doubles flight. The team finished second to, guess who, North Farmington at both the conference and regional tournament. They were yet another Northville flight to win at the Dearborn Invitational, and used that momentum to carry them into the state finals where they advanced as far as the quarterfinals as an unseeded team.

For the year they finished with an impressive 13-3 overall record.

Jonathan Lee
Northville freshman
Jackson Knoll
Northville freshman

They may have been the boys among men, but they certainly didn't play like it. This freshman team of Lee and Knoll were perhaps coach Button's biggest surprise, as they captured Northville's third regional flight championship.

Playing like grizzled veterans, these youngsters took an undefeated record into the state finals, where they won two matches to advance to the quarterfinals before they were finally bested for the first time all year.

They ended the season with a 9-1 record

Northville well represented

The Northville middle school-age Travel Lacrosse team concluded the best season in its short history with an impressive showing at the Lacrosse jamobree tournament held on June 2 in conjuction with the state high school championships at Cranbrook. The team, comprised of seventh and eigth graders from the Northville area, compiled a record of 10-4, including a 3-1 mark at the Cranbrook tournament. The boys were coached by NHS seniors Michael LaTorre, and Brian Morrell, and led by co-captains Chris Pederson, Andy Koupal, and Brian Morell. Leading the attack were Matt Paletta, Jeff Coogan, Dave Bartkowiak, Nick Menard, Ryan Bird, and Adam Dillard. Midfield duty went to Mike Bernabei, Zach Menard, Joe Liebau, Dan Robinson, Mac Stilec, Mark Eggert, Rob. McTavish, Mike Monticciolo, Eric Moir, Rob Horrigan, and Dean Bernabei. Defense and goaltending was handled by Ryan Burke, John Clarey, dan Schaumann, and Kevin Thiel.

Canton uses hard, physiucal play to tame Mustangs, 4-2

By COLBY J. CAVALIERE
Sports Writer

The past finally caught up with them.

After beating Livonia Stevenson three straight times and then winning the district with a rematch against Salem, it was Plymouth Canton who got the best of the Mustangs, as the Chiefs ended Northville's season with a 4-2 win in the regional semi-finals on June 8.

"We had so many teams we had to play for a second time and as anyone knows, it's never easy to beat a team twice, especially if they are as good teams like Stevenson and Canton," said Northville coach Ron Meteyer.

Canton used a physical, mental and emotional advantage to take a 3-0 halftime lead and essentially destroy any hopes Northville had of advancing.

"I told the girls not to let them dictate the game, but that's exactly what they let Canton do. We came out and played scared and they took advantage of that and handed it to us in the first half," Meteyer said.

The physical tactics by Canton were aided by a ref with a seemingly broken whistle.

"They came out rough and tumble, and the ref let a lot of things slip by. I'm not making excuses, but there was more than a few calls that could have been made and weren't," Meteyer said.

Northville's Larissa Fill is tripped on her way to the ball during last Friday's regional semi-final match against Canton.

Mustangs' state title run falls short in regionals

One of those non-calls resulted in a severe injury to Northville defender Jessica Zweisler. Canton's All-American Annie Morrell collided with Zweisler, knocking her to the ground. A second Canton player attempted to make a play on the ball, but instead kicked the fallen Mustang in the head. For several minutes, Zweisler lay motionless on the ground before finally being loaded into an ambulance. She was diagnosed with a mild concussion and strained neck ligaments. Katie Jones, another Northville defender, suffered a separated shoulder that resulted in a hospital visit.

Despite being kicked around on the scoreboard and on the field, Northville mounted a spirited attack in the second half, as they outscored Canton 2-1 on goals by Larissa Fill and Lindsey Dunmead. For the game, the Mustangs actually out-shot the Chiefs, 13-11.

Beaten, but not broken, the 'Stangs got something to cheer about when goalie Alex Katona stopped Morrell from scoring her third goal when she turned away a penalty kick by the Canton star.

With the loss, an 18-2-1 season comes to an end and perhaps shorter than many had expected. Graduation will hit the Mustangs hard, especially on defense, but with a bulk of the offense returning and a revenge factor to play on, Northville should be ready for payback when they meet the Chiefs again in 2002.

"All I can say is that when we play Canton next year, these are going to be a fired up bunch of girls," Meteyer said.

Colby Cavaliere is the sports writer of the Northville Record.

The U-10 boys Northville Arsenal raised their Spring season record to 5-0-1 while continuing to share first place with the Northville Hot Spurs. The Arsenal outscored the Northville Cosmos 7-1. Alex Marilley and Nick Putman led the scoring with 2 goals each. Scott Hetu, Michael Bommarito, and Nathan Hrivnak each added single tallies. Michael Bommarito had 2 assists. John Syverson kept the ball out of the Arsenal net during the second half.

The U-10 Boys Northville Arsenal team completed an undefeated 2001 Spring season with two wins over Novi teams. First, the Arsenal defeated Novi 5 by a score of 4-0. Four single goals from Alex Marilley, Nathan Hrivnak, Nick Putman and Josh Bloom sealed the victory. Andy Vernacchia was the defensive standout. In the year's final game, the Arsenal won a hard fought match with Novi 4 by a score of 2-1 finishing the season with a 7-0-1 record. The defense was outstanding. Scott Hetu was stellar in goal. Michael Bommarito, Andy Vernacchia, Niko Viahakis and John Syverson all contributed defensively. Goals were scored by Nathan Hrivnak and Alex Marilley.

Mite Flyers wrap up terrific season

The Pepsi Shoot-out started April 1, and continued on a 10-game season that concluded with the Pepsi Showdown Championships on June 2 at the Suburban Training Center in Farmington.

The Mite Select Western Division (7-8 year olds) was made up of 11 teams from Novi, Farmington Hills, Livonia, and Plymouth. 13 players and three coaches made up the Novi Youth Hockey Association's, Novi Flyers.

The Flyers finished first in league play and earned the first seed in the playoffs with a record of 9-1. During league play they recorded 62 goals while only allowing five, and recorded seven shutouts.

Because they were the top seed, the Flyers enjoyed a first round bye. In the second round they took down the Novi Jaguars 3-0 with two goals by Justin Antolec (Novi), and one Gabe Sarnacki (Northville).

Submitted Photo

The second round victory earned the Flyers another bye, as well as the right to play for the title in the Pepsi Showdown Championships on June 2. In the finals, the Flyers played the 9-1 Livonia Firewalls for the Mite Select Western Blue Division Championship, and hoped to duplicate a 1-0 win from earlier in the season.

With two goals by Sarnacki, and assists by Greg Putman (Northville) and Ryan Fitzgerald (Novi), the Flyers bested the Firewalls by a 4-0 score to win the championship. Goalie Alex Nork (Northville) earned his unprecedented eight shutout of the season. The 'Walls were held scoreless by the outstanding work of their defensemen Stephen Champagne (Northville), Fitzgerald, Greg Lorrain (Novi) Krister Engja (Novi) and Mike Schultz (Northville).

First Presbyterian Church of Northville's Single Place offers several weekend activities, including Friday evening meetings at Tremor's in Livonia, Saturday morning walks at Heritage Park in Farmington Hills, and Sunday morning worship and brunch at Northville Crossing. Single Place also offers two divorce recovery workshops — one for persons early along or in the midst of the divorce process, and another for those beyond the grieving point. For more information on any of these programs, call (248) 349-0911.

Also at First Presbyterian — the Robert Kennedy Memorial Golf Outing is scheduled for June 24 at Fox Hills. The social event is held in honor of the church's former elder and musician. Non-golfers may assist by planning the event, donating prizes, sponsoring a hole or participating in the post-game dinner. For more information, call (248) 349-0911.

First United Methodist Church of Northville will be sponsoring the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life on June 23-24, beginning at 10 a.m. The 24-hour walking event has teams walking a portion of the time, then handing over duties to another walker. Donations are raised by each walker. Event luminaries will be available for purchase following the church's 9:15 a.m. service. For more information, call (248) 348-3933.

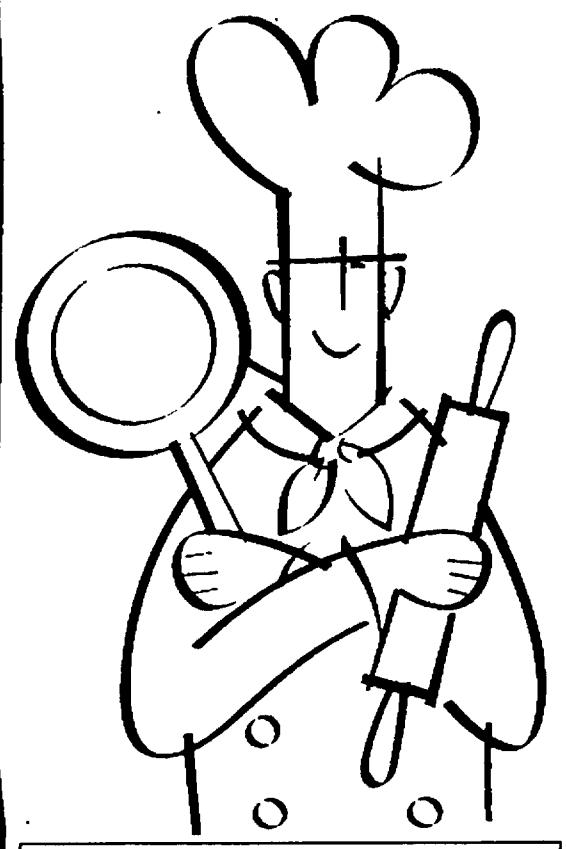

Ward Evangelical Presbyterian Church will be hosting nine weeks of summer daycamp from June 18 through Aug. 17. Children may be registered for one or more weeks at a rate of $100 per week. Activities will include field trips, recreation, stories and crafts. The daycamp will run from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. with extended care hours available. For more information, call (248) 374-5903.

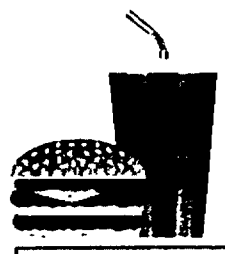

Also at Ward — a number of craft items are being sought for the church's vacation Bible school program, including pony beads, sequins, green pipe cleaners, plastic spoons and empty soda pop cans and two-liter bottles, as well as other items. For more information, call (248) 374-7400.

A divorce recovery workshop will run on six consecutive Wednesday evenings, beginning June 13 at First Presbyterian Church of Northville. The workshop will deal with a variety of facets of divorce, including the grieving process, the legal aspects of divorce, and the forging of new relationships. The cost of the course is $30. Registration is required. For more information, call (248) 349-0911.

Really weird game shows

Forget "Survivor."

"Chains of Love?" What a joke.

And don't even start with that "Weakest Link." That's for wimps.

Around the world, other countries have beaten the tar out of us for reality game concepts. The XTRA's correspondents have traversed the globe and discovered these real but ridiculous activities taking place at the four corners of the earth.

"TV Champions"
(Japan)

— The game show has a different whacked out contest each week, varying from forcing contestants to eat some horrible soy bean concoction to being sworn at through the bars of a cage they're locked in.

"Endurance"
(Japan)

"Contestants are literally tortured. One of the stunts, for example, involves dragging contestants across gravel until they're injured," or crawling through a cage of scorpions.

"Fireball Soccer"
(Java, Indonesia)

— According to "Stuff" magazine, "Martial artists douse a soccer ball with gasoline, set it on fire and then kick it around — with bare feet. They embark on this madness to help them overcome their fear of fire."

"Clash"
(Canada)

– Teams of "people with a common experience" compete by performing physical tests like "egg beating." Typical contestants include people who've been punched in the face, people who've been kicked in the butt, acne sufferers or hemorrhoid sufferers.

"Grenade Throwing"
(Russia)

— In 1976, 36 million Russians participated in flinging de activated grenades in competition, which resulted in the national finals in Tashkent. Valentina Bykova, a 39 year old woman, threw her grenade 132 8 feet.

"The Game of Goose"
(Spain)

-- Contestants move across a game board as human tokens. Each space represents a different challenge, such as releasing a semi-nude model from an exploding bed or escaping from a box that's slowly filling with sand.

. . . and now, a word from the 'lolds:

In a short time, the doors to local schools will fly wide open and students will begin pouring out anxious to begin their summer vacations.

Oftentimes, students associate the kickoff of summer with close to three months of no school, no homework, no tests, no stress, and no worries. But students may also face something else - no money.

For many students, the ending of school creates an opportune time for students to venture out, test their abilities, learn some new skills, and even earn some cash in the meantime. With autumn and the return date of school looming far off in the distance, many students will be filling out applications and getting ready to tackle a productive workday.

However, some students have already combined working part-time with their full-time student responsibilities.

When the school year ends, students say it will free up additional time and enable them to work longer during the week.

Lindsey Carlson, a junior at Northville High School, is one student that has already blended the obligations of working two jobs and keeping up with her schoolwork.

Carlson, an employee of Northville's Custard Time and ??????, says her current schedule is full with the commitments required of working and being a student, but she manages.

"I just like to keep myself busy," she said, adding that having two part-time jobs enables her to keep stay focused better and has taught her how to manage her time efficiently.

On top of that, Carlson also said that working is not just helpful for employers - she is also taking away some beneficial lessons that can't be found within the pages of a textbook.

"I definitely take [something] away," Carlson said.

Carlson said during her time working at Custard Time, she has learned a variety of skills that can be carried over to future professions or even be applied in everyday situations.

For example, Carlson said that while on the job, she has been better able to improve her ability to work with customers and handle orders.

Rather than reading the pages of a text, lessons such as those can be better taught through hands-on experience and can even play a part in developing character by teaching responsibility.

Carlos Perez, a manager at the Good Time Party Store in Northville agreed that students can gain valuable experience by working a summer or part-time job.

"Here we try to instill customer service [skills]," he said. "We try to lead by example."

Some other attributes that students can become familiar with and apply to their own lives include developing patience and a good work ethic, Perez said.

Both stores typically have several part-time workers during the busy summer months.

Carla Watson, a senior at Northville High School and assistant manager of Custard Time, also said that working during the school year and even during the summer has some long-term benefits.

"I'm earning money for school," Watson said. "It totally prepares you for real life, outside of high school. I think I'll be more prepared than people who didn't work during school."

Watson also said that in her experience of working, she has learned further responsibility and better customer service skills.

"I think it's a really good experience," she said.

Whether it's serving customers, counting change, mowing lawns, helping others, or answering phones, several Northville businesses have opportunities available for teens seeking summer work.

Aside from earning a few bucks for car insurance, gas or a night at the movies, holding a part-time job can bring a wealth of beneficial experiences that can't be marked or measured by an hourly wage.

SOFT SERVE OR HARD PACK?

Much like Coke versus Pepsi, Ford versus Chevy or seat-up versus seat-down, so too is the case with frozen desserts. Some people prefer the taste of soft-serve goods, while others swear by traditional hard-pack dairy ice cream. Which side of the frozen debate are you on? Drop us a line or give us a call. We'll publish the informal results of our poll later in the summer, once we've all eaten our fill of the vanilla, chocolate or strawberry delights.

Garden Accents

Unique ways to brighten up your garden

By Annette Jaworski
SPECIAL WRITER

Some gardeners were lucky enough to plant through the recent raindrops. But plants aren't the only creative ways to brighten up a garden. And although it's been a rainy spring, garden accents and accessories don't rely on the sun or rain to add beauty. Greg Brainer, co-owner of The Greenery and Brainer's Greenhouse says there are a lot of fun new products out there as well as renewed interest in old standbys.

One beautiful new accent with a Victorian look is a conservatory. The structure looks like a small-scale greenhouse. People often use them indoors, but Brainer thinks they're much more exciting as outdoor décor.

"Most people put them in the sunroom or foyer...I think it would be gorgeous if you used it for what it was meant for," Brainer said

They carry one in an antique white finish with a top that opens up if it gets too warm. A front door opens as well, a perfect spot to have some greenery spilling out. Victorian planters with a traditional look are popular this season as well.

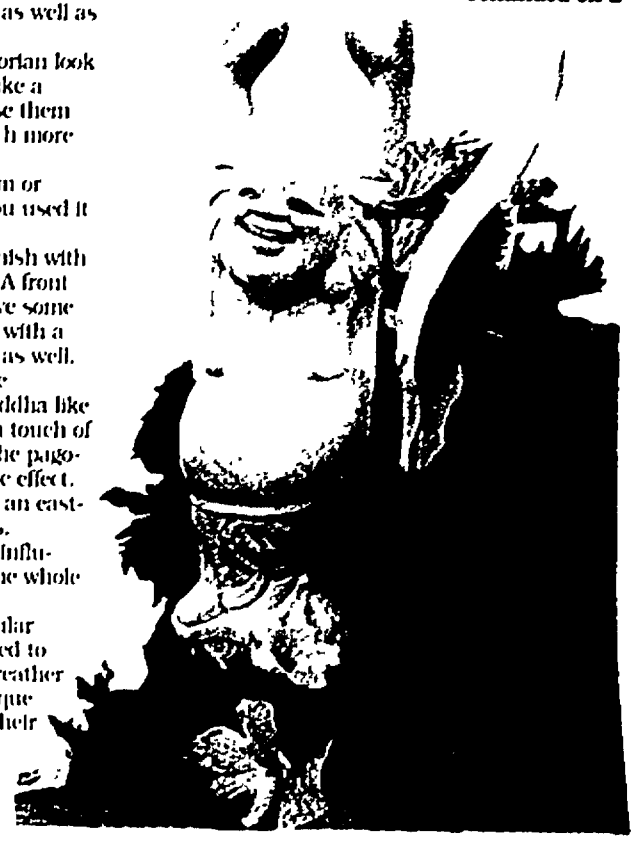

The Oriental influence continues to be strong in gardens, observes Brainer. Buddha like figurines, pagodas or planters can add a touch of the east. For example a popular piece, the pagoda, can be backlit at night for a dramatic effect. A lot of people are unsure of how to use an eastern look. Don't be afraid of it, he advises.

"You can put a touch of the Orient or influence, some people feel they have to go the whole nine yards, it's not true," he said.

Copper tiki torches were another popular accent for gardens. They can be preserved to protect the copper finish or allowed to weather to an aged patina. Although rusted antique pieces continue to be popular, he feels their popularity is waning compared to the cast iron pieces with a distressed finish

A new product line that has great potential is the new fiberglass garden items. These are high-ticket items, Brainer points out, but they are virtually indestructible and will look as good years later. These come in urns, pots and pillars in various sizes. Another advantage to these items is that they're lightweight and movable. A plug in the bottom allows them to be filled with sand so they'll remain stable once it's placed correctly. He believes that although their costly, they're worth the investment.

Of course, there are the tried and true staples, like sundials, fountains, outdoor thermometers and gazing globes. A new twist to the gazing globes is a ceramic look made of Malaysian pottery. The finishes are the real beauty in these each having it's own unique color.

Jennifer Brodzik, store manager of Brickscape in Northville, says a lot of their current merchandise reflects a more natural look. One popular seller this season included planters or urns that look like pumice, or a lightweight volcanic stone.

"It's carved out so you can plant or put in an existing gallon pot," said Brodzik.

Another new item is an obelisk made out of black willow. It looks similar to a collapsible teepee. It can be used to support a vine or to add structural interest.

Wrought iron accessories continue to be strong favorites in items like benches and arbors.

"I think that it's a nice classic look that will be there forever," she said.

Different topiary designs to shape a vine or plant have sold well at the Northville store. These come in a variety of styles, such as spiral or globe. Another new variety of planter that customers have responded to is a clay material with a ceramic looking glaze. The finishes in colorful jewel tones is what makes these planters special.

"Even if the flowers (in the container) aren't colorful, then the pot is," said Brodzik.

There's also a renewed interest in annual vines, rediscovering some of the old classic vines like climbing gloxinia, said Brainer. He likes the canary vine, with sunny yellow blooms.

"Annual vines are nice to mix with perennials, an established perennial, which will help provide color throughout the season," he said.

Victorian settee a true survivor

By Anne McCollam
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

Q. Please tell me what you can about my settee. I purchased it for $25 in the early 1960s. I was out driving and saw it sitting on a porch with a "For Sale" sign. It was covered with a faded tapestry and in very rough condition. There is no manufacturer's mark on it. After having it refinished and re-upholstered, it is beautiful. It even survived our 1999 tornado!

A. The incised carving, pierced underarms and back, the curvilinear lines on your settee are all design elements of late Victorian furniture. Most settees were part of a parlor set that included a chair and a rocker.

Your settee was made around 1900 and would probably be worth about $1,000 to $1,500.

This late Victorian settee was made around 1900 and would probably be worth about $1,000 to $1,500.

Q. I found the enclosed mark on an oak file cabinet that my grandfather purchased around 1910. It has three drawers and is in very good condition.

What can you tell me about the manufacturer and its value?

A. The Macey Furniture Company in Grand Rapids, Mich., made your filing cabinet.

In 1892, Fred Macey with his brother Frank as treasurer started a mail-order business selling office desks that were produced by other factories. He advertised in popular magazines as offering "the best $25 roll-top office desk in the world." His marketing was so successful that he soon added additional pieces of office furniture and also library furniture. As his sales grew, Grand Rapids retail sales went into a slump.

Local merchants retaliated by encouraging area furniture manufacturers to not provide Macey with furniture. Macey knew the advantage he had in the mail-order business and invested in his own furniture factory. He also arranged for a national system of warehouses for easier distribution.

Macey merged with the Wernicke Furniture Company in 1905, with Otto H. L. Wernicke as an officer. In 1909 Macey died and Wernicke became president. After suffering financial difficulties the company closed in 1940.

Q. I have an ambrotype color portrait of William T. Sherman, the famous general of the Northern Army during the Civil War.

What is it worth?

A. An ambrotype is a type of early photograph that was made by a wet plate process that provides a faint negative image on glass. When held against a dark background the image is seen as a positive. Civil War soldiers, both Union and Confederate, were often the subject matter seen in ambrotypes.

Your ambrotype was produced in the mid-1800s and would probably be worth about $800 to $1,500.

Q. I hope you can tell me something about a cast-iron toy. It is a carriage pulled by two white horses. There is a male driver dressed in black and female passenger in a blue gown and bonnet. The wheels and spokes are yellow. The overall length is about 13 inches. I know it is old because it belonged to my late husband.

A. Cast-iron toy horse-drawn carriages and wagons are charming reminders of slower-paced times. They are extremely popular today with collectors of toys. Cast-iron toys were widely produced from the late 1800s to around the 1940s. Kenton of Ohio was one of the major manufactures of similar toys.

Your toy would probably be worth about $425 to $475.

Address your questions to Anne McCollam, P.O. Box 490, Notre Dame, IN 46556. For a personal response, include picture(s), a detailed description, a stamped, self addressed envelope and $10 per item (one item at a time).

Fungus may be the root of flower problem

By Jeff Rugg
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

Q. My peony has bloomed wonderfully for many years, but this year the buds are turning black and are not growing. What can I do?

A. It is too late this year to get it to bloom, but it is not too late to help prevent problems next year. The symptom you describe is caused by a fungal disease caused by Botrytis paoniae. It is often called gray mold because of the gray fuzzy spores that grow on the infected plant. Spray the plant with a fungicide that is labeled for Botrytis every week from the time the new growth starts coming out of the ground until they bloom. Remove all dead plant parts now and again in the fall. The fungus can form little black spore pellets that can lay dormant in the soil for years waiting for the wet, cool conditions it prefers.

Another common fungal disease that affects peonies and many other plants is called Phytophthera blight. It affects many plants by attacking their root system, especially if the roots are dying because of drainage problems. Plants that need well-drained soil, like peonies, need air in the soil. Too much rain or drainage problems fill the pores in the soil that are supposed to have air with water. As the roots die, the fungus starts decaying the dead tissue and doesn't stop when it comes to the live tissue. As it consumes the roots, the plant dies. If you pull on the stem of a wilted plant and it easily comes out of the ground, with few roots, drench the soil with a fungicide.

Here are some other tips for growing peonies. While peony clumps can last for generations, they often flower better if divided every decade or so. Do the division in the fall. They can be cut to divisions of 3 to 5 eyes, although small divisions may take a couple of years to begin blooming. Plant them with the eyes of the tuber only about two inches below the soil. Fertilize them each spring with a 10-10-10 or a 2-3-1 ratio fertilizer.

If you want cut peony flowers, only cut off about one-third of the flowers from each clump. Leave at least three or four leaves on each stem that is cut. After blooming, you can pinch off the seed heads. They grow and bloom best in full sun, with a well-drained soil high in organic matter and a pH between 6.0 and 7.5. Water them when the top few inches of soil dries out and water so the soil gets wet to about 2 feet deep.

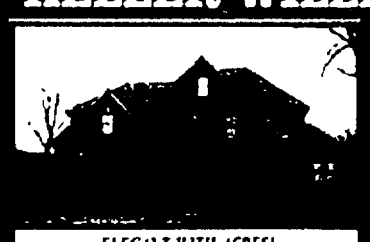

As your spring-blooming perennials stop blooming, it is a good time to remove the seed heads that develop. This is the process called "dead heading." Removing the seeds before they can mature is beneficial to the plant, because the plant does not waste energy on unwanted seeds. That same energy can be used by the plant to grow more stems and leaves to look fuller. More leaves mean more food production, which means more food will be stored in the roots for better survival over the winter. Sometimes, the plant will produce more flowers later in the season, giving the plant a double season of bloom.

Removing the seeds may seem like work, but is often beneficial to you, because many perennials freely seed themselves around the garden. It is easier to cut off some seed heads than it is to pull a bunch of plants sprouting up in all the wrong places. Cutting off the heads and leaving some of the stalk is safer than pulling the heads off on many perennials, because some perennials may be pulled out of the ground with a sharp tug.

New care facility in Novi

By STEPHANIE FORDYCE
Staff Writer

Finding convenience, compassion and modern medicine under one roof can be hard to come by, but thanks to PrimeCare of Novi, patients can find all three.

The physician-owned Family Practice, located in the Holly Hills Professional Village on 10 Mile Road, credits their efforts in providing community-based care.

"This is where modern medicine meets old-fashioned care," said PrimeCare physician Ted Shively. "We'll never lose sight of the fact that our patients are the most important thing to us and each one of us is dedicated in providing them the best possible care."

PrimeCare, which came to Novi seven months ago, offers same day appointment scheduling and a patient/physician continuity rate of 90 percent.

With a staff of 12, the office operates a full-service lab, X-ray, casting and splinting, vision/hearing screening, colposcopy, sigmoidoscopy, and holter monitoring.

Having medical records kept electronically allows the practice to obtain immediate medical history and reduced prescribing errors.

"Our technology allows us to provide the highest quality of care, efficiently," Shively said.

With 26 years of clinical experience, Shively has board certification in Family Practice and geriatrics and a Masters in health science administration.

He is currently the team physician for Novi High School and prior to beginning PrimeCare, was a teacher of geriatrics at Providence Hospital.

The team's four family physicians each provide service in specialty areas, including holistic medicine, women's medicine and sports medicine.

"We have a talented team here, and we're very proud of that," said Dr. George Nicoloff, who is active in the treatment of athletes.

As a team physician for Livonia Stevenson High School, Nicoloff also provides expert advice and support to the Sports Club of Novi, helping with physical injuries and rehabilitation.

The full-time staff of doctors also includes Dr. Donna Vorias, who specializes in preventative care and women's and children's health, and Dr. Gary Weltman, whose interests include holistic medicine and women's health care. Weltman is also fluent in Spanish.

"This is where modern medicine meets old fashioned care. We never lose sight of the fact that our patients are the most important thing to us ..."

Ted Shively
PrimeCare Physician

Ready children for small business

By Tim Kissman

Kissman and Sons. That's the business my dad envisioned for my two younger brothers and I to inherit one day. He'd say the name over and over again on the job site while Mike, Jay and I scurried around picking up pieces of lumber for a nickel a scrap.

He'd be the brains, we'd be the brawn, and for our efforts he'd change the name of the business. It was a logical choice for Kissman Construction, Inc. Only, none of us wanted to follow in his footsteps.

When I think of construction, or home improvement, I have nightmares of ripping out walls filled with fiberglass insulation that you can't help but breathe and carrying awfully heavy lumber in sweltering heat. Doing that for a living wasn't really an option. My muscles ache just thinking about it.

Kissman and Sons? Nope. It's still Kissman Construction, Inc. Mike's an engineer, Jay's a graphic artist and I try to write columns. We're pretty skilled with the hammer on weekends, and wouldn't trade what we learned through the years, but I'll leave the big projects up to the professionals.

Luckily for dedicated small business owners some children do want to launch into the small business world like their parents. Some even work early, hoping to get the named changed and run the family business.

It's not the easiest path, but it can be the most rewarding. If your children are looking to start their own small business, encourage it but don't push them too hard. Here's what some small business owners said about getting their children ready for running a business:

• Education. No matter what business you're in, be sure to study as much as you can, said Dee Smith, of Demmer Corporation, Lansing. Smith is a father and grandfather who has been involved with small businesses since he was very young. Once you have the education, explore your options by spending as much time with small business owners as you can before starting your own enterprise, he said.

• Believe in yourself. Janet Roncelli, owner of Bermar Associates, Inc., Troy, is the mother of 12-year-old Brian. She said she tells students to believe in a product or service before even thinking about getting into business. Then, research the market and take as many business and communication courses as possible. As good practice, have the child hold down a job and learn about saving money.

• Encourage participation. "Kids need to learn how to be a people person and broaden their personality," said Paul Pickell, of NW Coughlin, Livonia. Pickell, a father of two teenagers, said parents shouldn't push his children into his business, but keep them active and don't let them quit any activity they start.

My brothers and I still help my father when he needs us. Only now we charge him way more than a nickel per piece of scrap.

PROUD TO BE PART OF MICHIGAN CHALLENGE XVII

Balloonfest offers family-style fun and excitement

Whether you look up, down, or all around, there's something to please every member of the family at this year's Michigan Challenge Balloonfest in Howell, June 22, 23 and 24 at the Howell High School complex.

First-timers to balloonfest are usually amazed to find out that while the state championship of hot-air ballooning is the centerpiece of this exciting weekend, there's so much more to see and do. Those who have attended before know balloonfest is one of the most entertaining, most thrilling and most exciting special events in Michigan.

The weekend is filled with an assortment all kinds of activities and fun. Gorgeous balloons, skate boarding, skydiving, stunt-kite shows, medieval sword fighting, downtown sales and entertainment, a gorgeous arts festival, performing dogs, music, kids activities, classic cars, games, carnival rides, comedy, juggling, — it's all part of the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

But early morning and early evening belong to the stars and centerpiece of this big weekend: More than 55 beautiful hot-air balloons competing for the State Championship of Hot-air Ballooning.

Mass balloon launches take place, weather permitting, on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, between 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. Early birds can arrive just after dawn on Saturday and Sunday to enjoy watching the pilots compete as they fly in to the site after launching their craft from locations in the countryside.

Some of the balloons come in spectacular special shapes, such as Mr. Biddle, the jauntily-dressed teddy bear; Pepe, the world's only flying penguin; and the CargoLifter balloon with two dirigibles pursuing each other. Other balloons are works of art with ocean scenes, southwest motifs, a children's carousel, kittens and happy puppy dogs.

With all to see and do, organizers expect that another record crowd from throughout the state and the Midwest will fill Howell for a weekend of high-flying fun and excitement.

NEW THIS YEAR

There's always new things to enjoy at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest. Check out the bigger and better Medieval Village. Pass through its gates and enter another world. Enjoy the new Arts Festival with talented artists from throughout the Midwest and beyond displaying their wares for show and sale.

This year the Skate Board Exhibition, sponsored by Special Editions Skate Board Shop and the Optimist clubs of Livingston County, will feature the DayKare Skate Team, as well as talented local athletes showing off their amazing tricks.

There will be more entertainment at two balloonfest venues, starting Friday evening. Saturday night will feature a performance by the renowned blues group Madcat & Kane. Entertainment is sponsored by Meijer Inc.

BALLOON GLOW AND SUPERNOVA NIGHT SHOW

It's the high point of a spectacular weekend: The Balloon Glow and Supernova Night Show on Saturday evening. The color and spectacle make this a not-to-be-missed event.

As darkness falls, more than 30 pilots will return from their competitive flights to inflate their balloons on the launch field. It is a never-to-be-forgotten sight as the many colors of the balloons are illuminated against the night sky.

Then, from about a mile above the ground the Supernova Night Show will begin. The Aerial Allstars Skydiving Team will perform a night jump, complete with pyrotechnics.

SPEND THE DAY

Visitors are encouraged to spend the day at the Michigan Challenge. Beat the crowds and stake out a spot for your blanket or chairs by arriving early.

The Citizens Insurance Family Fun Tent will be open on Saturday and Sunday afternoon with all kinds of free hands-on activities and crafts for all ages. Outside the tent, family games and activities will run continuously.

Visitors will be thrilled by five scheduled daytime performances by the Aerial Allstars Skydiving Team, sponsored by Comcast.

The Windjammers Stunt Kite Team will dazzle the crowd with their spectacular kite performances, choreographed to music. The Windjammers are sponsored by Blue Cross/Blue Shield and Blue Care Network of Michigan.

Serena's Song, the world's only handicapped-accessible balloon will give free tethered balloon rides to children and adults in wheelchairs during launch times Friday, Saturday and Sunday evening and Saturday and Sunday morning, weather permitting. Serena's visit is sponsored by Wal-Mart and Innovations Home Care.

The huge Arts Festival is a special event all its own, with over 200 artist booths and delicious food and entertainment.

Visitors will travel back in time at the Medieval Village presented by the Society for Creative Anachronism and the Swordbound Company.

Dogs of all sizes will run specially designed courses during the Rock-N-Roll K-9s performances.

DOWNTOWN HOWELL

Visitors to downtown Howell will enjoy great entertainment and activities, centered around the historic Livingston County Courthouse and on the sidewalks of downtown.

Friday evening's Twilight Sale from 7-11 p.m. will feature some of the best bargains of the season. Shoppers will be entertained by sidewalk performers throughout downtown.

Saturday and Sunday the courthouse lawn with be filled with family activities, chalk art, cookie decorating, live musical entertainment, a dog show, Antique Alley, antique appraisal clinic, kids craft fair and the Amazing Maze.

There will be horse-drawn carriage rides through the streets of Howell, leaving from the courthouse.

Visitors to the Michigan Challenge are encouraged to come early and stay late all three days to enjoy everything the weekend has to offer!

BALLOONFEST DRIVING DIRECTIONS

The City of Howell is located midway between Lansing and Detroit on I-96 and at the western end of M-59. The Balloonfest takes place at the Howell High School complex that has entrances on West Grand River Avenue, M-59 and Highlander Way.

The most convenient access to the Balloonfest from I-96 is Exit #133 — the M-59 exit. Travel M-59 east for a few miles and there are several Balloonfest entrances on your right. Follow the Balloonfest signs.

Coming from the north? Take I-75 to U.S. 23 south to M-59. Follow M-59 west about 12 miles to the Balloonfest entrance.

Don't miss live entertainment, special events, great shopping and restaurants in downtown Howell on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Downtown is about one mile east of the Balloonfest grounds on Grand River Avenue. It's a pleasant walk from the grounds, passing gracious Victorian homes along the way.

Taking your car downtown? Parking passes allow you to re-enter the grounds as often as you wish on the day indicated on the pass.

Gerladine K. Moen

Welcome to the beautiful City of Howell!

On behalf of all city staff and the residents of the city, it is my pleasure to welcome you. Balloonfest is an exciting time in the city. Not only do we all enjoy this great event, but we are also pleased to show off our beautiful, historic town to so many first-time and returning guests.

We're proud to be the host community for the State Championship of Hot-Air Ballooning. It is always a thrill to see dozens of beautiful balloons launching into the sky over Howell.

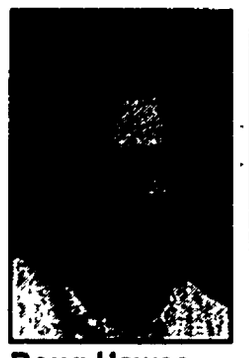

But balloons are just one part of this great weekend. The committee has planned lots of activities and fun. I hope you will come downtown and enjoy all the great entertainment and family entertainment that's planned for the weekend. Take a stroll through our beautiful neighborhoods. Visit our stores and dine in our restaurants. You'll see why we're so proud of our city.

I'd like to thank the hundreds of community volunteers who work so hard to make the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest such an outstanding special event. I'd also like to congratulate the many city employees who help the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce stage this huge event. It wouldn't be possible without their cooperation and help.

Enjoy your stay in Howell and please return again. We look forward to welcoming you.

Geraldine K. Moen
Mayor, City of Howell

From the Chamber ...

Doug Hawes

Lee Reeves

On behalf of the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce, host of the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest, we'd like to welcome you to a great weekend of high-flying fun and excitement and to extend our congratulations and thanks to the members of the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest committee, who all work so hard to bring our thousands of visitors one of the finest special events in the State of Michigan.

Special recognition should be given to our sponsors who make this event possible. Our thanks go to our long-time Michigan Challenge Major Sponsor, National City Bank; to our Supporting Sponsors, Citizens Insurance Company of America, Pepsi, Mister Rubbish and Kensington Valley Factory Shops; to Blue Cross/Blue Shield and Blue Care Network of MI for its sponsorship of the Windjammers Stunt Kite Team; to Comcast for its sponsorship of the Aerial Allstars; to entertainment sponsor Meijer; and to Innovations Home Care and Wal-Mart for their sponsorship of Serena's Song.

We'd also like to thank the many other area companies that have contributed to the success of the Michigan Challenge in countless ways, such as sponsoring individual balloons, advertising in this publication, providing product, allowing employees time off to volunteer or helping promote the weekend.

The help and cooperation of the Howell Public Schools and the City of Howell are key in the success of the balloonfest. We could not do it without them.

The mission of the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce is to "be a catalyst for a vital business environment and an exceptional community." We feel the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest accomplishes just that, in addition to providing great family entertainment and a weekend of memories.

Sincerely,
Doug Hawes, Chairman
Lee Reeves, President
Howell Area Chamber of Commerce

Lots of fun and great shopping in downtown Howell

While at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest, don't miss all the great activities and shopping in historic downtown Howell. The sidewalks, shops, restaurants and courthouse area of the city will be alive with entertainment, shopping, food and fun throughout Michigan Challenge Balloonfest weekend, June 22-24.

Right in the heart of downtown at the historic Livingston County Courthouse, Balloonfest visitors can enjoy music, comedy, and entertainment all weekend. The venue is just over one mile east of the Howell High School complex, the site of the Balloonfest launches.

This year, downtown will have new features such as an antique show called Antiques in the Alley, a demonstrating chalk artist, ballooning demonstration, cookie decorating workshop and a sound garden that children play. Old favorites also grace the streets — Kiddie Parade, Dog Show, Photo Clinic and band performances. Don't miss the Twilight Sale and the Afterglow!

Submitted Photo

Friday Twilight Sale

Street entertainment returns to this year's Twilight Sale. Musicians, magic and even karaoke will take place throughout the historic downtown area. Of course, the centerpiece of the event will be great sales when Howell's merchants open their doors from 7 to 11 p.m. to bargain-hunting shoppers. A saxophone ensemble, a brass quintet, Kim Cramer and his guitar, a top-40 band, a magician and karaoke are just some of the entertainment booked.

Saturday Activities & Entertainment

Saturday of Balloonfest weekend wouldn't be the same without some old favorites. But there are lots of new activities on the lawn and amphitheater of the Livingston County Courthouse as well. Visit the Amazing Maze, take a ride in a horse-drawn carriage for $3 per person or $12 family, scribble the sidewalks in a chalk art display or test your knowledge of downtown retailers and win a fabulous array of gifts. Plus, don't miss these scheduled Saturday events:

• Farmers' Market 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.: The Howell Farmers' Market will feature homegrown, home-baked and home-made goodies. Some of the Howell area's finest growers and crafters will have their products for sale. The market is on State Street next to the courthouse.

• Scribble the Sidewalk 9 a.m. to noon: The Howell Area Arts Council hosts this fun opportunity for children to create masterpieces in chalk on the sidewalk by the courthouse.

• Chalk Artist 9 a.m. to noon: A professional artist will create chalk art on the sidewalk as spectators watch.

• Antique Alley 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.: Love antiques? Visit the Alley! An array of antique dealers will offer their wares for show and sale in the alley adjacent to the Farmers' Market.

• Kids Craft Fair 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.: Sponsored by Home Depot, the Craft Fair lets kids make projects such as bird houses, picture frames, tool boxes and piggy banks, using wood and hand tools. On the Courthouse lawn.

• Kiddie Parade 10 a.m.: Children are encouraged to dress in costume and be part of this parade that travels along the sidewalk west to Michigan Avenue, through the Farmers' Market and back to the courthouse. This year's theme, Bow-wow/Meow, means that youngsters should dress in anything related to dogs or cats. Celebrity judges will give awards for the Best Use of Theme, Most Unique and the Honors Award. There will be "goodie bags" for all participants.

Tour downtown and win

Go on a downtown Howell tour and win!

The Tour de Downtown returns this year and you can win a huge array of great prizes from Howell merchants just for answering some questions about downtown. Last year shoppers and visitors had a great time with the first Tour, so it's back by popular demand.

It's simple: Stop by at any participating downtown Howell retailer on Friday, Saturday or Sunday of Balloonfest weekend, or at the information booth on the courthouse lawn on Saturday or Sunday.

Ask for a Tour de Downtown entry form. Take some time to answer the questions. It may require you to walk around the downtown for some of the answers, but they are all easy to find and fun.

Then, return your completed entry form to the downtown information booth by Sunday, June 24 at 3 p.m. or to the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce on 123 E. Washington Street by 5 p.m. on Wednesday, June 27. One winner will be drawn from those with the most correct answers.

The Tour de Downtown prizes will be on display in the front window of Howell Travel at the corner of Michigan Avenue and Grand River Avenue. Prizes include gifts, candles, jewelry, gift certificates, dinners, candies, and home and garden accessories.

Take "de Tour" and win!

Twilight Sale and Afterglow set for downtown June 22-23

Downtown Howell will be "the place to be" for great sales, live entertainment and fun on Friday and Saturday night of Michigan Challenge Balloonfest weekend, June 22 and 23.

Live entertainment will be held throughout downtown during the Twilight Sale on Friday night from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Merchants will offer some of the hottest sales of the season while, on the sidewalks, entertainment such as the cool sounds of the saxophone, Kim Cramer's guitar and songs, karaoke, a brass ensemble and a magician will delight shoppers.

The entertainment moves indoors on Saturday night for the Afterglow. Restaurants and pubs will feature live music, kareoke, jazz and keyboard acts throughout the downtown starting at 9 p.m.

Prizes will be awarded for the "best costume," "owner-pet look alike," "ugliest mutt," and "best trick." Each participant will receive a dog "goodie bag," and there will be trophies. Registration begins at 11 a.m.

• Cookie Decorating Noon to 3 p.m.: Children of all ages can decorate their own specially shaped cookies at a workshop conducted by Cookies by Design. A nominal fee will go toward the Little Angels Memorial Fund.

• Birds of Prey and Mammals Show 1 p.m.: The staff of the Howell Nature Center brings its exciting Birds of Prey and Mammals show to the courthouse lawn. Live birds and furry friends will be featured.

• Ballooning Demonstration 2 p.m.: Howell hot-air balloon pilot Bill Bettis will bring his balloon basket and equipment to the courthouse lawn for an up-close and personal look at this exciting sport — bring your questions.

• Zeemo the Magnificent 3 p.m.: Yo-yo master, magician and entertainer extraordinaire — Zeemo will delight young and old with his yo-yo tricks, juggling and antics. A Balloonfest tradition!

• Saturday Night Afterglow: Downtown Howell is the place to be on Saturday night! A special night of live music like top-40, jazz, kareoke and keyboard in downtown Howell restaurants and pubs. Relax and enjoy the party after a great day at Balloonfest!

SUNDAY ENTERTAINMENT AND ACTIVITIES:

Live music and antiques are the features of Sunday's Balloonfest activities downtown as well as children's activities like the Amazing Maze. Make your own music with the Sound Garden, take a ride in a horse-drawn carriage for $3 per person or $12 per family, enter to win the Tour de Downtown. Plus, don't miss the following scheduled events.

• Howell Sunday Farmers' Market 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.: Stop by to purchase home-grown, home-baked and home-made goodies. Many of the area's finest farmers and growers will have their produce for sale. The Farmers' Market is located on State Street, next to the courthouse

• Antique Alley 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.: Love antiques? Visit the Alley! An array of antique dealers will offer their wares for show and sale in the alley adjacent to the Farmers' Market.

• Antique Appraisal Clinic 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.: Virginia Fournier, an expert with 30-years of experience in antique appraisals, will be on hand to appraise your antiques and collectibles in a benefit for the Howell Area Historical Society Depot Museum restoration. The donation is $5 per item for an oral appraisal. Please limit all appraisals to two items per person.

• L.C. Brass 11 a.m.: Show tunes, jazz, movie themes, pop favorites — even some rock — are all part of the L.C. Brass' versatile repertoire. Enjoy this concert on the courthouse lawn.

• Livingston County Concert Band Noon: This group of talented, area musicians will present concert favorites at the steps of the Livingston County Courthouse. This is a concert you don't want to miss!

• Juggle Bugs 1 p.m.: Always wanted to learn how to juggle? Here's your chance. The Howell Nature Center will teach dozens of children how to juggle in this clinic.

Antique and Custom Car Show set for June 23-24

Got an antique or custom car?

Like to look at antique or custom cars?

If either or both of these previous statements is true, check out this year's Michigan Challenge Antique and Custom Car Show on June 23 and 24.

Coordinated by the Livingston A's Region of the Model A Restorers Club, the show will present rows of beautiful automotive specimens from the early days of the automobile all the way up to street rods and custom trucks.

ANTIQUE & CUSTOM CAR SHOW

Cars will be on display beginning at 11 a.m. Saturday, June 23, and Sunday, June 24, north of balloon launch field. Participants are asked to arrive at the Highlander Way gate prior to 2 p.m.

The show is held north of the balloon launch field next to the Citizens Insurance Family Fun Tent.

The cars will be on display on Saturday and Sunday beginning at 11 a.m. At approximately 4:30 each day, the cars will parade around the launch field.

The first 100 car owners who bring their vehicles prior to 1 p.m. and remain until the car parade will receive a brass dash plaque featuring this year's Michigan Challenge commemorative pin.

Anyone is welcome to display an antique or custom vehicle at the show. Participants are asked to arrive at the Highlander Way gate of the Balloonfest prior to 1 p.m. on Saturday or Sunday.

If the vehicle qualifies for the show, the driver will receive free entry and be directed to the show display area.

Two entertainment venues will present live entertainment throughout the weekend, all sponsored by Meijer.

On the west side of the launch field, by the National City cold-air balloon, is the commercial vendor area. An entertainment venue there will present fun and frivolity on Friday evening and on Saturday and Sunday from noon until 9 p.m.

Ron Coden Show

Jonathan Park

Zeemo the Magnificent

Flying Aces

Madcat & Kane

Buddy Moorehouse

Entertainment at the vendor area includes Balloonfest favorites Jonathan Park, Zeemo the Magnificent, the Flying Aces Pro Frisbee Team, a how-to-juggle workshop and Birds of Prey demonstration by the Howell Conference and Nature Center.

Jonathan Park will present eight shows on all three days, featuring his incredible comedy juggling.

Crowds will be amused and amazed as he rides a six-foot unicycle while juggling three knives. His signature trick comes at the end of each performance when, one by one, he kicks up three sets of cups and saucers to be balanced at the top of his head!

The Flying Aces Pro Frisbee Team will show off before the crowd on Saturday and Sunday at noon. Unless you've caught their show before, you've never seen Frisbee flying like this. Children will be selected from the audience to get into the act.

Zeemo the Magnificent, a very popular entertainer at Balloonfest, will engage children of all ages with his yo-yo tricks, magic and juggling during four shows on Saturday and Sunday.

Saturday night, the blues duo of Madcat & Kane will entertain the Balloonfest crowd after the evening launch and before the Balloon Glow. Madcat on harmonica and Kane on guitar are nationally-known performers. They will present their act on the announcer's stage, just west of the launch field.

From 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, the Arts Festival will feature an array of entertainment including the Ron Coden Show, Magician Buddy Moorehouse, yo-yo master Zeemo the Magnificent, and musical acts like Gail Donovan, Fret Work and Faith Alive.

The entertainment at the Arts Festival is presented under a tent with comfortable chairs and tables. It's a great place to take a break and enjoy some food presented by the nonprofit groups in that area. The Arts Festival area is east of the balloon launch field, just south of the high school.

Rock-N-Roll with talented K-9s

They're back! After jumping, barking, and running their way into the hearts of Michigan Challenge Balloonfest guests, the Rock-N-Roll K-9s -- that troupe of furry, four-legged athletes — are back again this year at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

For the uninitiated, or for first-time Balloonfest goers, the Rock-N-Roll K-9s are a group of very talented dogs that, with the help of their owners, will put on amazing shows of canine agility and athleticism on Saturday and Sunday of Balloonfest weekend.

Dogs, from minuscule to massive, will compete in contests of speed and agility. The dogs and their owners will run a specially-designed course in a 50s theme, dashing over, under, around and through obstacles such as a giant milkshake, a juke box and a '57 Chevrolet.

Have you ever seen dogs play musical mats? Just like grade school children at a birthday party, these dogs do.

In the high jump competition, dogs take their turns jumping a bar that's continually raised, until only one dog is left victorious. In the fly-ball contest, two teams of dogs compete, relay-race style. A lucky child from the audience may be chosen to race against the dogs at each show.

The Rock-N-Roll K-9s will put on their shows at 11 a.m., 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday on the balloon launch field.

Make a point to watch the manuevers of the Rock-N-Roll K-9s.

Balloonfest is never having to say 'I'm bored'

Children will never say the "b" word — bored — at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest. There's too much for them to do!

• CITIZENS INSURANCE FAMILY FUN TENT: Children will have a ball at the Citizens Insurance Family Fun Tent. From noon until 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday there will be hands-on crafts activities, mural painting, face painting, balloons — all free. Plus, outside the tent, youngsters can play games such as soccer, ragball, balloonball and more. Look for the Fun Tent just north of the launch field.

• SKATE BOARD EXHIBITION: Every child will love to watch the "pros" as they demonstrate the latest tricks and flips at the Skate Board Exhibition sponsored by Special Editions Skate Board Shop and the Optimist Clubs of Livingston County. Bring your own board — and a helmet — to try out the equipment during supervised open skating.

• STUNT KITES: Kids can learn to fly a thrilling stunt kite when the Windjammers Stunt Kite team and other experienced kiters take to the launch field from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. for open stunt kiting on Saturday and Sunday. Just walk up to a team member and ask. They love to share their sport.

• ROCK-N-ROLL K-9s: Children will love this hilarious dog competition featuring dogs of all sizes. Watch as the dogs race through courses, compete in the high jump and run relay races. Some children may be selected to race against the dogs. The event is 11 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday on the launch field.

• HURON CLINTON METROPARK MOBILE LEARNING CENTER: The Mobile Learning Center is a huge semi-trailer jam packed with hands on activities, displays, videos and fun activities for adults and children. A special Kids Corner will be set up especially for the younger set. They can learn about animals and park personnel will be on hand to answer questions. Brochures, maps and hand outs about Metroparks will be available.

The Mobile Learning Center is located near the Family Fun Tent and will be open all weekend.

• MEDIEVAL VILLAGE: This year the Medieval Village has been expanded to include children's activities and games. Plus, you never know what's going to happen at the Village Stage or on the Fighting Field. There will also be archery demonstrations on the launch field. Don't miss the spectacular sword fighting competitions. Your child may be able to try on some armor.

• SKY DIVING: Well, no. Children can't actually skydive at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest. But the Aerial Allstars Skydiving Team loves to talk with kids, show off their equipment and give out free balloons. Shows are at 5 p.m. Friday, 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Saturday and noon and 5 p.m. on Sunday.

• CARNIVAL THRILL RIDES: Take a spin on the Giant Wheel, thrill to the Alpine Bobs and test your driving skills on the bumper cars. There will also be an array of less-intense rides for the younger set. These rides and more can be found at the Wade Show Carnival.

• FRISBEE SHOWS: The Flying Aces Pro Frisbee Team will put on shows at noon on Saturday and Sunday at the commercial vendor area. Some children will be selected to compete for prizes.

• DOWNTOWN: Children will love the Amazing Maze and all the other activities downtown on the courthouse lawn. There is continuous entertainment including magic and yo-yo shows as well as musical acts. Youngsters can take part in Scribble the Sidewalk, a downtown sidewalk art project, learn to juggle, decorate cookies, or make crafts at the Kids Craft Fair. They can even learn how to take great photos at the Photo Clinic.

• DOG SHOWS: Got a dog? Bring him to the downtown Dog Show at noon on Saturday by the courthouse. Prizes will be awarded for the best trick, owner-pet look-alike, ugliest mutt and more. You may win prizes.

• KIDDIE PARADE: The downtown Kiddie Parade at 10 a.m. on Saturday is a real show-stopper. This year's theme is "Bow-wow/Meow." Children can show off their creativity with costumes relating to the theme of dogs and cats. Celebrity judges will present trophies and prizes. Meet at the courthouse amphitheater just before noon. No pre-registration is necessary.

• GREAT FOOD: From cotton candy to hot dogs and pizza to popcorn, the Balloonfest has lots of food for the most discriminating child palate. Wash it down with plenty of Pepsi.

• BALLOONS, BALLOONS, BALLOONS:

It is the Balloonfest after all. Kids will love Mr. Biddle and Pepe the Penguin and all the other statuesque balloons. Help count down to the incredible Balloon Glow on Saturday night and watch the Aerial Allstars do their spectacular Supernova Night Show, complete with fireworks.

National City returns community support

National City is again proud to be the major sponsor of the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest, one of the premiere community events in Southeast Michigan.

As a community bank, our commitment to the region extends well beyond employment levels, products and services. We embrace the philosophy of returning the community's support. We strive to improve the quality of life in the neighborhoods we serve through key sponsorships, community development projects, charitable giving and employee activism.

"One of our most important goals as a corporate citizen is to identify and support community traditions that enhance the vibrancy of our marketplace. The Michigan Challenge Balloonfest is a three-day event that features the state championship of hot air ballooning, sky diving, stunt kite demonstration, arts and crafts, a medieval village, downtown activities and a car show. As always, this will be an extravaganza for the entire family!"

National City invites everyone to enter two special drawings taking place in our tent next to the stage by the bank's cold-air balloon. By registering, you will be eligible to win a 25-inch BMX Mountain Bike or a $500 Savings Bond. And, you will receive a free gift for filling out a credit card application. See you at the Balloonfest!

Michigan Challenge Arts Festival makes debut

A popular attraction at the Balloonfest has a new name and a new focus. Visitors to this year's Balloonfest will see the debut of the Michigan Challenge Arts Festival.

The Arts Festival will present many artists familiar to Balloonfest visitors from past years in addition to the many new artists with beautiful work for show and sale.

The Arts Festival describes what the show is all about -- a festival within the Balloonfest, with the focus on a wide variety of art. More than 200 booth spaces will feature artists from throughout the Midwest and beyond.

Michael Hurst of Palm Beach Gardens, Fla. is one of the artists at the show. He creates one-of-a-kind jewelry from sea glass -- the glass tossed into the oceans by ships and sailors. Tide movements bring the glass to the shoreline where the surf, sand and shells smooth the glass to a beautiful patina.

Joe Takacs of Grand Blanc returns to the Balloonfest this year with his spectacular white cedar duck decoys. These decorative decoys are richly finished to allow the beauty of the wood grain to show.

Other featured artists include Charles and Kristina Owens of Northwind Studio in Blissfield who paint striking nature watercolors, Madene Elliott who creates beautiful pieces using the art of paper quilling and Henry Jalsa who hand sculpts exotic and local wildlife in leather.

But those are just a few of the talented artists exhibiting and selling at the show. Stroll through and get an eyeful of a fabulous array of art including hand carved jade, intarsia, marquetry, copper sprinklers and lawn ornaments, hand poured and crafted candles, hand sculpted tiles, original photography and watercolors, primitive country art, handmade quilts, dolls, wearable art, herbal therapy, furniture, dried flowers and much more.

Saturday and Sunday afternoon features continuous entertainment for all ages including the guitar duo Fret Works, the Ron Coden Band, Zeemo the Magnificent, magician Buddy Moorehouse, folksinger Gin Donovan and Earth Alive.

The Arts Festival opens at 4 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m. on Saturday, and Sunday and stays open until the day's events conclude in the evening. It is located at the east end of the Balloonfest grounds just south of the Howell High School - look for the banner.

With so much to offer at the Arts Festival or any other setting it would be an event all its own. But as part of the Balloonfest, it's a sparkling facet of one weekend jewel.

ARTS FESTIVAL

The Michigan Challenge Arts Festival makes its debut at this year's Michigan Challenge Balloonfest. The Festival is slated to open 4 p.m. Friday, June 22; 10 a.m. Saturday and Sunday. It will remain open till the day's events conclude.

For 17 years, the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest has been welcoming some of the top pilots to Howell each year. How did it get started?

According to Lee Reeves, president of the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce, the chamber was approached in 1984 by Dick Rudlaff, a nationally-known hot-air balloon pilot who lives in Oakland County.

Rudlaff traveled often to Battle Creek and passed through Howell. At the time, he and other pilots were looking for a place to hold a state championship of ballooning. As he traveled through Howell, it occurred to him that it could be the perfect place to stage such an event.

Rudlaff brought the idea to Lee Reeves at the chamber and suggested that the organization take it on as a major community event that could really put Howell "on the map."

He and other pilots, including Phil Glebe of Brighton, met Reeves at a Denny's restaurant in Novi where the pilots explained details of the proposed event.

"I became very enthusiastic after listening to them and picturing the impact an event of this kind could have on Howell," Reeves said. "I promised to take the idea to our board of directors for their approval."

As Reeves was preparing to leave the restaurant, a lady in the next booth reached out to grab her hand. She apologized for what might have appeared like eavesdropping but said she had overheard the Balloonfest plans.

"I'm from Howell," the lady said. "And I think you should do this."

After approval by the board of directors and securing the cooperation of the Howell Public Schools, plans were put in place for the first Balloonfest in 1985.

The Michigan Challenge Balloonfest has grown since that first year, adding many other attractions. But the centerpiece and drawing-card of the event remains the beautiful ballooning competition.

Competition not just a lot of hot air

For many of the pilots at the Michigan Challenge, the event isn't just an opportunity for great flying and fun. It's a serious competition to become the State Champion of Hot-air Ballooning and earn points for national ranking.

Although they are popularly called "races," competitions such as the challenge have nothing to do with how fast or how far a balloon travels. Competitive ballooning rates pilots on how well they can use wind currents and altitude to steer their balloons to a specific target.

As regulars to the Michigan Challenge know, weather conditions determine if the balloons will fly at all. High and gusty winds are the enemy of balloon flights. Balloons fly in the early evening and just after dawn because that is when winds are the calmest. Winds over 12 mph, rain and lightning keep balloons grounded.

If the weather is favorable for the launch, the pilots will try to find the right wind currents to take them close to the target. Each pilot will toss a numbered "baggie" onto the target, usually a large "X" shape spread in a field or at an intersection, aiming to be as close to the center as possible.

You can easily watch this competition during morning flights at the Michigan Challenge when the "X" is located right at the launch field and the pilots take off from various spots out in the countryside

If during the competition you see a baggie on the ground or if one lands near you, please don't touch it. The scoring officials will need to accurately measure its distance from the target.

Balloonists will compete in various events such as Judge Declared Goal, Hare and Hound, Watership Down and CNT (controlled navigational trajectory). Each event will have at least one target or task, sometimes two or three. The type of competition will depend on the weather conditions determined by Balloonmaster Jim Birk, and it will be announced at the pilot briefing prior to each launch.

This year, balloon pilots will compete for the Michigan Challenge trophy, cash and prizes and bragging rights as the official Michigan Champion of hot-air ballooning. In addition, the North American Balloon Association awards successful competitors points that are used toward national ranking.

BALLOON FACTS

■ Balloon baskets are made of wicker, not just to be picturesque, but because wicker is light in weight yet still strong and a good shock absorber in the event of a hard landing.

■ A balloon crew is typically two to four people excluding any passengers — one pilot and one to three ground crew depending on conditions at the time of launch and/or pilot preference. Crews are essential for a safe launch and the recovery of the balloon after landing.

■ The most popular hot-air balloons are about seven stories tall and 55 feet wide with an average of 1,800 square yards of nylon fabric, three miles of thread and one mile of reinforced nylon webbing or load tape. It weighs about 350 pounds uninflated. When fully inflated, a balloon will weigh nearly 2 tons. Of course, one must increase these numbers substantially for the huge, specially shaped balloons.

■ Why do pilots traditionally toast with champagne at a flight's end? When the first balloon took flight in France in the late 18th century, it terrified the country folks, who thought the strange craft was some kind of monster. After the first few unhappy incidents with landowners, the pilots began carrying champagne — a French staple — as a sign of friendship and appeasement for the landowners and farmers.

■ Propane is used to fuel the burners that provide heat or lift for the balloons. Most balloons carry up to 40 gallons of liquid propane in three to four propane cylinders.

■ Modern balloon burners generate in excess of 20 million BTUs per hour.

■ With 40 gallons of propane on board, balloons can fly for about two hours. Most flights, however, last between 60 to 90 minutes, depending on the wind conditions and the ambient temperature outside.

■ The average standard-shaped balloon, bought new, costs somewhere in the area of $20,000 to $30,000. Specially shaped balloons can cost well over $100,000.

■ Balloons are registered aircraft. Pilots must be licensed by the Federal Aviation Administration, very much like airplane pilots. You must be 16 years old to be a pilot, either fixed wing or balloon.

■ The multi-colored balloon part of a hot-air balloon is technically called the envelope and is made of rip-stop nylon or dacron.

■ Balloons hold between 30,000 and 800,000 cubic feet of air, depending on the size. Most standard balloons hold about 77,000 cubic feet.

■ Who's got the right of way, airplanes or balloons? With both craft converging on the same area, the balloon has the right of way, similar to sail boats having the right away over power boats.

■ Balloons cannot be steered. But pilots make directional changes by going to different altitudes where the wind may be shifting to the direction they need to reach a target or a landing field.

■ Balloons often fly over water. Sometimes, a pilot will do what's called a "splash and dash" when the balloon descends to touch down on the surface of the water and then take off again.

■ What's that rope hanging from the top of the balloon? It's used to hold the balloon down during inflation and pull the balloon down after the final landing.

■ Each pilot has several instruments on board. There is an altimeter to register how high the balloon is and a variometer to indicate whether the craft is going up or down. The pilot also has a temperature gauge to tell how hot the air is inside the balloon at the very top where the lift is. Of course, the propane tanks have fuel gauges.

■ For safety reasons, balloons typically fly in wind no more than 12 mph. That's why you'll see balloons flying only in the early morning, just after sunrise, and about two hours before sunset. And that's why, even though it might be an evening without a cloud in the sky, the flight might be canceled because the winds are too strong.

Jammin'

Kite team makes it look easy

This is the 17th year the team has been together, flying kites for appreciative audiences. It is the 12th year the Windjammers have been a featured attraction at the Michigan Challenge — every year sponsored by Blue Cross/Blue Shield and Blue Care Network of Michigan.

This year, the team will fly in kite events in Detroit; Milford; Miami, Fla.; Cleveland, Ohio; South Bend, Ind.; Dayton, Ohio; Point Pelee, Canada and Michiana, Ind.

They also will be featured at the Jeff Daniels Comedy Golf Jam, the Jackson Hot Air Jubilee and the Capital City Balloon Rally in Mason.

But, no matter how busy their schedule, they always make room to come to Howell and the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

At 2:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday the Windjammers will perform a choreographed stunt kite routine to a full range of music from patriotic favorites to Motown favorites and show tunes.

Visitors will see six kites drawing perfect squares in the sky, strafing the ground after breathtaking controlled power dives and performing a ballet to music. Graphite kites allow them to fly even in light winds.

This year at Balloonfest, if the winds are right, the team will display an assortment of single-line unique delta and inflatable kites that will fly high over the balloon launch field throughout the day. Included in the display will be an arch of red, white and blue kites.

At the Michigan Challenge, spectators don't have to just watch, they can get their hands on a stunt kite from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday and learn how to perform some of the basic maneuvers.

If you're interested, just step out on the field at ask one of the team members. Kite expert Ray Hanchett, along with the Windjammers and other experienced flyers, will coordinate the open stunt kiting and hands-on lessons.

Officials are on hand to judge the early-morning balloon competition. A string of balloons arrive overhead to manuever into position over the target.

Morning presents ideal competition conditions

The morning fly-ins at the Michigan Challenge are a special time. The air is cool as the sun has just risen. Crowds are light — not too many have ventured from the comfort of their beds to see the balloons as early as 6:30 in the morning.

But it's worth getting up early. Conditions are ideal for balloon competition. The balloonists launch their craft from out in the countryside and try to reach the "X" located at the balloonfest site, on what in the evening will be the launch field. It's a unique time when visitors to the Michigan Challenge can see the competition up close.

The typically light winds of early mornings can create ideal "steering" for the balloons. While you won't find a steering wheel in a balloon basket, by controlling the amount of heat entering the balloon envelopes, pilots can ascend or descend to different altitudes where the winds will take the balloon in different directions.

At the morning fly-ins, spectators may see a string of balloons arrive overhead. One-by-one, the pilots will maneuver to different altitudes, looking to find a "left" or a "right" and align themselves as perfectly as they can to fly as close to the "X" as possible — without touching the ground. Each pilot has a different technique for throwing his baggie in an attempt to hit the center of the "X." Some pitch the baggie as if they were in a baseball game. Others use the long baggie tail, winding it up and tossing it for the greatest distance. The lucky ones who maneuver right over the "X" may just have to lean out of their baskets and drop the baggie dead center.

The morning's fly-ins are also a great time to learn more about ballooning. Event announcer Tom Maynard will describe piloting techniques as he narrates the competition.

So wipe the sleep from your eyes and come to the balloonfest at 6:30 a.m. to enjoy the magic of the morning flight.

Win Renaissance hot-air balloon ride

Would you like to take a ride in a beautiful hot-air balloon? How about a free ride for you and a guest?

Just tear off the lower portion of your Michigan Challenge Balloonfest parking pass and bring it to any Balloonfest information booth.

The winners will be drawn at 8 p.m. on Sunday of Balloonfest weekend. You don't need to be present to win.

And while you're at Balloonfest, visit the Renaissance Balloons booth, near the main information booth. The folks at Renaissance can answer questions about ballooning and give information on reserving a champagne balloon flight, just in case you're not a lucky winner.

Aerial Allstars make a landing

It's an unusual homecoming — jumping out of a plane more than one mile up. But Dale Gumm of the Aerial Allstars Skydiving Team, based in Louisville, describes his team's arrival in Howell each year as "coming home."

During the seven years the team has performed in Howell, they've grown to love the area and their many friends. The team looks forward to the reception they receive every year — especially their arrival after the team jumps out of the plane at night with pyrotechnics strapped to their bodies.

It's not your typical homecoming, but it's just another jump from a plane for the Aerial Allstars Skydiving Team — even though it's a thrilling sight to remember for the thousands of Michigan Challenge spectators on the ground below.

The Aerial Allstars Skydiving Team, sponsored by Comcast, first brought its flashy, family-friendly skydiving act to the Michigan Challenge in 1995. Team members Dale and Jamey Gumm, Jim Bedway and Larry Compton can't wait to perform for Howell.

"It's one of the annual events we love to perform at," Gumm said. "We always look forward to it because the people are so friendly."

Dale Gumm recalls when they first performed the Supernova Night Show in 1995. It was Saturday night, and about 30 hot-air balloons were glowing on the launch field as Gumm and the other team members exited the plane. About 40,000 spectators gathered below to watch the spectacle.

"We ignited the first pyrotechnics, and the roar from the crowd just hit us. It was unbelievable," Gumm said. "Our adrenaline went sky-high. I'll never forget that reception. And we get one just like it every year."

The Aerial Allstars Skydiving Team will perform day jumps on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, as well as the spectacular Supernova Night Show on Saturday evening during the Balloon Glow.

"We encourage kids to come up and say 'Hi,'" Gumm said. "We let them help us pack up our chutes. We answer questions and sign autographs — it's great fun."

During the night show, three Aerial Allstars will exit the aircraft one mile above the earth, each with 20 pounds of custom-designed special effects pyrotechnics strapped to their bodies. After the canopies open and the ignition systems are armed, the firework display begins. Multiple-system control modules electronically launch rockets, blazing comets, Roman candles, shooting stars and loud reports across the night sky.

The performers actually fire about 120 shots of multi-colored pyrotechnics while descending to the target below. Brilliant strobes illuminate canopies as the jumpers execute their final approach for landing.

During their day shows, the team will perform several thrilling aerial maneuvers in freefalls and under canopy, using a huge American flag, canopy stacking, freefall formations and other unique acts.

The American flag jump will be part of the opening ceremonies each day of the Balloonfest at 5 p.m. The gigantic flag is escorted by two jumpers patriotically displaying red and blue pyrotechnic smoke. The smoke is electronically fired and actually changes color during flight. Howell's Sharon Barlow, a member of the Balloonfest committee and an accomplished performer, will sing the National Anthem as the jumpers descend.

Jack Hardy of Howell is the pilot for the team's jump aircraft. He has piloted the plane for each of the seven years the team has performed at the Michigan Challenge.

Mike Boss of Boss Engineering has graciously lent his Cherokee Six plane for the team's use this year, as well as all previous years.

The Aerial Allstars have performed throughout the United States, including Thunder Over Louisville and the Albuquerque International Balloon Fiesta.

Specially designed balloons delight thousands of visitors

This year the Michigan Challenge welcomes some outstanding special shape and art balloons to the competition.

The CargoLifter balloon is a new entry, never before seen in Howell. The CargoLifter company is designing, building and will operate a global fleet of giant helium-filled airships to transport heavy payloads throughout the world. Its special shape features two airships, one on either side. As the balloon floats, pilot Sam Parks rotates the balloons to give the impression that the airships are chasing each other.

Ocean Fantasy, a beautiful art balloon, returns to Howell after a long absence. Don Wertman II is the balloon's new pilot, and Ocean Fantasy features a sailboat, scuba diver and ocean scenes.

Pancho, flown by Maury Sullivan, is also new to the Michigan Challenge. This art balloon features a southwest scene. Frank Campanella brings his new carousel balloon to the event, complete with carousel horses.

Balloonfest favorites, Pepe the Penguin and Mr. Biddle, return to delight the crowd. The giant penguin and teddy bear have been Balloonfest favorites

Serena's Song offers special opportunity

A very special opportunity for children and adults with special needs returns to the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest. The world's first handicapped-accessible balloon, Serena's Song, will be on site to give free tethered balloon rides to children and adults with special needs.

This special opportunity is made possible by the sponsorship team of Innovations Home Care and Wal-Mart Stores.

Serena's Song is the brainchild of Gary Waldman of Cushing, Iowa. It is named after his 18-year-old daughter Serena, who was born with cerebral palsy and is a quadriplegic.

"We give opportunities to people with special needs to experience something that not many of their able-bodied friends have ever been able to do," Waldman explained.

Waldman arranged for Serena to have a tethered hot-air balloon ride about 12 years ago by tying her wheelchair into the basket of a friend's balloon. Gary was overcome by Serena's joyous reaction to her ride and vowed to make this opportunity available to people with special needs across the country.

Serena does not speak, so the name "Serena's Song" was given to the balloon. Gary Waldman travels the country to bring the unique experience of balloon flight to thousands of people with special needs at numerous major events, such as the Michigan Challenge. The balloon is flown by hot-air balloon pilot Phil Gray.

Serena's Song first came to the Michigan Challenge in 1994. Since then, hundreds of guests with disabilities have enjoyed a tethered balloon ride. These special guests have seen the world from a perspective they never thought possible, in an airship previously unattainable to them.

Gary Waldman holds a teather connected to the first wheelchair accesible hot-air balloon. Waldman's daughter Serena who has special needs was the inspiration for the balloon Serena's Song.

If the weather cooperates with light winds under 10 mph, Serena's Song will carry its special passengers up to 100 feet above the Balloonfest grounds during launch times Friday, Saturday and Sunday evening, as well as Saturday and Sunday mornings. The balloon is a vivid blue with a huge, wheelchair-accessible symbol on the envelope. Access to the balloon is by a unique 48-inch door on the side of the balloon basket.

Guests at the Michigan Challenge will find handicapped parking at all three entrances, but the Grand River and M-59 entrances are the two most convenient to Serena's Song. Guests who have handicapped identification on their vehicle should ask to be directed to the handicapped parking areas.

Watch for "Serena's Song" at the Launch Site

Official crew watches over balloonfest

With all the activities, spectacles and fun that's part of the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest, the centerpiece remains the state championship of hot-air ballooning. A first-rate crew of officials controls the Michigan Challenge competition from the ground.

Jim Birk of Defiance, Ohio will serve as the Michigan Challenge Balloonmeister for the eleventh-consecutive year. As the chief official for the championship, the Balloonmeister runs the competitive events, making important decisions on whether the balloonists will fly, depending on the latest weather reports from the Weather Officer.

Ted Gauthier of Pontiac is the event's Weather Officer. He will keep a close eye on the weather, using the latest instrumentation and information from the National Weather Service.

Wayne Warren of Pontiac is the Safety Officer. He is charged with safety on the field and will help the launch directors assure a safe lift-off for each event.

Patty Cramer is Chief Scoring Officer, assisted by Sandy Christie and Pat Huebner. They will accurately measure "where the baggies fall."

Tom Maynard of Pontiac has been the Michigan Challenge Announcer since the first Balloonfest in 1985. His popular commentary and knowledge of ballooning will keep the crowd at Michigan Challenge XVII informed on all aspects of the competition — plus provide background on the pilots and ballooning.

Alan Ward

Alan Ward, staff photographer for the Livingston County Daily Press & Argus, offers these tips to help you get the best from your photographs at balloonfest this year. Al also will conduct a Kids Photo Clinic on Saturday at 11 a.m., as part of the downtown activities at balloonfest. Kids can enter a contest and have their best balloonfest photos featured in the newspaper!

• DO YOU HAVE FEET?

Sure you do! Probably even have two of 'em. Use them to move around for a better angle on your subject.

• CLOSER IS BETTER

Use those handy feet to move CLOSER. CLOSER. CLOSER. (but be safe).

• DIFFERENT IS GOOD

Climb onto a bench or lie down on the ground for a different view of your subject. Do whatever it takes to make your picture different than everyone else's. (But again, stay safe)

• FILL THE FRAME

Before shooting, scan the corners of your viewfinder with your eye. Notice a lot of dead space inside the frame? If so, zoom in or move closer. Is an ugly trash can in the frame? If so, two steps to the left or right may improve the camera's view.

• FILM IS CHEAP

Ok, so film and processing aren't exactly free. But conipared to missing a once-in-a-lifetime moment? Remember, many pro photographers believe they are doing pretty well if they get just one or two really good "keepers" form a whole 36 exposure roll. If it's worth one shot, it's probably worth several from different angles.

• FUN IS GOOD

Browse through Antique Alley

Nearly a dozen antique dealers will have an array of products for show and sale in the alley behind Dairy Queen on Saturday and Sunday.

Antique lovers will be able to browse porcelain, jewelry, furniture and more in Antique Alley. If you're an antique lover, you'll be sure to find something that piques your interest and, perhaps, opens your wallet.

Wonder no more — just bring it downtown to the Antique Appraisal Clinic on Sunday of Balloonfest weekend.

Virginia Fournier, a certified appraiser with 30 years of experience, will evaluate antiques and collectibles from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the courthouse lawn.

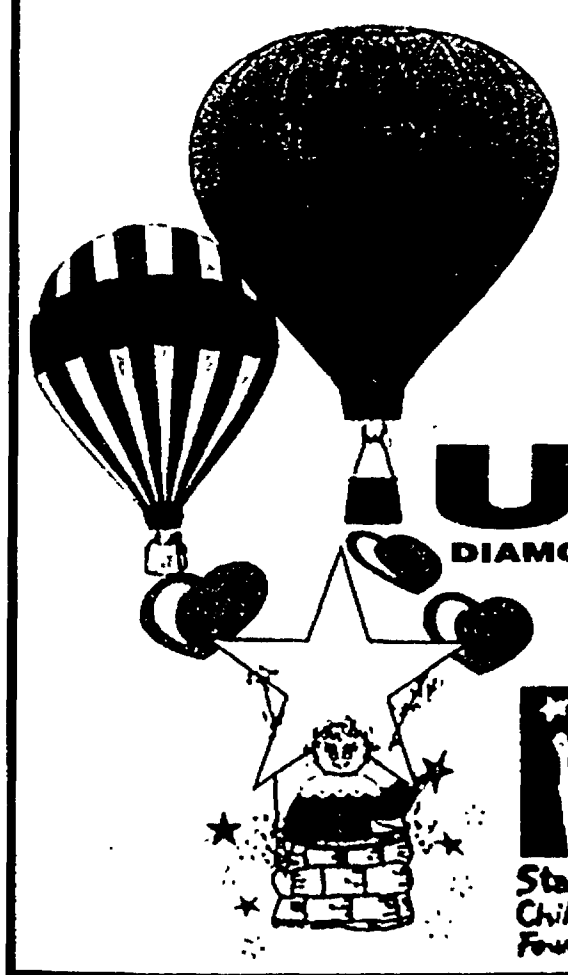

This is also a fund-raiser for the Howell Area Historical Society. The nominal fee of $5 per oral appraisal will go towards restoration of the society's Depot Museum at the end of Walnut Street.

Is the piece you want appraised to big to lug downtown? Just bring a good photo of it instead. Please limit your appraises to two items.

Howell schools invaluable to success of balloonfest

While you're at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest, look around at the beautiful campus of the Howell Public Schools. It is representative of just a piece of the extensive district that educates over 7,600 students at six elementary schools, two middle schools and a large high school.

"We could not put on this event without the cooperation we receive from the Howell Public Schools," said Lee Reeves, president of the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce, host of the Michigan Challenge. "The facilities here are outstanding, plus the cooperation we receive from the board of education, the administration and the staff is invaluable in putting on an event of this size.

"An excellent school system like this is key in the chamber's mission to be a catalyst for a vital business environment and an exceptional community."

The Howell Public Schools have a lot to be proud of in the 2000-2001 school year, including:

- Seven of Howell's nine schools are Michigan Exemplary Schools.
- It was presented the Michigan Association of School Boards 2001 Honor Board Award.
- Two students won the Michigan Association of School Boards competition for Innovative Project — "Purple Loosestrife, Alien Among Us" by a McPherson Middle School student taught by Jamie Clausing, and the Community Project "Bigs and Littles, The Creation of an Historic Coloring Book about the City of Howell" done in conjunction with McPherson-Grade Eight students mentoring Grade 3 students from Challenger Elementary taught by Kathy Rubin.
- It was presented the Michigan Department of Education Exemplary School Award for Latson Elementary. As of press time, Latson Elementary was also awaiting word on a U.S. Department of Education Blue Ribbon School Award.
- The Golden Apple Award, a $50,000 recognition, went to Northwest Elementary, the only Livingston County School recognized by the Governor for exceptional improvement in MEAP scores over a three-year period.
- The Student Council of the Year award went to Southeast Elementary and John Seyfarth, teacher/advisor. This is the fifth straight year this school has won the award.
- There are eleven Advanced Placement courses offered at Howell High School
- Howell High School had three National Merit Finalists, and all received full tuition scholarship offers to four-year colleges
- The Howell High School Choral Music Program has received numerous state ensemble awards.
- Eight varsity wrestlers advanced to Individual State Competition in the MHSAA tournament.
- Howell Schools were the host for the regional Destination Imagination Competition.
- This was the second-consecutive year that a Howell teacher was in the final four of the State Teacher of the Year competition — Barb Beech Silver, Northwest Elementary in 2000 and Sharon Barlow, Voyager Elementary in 2001.

The Michigan Challenge Balloon Glow and Supernova Night Show display a spectacular scene for those who stay after dark.

COLORFUL SPECTACLE

Michigan Challenge Balloonfest Glow and Supernova Night Show is a not-to-missed event

Five...four...three...two...one... GLOW!

Be there on Saturday night of Balloonfest when the Michigan Challenge Balloon Glow and Supernova Night Show light up the sky and the launch field with color and spectacle. It's the most thrilling sight of the Michigan Challenge weekend.

As darkness falls, over 30 balloons will inflate on the launch field, their colors glowing against the night sky. Announcer Tom Maynard will lead the crowd in a countdown to the first "All Glow" and all the balloons will simultaneously ignite their burners presenting an almost overwhelming display of color and light.

Then, from nearly one mile above the earth, the Aerial Allstars Skydiving Team, sponsored by Comcast, will perform their Supernova Night Show, a spectacular nighttime jump complete with pyrotechnics.

The Supernova Night Show opens with the skydivers' blazing comet trails in freefall at 120 mph. The pyrotechnic display continues after the canopies are open. The performers will fire special effects which send shooting stars and bombs bursting in the air across the sky.

The Michigan Challenge Balloon Glow has become one of the most popular events of the Balloonfest weekend. Over the years, hundreds of thousands of spectators have been dazzled by the glow at the Balloonfest and many thousands more have seen it featured on TV news programs.

It is a not-to be-missed event. The balloons will be illuminated from within by their propane burners, creating a glowing panorama of color, shape and spectacle. No balloon will launch at the glow, all will remain on the ground, allowing plenty of time for spectators to take plenty of photographs.

The glow will be coordinated by the Glowmaster, Howard Steele of Clarkston.

If you like dogs and cats, you'll love this year's commemorative Michigan Challenge pin. The pin has images of Cat's Meow, a balloon piloted by Dick Rudlaff and the Father & Son balloon piloted by Shawn Raya. Cat's Meow has silhouettes of Rudlaff's pet cats, and a big happy dog is on the Father & Son balloon.

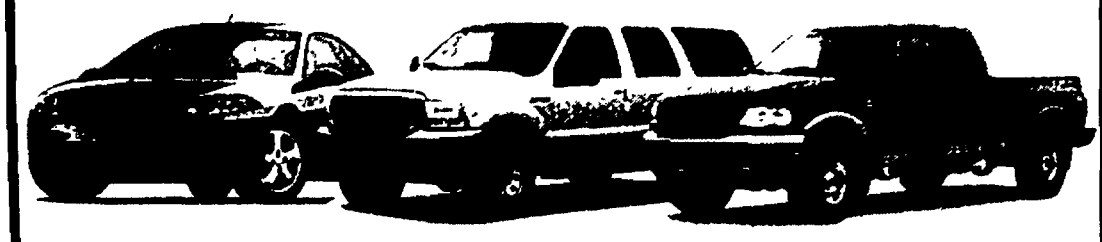

The pins are perfect collector's items and are available for $5 at any Michigan Challenge Balloonfest information booth.

This year's official Michigan Challenge T-shirt features three hot-air balloons with burners ablaze flying overhead. The art was designed by Celine De Meyer for Spirit of Livingston.

Look for the T-shirt booths throughout the event. In addition to T-shirts, Spirit of Livingston will also have an extensive array of Michigan Challenge sweatshirts, and embroidered wearables.

Hungry?

You will be when you stroll by the food vendors at this year's Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

One of the best things about going to any festival is the food. And the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest is no exception.

There are two areas featuring food at the event. The first is at the Arts Festival, where area nonprofit groups grill treats such as bratwursts, sausage and hot dogs and serve up plenty of Pepsi products. Hundreds of volunteers from these groups will work the grills all weekend to keep the crowd satisfied.

At the west side of the launch field are the commercial food vendors. Guests will enjoy a mouthwatering assortment of gastronomic delights from traditional "fair food" such as cotton candy, popcorn, corn dogs and pizza to Thai delicacies, Texas barbecue, apple strudel, broasted chicken, fruit shakes, pitas, Mexican food and baked potatoes. And don't forget hot dogs, bratwursts, sausage, snow cones, elephant ears, funnel cakes, steak subs ice cream and french fries — oops, we're running out of room. Suffice it to say the list goes on and on and on.

In both areas you can rest at picnic tables that are kept clean all weekend long by volunteer scout groups. And plenty of Mister Rubbish containers — the official garbage man of the Michigan Challenge — to deposit your paper plates after you've licked them clean.

This has been a busy time for Pepsi since the first of the year. In January, we started distribution of Dole juices. In March, Pepsi Bottling began to distribute Sobe Beverages and is now selling 15 different flavors.

In May, Code Red took to the streets. This is a Mountain Dew with a cherry flavor.

Pepsi Twist has been introduced into Michigan in June and is hitting the stores in your local community in the middle of June.

Look for all of these refreshing beverages in your stores and throughout the weekend. You can also find out what is happening at Pepsi Bottling Group by visiting our Web site at www.pepsiworld.com.

Local skaters demonstrate skills at skateboard exibition

Special Editions Skateboard Shop is proud to, once again, be the major sponsor of the exhibition. The event debuted last year to rave reviews and returns for two Balloonfest days — Saturday and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Skateboard Exhibition will again highlight local skaters in individual performances and this year will feature special performances by the Daykare Skate Team. Performances will be from noon to 1 p.m. and 3 to 4 p.m. at the skateboarding area. The Daykare team is made up of Ian Rowlette, Delano Acevado, Pete Nowakowski, Drew Houghens, Josh Robertson and Dave Shumaker, along with Daykare owner Rob Woelkers.

Between performances, there will be open skating for anyone with a skateboard and a helmet. The skateboard area is located north of the high school.

The Optimist clubs of Livingston County is sponsoring the event along with Special Editions and will have members present to talk about the many programs and events the Optimists do for county youth.

Staff of Special Editions and volunteers from the Optimist clubs will be helping out with the exhibition throughout the weekend. Stop and see them — maybe you can learn to do a tailslide, a switch-stance or even a noseslide. Or maybe you might just want to watch!

The Family Fun Tent, once again sponsored by Citizens Insurance Company, is the perfect place for the entire family to enjoy the day's festivities.

There's something for everyone — interactive games, arts and crafts, face painting and more under the shade of the fun-filled tent. Citizens' volunteers will be present throughout the weekend to join the fun, lend a hand and pass out balloons.

The Family Fun Tent will be open on Saturday and Sunday from noon until 5 p.m. The tent is located just north of the balloon launch field at Howell High School.

As one of the largest employers in Livingston County, Citizens is committed to improving the quality of life in our community by supporting local organizations, school programs and events like Balloonfest. Citizens is also proud to welcome visitors from all over to this annual celebration and encourages newcomers to experience all that Howell has to offer.

Citizens was founded in Howell in 1915, when the company became the first automobile insurer in Michigan.

It has since become the largest writer of property-casualty insurance in the state through independent agents. The company provides automobile, home, boat and business insurance in Mich., Ind. and Ohio.

Factory Shops offer great buys

The ownership — Fru-Con Development and Howard & Rice — and the eighty tenants of Kensington Valley Factory Shops are proud to, once again, be a sponsor of the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest. This is our seventh year as a Supporting Sponsor of this fantastic community event.

When you visit our tent at the festival site, you will be happy to know that we have something for the whole family. Moms and Dads can pick up a brochure with need-to-know information about the center and a voucher that can be redeemed for our 62-page Coupon Savings Guide! Children 12 years and under will want to try their luck at our Duck Pond! Anyone 18 years or older can register to win great prizes donated by the merchants of Kensington Valley Factory Shops. Take the time to stop by and say "Hi!"

Nestled in the rolling landscape of Livingston County, Kensington Valley Factory Shops are located just outside of downtown Howell at I-96 & M-59 on North Burkhart Road. Kensington Valley has over 80 brand name factory outlet shops. Kensington Valley shoppers enjoy a pleasing and family-oriented atmosphere where you can browse and save in a wide variety of shops. These shops, owned and operated by nationally recognized manufacturers, offer customers deep discounts of between 25 and 70 percent off all retail prices.

Stop by and visit us today and save on fashions, footwear, toys, books, sportswear, electronics, china, handbags, luggage, lingerie, music and so much more! For your shopping convenience, the factory shops accept cash, major credit cards and personal checks with the proper identification.

The country-Victorian architectural design of the center is in keeping with the rural spirit of Howell Township. Attractive covered walkways shield shoppers from inclement weather and link the shops. Shopping hours are Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sundays from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Bus and group tours are welcome. For assistance in planning your group tour, contact our Management Office toll-free at 1-888-545-0565. Group travel incentives are offered throughout the year. Convenient bus parking, clean rest room facilities, a variety of selections in our Food Pavilion and easy access to over 80 factory stores make shopping at Kensington Valley Factory Shops a pleasure.

Whether you're shopping for a friend, family member, client or co-worker, we have the perfect answer! Purchase a Kensington Valley Factory Shops Gift Certificate. They are the ideal way to give the gift of value and selection and can be redeemed in any of over 80 brand-name shops brimming with wide selections of merchandise — up to 70 percent off regular retail. Gift certificates are available in any denomination in the Kensington Valley Factory Shops Management Office Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon. At this time, payment is by cash or by corporate check.

Kensington Valley Gift Certificates are a great way to reward employees for a job well done, thank someone on a special day or to acknowledge an achiever in your company! Whether it is a personal or corporate gift, the Kensington Valley Factory Shops Gift Certificate is sure to be appreciated!

Kensington Valley Factory Shops employs over 500 workers at peak selling seasons. Our employees are a part of the community. Many of them are raising their families in Livingston County. Ownership, management and our employees feel very strongly about the benefits that events such as the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest can have on all area businesses, non-profit organizations and the community at large! We hope that you enjoy this year's event.

For a list of our events, check out our web site at www.kensingtonvalley.com. Our calendar of events offers you a reason to return to Howell in the near future. Stop back and enjoy Kensington Valley Factory Shops and beautiful downtown Howell anytime!

Enter Medieval Village for taste of past

The Medieval Village at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest will be full of more fun, entertainment and adventure than ever before, thanks to a partnership of the Society for Creative Anachronism and Swordbound.

These two medieval re-enactment organizations have banded together to bring the middle ages to life for Balloonfest visitors.

It will be hard to miss this year's village — two gates and towers with flags flying will mark the entrance to the village, located at the east side of the launch field.

Inside, visitors will enter a different world, full of lords and ladies, knights and knaves. Visit the fighting field and see sword-fighting knights compete. Stop at the forge and watch armor made before your eyes. Enjoy demonstrations of woodworking, chainmail, leather and textiles.

There will be children's games in the medieval style, plus chess boards for competition.

All activities will be listed, along with times, on signs within the village.

Travel back in time at the Medieval Village — you may not want to return! Representatives of both groups will be on hand to answer questions in case you'd like to join in the fun.

Balloonfest is entertainment bargain

At Michigan Challenge XVII, the state hot-air ballooning championship and festival, $9 parks your car and provides admission for all your passengers.

And with a little pre-planning, only $1 more buys you a weekend pass good for vehicle and passenger entries all three days.

Just stop in at any National City Bank office in Livingston County by June 21 to purchase a regular $12 weekend pass for just $10.

With your paid parking, you have a chance to win a champagne hot-air balloon flight for two, courtesy of Renaissance Balloons of Brighton.

Just remove the Renaissance Balloons portion of your parking pass and bring it to any of the conveniently located information booths at the festival site or at the downtown entertainment site at the courthouse. When you trade it in, you'll receive three raffle tickets.

The drawing will be conducted at the launch site at 8 p.m. on Sunday, June 24. You need not be present to win. Two lucky winners will be drawn, and each will win a flight for two.

Where to park at the Challenge

Parking can be accessed from West Grand River Avenue, M-59 or Highlander Way.

Handicapped parking is available at all entrances of the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

Guests in vehicles with a handicapped license plate or sticker should bring tell the parking attendant, and they will be shown to a special parking area where access to the launch site and festival grounds is completely paved.

For the comfort and safety of both our guests and our animal friends, the Michigan Challenge committee requests that spectators leave all pets at home.

Visit the Family Fun Tent sponsored by Citizens' from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday

Volunteers who help at balloonfest make a difference

Who are all those people in the orange vests?

They're all volunteers from local nonprofit groups, and they work hard all weekend to make sure it's smooth parking for the thousands of cars who enter the Balloonfest site — while, at the same time, raising money for their respective clubs or organizations. It's one more way the event gives back to the community.

The Howell Area Chamber of Commerce, host of the Michigan Challenge, pays nonprofit organizations for each four-hour shift that a volunteer in the group's name works.

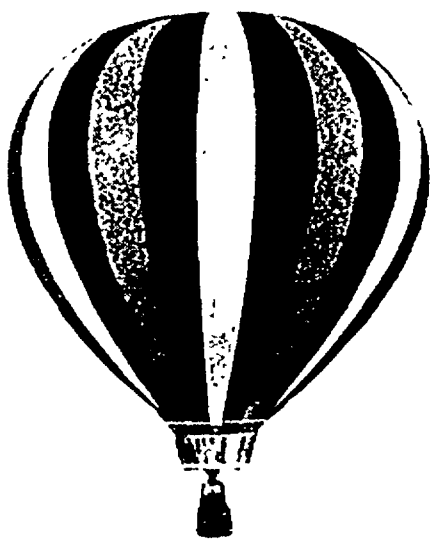

The pay for most shifts is $16. However, a premium fee of $20 per shift is paid for volunteers working the prime — and very busy — shifts of Saturday or Sunday evenings.

Last year through the parking volunteer program, the Balloonfest contributed more than $9,000 to nonprofit organizations throughout Southeast Michigan.

Interested in getting your nonprofit group involved? Call the chamber at (517) 546-3920.

Livingston County hosts exciting events

Having fun at the Balloonfest? Come back to Livingston County throughout the year for our many other special events.

The Howell Sunday Farmers' Market is a weekly mini-festival through October 7. Located in downtown on State Street, adjacent to the Historic Livingston County Courthouse, it features the fresh produce of area growers as well as weekly entertainment and special events. Contact the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce at (517) 546-3920.

Livingston County's Fowlerville Fair is July 14-22. Agricultural, 4-H and open class exhibits, a carnival, top name concerts and horse racing highlight the county fair. Call (517) 223-8186.

The Brighton Art Festival is August 11 and 12 in Brighton. A downtown art show, classic car show and parade sponsored by the Greater Brighton Area Chamber of Commerce are all part of the event. Call (810) 227-5086.

The Howell Melon Festival, August 16-19, presents a large parade, arts and crafts show, music and entertainment during this weekend as the city salutes the delicious Howell melon. Call (517) 545-5687. The event is sponsored by the Howell Jaycees.

Fantasy of Lights, November 23, in historic downtown Howell initiates the holiday season with a sparkling nighttime Christmas parade filled with dozens of illuminated floats and musical units. It is hosted by the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce. Call (517) 546-3920.

There's a wealth of activities and attractions in Livingston County. For more information and a guide to accommodations and special events, call the Livingston County Visitors Bureau at (517) 548-1795 or 1-800-686-8474.

Award-winning duo to appear on main stage Saturday evening

The incredible musical duo of Peter Madcat Ruth and Shari Kane will bring their special brand of blues to the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest on Saturday night.

After the balloon launch on Saturday evening, Madcat & Kane will perform harmonica and guitar blues on the main stage, entertaining the thousands of balloonfest guests until darkness falls and it's time for the Balloon Glow.

Peter Madcat Ruth and Shari Kane joined forces in 1990 to form the duo Madcat & Kane. Having traded records and tapes for over ten years, they knew they shared a love for blues that crossed the lines between electric and acoustic, delta and Chicago, jump blues, folk blues, and jazz.

Performance Magazine refers to Peter Madcat Ruth as "A harmonica virtuoso who is rapidly approaching legend status." Considered one of the country's most versatile blues guitarists, Shari Kane can take an audience from her raw interpretations of Delta Blues to an up-town Chicago groove with style and ease.

In 1992 Madcat & Kane was voted one of six finalists in the Long Beach Blues Festival National Talent Search Contest. In December, 1992 they released their first CD, "Key to the Highway," on the Schoolkids' Records label. The following year it was nominated for best blues album of the year by the Motor City Music Awards Foundation in Detroit, and named one of the "Ten Best Blues CDs of 1993" by WDCU-FM in Washington, DC and the Baltimore Blues Society. Key to the Highway is now in its third pressing, and continues to get radio play throughout the United States. In 1994 and again in 1995 Madcat & Kane was featured on the National Public Radio program Blues Stage. Since 1990, Madcat & Kane has toured extensively throughout the United States. They have also performed in Brazil, Canada, Poland, Spain, and the Cayman Islands.

Peter Madcat Ruth and Shari Kane joined forces in 1990 to form the duo Madcat & Kane. Catch their performance Saturday.

Committed volunteers ensure success of balloonfest

What a committee!

Words can't adequately describe the kind of commitment and enthusiasm the Michigan Challenge Committee puts into staging the three-day Balloonfest.

Those three days are only what guests see. Work actually began soon after the last balloon landed in 2000. It's a 12-month effort and a labor of love. The dedicated committee is constantly planning, improving and designing new features for the thousands of guests who attend each year.

"Without all their hard work, the Balloonfest would never 'get off the ground.'" Michigan Challenge manager Pat Convery said. "This is such a dedicated group. They want to bring the best to our thousands of guests. Plus, they have fun doing it."

The Michigan Challenge Balloonfest has a core committee of individuals who chair different areas. In addition, nearly 600 volunteers work all weekend to make the event a success.

The Michigan Challenge Committee is chaired by Doug Hawes of WYM Consulting Services. This is Hawes' third year as chairman. He also served two years as vice chair as well as vendor chairperson.

Lt. Barry Rutter of the Howell Police Department is vice-chair of the Michigan Challenge. Rutter has served for years on the committee, acting as carnival liaison and coordinating event safety.

Steve Barlow of Air Tech, Inc. and Don Cortez, owner of First Impression Printing & Graphics are co-chairs of the parking committee. They are responsible for the job of directing parking for the thousands of cars that visit the Challenge.

Cathy Blight chairs the Arts Festival. Cathy owns Creative House, a graphics design firm in Howell. She is assisted by Gayle Down of Howell Public Schools and Karen Murdock of Livingston Diversified Services. The show is one of the largest attractions at the Michigan Challenge.

Sandie Cortez, who owns First Impression Printing with her husband Don, is in charge of all signage for the event. She also serves as a parking gate captain.

Dianne Hardy is Livingston County Treasurer. She serves as hospitality chairperson for the Michigan Challenge, seeing that the pilots are well fed and that the sponsor room is stocked with refreshments. She also coordinates a number of parties and special events before and during the Balloonfest weekend.

Sgt. Becky Harwood of the City of Howell Police Department acts as liaison between the city and the chamber, coordinates safety and security at the Balloonfest site and is in charge of carnival activities.

Reed Kittredge, operations manager of WHMI 93.5 radio, has taken the recently-created position of entertainment chairman. Reed coordinates entertainment at both the Arts Festival and Vendor areas.

Victor Lopez, owner of Active Bookkeeping Service, keeps the books for the Balloonfest, as head of the finance committee.

Pam Rietsch is pilot liaison for the event. She runs the Livingston County Genealogical & Historical Website. Rietsch has worked on the committee since its first year and is assisted by Bill Bettis of Bettis Insurance, Gabi Bresett of First National Bank, and Ray Bresett.

Dick Rudlaff of Clarkston is the event's competition director and first had the idea of holding the state championship of hot-air ballooning in Howell. A nationally-known pilot, he will also compete in the Challenge.

Jerry Smith chairs the Antique and Custom Car Show. Smith is a project engineer for May & Scofield and is very active in the Livingston A's Region Model A Restorers Club.

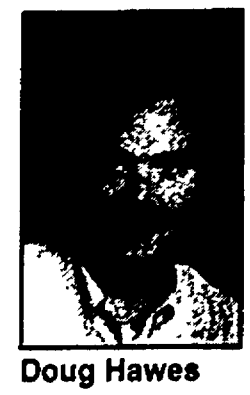

Paul Streng, former Mayor of the City of Howell and an instructor at Michigan State University, will coordinate all landowner relations for the event. Assisted by pilot Jerry Stephan, Streng will help map out safe landing and take off spots for the pilots in the area.

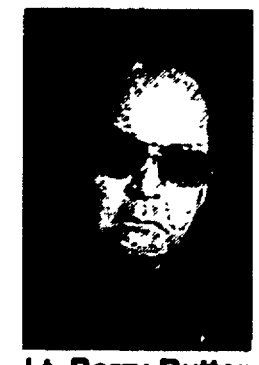

Gary Sumeracki of P & J Associates is vendor chairperson. He coordinates both food and non-food concessionaires on the Balloonfest grounds.

Michelle Tokan chairs the Balloonfest downtown committee. She has served on the committee for many years and this is her second year as chair. Tokan is assisted by Howell mayor Geri Moen, city council member Sue Dolato, Rick Dolato, owner of Livingston Business Forms Jackie Mullaney, Susan Grimes Munsell and Howell's Downtown Development Authority manager Camille Lievense.

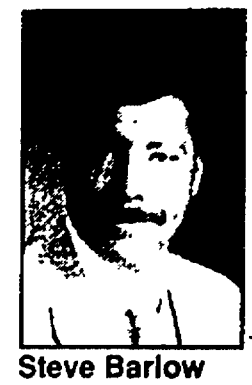

Don Watson, retired from Howell Public Schools, is in charge of the Balloonfest site. He makes sure everything is in place for the weekend. Watson is assisted by Paul Rogers of CommTech Services.

The Balloonfest would not be possible without the cooperation of the Howell Public Schools. Denis Taylor and Deb Cook provide outstanding support to the Balloonfest and the committee as school liaisons.

1

The founder of the Michigan Challenge, Dick Rudlaff of Waterford, will fly "Cat's Meow," one of the balloons featured on this year's collector pin. She is bright yellow with cat silhouettes. Dick won the first Michigan Challenge and he's being honored for all of his hard work over the years with the event. Dick has flown in all of the Challenges and will be sponsored by First Impression Printing & Graphics.

2

We never know whether it will be John or his son Shawn Raya from Utica piloting the Father & Son Construction corporate entry. F & S was the first sponsor of the Challenge when it debuted 17 years ago and has been flying here ever since. The bigger-than-life puppy dog coming out of his house always pleases the kids. Because of that sponsorship they are also being honored on this year's collector pin.

3

Bob Scobee will pilot a crowd pleaser if there ever was one. The world's only flying penguin "Pepe" will be sponsored by our Supporting Sponsor, Pepsi. This giant bird takes a whole crew of handlers to inflate and handle and weighs in at about 600 pounds empty. Imagine what he weighs when he has eaten all of the mackerel up in the sky?

4

Ron Groce from Mason and Donna Fox from Battle Creek co-pilot a children's favorite "Mr. Biddle" the flying teddy bear, complete with a pocket watch so his flight schedule stays on track and spectacles so he can stay out of the way of giant flying penguins. Our Supporting Sponsor, Citizens Insurance Company of America, sponsors Mr. Biddle.

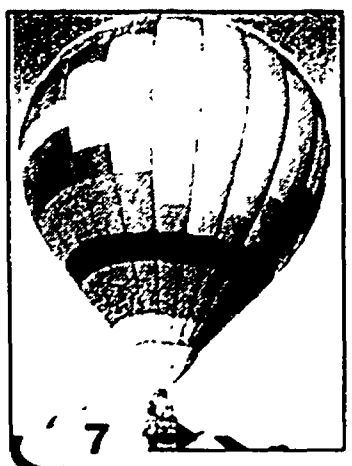

5

Balloonmeister Jim Birk, of Defiance Ohio, will pilot the Kroger balloon. Jim is in charge of laying out all of the tasks that the pilots use to determine who will be this year's champion. This is a daunting task as the caliber of pilots who fly in the Challenge is high and they thrive on the Balloonmeister's tasks.

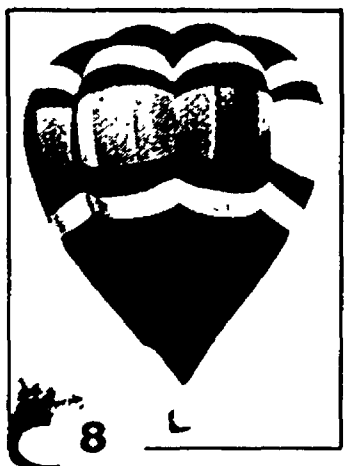

6

Safety Officer Wayne Warren, of Waterford, will be in charge of safety on the field and during the various flights. Ameritech has sponsored Wayne for all the years of the Challenge. His balloon Junior has stripes of black, yellow and pink.

Munith sends us Chuck Walz returning for the fourth time to attempt to fly home with the trophy. His balloon "Sunny Trails" is bright yellow, orange and red. Ann Arbor Architects Collaborative / Irish Construction Company are sponsoring Chuck this trip.

Another long time competitor pilot Jim Lykins of Lake Orion, flies "Kids Play." This balloon depicts Jim's children when they were small enjoying their favorite sports. Auto One sponsors Jim.

Now that Dawn Gauthier got her feet wet in last year's Challenge, it won't be long until she has some wins under her belt just like her father and uncles who fly here. Dawn lives in Pontiac and pilots "Daydream," a pretty black balloon with a horizontal striped bar of vibrant colors. Dawn is sponsored for her second Challenge by Belle Tire.

Tim and Missy Midura from Barberton, Ohio will be back in familiar territory as they have flown the majority of the past Challenges. They pilot together "Kismet," a multicolored envelope with yellow top and bottom. This year they are sponsored by The Marketeer.

Phil Clinger flies with us often and pilots "The Jester" out of Battle Creek. His sponsor this year is Kensington Inn of Howell. The balloon is patterned in a tumbling block design of purple, yellow and green. His wife Tammy joins us Crew Chief.

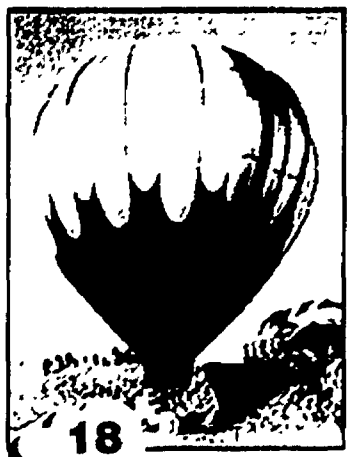

Our land owner relations are covered by a local pilot who has also flown in all of the Challenges Jerry Stephan and his wife Daria both pilot "Jedami," a vertically stepstriped balloon of black, teal, and bright rainbow colors with pennants to match. MacDonald's Funeral Home sponsors them.

Phil Glebe, of Brighton, will fly "Pontiac Excitement." Phil is sponsored by Waldecker Pontiac Buick Inc. Phil has attended every Challenge and won the event in 1988 and 1999. Phil owns and operates Renaissance Balloons.

Ted Gauthier is sponsored by Anderson's Sales & Service of Pontiac. Ted flies the brightly colored balloon that depicts the company's owner on his motorcycle. Ted has flown in many of the past Challenges and is a keen competitor. Ted also serves as the event's Weather Officer.

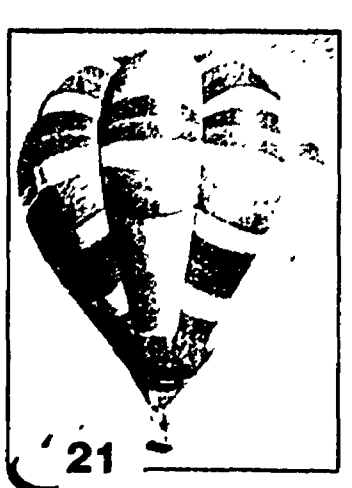

Todd Fisher, of Akron, Ohio, flies a brand-new balloon this year called "Northern Lights" which is black with a rainbow of colors dripping down from the crown. Todd is sponsored by Ramada Inn Conference & Convention Center.

This year Red's Frame Shop sponsors a great friend of the Challenge, Bill Sterner of Pontiac. Bill flies a very pretty chevron patterned balloon with white sections splashing through the colors called "Rejoice II."

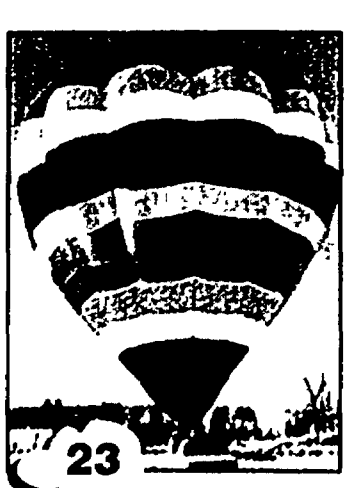

Allen Yost of Midlothian, Ill. returns again to fly with the Challenge. Allen flies a HBW balloon called "Spectrum" which is basically yellow with a red, blue and green zigzag pattern over it. This year Allen is sponsored by Rexland Electric Company.

Larry and Sandi Novotny come to the Challenge every year from Allen Park. They've also come here flying lots of times with their friends so our residents often see their balloon. Ditto. They are sponsored this year by Spartan Tire.

Brian Prokuda is another Livingston County pilot. Brian is part of the team of pilots that helps with the crew training class for the Challenge. His balloon is called "Sunrise" and has a wave pattern in a combination of red, orange, yellow, blue, purple and navy. He is sponsored by Walter's Home Appliances.

Another team of pilots is Marty and Rob Mihaly who pilot "Boojum" a very pretty black balloon with bright multicolored sections around its circumference. Rob and Marty hail from Lakewood, Ohio. Woodshire Place sponsors them this year.

Best Western of Howell will again be sponsoring Dennis Belger of Richmond. Dennis has flown with us for most of the Challenges and will be flying "Betsy" a red, white and blue entry.

25 Grass Lake sends us pilot, Al Smith, flying "Calypso," described as vertical stripes of primary colors with white banana gores in between. This will be Al's third year and he is sponsored this year by CarTronics.

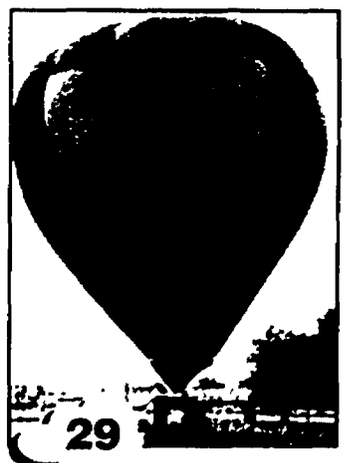

26 Back for her third try at the Challenge is Jan Knight who lives right here in Howell. Her balloon "Cloud Dancer" has a pretty, almost Grecian green and gold pattern. First National Bank sponsors her appearance this year.

27 Chem-Trend Inc. sponsors another returning pilot, Paul Quandee of Elkhart, Ind., Paul has been here a number of years and this year he says to watch for his balloon because it even glows better than ever. "Sunrize" is sure to be a great hit!

28 David Mohr, who comes from Three Rivers, will pilot "Rainbow Twist," a bright multicolored chevron-patterned balloon. Ogihara will be sponsoring his attempt this year.

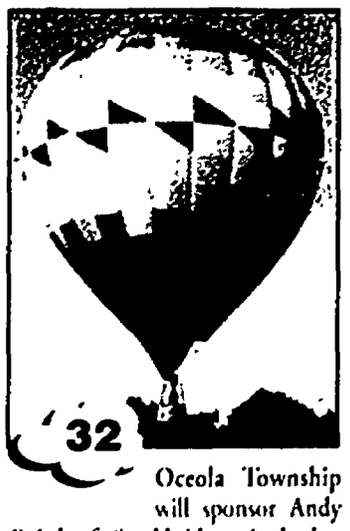

29 Another of the famous "Flying Gauthiers" is none other than Joey Gauthier from nearby Waterford who will pilot "Nudge Me," as in the morning ... to fly. The balloon is a beautiful purple and black in color. Joey has only missed one year in all of the Challenges and is sponsored by Marion Oaks Golf Club.

30 Quinn Jones, of Carsonville, has not flown with us for several years but is back with a balloon called "Stumble in Ballooning." Metropolitan Title sponsors his visit with us this year. Quinn's balloon is black with an equator of red, orange and yellow blocks.

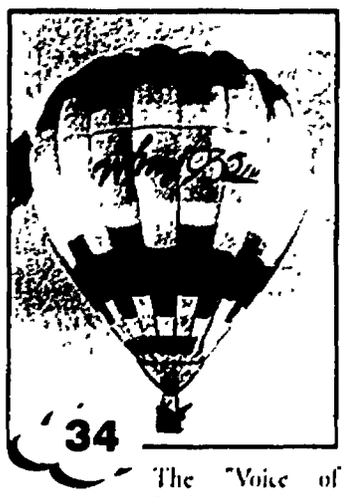

31 "Jesus Loves You" is a beautiful blue balloon with the dove of peace on one side and its name on the other in large white letters. Cheryl Heselschwerdt from Grass Lake pilots the peaceful balloon and is sponsored by Mugg & Bopps.

32 Oceola Township will sponsor Andy Baird of Stockbridge. Andy has flown many times with the Challenge both with commercial and private entries. His Cameron balloon "Medalist" is a bright checker pattern of primary colors with a yellow equator and a black and white diamond pattern surrounding it.

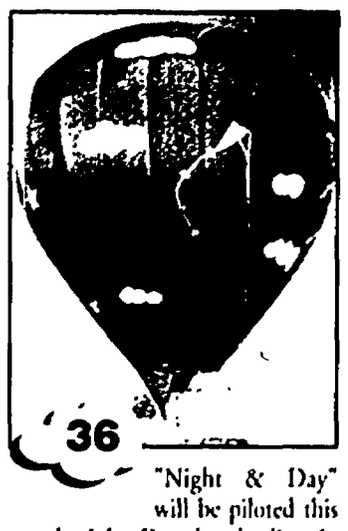

33 A pilot who has not been back to the Challenge in quite a few years, Richard Meteyer, had brought "Mariah" here this year. Richard hails from Davisburg and his balloon is a blue step pattern. Richard won the Michigan Challenge in 1986. He is sponsored by Detroit Edison.

34 The "Voice of Livingston County" WHMI – FM 93.5, has Mark Duewer flying its corporate entry. The balloon is a bright splash of multicolor much like all the interesting news and features from the radio station.

35 Superior GM - Olds will sponsor Steve Davis who will fly the corporate entry "Goodwrench Service Plus." This large red, white, blue and black balloon with white pennants on the side is also from the Renaissance Balloon Company here in Brighton.

36 "Night & Day" will be piloted this year by John Derado who lives in Saline with wife Tommie. The balloon is designed from a drawing by John and Tommie's late son who was their crew chief. One side of the balloon shows the sun and a kite flying with the moon and stars on the other side. John is sponsored by The Wedding Center in Historic Howell.

37 U of M Health Center sponsors Scott Lorenz this year flying "Sun Pilot." The balloon has a mural design of a ship at sea against the bright sunlit sky. Scott, who hails from Plymouth, has flown in almost all of the past Challenges

38 Jody Featherberry from Stockbridge captains a perennial favorite "The Phoenix" every year. The gorgeous firebird lights up when it launches into the sky. Jody is sponsored by Ultra Gold & Diamond

39 A brand new entry and pilot this year are Maury Sullivan, of North Canton, Ohio, flying "Pancho." The balloon features a southwest design with cactus and bright colors. Maury and his family have flown all over the world from St. Petersburg, Russia to Canada and all over the U. S. His balloon is named after his restaurant in Ohio. Maury's first trip is sponsored by American Imaging Corp.

40 Special Editions Skateboard Shop sponsors Jeff Pestun, a returning pilot to the Challenge. He is flying "Fantasy," a blue balloon with yellow and orange vertical bars

41 Tom Bergeon from Mason again pilots "Mighty Mrs." This commercial entry is sponsored by RE/MAX of Michigan. Tom has been seen flying all over the countryside and can also be seen flying in a national commercial.

42 LaFontaine GMC will be represented by a previous champion of the Challenge Bruce Bussey of Texas. The beautiful "GMC" balloon, which pictures the vehicles sold by his sponsor, really make for a true flying billboard.

Krug Ford-Lincoln-Mercury will sponsor pilot Gregory Rolph from Middletown, Ohio, this year. "Capture" is yellow with lightning bolts of purple, red and green.

With spirals of dark blue, pink, light blue, green and yellow, "Mo' Money" makes a splash in the sky! Chuck Owens from Dowling, Mich., makes another trip to the Challenge. He is sponsored this year by the three McDonalds restaurants in Howell.

"Second Child," piloted by Larry Sweerin of Portage, is back with us. Larry has flown in the Challenge for the last six years and this year is sponsored by Dr. Samuel Daniels Orthodontist. Second Child is navy blue with teal and fuschia teardrops. People go "ahhhhh" when they see this one float by.

Mark Frazer, from Middletown, Ohio, returns to the Challenge after being gone for a few years. He flies "Release" which is yellow with multiple colored spirals. Independence Village of Brighton sponsors Mark's trip to the Challenge.

Roger Beebe, from Ceresco, has flown in many of the past Challenges and is flying "Skittles" this year. The bright red balloon has blue, green, yellow and orange horizontal stripes. Roger is sponsored by Fairway of America.

Cargolifter is designing, building and will operate a global fleet of giant helium filled airships to transport heavy payloads throughout the world. Their balloon, piloted by Sam Parks of North Carolina, portrays two of the airships. As it ascends, the balloon will rotate and it will appear as if the airships are pursuing each other around the perimeter of the balloon. Welcome to Howell, Sam.

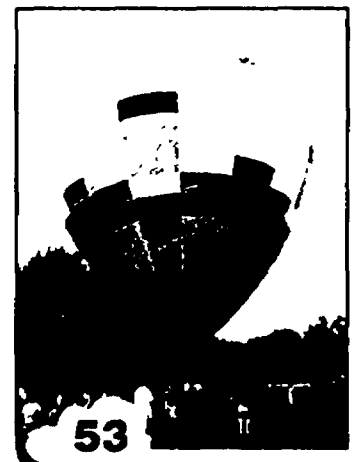

Jim Neill returns from Riverwood, Ill. for another crack at the Challenge. His balloon is called "Stellar" and is blue with yellow stars. Burwick Farms Apartments will be sponsoring Jim on his trip to take home the trophy. Eileen is his crew chief.

A favorite of Michigan Challenge spectators, but not seen here for a few years, is "Ocean Fantasy." The balloon, piloted by Don Wertman II, depicts a scuba diver, fish and a sailboat—all the things you'd see in and on the ocean. This is Don's first trip to the Challenge as a pilot. He is sponsored by the company he works for, A & L Parts.

Frank Campanella, from Orchard Lake, has been missing for a few years but this year he brings a brand new balloon called "Carousel" to delight the crowd. The balloon has wonderful designs of carousel animals and horses, just like the real thing. Adecco Employment Services will sponsor this first appearance of the balloon in Howell.

Brand new to the Challenge is Robert Zanella from Barberton, Ohio. Robert and his wife bring a beautiful new balloon called "PADA" or Pharmacists Against Drug Abuse. It is orange and yellow and has black falcons and the PADA logo on it. Mr. B's Rustic Tavern will sponsor Robert's inaugural flight here.

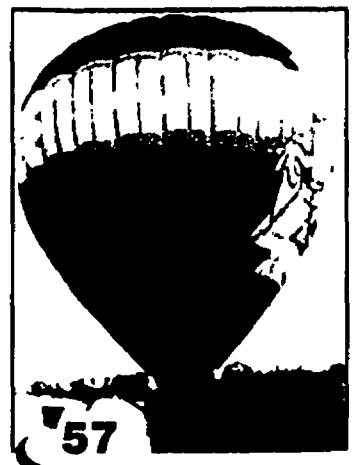

For his third attempt to take home the Challenge trophy, Ron Terranova comes to us from Hamilton, Ohio. His balloon, "Adam's Nirvana," is purple, teal, pink and neon yellow. It really light up when the sun hits those bright colors. He is sponsored by Lansing Community College.

Returning after a year's absence is "Mosaic Magic" piloted by David Lowe from Wisconsin. The balloon is a mosaic of many colors. MediaNet will sponsor David's return trip to the Challenge.

Ed Dotson returns flying "Rainbow Prism," a multicolored balloon in a stair-step pattern. Ed has flown most of the past Challenges. Ed is from Ann Arbor where he has a balloon sales and service business. He is sponsored by Howell Soft Cloth Car Wash.

Brand new to the Challenge from Charleston, Ind., is Ronnie Shewmaker who will pilot "Benihana." The red and black balloon features the popular restaurant's logo and chef.

COACH'S CORNER

CAL RIPKEN, JR.

What Cal says...

"On my 11th birthday, my dad gave me a Rawlings glove. That was my first top-quality glove and it went everywhere with me–I even slept with it. The following year, my dad's teammate, Don Baylor, gave me a batting practice glove, which was small enough for me. Glove selection is a very personal decision; however, your size and the position you play are also key factors. When I played shortstop, I used a smaller glove, which increased my feel for the ball and my ability to get the ball out of the glove quickly. After moving to 3rd base, I increased the size of my glove. Hot corners are closer to the action and therefore, a player uses less footwork and more glove work. Also, as I grew into my 6'4", 225-pound frame, my glove requirements also grew."

Cal's best tips...

[illegible] glove that [illegible] position you play.

2. Experiment with different glove types and sizes (use your friends or teammates).
3. Factor in your personal preference and what you are comfortable playing with.

Cal Ripken, Jr. became the 7th player in MLB history to hit over 400 home runs combined with 3,000 hits. Ripken, a record-setting 16-time All-Star Game starter, holds baseball's all-time record with 2,632 consecutive games played. Cal recently became a member of Major League Baseball's All-Century team.
