Renters brace for HUD change

By Lon Huhman
STAFF WRITER

Northville and Swan Harbour Apartments resident Sherry Steele and her mother will most likely be able to stay in their home, but she and other Section 8 residents still feel left out in the dark.

According to Michigan Housing and Urban Development spokesperson Ken Barnard, as of Jan. 1 Swan Harbour management has declared it will opt out of the Section 8 contract with HUD for its Phase Two section of the apartment complex. The Section 8 program occurs when a renter meets HUD requirements allowing the renter to receive financial subsidies to help with paying a rental payment.

Phase Two was contracted for 32 of 162 units to be able to receive Section 8 assistance, which covers 30 percent of the rent. Barnard has seen no indication of how Phase One, which has Section 8 contracts for 21 units out of 104, will be dealt with. Barnard said the voucher-issuing process for Phase Two Section 8 residents has been initiated. The voucher and its process of determining a resident's best options can help fund a resident's stay at the renter's home or it can help them find a new one.

Barnard said out of the 21 contracts/in phase one there are 11 still residing and out of the 32 for phase two there are 18 left.

For most of 2001, Steele and other residents waited to see what their future would be: either moving to a new home or staying at Swan Harbour. Steele preferred to stay since her mother's physical and mental health could be distressed by moving out of a home

Here's what's happening with Northville apartment rental policies:

■ Swan Harbour has declared it will opt out of its HUD Section 8 contract for its Phase II section of the complex.

■ A voucher program is designed to help those persons affected by Section 8 programs stay in their homes or locate a new one.

Colthurst announces bid for judgeship

By Lon Huhman
STAFF WRITER

Northville resident Eric Colthurst is currently a magistrate for 35th District Court, but by 2003, he hopes to be the third judge at the Plymouth court house.

Colthurst believes his time as a magistrate and attorney will greatly help him in his bid for the newly-created third judgeship. The 35th District includes both Northville Township and the city of Northville, Plymouth and Canton. The court handles civil and criminal cases such as small claims, arraignments, traffic cases and tenant disputes.

Eric Colthurst

"I have practiced law since 1981 and been a magistrate since 1986. This is the next logical step in my professional career," Colthurst said. "When the third judgeship was created, I decided I had the time, commitment to the community and experience to become a candidate."

State Representative Bruce Patterson, R-Canton, along with State Senator Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, helped push along the bill which created the bench position through the state House and Senate. Once it was approved in December by both houses, it was then placed before Governor John Engler for his authorization. 35th District Court Judge John MacDonald said adding a third judgeship was "long overdue" and would likely ease the load off of himself and Judge Ronald Lowe.

Colthurst agreed with the consensus as to why a third judge was Meads Mill Middle School students Jorday Mark, right, Will Bickle, left, and Andrew Distler, along with many others in its Young Living Class created 22 teddy bears for the Northville fire department to be given away to youngsters who are in need of some comfort.

Making the unbearable, bearable

A bit of yarn, felt, stuffing and stitching and a dash of ingenuity go a long way at Meads Mill Middle School.

A classroom of seventh grade students at Meads Mill have created approximately 20 handmade teddy bears, which are planned to be donated to the city of Northville fire department.

Lynn Soluri, a teacher at Meads Mill and coordinator for the project, said the fire department will likely be distributing the bears as firefighters see fit. Soluri said the firefighters could give a bear to a young child involved in a scary situation during one of the department's emergency runs.

The bears were created without faces or even decorative trim, for the safety of young children.

"We kept them simple," Soluri said. While these bears lack facial expressions or ornamentation, they do carry the warm thoughts and careful workmanship of their seventh grade creators.

"We talked about doing something for our own community," Soluri said.

Soluri said the students enjoyed creating their bears so much they became attached to their handwork.

"They were reluctant to give them up, but they willingly did it," Soluri said. "I was real proud of them. I thought the bears turned out so cute. I love to do community service projects with the kids. [It] gives them a good feeling that they gave something of themselves."

The bears were fashioned simply out of felt, yarn and fiberfill.

"With a minimal amount of supplies, they did something very spe-

Bernoulli? Galileo? Newton? Students gravitate to physics

By Jennifer Norris
STAFF WRITER

Hundreds of Winchester Elementary students and families flocked to the school last Friday for an evening of science experiments and excitement.

Patty Pokrandt, science night chairperson and member of the Winchester PTA, said 440 people attended the Winchester Family Physics Night, which was presented by the Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum.

Pokrandt said 20 different hands-on learning stations were set up for students and parents to discover the basic principles of physics. The event was open to students in all grades and their families.

"We really did have a good mix of kids and parents," said Pokrandt. "It was wonderful to see the parents and the children interacting together and working on the experiments. Everybody was having fun. You would have thought it was like a festival."

She also said that 11 science-related prizes were given away throughout the evening. Prizes included spy pens, special flashlights and magic trick kits, she said.

"My goal is to help students see the fun in science," said Pokrandt, who added that 27 parent volunteers offered their assistance for the event.

The family physics night event lasted from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m.

"The parents work together very well and you can tell that the parents value education, especially science, since we had 440 people in attendance on a Friday night," she said. "They value the family and they value education."

Township looks back at 2001, charts course for 2002

By Lon Huhman
STAFF WRITER

After some significant political changes in 2000, Northville Township used 2001 as a year of looking ahead while producing some lasting results.

Township manager Chip Snider said 2002 would only further demonstrate the reinvigorated leadership that has helped put the township into a proactive direction.

"This was a foundation building year for Northville Township," township supervisor Mark Abbo said of 2001. "We firmed up our relationships with the city of Northville as well as with the Northville Public Schools. Both are significant relationships that needed to be better established so that we can serve the Northville community to the best of our abilities.

In addition, we commissioned an important strategic plan that gives an overview of where we are and where we want to go in the future."

In 2000, township voters selected Abbo as the new supervisor and Snider was appointed as manager — a position the township did not have prior to 2001. In addition, board trustees Shirley Klokenga, Brad Werner and Marjorie Banner were added to the board of trustees. Snider said one of the most important points to the town-

Jazz harpist Grix debuts new CD, arts performance

By Jennifer Norris
STAFF WRITER

Northville resident Christa Grix wants to share her musical talent with area residents.

Grix, an accomplished jazz harpist, will be hosting a CD release party for her newest compact disc entitled "Cheek to Chic" tonight at the Plymouth Community Arts Council building, located at 774 N. Sheldon Road at 7 p.m.

"I'm very excited about this CD," said Grix. "I think artistically it's wonderful."

Within her newest CD, the sounds of jazz and the harp are blended into a unique compilation. Along with the harp instrumentals, "Cheek to Chic" features the sounds of acoustic bass by Kurt Krahne and drums and percussion melodies by Pete Siers.

"The most significant thing is that the harp isn't an instrument that is commonly associated with jazz music," said Grix. "It's been a long process in learning how to adapt my musical concepts to playing jazz because I was trained classically. Of all the things I'm most proud of, I'm unique in adapting this genre to the harp."

"This is a wonderful opportunity for parents to expose their children to the harp," said Grix. "I am admitting children under age 12 free if they are accompanied by a parent or guardian."

An additional concert is scheduled to take place in Northville next month. That concert, she said, is being sponsored by the Northville Arts Commission and will take place Sunday, Feb. 24, at Genliti's restaurant at 3 p.m.

Grix said the free admission offer for children under age 12 accompanied by a parent only applies for the Plymouth performance.

Copies of Grix's new CD will be available at Harmony House locations around the Detroit area, she said. Her first CD was entitled "Freefall."

A fascination with jazz music happened at a young age for Grix.

"I first heard jazz at age 13," she said. "I fell in love with that music at that time. That's when I decided that's what I wanted to do."

She also said that music from both of her CD's have been played over CBC radio out of Vancouver, British Columbia.

Grix resides in Northville with her husband, Mike Mullen, and her son Brendan Mullen.

A $10 admission fee will include a concert with the Christa Grix Trio, a $5 coupon towards one Cheek to Chic CD, refreshments and an art

Heir Jordan fights fires...now he's fighting terrorism

By Lon Huhman
STAFF WRITER

Northville city firefighter Jason Jordan has put off his service to the community of Northville in order to serve his country in the war on terrorism.

Jordan telephoned his family, long-time residents of Northville, last Friday morning at around 3:30 a.m. Northville time from Kandahar airport in Afghanistan after waiting nearly three hours in a line of other armed service personnel also wanting to call home and assure their families of their safety.

"It's a difficult situation of course, but he is standing up for what he believes in and we are proud of him," Jordan's mother Glenda said of her son being stationed in the former Taliban stronghold. "We are hoping and praying for his safety, as well as for the other American soldiers."

Jordan, 26, was a 1994 graduate of Northville High School and is also currently a police officer for the Huntington Woods Police Department. After high school he enlisted in the United States Air Force to become a security officer before finally reaching the rank of Staff Sergeant. His mother said he "always loved the military" and was following in the family tradition of serving its country as well as the community of Northville. Jordan's grandfather, Lewis Westfall, served as a police officer for the city of Northville.

After serving nearly five years in the Air Force, Jordan came home to Michigan, but stayed on with the Air Force as a reserve at the Selfridge Air Force Base in Mount Clemens as a security officer attached to the 927th Air Refueling Wing.

In November of 2001, Jordan was called up to active duty and went on to an air base in Kansas, and then finally to Afghanistan where he is currently assisting in loading Taliban and al-Qaida detainees onto C-17s for eventual transfer to the U.S. military base at Guantanamo, Cuba. There are 371 detainees in U.S. custody, who are all expected to eventually be transferred to Cuba.

"He volunteered to go overseas if needed. He did this so someone else with a family wouldn't have to," his mother said. "He has a good head on him so I think he will be safe."

As the first detainees were being placed inside the shipping planes, a small gun fight broke out. According to Jordan's older brother Hugh, Jordan was involved in it, but nothing significant occurred to cause him or the other American soldiers any harm. He also told his brother that one of the biggest dangers for the soldiers was the large amount of land mines that cover wide areas in Afghanistan.

Hugh Jordan brother said his brother could not say much over the phone, but he did say military personnel were doing their best job for a good cause. Jordan could be on active duty for nearly two years. Hugh Jordan also said that based on comments he heard in his last phone call with his brother that Jason Jordan's current tour of duty could be his last.

Jason Jordan also served in South Korea and in Saudi Arabia during the end of the Persian Gulf War.

District aims to forge ahead on bond projects

By Jennifer Norris
STAFF WRITER

As a brand new year unfolds, Northville board of education members said they planned to tackle a number of school development projects and prepare for possible state budgetary setbacks.

"Clearly with the success of the bond issue, we're looking forward to the completion of the construction planning and commencement of construction on the new elementary school and the additions to the other elementary [schools] and the addition to the high school," said school board treasurer Jerry Rupley. "Beyond that, we're pretty excited about moving forward with the development of the technology and the utilization of that technology."

Rupley also said the district is looking forward to improving the curriculum.

"I think Linda Pallas is doing a fine job of identifying areas we can continue to develop," he said.

School board president Tom Gudritz said two main items that were receiving high attention from the district's school included ensuring that the district stayed on track with implementing the projects that were funded by the bond proposal, such as building the district's sixth elementary school.

"That's critically important that those projects move forward on schedule," said Gudritz. "The other thing we're all focused on is to try to minimize the impact of the state's financial problems. I think it's very likely the public schools will be impacted by the budget shortfalls that the state has. I think it's possible we'll see a cut in public school funding. It could happen in the first four months of this year. We could see some budget cuts. We don't know for sure. The board's focus is going to be on minimizing the impact of any budget cuts on programming and class size. I think those are going to be our two overarching goals."

Overall, Gudritz said he is pleased with the district's outlook.

"I think everything is going well and we just have to keep it moving and trying to improve," he said. "One of the board's goals for a number of years has been to increase our fund balance in anticipation that the state might face a budget crisis at some point. I think we're in a good position to weather this storm if they decide to [decrease] funding. We have been budgeting for this occurrence for some time. We are prepared if it happens. If there's going to be a cut we'll see it within 4-6 months. They could either cut our funding or not give us the increases they had already budgeted previously."

Rupley also said Northville could have budget challenges at hand.

"The budget is going to continue to be something we have to watch carefully," said Rupley. "I don't expect that we're going to see great news at this point. We're going to have to watch our own budget very carefully and we'll do that. We're hopeful that we maintain what we have for this current fiscal year. Next year is frankly anybody's guess as to where the foundation allowance will come in."

Northville honors King, Jr. with walk, candlelight vigil

By Jennifer Norris
STAFF WRITER

Northville residents will be able to pay tribute to Martin Luther King, Jr. during a silent candlelight walk on this upcoming Monday evening.

The event will begin at 7 p.m. at the Northville City Hall, located at 215 West Main St. Participants will then proceed to the First Presbyterian Church on Main Street.

The event will feature a special media presentation, the reading of King's famous "I Have a Dream Speech" and musical performances by the Northville High School and middle school choirs.

"It's just a solemn inspirational dedication to Dr. King," said Northville Youth Assistance director Mary Ellen King, adding that all participants are encouraged to bring a flashlight for the silent walk. "I would encourage families to come to celebrate the life and works of Dr. King. I just feel he is someone to emulate and for all of us, children especially, to understand what his life was all about."

Refreshments will be served at the church.

King said she is hoping for a large turnout and also said that interested participants are to meet at Northville City Hall.

Al Qualman, chairman and founder of ACORD, said, "It's a family event. We really would like to have families together. In remembrance of Martin Luther King, his dream would be that families would experience this together."

Qualman also said fire and police officials will be honored during the event.

He said five individuals will be reading portions of King's famous speech. The readers of the speech will include Northville mayor Chris Johnson, Northville township supervisor Mark Abbo, Northville city police chief James Petres, Northville City firefighter Lawrence Kosmolski, and Northville public schools superintendent Leonard Reznierski.

The event is sponsored by ACORD—A Community Organization Recognizing Diversity, Northville Youth Assistance, First Presbyterian Church and Northville Public Schools.

"I am very concerned for my mother. I don't know if I will have to put her in a home or if we be able to find another apartment to live in. We have lived here for some time and a move to another home would not be good for her," Steele said in November. "I wish we were receiving better answers and help than what I have been getting up to this point."

Steele's mother suffers from Alzheimer's Disease as well as other physically debilitating problems. The family receives government-approved funding by being a Section 8 resident. They have lived at the apartment complex for nearly 20 years. Steele is unable to work because she takes care of her mother on a daily basis.

Steele said after the family received a letter from Swan Harbour management agent Cynthia Jones of Huntington Management notifying all Section

"From Day One I have not had any useful help," Swan Harbour Section 8 resident Wayne Moran said back in November of 2001 prior to Swan Harbour notifying HUD of its intentions to either renew or opt-out of its Section 8 program. "If we are going to be forced out of here, then I would like to know my options, or at least obtain a number to call for some assistance."

The telephone number Moran would like to have known was the number of Swan Harbour's local Public Housing Authority, which after several attempts in 2001 Moran said he still could not locate. The relevance of the PHA is significant for Section 8 participants because it directs the participants on how to proceed in finding a new home if an opt-out is sought.

The PHA for Swan Harbour residents is the city of Livonia's housing commission. According to Livonia's housing director Jim Inglis, his department will be fac-stating the voucher process, but at present, he didn't know what route Swan Harbour would take. Inglis said Swan Harbor could either accept vouchers to allow residents the opportunity to stay in their apartments for a time while finding a new home, or they could reject a voucher and a resident would have to find a new home. Inglis said Swan Harbour's decision regarding vouchers should be imminent.

Inglis said what's happening at Swan Harbour is also occurring in other locations, as well. He said Northridge Manor Apartments-3 has also decided to opt-out of its contracts with Section 8 residents. However, those residents have less time to find a new home and Northridge has decided not to accept vouchers. Inglis said this was a bad time for individuals to be looking for a new home because there is a low vacancy rate in the market.

* Moran said he still believed that in the future, the organizations involved with the Section 8 program should be more attentive to the needs of individuals in the same situation as he was in 2001.

"I've been involved with such things as Social Security and veterans' services, and there are always booklets or informational guides to help a person understand their options," Moran said. "Instead of useful information, I was sent lists of other apartment complexes or residences participating in the Section 8 program and most of the information was outdated with wrong telephone numbers. And when I called someone to get some help I would be directed to someone else. I don't think this is the way residents utilizing the Section 8 program should be treated."

Swan Harbour management could not be reached for comment.

Moran said he may be looking for a new home very soon. Steele, a Phase One resident, said she would like to stay if everything works out. Ingils said the PHA will be working directly and thoroughly with the Section 8 residents at Swan Harbour and Northridge apartments.

Magistrate wants more: Colthurst seeks 35th bench spot

needed. "A third judge allows the docket to be handled more efficiently," he said. "It will enable the court to spend the appropriate amount of time on all cases."

Before the bill was signed by Engler, MacDonald said the caseload for himself and Lowe was too much for them handle. He said their average case load was much higher compared to the average state district court judge. According to the State Court Administrative Office, the average caseload for a district judge is around 13,000 cases per year and the average for Lowe and MacDonald has been around 23,000. Lowe's and MacDonald's caseload is 59 percent higher than the statewide average, according to the SCAO.

The SCAO study for the bill also stated the district's population increase was the main reason behind the large case loads. The SCAO stated that between 1990 and 1998 the district's population grew by 21 percent and was expected to grow another 14 percent over the next 10 years. According to Northville Township Police Chief John Werth, the department's caseload at 35th District rose by 40 percent in 2001.

If elected, Colthurst said he believed his experience would help him with the case challenges set before him.

"My campaign slogan is 'Experience Counts.' As a magistrate for 15 years I am the only candidate that has judged thousands of traffic and small claims cases," Colthurst said. "I have determined bond, authorized search warrants and arraigned hundreds of defendants. I am very familiar with the district court and how it operates."

Besides his magistrate experience, Colthurst still practices law as an attorney out of his Plymouth office. In addition, he served as assistant prosecutor for the city of Westland in 1981.

He and his wife, Susan, moved into the court district to Canton in 1982 and later lived in Plymouth. They currently reside in Northville Township. The Colthursts have two children Andrew, 21, and Audrey, 14. Colthurst's wife is an instructor at Schoolcraft College.

Since moving to the court district,

Colthurst has become involved with the Kiwanis Club of Plymouth, both the Northville and Plymouth Chambers of Commerce and the Northville Community Foundation.

Colthurst said his goal — if elected — would be to maintain what the 35th District Court has already created.

The general election for the judgeship will take place in November. The winner will serve a eight-year term.

Township outlines vision for community in 2002

ship's success in 2001 was its establishment of a four-year goals and objectives report in December of 2000, which was initiated by Abbo to cover the entire terms of all the board members.

"The township does not plan by accident. The board members focus on results, building their vision on the capacity of the organization through the basic fundamentals of collaboration and accountability," Snider said. "The board has communicated to front-line staff, the direct impact they have on the lives of Northville residents. All their efforts have been in the name of improving organizational performance."

The significant step of creating a strategic plan entailed the township planning for its ultimate build-out. The plan examined the current township facilities and property, and then took into consideration what needed to be done to meet the needs of residents in the short-term and long-term. The primary needs addressed were the services of fire, police, recreation as well as the needs of the township administration.

Abbo has designated the plan as "fluid," but also said there were several areas that need to be addressed sooner rather than later — primarily the public service areas of fire and police. Snider said the next step for the plan was to have an architect analyze it.

"I will submit a proposal to the board that will call for an architect to come on board so that we can sit down and look at the plan. And then come up with what sequence the plans objectives will go in," Snider said. "With a potential population increase of an additional 10,000 residents we must be able to serve them properly and to do this our facilities and services must match the growth. The plan focuses on this."

Abbo said the creation of the Hillside Recreation Center was a "real success" for the township, city and schools. The three parties reached an unprecedented agreement that will provide at a minimum of 15 years of residential recreational use of a pool, gymnasium and office facilities at Hillside Middle School.

Another example of the township's extensive planning was the creation of the Seven Mile Corridor Plan, which set the foundation for future development of the 456 acres of state property from Haggerty to Northville roads. Abbo said the proactive step was in place prior to the state's decision and probably helped facilitate that decision. He said the plan will help mold the area in a way the township would like to see.

"The strong relationship between the board and planning commission has been crucial for the planning developments that have taken place in 2001," Snider said.

One thorn in the side of the township the last several years is the Quail Ridge drainage issue. However, Abbo said the ongoing waterway challenge appeared to be on its way to being solved with grants received from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and Rouge River Project office now in place. Township public services director Donald Weaver said work would begin on the Quail Ridge drain this spring now that the planning aspect of the project is completed.

Another area of concern is the Northville Plaza on Seven Mile, which was the former home of Northville Township's Farmer Jack, prior to relocation at Haggerty and Six Mile roads. To facilitate results for the plaza and help get businesses into the area, the board reestablished the township Economic Development Corporation. Snider said there was nothing new with regard to the future of the plaza, but he also said one of the EDC's primary goals was to see the plaza filled with businesses.

Snider also referenced a land acquisition carryover from last year. The township has already announced an interest in acquiring the western rear 20 acres of the Our Lady of Providence property. At present, the township is waiting for a response from OLP of the board's request for further clarification regarding the land purchase agreement's easement language.

The township would like the potential owners of the front 20 acres of OLP to allow the township access to the rear area. The potential use for the rear 20 acres may be for recreation, Snider said.

The township also worked to prepare for future growth in the western section of its boundaries, which remains relatively untouched. The primary untouched area is the city of Detroit-owned property off of Five Mile Road remains up in the air, but the township has prepared for its development by rezoning the property to include research and development facilities.

"I feel real good about what we accomplished and planned for in 2001. There was an extensive amount of planning, time and work placed into our decisions," Abbo said. "And I feel real good about the outlook for 2002 as well. It should be a good year."

Martin Luther King: his words, revisited

On Monday, America will pause and remember the life and legacy of civil rights leader Martin Luther King, Jr. Northville will do its part, as well, by presenting his famous 1963 "I Have A Dream" speech. This week, we reprint excerpts of the historic call for justice and equality.

I say to you today, my friends, that in spite of the difficulties and frustrations of the moment, I still have a dream. It is a dream deeply rooted in the American dream.

I have a dream that one day this nation will rise up and live out the true meaning of its creed: "We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men are created equal."

I have a dream that my four children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin but by the content of their character.

I have a dream today.

I have a dream that one day the state of Alabama, whose governor's lips are presently dripping with the words of interposition and nullification, will be transformed into a situation where little black boys and black girls will be able to join hands with little white boys and white girls and walk together as sisters and brothers.

I have a dream today.

I have a dream that one day every valley shall be exalted, every hill and mountain shall be made low, the rough places will be made plain, and the crooked places will be made straight, and the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together.

This is our hope. This is the faith with which I return to the South. With this faith we will be able to hew out of the mountain of despair a stone of hope.

This will be the day when all of God's children will be able to sing with a new meaning, "My country, 'tis of thee, sweet land of liberty, of thee I sing. Land where my fathers died, land of the pilgrim's pride, from every mountainside, let freedom ring."

And if America is to be a great nation this must become true. So let freedom ring from the prodigious hill-tops of New Hampshire. Let freedom ring from the mighty mountains of New York. Let freedom ring from the heightening Alleghenies of Pennsylvania!

Let freedom ring from the snow-capped Rockies of Colorado!

Let freedom ring from every hill and every molehill of Mississippi. From every mountainside, let freedom ring.

When we let freedom ring, when we let it ring from every village and every hamlet, from every state and every city, we will be able to speed up that day when all of God's children, black men and white men, Jews and Gentiles, Protestants and Catholics, will be able to join hands and sing in the words of the old Negro spiritual, "Free at last! free at last! thank God Almighty, we are free at last!"

Guidobono has proven himself as a builder

Three years ago, Cambridge Development presented a preliminary plan for a mixed-use development in the central business district. After numerous discussions, public hearings, redesigns, planning commission meetings, historic commission meetings and city council meetings, this project still has not been approved.

I am perplexed — Mark Guidobono has a proven record of developing quality projects. The architecture of this structure has been designed to authentically reinforce the city's historical characteristics. The mixed-use concept would increase foot traffic and bring additional shoppers into the downtown. Opportunity abounds for new service businesses, additional office space, and more jobs. In addition, projects of this caliber will set the tone for future development on Cady Street.

Why is the city council dragging [its] feet? How much longer will Guidobono wait until he moves his project to Plymouth or Novi?

Laurie D. Marrs

Executive Director
Northville Chamber of Commerce

New York appreciates Northville's kindness

In the wake of the Sept. 11 attack on the World Trade Center, New York City has received an overwhelming outpouring of support from individuals across the country and around the world.

On behalf of our grateful city, I extend my most heartfelt thanks for your thoughtful and generous gift. The compassion of Americans and from people all over the world has been an invaluable source of hope and courage for many New Yorkers and is deeply appreciated.

Your gesture of giving and kindness illustrates our nation's strength and resilience during these difficult times.

Thank you again for your support and friendship.

Rudolph W. Giuliani

Mayor
New York

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Giuliani's letter references a banner which was signed by visitors to Northville's 2001 Victorian Festival, held less than a week following the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. The banner and a photograph of individuals holding it aloft was later shipped to Mr. Giuliani's offices. Mr. Giuliani's letter was sent to the Record while he remained as New York City's mayor. Since the letter's arrival, Mr. Giuliani has stepped aside for newly-elected mayor Michael Bloomberg.

Cambridge project deserves support

I am writing to express my strong support for Cambridge Place, the mixed-use development project proposed along Cady Street in downtown Northville.

The five-story complex would be a major addition for the city and have a positive impact on the economic vitality of our central business district. It is currently in the final planning stages and needs city council approval.

The project has undergone numerous study sessions by members of the city council and Planning Commission (as well as consulting authorities) in the past three years. The result of this scrutiny has been marked improvements to the original plan for which both the developer and city officials deserve credit.

I was disappointed, therefore, to hear negative comments directed at the project at the Dec. 17 city council public hearing relative to the height and mass of the structure. In addition to the obvious high quality of the building's architecture, as part of the Planned Unit Development process, the developer has agreed to construct a public plaza area with a fountain, provide streetscape improvements, and incorporate pedestrian alignment to the central business district. The developer has complied with commercial and professional needs but also provide 30 condominium apartments for downtown living. One of the true tests of a vibrant downtown is the number of its owner-occupied living units. Conversely, it is important to recognize that the fifth floor residential units are critical to the financial viability of the entire project. The significant adjustments made to the design will make this fifth floor all but invisible to pedestrians at street level.

Northville is the envy of many communities. Its small town downtown design has been widely copied. We should remember that change can bring about desirable results. Were it not for "Mainstreet 78" (a major renovation of the downtown completed in 1982), many of today's residents would not have chosen to live here.

Our elected and appointed city officials have worked hard to make sure the changes that have thus far been made have been beneficial to the entire community of Northville. The two things commonly cited by realtors that make Northville a unique place to live are the quality of its school system and the attractiveness of its downtown. Also, from a strictly monetary point of view, a stronger tax base in the Central Business District will help reduce the tax burden of the residents.

Ultimately, I firmly believe quality of design and architecture should supersede an arbitrary height limitation. The Cambridge Place appearance (which is designed to resemble three separate buildings), with a fifth floor that is set back, should offset any objections to the top story. Cambridge Place would set a standard for future development in Northville. As a life-long resident and former city councilman, I do not believe we can afford to reject this opportunity. To do so would be unconscionable.

When the city council meets on Tuesday, Jan. 22 to consider an ordinance allowing for construction of Cambridge Place, I strongly urge the members of city council to vote affirmatively.

Charles Lapham
Northville

New 35th judgeship will benefit community

The passage of HB 4788 creating the third judgeship at the 35th District Court, effective

Jan. 1, 2003, is a real benefit and asset to the communities of Canton, Northville and Plymouth. A definite need has been met. Our thanks go to Rep. Bruce Patterson, state Sens. Thaddeus McCotter and Loren Bennett. Without their persistent efforts, it would not have been accomplished.

Liberals aren't evil — check your dictionary

A letter to the editor, appeared in the Northville Record on Jan. 10, that was written by Neil Goodbred of Livonia. It was headed, by the newspaper I would guess, "Liberals lack patriotism and hate our heritage." In his letter Goodbred designates a "patriotic leftist" as an oxymoronic contradiction.

Good grief! Are only the religious fundamentalists and the radical right the only patriotic dudes around?

I'm not so sure that attorney general [John] Ashcroft, definitely not a leftist, is not taking steps towards abrogating parts of our Bill of Rights by what he has been doing since Sept. 11.

Would Goodbred categorize senators on the political "left", such as Lieberman, Harkin, Kennedy, Reid, Conrad, Dorgan, Boxer, etc., as being unpatriotic?

I would respectfully suggest that Goodbred check his dictionary for the meaning of liberalism. My dictionary, a Merriam-Webster collegiate dictionary, defines liberalism as, "a political philosophy based on belief in progress, the essential goodness of the human race, the autonomy of the individual, and standing for the protection of political and civil liberties."

Planned Parenthood faces crisis

When it comes to Michigan Right to Life, the watchword in the legislature is simple: "Ready, Set, Pander."

Most recent compelling evidence is House Bill 4655, adopted late last year in the House of Representatives' rush to go home for Christmas. The bill would give priority to get $1.8 million in federal family planning grants to organizations that don't provide abortions or referrals for abortions and or even offer "public advocacy promoting the legality or accessibility of elective abortion." The bill now goes to the Senate, where passage is likely although not completely assured.

Phil Power

Everybody knows the bill is aimed directly at Planned Parenthood, a respected not-for-profit organization that provides family planning services to more than 60,000 women across the state. These services include gyn exams, cancer screening, birth control devices and information, pregnancy testing and counseling, treatment for sexually transmitted diseases, HIV testing and counseling, and prenatal health care for mother and child. For many of these women, often poor, these services are simply unavailable anywhere else.

Planned Parenthood does provide abortion at three out of 31 clinic sites. But repeated Michigan Department of Community Health audits have shown that Planned Parenthood has never used any public funds to support or advocate for abortion services in any way.

The stated purpose of the bill is to stimulate "community-based and faith-based" organizations (other than Planned Parenthood, of course) to provide these various services. But in getting started up, these organizations will face all kinds of existing federal and government regulatory requirements, which guarantees delays in providing these services to patients. Moreover, when these organizations do get going, they will be required by the regulations to provide exactly the same kinds of services that Planned Parenthood is already providing.

Other than continuing Right to Life's vendetta against Planned Parenthood, the bill makes no sense on its face.

Some legislators are clear about this. Republican Sen. John (Joe) Schwarz (R-Battle Creek), the only practicing physician in the Senate: "All this bill does is take money away from an organization with a proven track record of providing health services to low income people who can't get health care anywhere else." For those who oppose abortion, Rep. Pan Godchaux (R-Birmingham) argues that the bill would likely increase the number of abortions by leaving some women currently served by Planned Parenthood without pregnancy prevention counseling.

So how come RTL is pushing this legislation just now? Simple. A ton of folks will be running for the legislature this fall, and most of them would kill for Right to Life's support in a primary election.

Here's how the politics work. Term limits will eliminate nearly 50 sitting legislators, mostly Senators, at the end of this year. And a bunch of new districts were created by reapportionment. Result is a whole posse of current House members who want to move up by running for the Senate. It all adds up to an unprecedented opportunity for Right to Life to get leverage on ambitious candidates and extort support for this mean-spirited and dangerous legislation.

Sen. Schwarz, who is running an uphill battle for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, makes the case clearly: "This legislation flies in the face of existing law that says abortion is legal in the United States. Abortion should be available, safe and rare."

The bill has been referred to the Family, Mental Health and Human Services Committee in the Senate, where the odds are that it will be approved for a vote in the full Senate. If passed there, it's up to Gov. John Engler, who has demonstrated over the years a pronounced reluctance to roll over for anybody. He should veto the bill, thereby striking a blow for common sense and against single-issue vendettas.

Snow, apartments, election time, etc.

More random thoughts and observations on life...

As I write this column, I'm looking out my window and waiting for the first "real" snowfall of the season to descend on the area. I'm also bracing for the first real set of boneheaded drivers to continue charging along like it's high and dry outside. Folks, please — lay off the gas and give yourselves extra time when bad weather threatens. Your rush is no one else's concern.

Chris C. Davis

Speaking of driving dangers, here's one that's been on my mind for a long, long time, and I was reminded of again last week along Eight Mile: funeral processions. At the risk of being labeled insensitive and callous, I've really got to question the wisdom and safety of continuing to hold processions in the year 2002. I've seen way too many near-accidents occur when long chains of cars with the familiar orange flags troll along our roadways. I understand the need to memorialize and remember the dead, but I don't see the need for it to be done on the roads.

The plight of residents living in Northville apartment complexes whose management firms are backing away from Section 8 arrangements speaks to the changing tide of business. I find myself going back and forth on issues like government-assisted housing. On the one hand, I understand and appreciate a company's right to determine its own method of doing business and creating a profit. On the other hand, you have to wonder what happens to folks forced to relocate as a result of those policies.

As we enter this election year, I'd like to ask our prospective state legislators to consider making the act of displaying Christmas decorations beyond March 1 a 10-year felony, and leaving them up beyond Easter an automatic life sentence with zero chance of parole.

Just for the record: I've had exactly zero responses from female athletes, when I asked if any one of them had ever felt discriminated against. As you may recall, a federal judge last month said high school athletics in Michigan made girls second-class citizens with its unusual seasonal alignments. If Northville is representative of the state (maybe it is and maybe it isn't), then perhaps this problem isn't as severe as the law thinks it is.

Maybe Northville should rename itself East-East Lansing. With the attorney general and the state school superintendent both hailing from our community, I'd say the seat of state government has begun a return to the Detroit area all over again.

Maybe you saw the story about the clown in Seattle who's already waiting in line outside a movie theatre to get tickets to this summer's new "Star Wars" flick, apparently in the hopes of establishing the world record for the longest such wait. If I catch anyone from Northville outside the AMC Livonia 20 in line for "Attack of the Clones" before May 1, I swear going to call the Northville Township police department and ask a riot squad to break up the group.

I'm getting quite a few phone calls these days from youth groups interested in taking a tour of the Record office. If you're the leader of such an organization, give me a ring or drop me a line. I'd be more than happy to show you and anyone else in your clan around this building. I believe it's important for as many people as possible to understand how a newspaper operates.

Cut spending — read this newspaper

Times are tough now. Friends, or friends-of-friends have lost their jobs. Maybe the Grim Reaper of the nauseatingly-termed "right-sizing" or job-loss is hovering over your head.

You're looking for ways to cut back even in these odd days where we're told the most patriotic thing we can do is spend money; buy things.

John Heider

Obviously the basics you still need — food, shelter and clothing. Add to that health care and its incumbent prescriptions. Beyond those, the modern day consumer has so many things that may be questioned during difficult financial times: the health club membership, high-speed Internet hookup, cable TV, the yoga class, cellular phone service, washing the car every week, dining out, campaign contributions, charitable contributions, home repair and improvement, magazine subscriptions, pet grooming, and a myriad of other costs.

I can't tell you where to begin your cuts, or even indeed if the cuts need to be made. But I will argue, with noted bias, that your HomeTown newspaper subscription is a valuable part of your life and one that will, over the course of a year, save you more money than it costs.

How, the astute reader might ask, can spending money save money? By keeping you abreast of specials, sales, and coupon deals offered by our advertisers. Week by week, the HomeTown newspapers bring to your doorstep local merchants' and business owners' information on what they're selling, when and for how much.

The key here is Local. You may find in "AHM" other publications, information on sales and merchandise that you're interested in buying. Great. Good for the economy. Bad for your car. Yep, that's right, that 24 volt, eight-speed, reverse-scrolling doo-hickey that you need for your shop is on sale at Bob's Power Tools.... in St. Clair Shores.

Hey, it's only a two-and-a-half-hour round trip. On a good day. Safe driving.

Classifieds. Another time and money saving feature of our newspaper.

You're in the hunt for a used car. It's for your teenager who's threatened to shave his or her head, pierce their nose and join the Clowns for Peace and Acceptance of Tofu if they don't get their own pickup truck. What's a concerned parent to do? Hide the electric shavers and check the HomeTown classifieds.

Unless you want to travel to Stockbridge — a mere forty miles from your home to see a distressed 1987 pickup you found in another publication that wasn't worth the two-hour drive. You can find cars and trucks, and air conditioners, and puppies and bikes and cotton candy making machines in our newspapers that are being offered by Your neighbors. Not someone a couple of zip codes away.

Then there's the circulars and coupon pages that readers find every week in our HomeTown publications. If, in the course of a year's shopping, you can't find in those pages enough savings to defray the newspaper's modest subscription, cost shame on you! You call yourself a consumer? Hah!

This newspaper not only gives you an idea of what local merchants and businesses are offering but, obviously, also informs you what's going on in your community like no other publication.

Say your child, the apple of your eye, wins the elementary school talent show for being able to belch the A-B-Cs. You think one of those "other" newspapers will do a feature article with photos on your little cherub? Well, maybe they will, but we definitely will.

For the cost of a couple of large pizzas (with two toppings each) we're going to bring to your doorstep every week all the news about the area's schools, government, businesses, developments, recreation, churches, and keep you in touch with its present, past and future.

Not a bad deal, even in these tough times.

Love can be found at Hidden Spring

HIDDEN SPRING

Hidden Spring Veterinary Clinic is located near the tranquil setting of Mayberry State Park at 48525 W. 8 Mile Road in Northville. The following veterinarians comprise the entire staff, Dr. Cynthia Eichman, Dr. April Sherburne, Dr. Mary Rupley, Dr. Colleen Beach, Dr. Kim Berrie, and Dr. Darlene Ottoloni. Call (248) 349-2598. If your pet is a member of the family, you want a veterinarian who is compassionate yet skilled. Maybe that's why so many animal lovers appreciate the exceptional service at Hidden Spring Veterinary Clinic. A visit to Hidden Spring is like a drive in the country with its rural farm-like setting.

The owner, Dr. Carol Geake, lives next door in an elegant pre-civil war home. Each window of the clinic has a scenic view of the former dairy farm. You might see Dr. Geake's Arabian, half-Arabian and national show horses during a visit.

"There's not a bad view in the place," commented Janet Talbot, practice manager.

The building itself is new and improved, being completely renovated in 2000. Their goal was to create something functional as well as beautiful.

"We had grown so much we needed to expand," Geake said.

The facility has come a long way from the little caretaker's house in which it began. The light and airy reception area features a kiddie play table and saltwater fish tank to entertain clients. Three exam rooms are attractively decorated. The overall effect is warm and welcoming.

During the expansion, they added state of the art surgery facilities and equipment, such as several surgery tables, one with an automatic hoist to lift large animals. There's brand new X-ray and ultra sound equipment as well as a dental station. Even the lab and prescription station are well organized and convenient. The bins make it easy to do a quick inventory. There's a walk-in shower where animals can step up to get bathed, to prevent back strain.

Three front entry doors provide convenient and separate access for pet owners, staff and for delivering supplies. They carry a full line of prescription diets for pets with medical conditions and supplements for specific nutritional requirements.

Geake realizes that it's not only the attractive building and up to date facilities that makes the clinic. What's just as important is the staff, who see beyond the pet to the person behind them.

"It's the human element. You have to like people to understand how they feel about their pet," she said.

Over the years, they've developed many special relationships with their clients. Many patients offer their thanks and testimony, including this client...

"Dear Dr. Geake,

Thanks for being so kind to Julie and Bear (cat). He's all she has and means so much to her. You're always so kind to us in time of need."

It is purely coincidence that the entire staff at Hidden Spring is women that provide a wealth of knowledge, experience and skills.

"We work with each other well and confer with each other. We're very lucky to have each other's expertise," Geake said.

The benefit of having many veterinarians at their disposal is to the pet's advantage. At Hidden Spring there's a free exchange of knowledge and ideas to brainstorm difficult cases.

When it comes to business, don't cheat yourself with dishonesty

By Tim KISSMAN
SEAM DIRECTOR OF PUBLICATIONS

If I learned anything in my professional life, it's don't lie about your business or work ethic. Sooner or later the lie will surface, and then you'll be sorry.

Just take for example the recent hiring and firing of Notre Dame coach George O'Leary, who falsified his resume, and the inconsistencies of troop strength offered by the National Guard this past month. Both put the dirty limelight on fibbing in the workplace.

The shame of O'Leary, a successful college football coach in his own right, has to be heavy and put a serious damper on future sideline positions. And as for the National Guard and their inflated troop numbers, purposely misleading to attract more federal dollars, it's unsettling.

Don't ever lie. It's unethical and wrong. But if you must lie about your business, or personal life, save it for recreation basketball league. There, telling a fib is not only part of the game, but encouraged.

Just last week, I had a teammate tell me how he scored all his high school's team points, broke three school records, dated the best looking girl in school, and saved a bus load of nuns and orphans from a burning building while wearing thick casts on both legs. Talk about a liar, but the rest of the team and I loved it. Next year the story will be even better.

When you can't stop yourself from lying, or are worried that it's become too much of a habit, or if you just want to be cautious, read on. I have some great tips:

- Double-check. This one should be a no-brainer. Like a free throw line, the barrier between lies and the truth is well marked. Stay on the side of truth by having everything that comes out of your office, any piece of information that sees the light of day, double and triple checked by employees, and if necessary, a third party. You'll fix typos, inaccuracies and honest mistakes that could be misinterpreted by clients and local media as lies.

- Spokesperson. When dealing with sensitive issues have a plan in place and let one person from your business be the liaison with the public. This person should do well under pressure, speak well and be trustworthy.

- Check point, Charlie. Along with a spokesperson, make sure there is someone who is a check-point. The final stage before news is leaked, reported or directed. This person should have the highest clearance and held accountable if misleading information escapes.

Telling lies, and inflating your image, is like cheating on a diet. It feels good for a while, but eventually it catches up to you in ways you can't imagine.

A lie from your lips can ruin a business, and worse, a reputation.

Tim Kissman is Director of Publications for the Small Business Association of Michigan.

Dr. Tuchklaper giving smiles to thousands

As part of the Crown Council's 2002 "Smiles for Life" campaign, the office of Dr. Allen Tuchklaper of Novi is donating their time and services to brighten smiles while putting smiles on the faces of thousands of children in need.

From Feb. 1 through May 31, Tuchklaper is whitening teeth at a considerably reduced price and donating 100 percent of your money to the Smiles for Life Foundation. The money raised will go to help children facing serious health and educational problems in the Novi community and communities throughout North America.

Tuchklaper emphasizes how simple the process is: "The teeth whitening procedure is painless and only takes a few minutes to complete. And, best of all, those minutes that you spend in the chair can help touch a child's life forever."

The Smiles for Life Foundation is a children's charity organization of the Crown Council - an alliance of dentists who are dedicated to providing superior dental care and active community involvement. Since 1998, Smiles for Life has contributed nearly $12 million to 116 children's charities throughout North America, including St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, Steven Spielberg's Starbright Foundation, and Camp Trillium in Canada.

"Smiles for Life provides patients with the opportunity to have their teeth whitened while donating to children's charities. Dr. Tuchklaper's entire team donates their time and expertise. Discuss Dental donates the supplies, and best of all, kids get a reason to smile. Everyone involved benefits," explained Greg Anderson, director of the Crown Council.

Tuchklaper through the Smiles for Life Foundation is working with Garth Brooks and his Teammates For Kids Foundation to brighten children's lives. Through this unique partnership, a portion of the money raised will be donated to Little League Baseball and other organizations dedicated to giving disadvantaged children new and exciting opportunities.

Together they are making a difference and giving children the gift of a smile.

For more information about Smiles for Life, contact Tuchklaper's office at 348-3100 or visit www.smiles4life.com.

Wild 'Stangs top Brighton in first season win

By Sam Eggleston
SPORTS WRITER

It is always nice to take on a higher ranked team and walk away with the victory — just ask the Novi/Northville Wild 'Stangs gymnastics team. The Wild 'Stangs took on the second-ranked Brighton Bulldogs in a conference match up and vaulted away with the win.

The Wild 'Stangs, led by coach Lindsay Schultz, collected 144.7 points to the Bulldogs 143.85 in a contest that was as close as they can get. The Bulldogs, ranked second in a Gymnastics Coaches Association poll released Jan. 10, became victims to the ninth-ranked Wild 'Stangs in the combined team's first victory of the season.

"We are very happy," Schultz said. "It is our first win of the season and when we beat Brighton it is always pretty big. I think this was our best meet of the season, but I don't think it is going to be close to our best meet overall this year."

The Wild 'Stangs had top-notch performances from every member of the team who participated, but an outstanding performance from Jennifer Sturgis, who collected a total of 37.95 all-around points as well as first-place finishes in the vault, bars and floor competitions and a second-place finish for the team on the beam.

"I knew this was going to be a close meet," Schultz said. "Brighton was ranked number two, though rankings don't mean all that much. It always helps when you have good performances from everyone on your team."

Also turning in good performances for the Wild 'Stangs were co-captains Lindsey Carlson and Andrea Ledbetter. Carlson notched 36.25 all-around points while Ledbetter had 35.25. Another outstanding performance was given by sophomore gymnast Sara Wilchowski, who took first on the beam with a 9.35 total as well as third place finishes on both the vault and the bars.

"This is it for Lindsey and Andrea," Schultz said. "They are seniors and they have to give it all this year. Sara is a sophomore and Jen is a junior so that looks good for the future of this team. They give it everything they have when they compete."

The Wild 'Stangs will return to action when they visit Hartland for the Hartland Invitational Saturday before hosting the Livonia Co-op team Jan. 21 at 7 p.m.

"I hope the girls do well," Schultz said of the Hartland Invitational that will have eight or nine teams for the Wild 'Stangs to compete against. "There is going to be a lot of competition there. I know the girls haven't peaked yet and I don't think we are even close. I want another month out of them before their performances peak."

The Northville Mustangs girls volleyball team felt the sting of a close loss and the excitement of victory in two Western Lakes Activities Association contests.

The Mustangs, led by coach Kelly DeWitt, fell to North Farmington 16-14, 15-10 Jan. 7 before coming back to defeat the Franklin Patriots 15-5, 15-9, 15-10 Jan. 9.

"There is not a lot you can do," DeWitt said of the Farmington loss. "When a game is that tight and the girls never gave up, there is nothing you can really say or do. They were the better team that day but when you lose 16-14, it's a tough one."

But the Mustangs were not going to let a loss hound them through the rest of the season.

Two days after the loss to the Raiders, Northville came back to hand Franklin a loss.

"If we would have looked like we did Wednesday on Monday, we would have won," DeWitt said. "We lost on Monday, but we came back Wednesday and fixed things up. I am pretty happy with that."

In both the loss and the victory for the Northville spikers, the Mustangs turned to two of their less outspoken players to set the pace and lead the way.

"Erica Johnson did really well," DeWitt said. "I was very happy with the way she stepped up for us. Jessie Stuber has been hitting well and continued to play well. I am pleased with the way they have been playing."

The 'Stangs are not afraid to look to their veteran stars for the leadership they need on the floor either.

Spikers starting long WLAA run

Now is the time for the Mustangs to show what they are made of in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

The Northville Mustangs volleyball team will be looking to set the tone for the remainder of their schedule Jan. 23 when they take on the Plymouth Rocks in a WLAA match up — one of 11 straight conference games leading up to the end of the regular season — at home with game time scheduled for 7 p.m.

The Mustangs, led by first year volleyball head coach Kelly DeWitt, will rely heavily on nearly

Moors in the fast lane

Two hours before school starts, senior swim captain John Moors is already practicing in the pool. The combination of school hours, co-op - which consists of teaching gym classes at the middle school - and another swim practice will leave Moors at Northville High School for 11 more hours each day.

According to Moors, his passion for swimming was triggered by his coach, Rich Bennetts.

"I wasn't a big swimmer until sophomore year when we got a new coach," Moors said. "He cared."

Bennetts' dedication to the team helped Moors achieve an all-conference award for swimming and he earned the high-point total for the team. Moors said he couldn't have done all that he has accomplished without his coach.

Another influence of Moors' life is Northville High School teacher, William Kinney. Moors took Kinney's mass media class and discovered he wants to go into film.

"I plan on going to Grand Valley to swim and study film production," Moors said.

Fellow swim team member and friend, junior Brad McIntosh, enjoys Moors' interest in making movies.

"We have a group called 'the 5 man,'" McIntosh said. "It consists of John, Tyler Carter, Ben Maxim, Aaron 'Bladdy' Flohr, and myself."

Together, the boys usually hang out at one of their houses. They order Moors' favorite food - pizza - play video games and make movies.

"We make funny movies," Moors said.

The movies they produce are usually of them making up dare-devil stunts and performing them.

They film them to look like real stunts when they have already planned them out.

One can only think of the film Moors will make over spring break when he and some of his football friends plan on taking a road trip to Florida.

After participating at football camp, in what he called the "middle of nowhere" and practicing from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. everyday, Moors said he would

Tankers fall against North Farmington

By Sam Eggleston

The Northville Mustangs swim team knew their lack of team depth was going to be a problem for them to overcome in more than one meet this season.

That problem became more than a hurdle against the North Farmington Raiders as the Mustangs fell 108-78 in a Western Lakes Activities Association contest Jan. 11.

"We had a couple of close races," Northville coach Rich Bennetts said. "Just number wise they got to us. We weren't able to get the fourth and fifth places we needed to win this one."

The Northville Mustangs had good swimmers from a number of athletes during the dual meet, but in swimming the thing that begins to matter is the depth of a team.

"It was a number problem," Bennetts said. "It doesn't matter if you win an event by one second or 10 seconds. Our first guy can match up with everyone else's first guy, but then depth becomes an issue. That is just the way it goes some days."

The Mustangs got first-place finishes from John Moors in the 200 Individual Medley with a time of 2 minutes, 9.56 seconds, as well as diver Jason Albosta with 242.45 points — breaking the pool record that was set last season.

"My divers took one, two and three again," Bennetts said. "They have been doing an absolutely fantastic job for us this season."

Moors went on to take another first place — and set a pool record in the process — in the 100 free with a time of 50.82 seconds while Joe Lunn took first in the 500 freestyle event with 5:13.75. The team of Moors, Ben Maxim, Mike Yutzy and Tyler Carter took a first-place finish in the 200 free relay as well with a time of 1:39.51.

"We have had a lot of progress so far," Bennetts said. "Some of the younger guys are starting to swim well and step up and fill in spots for us."

With all the pins that went down during Northville's match against Livonia Franklin, it may as well have taken place in a bowling alley.

The Mustangs were able to pull off a 60-18 victory with six pins, one tech (mercy), two victories by points, and two default wins with only three losses. The teams record improved to 4-4 after the match.

The Mustangs started quick out of the gates when junior Pete Kelley pinned Franklin's Joe Bolek just 1:03 into the 145-match. Another junior, Rick Riegner, kept things going with a pin in the third period at the 152-level. That gave Northville a 12-0 lead.

"The upperclassmen bring in their leadership," Northville coach Joel Smith said.

The rest of the team followed their lead and gave a strong performance. Ben Mason (171), Joel Schanne (103), senior captain Ravi Saran (112), Mike Carter (119), Josh D'Anna (125), and senior captain Matt Doyle (135)

Carlson is more than a gymnast

Snowboarder, friend, fun person all describe Wild 'Stang senior captain

By Sam Eggleston
SPORTS WRITER

When Wild 'Stang gymnastics senior captain Lindsey Carlson started learning gymnastics at the age of three, she had no clue what the future was going to bring for her.

Now that she is on her way and looking at an upcoming graduation and the beginning of her collegiate career at Western Michigan University — she still isn't clear and what the future holds.

"I am not sure what I am going to do or what I want to become," Carlson said of her future in Western and beyond. "I guess I want to see what interests me and what there is for me to do before I make up my mind on the rest of my life."

Carlson, who hopes to transfer to Michigan State University after her freshman year at Western, said that she is pretty sure her immediate future doesn't hold too much in the way of gymnastics.

"I know the coaches over at Western and I am sure if I wanted to I could walk on over there," she said. "I don't know if I am going to. I think I am just looking to stay injury free this season and go from there."

When she isn't impressing her peers or judges on the bars, vault, beam or floor portions of the gymnastics program, Carlson can be found having fun with her snowboard.

"I love to snowboard," Carlson said. "I try to get out an snowboard all of the time. It is just a lot of fun and something that I enjoy doing."

And when she isn't taking on the slopes?

"I like to hang out with my friends," Carlson said. "And go shopping, like every other girl does."

Carlson can often be found enjoying time spent in the company of her three best friends — Alicia Boulet, Kelly Anderson and Alaina Brock.

"You will probably never catch us not together," Carlson said. "I have known Kelly since kindergarten and Alicia just moved here not too long ago. Us four have been best friends since the beginning of high school. We don't mind being stuck together."

Carlson noted that the people who always support her and push her to strive to be her best is her mom and step-father, Marie and Mike McCall, with whom she lives, and her dad and step-mother Nels and Delores Carlson.

"They are always there for me," Carlson said. "I have a pretty good relationship with all of them and they are always supporting me in everything I do."

And when life isn't filled with gymnastics, snowboarding, shopping at Wet Seal in the 12 Oaks Mall, family or friends, what fills in the little time Carlson has left in her week?

"I work at Rocky's in Northville," Carlson said. "I am a hostess and I bus tables. I am going to start waitressing once the season is over, right now it would just be too much."

Carlson said that she is pretty sure a lot of people at Northville High School know who she is — and if they don't know her, they know her car.

"It's a red Geo Tracker," Carlson said with a laugh. "Everyone knows that car. I think it is the only Geo Tracker ever made that is here in Northville."

The Mustangs will return to action Jan. 23 when they host the Plymouth Salem Rocks at 7 p.m. in a WLAA match up.

Icers starting to put games together

By Sam Eggleston
SPORTS WRITER

The Northville Mustangs found themselves skating straight into Rocks in a Western Lakes Activities Association loss before bagging some Panthers in a non-conference match up.

The Northville Mustangs hockey team saw both sides of the fence as they took a 6-3 loss to the Plymouth Salem Rocks Jan. 10 before topping the Dewitt-St. John Panthers 6-3 Jan. 12.

The Northville icers dominated the first and third periods of their contest against Dewitt, finding two solid periods to be enough to get away with the win — but almost lost it all in the second when they allowed the Panthers to collect three unanswered points before coming back strong in the final period.

The Mustangs (5-4-1 overall), who have felt the pinch of losing a lead and then the game in the past, turned to their most collected players — Hillebrand and Crawford. With only 29 seconds off the clock in the third period, Hillebrand added a Mustang score to regain the lead at 4-1 with the assist going to Crawford. Two minutes later, Hillebrand notched an unassisted short-handed goal for a hat trick and to give the Northville icers a 5-3 advantage.

With less than four minutes remaining in the contest, Hillebrand put the game on ice, capping the scoring on the night on a Crawford assist for his fourth goal of the contest and a sealed 6-3 Mustang victory.

Nick Strauch opened the scoring for the Mustangs, redirecting a pin-point pass from Tim Hillebrand past the Panther goalie. Just one minute later, defenseman Mickey Mason found Adam Zobl at center ice on a breakout pass, shifting the Dewitt defense the left. Zobl connected with a streaking Jeff Crawford, who buried the pass in the back of the net for the 2-0 lead.

The first period scoring momentum earned over to the early minutes of the second when Hillebrand picked up a loose pick in the crease and finessed it into the wide-side of the net with assists going to Ryan Hohl and Zobl for the 3-0 advantage.

The Panthers were not to be forgotten in the contest, adding three goals of their own to tie the game in the second period to tie it up at 3-3.

The Dewitt scores came at nine minutes, six minutes and with two minutes (powerplay) left in the second period.

The game found Hillebrand gathering five points on the night (four goals, one assist) while Crawford collected three points (one goal, two assists) and Zobl has two (two assists).

The Mustangs will return to action today when they visit the Redford Catholic Central Shamrocks in a non-conference match up at 7:30 p.m. before hosting WLAA rival Canton Saturday at 6:30 and Stevenson Jan. 23 at home with the opening face-off scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

Plymouth Salem 6, Northville 3
The Northville Mustang hockey team ran smack into a Rock Jan. 10 when they took on Plymouth Salem in a WLAA contest.

The Mustangs couldn't find their way around the WLAA Western Division leaders as the Rocks out-hustled, out-passed and out-scored the Northville icers.

Plymouth (10-0-1 overall) scored twice in the first period to take a 2-0 lead, once on a powerplay and once while shorthanded before

Northville was able to get a score on the board.

The Mustangs took a 5-on-3 powerplay advantage up the ice before Jason Engelland took the puck and powered it into the back of the net on an assist from Crawford to pull within a single goal, 2-1.

The second period found the Rocks lighting up the scoreboard with two additional goals before adding another two goals in the early minutes of the third period for a 6-1 advantage.

The Mustangs pulled starting goalie Dave Stewart and inserted Nick Folas between the posts in hopes of slowing the Rocks' assault. The Mustangs answered with two powerplay goals to cap the scoring.

The first came as Strauch edged the puck beyond the reach of the goalie and into the net with assists being marked for Hillebrand and Engelland. Three minutes later, Fabian Garcia tipped Bobby Salerno's slap shot from the left point into the net with the assists going to Salerno and Adam Dille.

Renovations capture the essence of historic home in downtown Milford

By Annette Jaworski
SPECIAL WRITER

Matt Whelan, owner of M. J. Whelan Construction, turned a Victorian home in downtown Milford into a comfortable, yet professional office building.

This historic home is now an office building housing three businesses. During the remodeling, every effort was made to retain the original feel of the 1880s home. Window casings, crown molding, fireplaces, hardwood floors and an elegant banister were all kept in the home, creating warm, inviting office spaces.

Twelve years in the construction business proved to be invaluable experience for Matt Whelan — the owner of M.J. Whelan Construction recently remodeled his own office in a historical home in downtown Milford.

The result is an attractive, one-of-a-kind office with a professional, yet homey, feel.

Whelan is more than pleased with the results — and having an attractive office makes a great showcase for his skills and a good first impression with clients.

"When you show what you can do, it gives customers a confidence level," he said.

Located at 211 E. Commerce, the Victorian home built around 1880 dictated the direction Whelan wanted to go with the renovations.

"The house sets the mood," Whelan said. "We kept the fireplace and high ceilings, and we kept the eight-inch crown molding."

Saving as much of the existing structure was Whelan's primary goal.

The foyer of the office building still resembles a front parlor with the original hardwood floor.

Whelan restored the three-piece casing around the windows wherever possible. He even found replicas to replace some of the original casing and crown molding.

The original steam radiators aren't only for ambiance — they still provide heat for the entire building.

The original oak and pine fireplace warms the reception area. It still has the unusual feature of sharing a chimney with a capped-off fireplace in the lobby of the Robert Vieracker Design Group office.

In all, it was a challenging endeavor. "In some aspects it would be easier to rip things out," Whelan said.

But taking the easy route was not what Whelan or owner Tom Callan of Coldwell Banker Real Estate had in mind for the remodeling — and it certainly would not have retained the warmth and beauty of the original design.

As a commercial venture for Callan, who operated his real estate business in the home for 25 years, the renovation was well worth the investment.

He had made many structural improvements after purchasing the home, like adding insulation, rewiring and replacing the roof and siding, but remodeling completely added something extra.

"Our goal from the perspective of investor/owner was not only to restore it completely, and in pristine shape, we also wanted quality tenants in order to operate successfully," Callan said.

The other tenants complete the family of complimentary businesses.

Instinctive Interiors, a design studio, and The Robert Vieracker Design Group, Ltd., an architectural firm, also have offices in the home.

"We named the building The Milford Design House" because of all the related businesses," said Lisa Whelan, Matt Whelan's wife, who aided in the remodeling.

While Matt engineered the construction of the project, Lisa used her decorating skills in his office.

She created a traditional den look with a cherry desk and leather furniture. The walls are camelback, a sand-washed finish in a green tone. Tapestry chairs accent the fireplace.

"I wanted it to be very comfortable, welcoming and warm," Lisa said.

Sandra Ling of Instinctive Interiors decorated the building's foyer in a traditional style with safari accents.

Her office further showcases her design skills. With its vibrant colors, the office has hints of a sunny garden.

An elegant banister leads to The Robert Vieracker Group's upper-level offices with a bird's eye view of downtown Milford. Vieracker said the office's ambiance couldn't suit him better.

"As an architect, it was exactly what we were looking for," he said.

Wallpaper dresses up any hall

Creating illusions with artwork makes the most of any small space

By Rose Bennett Gilbert
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

Q. Our little bungalow has a really narrow hallway leading past the dining room to the kitchen area. It's too narrow for furniture, but too boring left totally bare.

A. I've put down a runner rug and hung two candle sconces that look really pretty when the candles in them are lit (only for company though). I'm afraid anything else will make the hallway feel crowded and claustrophobic — unless there's something I've missed.

A. You're right on target with your wall-mounted sconces. I'd say expand on the idea and consider other ways to take advantage of the air space without taking up any actual floor space. For example, an arrangement of pictures, photographs and other visual artworks is a sure way to aggrandize any wall.

Wallpaper and borders offer another. Used in combinations, they can make a major architectural statement in whisper-thin space when you let a border divide the wall horizontally. Let the border assume the decorative role of a chair rail, separating two different wallpapers, say, a "load-bearing" stripe below the rail with an all-over floral or floral stripe above.

You might also look into an old idea that's back — and hot — in this era of painted effects. The photo we show here proves that beauty is in the eye of the beholder. The small wicker bench that graces a bit of bare wall space is actually an amusing trompe l'oeil mural from J. Chesterfield Studio's "Picture Perfect" collection of wallpapers (www.blonderwall.com).

Need a pair of French doors, instead? Or a classic octagon window? Just roll 'em on, using other architectural designs from the same collection. There are also standard wallpapers and borders that coordinate with the special effects.

Painting crown moldings

Q. What should we do about the crown moldings in our living-dining room? Currently, they are stained a dark oak color that my husband adores, but to my eyes they look too heavy overhead. The ceilings are low, less than 9 feet high. Should I persuade my husband to paint them? What color?

A. Yes, but it may not be easy. Men adore wood that looks like wood, perhaps for the same reason they abhor make-up on their wives: no cosmetic touch-ups to mask their natural beauty.

Painting the moldings to match the wall color will eliminate the visual busyness of the dark moldings overhead and make your ceiling look higher in the process.

Dressing French doors

Q. The French doors off the dining room to our patio open inward and I don't know how to dress them. Years ago, my Mother used little sheer curtains gathered on two rods that fit close to the door frames above and below the glass. Has anything better come along?

A. Better? In a word, no, not necessarily better. Sheers have developed such staying power because they are both pretty and practical: they soften the window and provide some privacy without blocking the light or obscuring the inherent beauty of French doors.

However, there are other options you might consider. For example, you could mount swing arm rods on the walls just above the doors and simply flip the curtains aside when you want to go out on the patio. Or, if you prefer draw draperies, install a decorative rod on the wall above the doors, decorative because it will show off front and center, when drawing the draperies to the sides.

Remember, you'll also be seeing the other side of the draperies from the patio, so use a compatible decorative fabric instead of plain for the draperies' linings. This way, they'll look good both coming and going.

Serving tray decorated with lobster may be an heirloom

By Anne McCollam
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

Q. The enclosed photo is of a porcelain dish that belonged to my mother. It is decorated with pink roses, dark pink edges that graduate to white and a gold lobster in the center. The dish measures about 13 inches wide. I do not know where my mother got the dish or how long she had it. The only mark on the back is the number "4692." What can you tell me about my dish?

A. Without a manufacturer's mark it can be difficult, if not impossible, to identify the maker and country of origin. Stylistically it is typical of serving dishes made around the late 1800s and very early 1900s. The number is a design or factory number and provides no clues to its history. C. Tielsch and Co., located in Silesia, Germany, made serving dishes similar to yours. It is possible the Tielsch Co. made yours. Your lobster-serving dish would probably fetch about $45 to $65 in an antiques shop.

Without a manufacturer's mark it's hard to tell anything about this turn-of-the-century serving dish decorated with pink roses, dark pink edges that graduate to white and a gold lobster. It's probably worth $45 to $65.

Porcelain cake plate

Q. I have a porcelain cake plate that I bought at a tag sale around 20 years ago. I remember paying $10 for it. It is decorated with red cherries and green leaves and trimmed in gold. I have enclosed the mark found on the back of the bowl. I would appreciate any information you can provide.

A. Sevres China Co. located in East Liverpool, Ohio, made your fruit bowl. They made semi-porcelain hotel ware, dinnerware, and tea sets from 1900 to 1908. They marked their wares with a fleur-de-lis and usually included one of the following names: Sevres, Berlin, Melton, or Geneva. Your cake plate is worth about $50 to $85.

Pine washstand

Q. I recently purchased an antique piece of furniture and hope you can help me determine its history and value. It appears to be early American. The previous owners with mushroom shaped wooden pulls and metal locks. Inside the double doors is a shelf for storage.

ANTIQUE OR JUNK?

A. Based on your excellent and detailed description, you have an American commode or washstand rather than a dry sink. Although the previous owners were well-intentioned, they were misinformed. A dry sink was a 19th century kitchen cabinet that often had a zinc lined sink inserted in the top. A pan for washing dishes could be placed in the sink.

Your commode was designed to be used in the bedroom and had a storage area for towels and a washbowl and pitcher. Commodes were made by cabinetmakers and small furniture factories. Most were made of pine, maple, or birch and some were painted. They often were part of a bedroom set.

Your commode was made around 1870 and would probably be worth about $800 to $1200.

Joists

Jager Super I™

WE'VE SWITCHED! Why did

Chelsea Lumber switch to Jager Super I Joists?

- Provable better quality - EVERY joint in EVERY joist is tested for strength!
- More builder-friendly - 2½ inch nailing flange rather than 1½" flange makes nailing the subfloor easy.
- Mechanicals can be cut in to the floor system rather than suspended below it.
- Stronger - will span further and reduce deflection, vibration and floor squeaks.
- Codes and standards - Meets the latest revisions of all applicable codes and standards.

Jager Super I products are guaranteed to be free from defects in workmanship and materials and will carry the loads specified provided they are used under normal service conditions and in accordance with the instructions and specifications as referenced in our literature.

Equestrian Barns

(Give your horse a home)

THE STABLE

We now offer 3 barns designed in the spirit of horsemanship. You can choose from our personal 2-stall barn, The Double Furlong, our 4-stall barn, The Stable, or our 6-stall barn, The Triple Furlong. Each has its own unique characteristics with everything to meet your stable requirements conveniently located on one level. All have a shingled roof with a 12" eave overhang and your choice of quality FABRAL steel siding or T-11 SmartPanel siding. We can prepare a material estimate for you with all the many options available or, if you choose, build any barn to your specifications with the same quality construction which has long been the Chelsea Lumber Company tradition.
