Northville School District Assistant Superintendent David Bolitho takes a look at the blueprints for the new elementary school to be built on Six Mile Road.

'We're working like crazy'

District takes next step in planning for building projects

By Jennifer Norris
STAFF WRITER

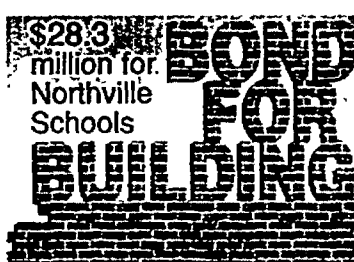

Northville school officials are well on their way to implementing the bond projects which were approved by voters in September.

Additions for the Northville school district will include a new elementary school, expansions to Winchester Elementary, Moraine Elementary and Northville High School as well as two storage additions at Amerman Elementary.

Furthermore, the district is implementing wide-area network cabling to the new elementary school and the establishment of a redundant loop to complete the district's technology structure.

David Bolitho, assistant superintendent for Northville Public Schools, said multiple design teams have been tackling the steps in initiating the building process.

He said there is a design team in place for each of the buildings involved in the 2001 bond issue. All of the teams follow the same procedures adopted by the school board in developing new additions or new buildings, he said.

At Amerman Elementary school, two storage room additions have been planned and are slated to be completed by August 2002.

"I'd like to see them done by the start of school next year," said Bolitho.

He also said the storage rooms have been programmed based on the items that will need to be stored there. Items such as cafeteria tables, equipment, chairs and supplies will be stored in these rooms.

Moraine Elementary will also see a number of changes in the months to come.

Bolitho said the south centrum at Moraine will be redone. New additions to the school will include four classrooms, an artroom and a music room. The projects are scheduled to be completed by August 2003, but may be completed sooner, Bolitho said.

"Right now, we are finalizing design development for Moraine. We will be finished by Feb. 13," Bolitho said, adding that the district has to be finished with all design development work by that deadline for all the projects before actual construction can begin.

"Our goal is to have every school completed for the 2001 bond issue by August 2003, when the new elementary school opens," said Bolitho. "Some will be done before that."

Northville High School will also be expanded as a result of voter approval.

Nanovation latest fatality on Five Mile

By Lon Huhman
STAFF WRITER

Despite the company's hopes for a successful restructuring, Nanovation Technologies appears to be no more.

According to public affairs spokesperson Paul Krebs of the Michigan Economic Development Corporation, the last piece of information, the MEDC obtained and could provide on Nanovation was that in November of 2001, the MEDC became aware Nanovation was auctioning off all of its equipment from its Northville Township facility.

The MEDC had offered to help Nanovation on the belief that Nanovation would create new jobs.

According to Northville Township finance director and assistant manager Thelma Kubitskey, the township finance department has filed a jeopardy tax for Nanovation. She said filing a jeopardy tax gave the township the authority to file a lien against Nanovation's personal property taxes for the company's current year if it did not reimburse the township for taxes owed. The action has also been issued for Hayes Lemmerz International, which had also recently declared Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

Representatives of Nanovation could not be reached or would not comment on the company's current status.

Late last July, Nanovation had filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection and cut the jobs of 120 of its 169 employees at the Northville facility. At the time, Nanovation corporate communications vice-president Melanle Offenloch said there was a strong possibility of a successful restructuring.

That possibility appeared to be vanquished, though, when a personal visit by Northville Record reporters to Nanovation's Five Mile Road facility bore no fruit. In fact, a "For Sale" sign could be seen on the facility's property.

"It doesn't appear as if they will be coming back to life any time soon," Krebs said of Nanovation.

Nanovation had moved to Northville from Miami in the summer of 2000 and occupied the same building that housed OIS Optical Imaging Systems Inc., which also filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy the previous year. Nanovation used photonics and utilized photons rather than electrons to power the equipment it produced. Nanovation developed and manufactured extremely

Wheely neat: skaters to get portable park

A $5,000 grant will help give Northville and Plymouth youths an opportunity to show off their skateboarding skills in the near future.

The Michigan Recreation and Parks Association and the Michigan Department of Community Health awarded the grant to the Northville Parks and Recreation Department and to the city of Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department as a part of its "Get Michigan Youth Moving" program. According to Northville's Recreation supervisor Nichole Haskins, the two recreation departments have plans to use the grant funds to assist in the purchase of a portable skate park to be shared by both community programs.

"We are very excited and look forward to utilizing it," Haskins said of the grant. "The point of the 'Get Michigan Youth Moving' program is to help Michigan kids get and stay active, as well as bring the fun activities to them."

The Northville Parks and Recreation Department is a joint service of the city and township.

Besides the grant, both programs will have to raise an additional $13,000 each to complete the purchase of such equipment as skateboard ramps, jumps, rails, a trailer for transporting the equipment and other skate park

Blueprint for success means learning about architecture at school

By Jennifer Norris
STAFF WRITER

Fashioning Victorian-style homes normally isn't part of school curriculum, but students at Hillside Middle School have handcrafted several model houses as part of a unique classroom project.

"We did a unit on architecture," said Debbie Arindaeng, an academic resource teacher at Hillside. "We focused in on styles from the Victorian Era. There were six popular styles during that era."

Arindaeng said her students were divided into small groups and each group was given a certain house style to recreate.

"They had to first design the house on paper for that style [and] they had to draft up their plans and have them approved," she said.

Students used such materials as cardboard, tongue depressors and foam board to fashion their domiciles.

Arindaeng said students were able to glean several benefits from such a project.

"It was a good conclusion to the architecture unit, but more importantly, they learned how to work in groups," she said.

In addition to improving team-work skills, Arindaeng said students were also able to practice problem solving techniques as they tackled designing their project and proceeding through the construction.

Golden years get their due at senior citizens' reception

By Lon Huhman

Allen Terrace resident Helen Burnstrum, along with the other 30 Northville community seniors who are 95 years or older, were smiling brightly as they were honored at an event sponsored by a number of local senior care organizations last week.

The celebration took place Jan. 23 at the Northville Community Center on Main Street. According to the city of Northville's housing director Joanne Inglis, the event stemmed from a talk with Sue Koivula of the Northville Senior Center. Inglis said the celebration was a time to honor those who have brought joy into the lives of generations.

"Ninety-five years of tenderness, compassion, smiles and love have filled their lives and the lives siblings, children, grandchildren, great-grand children and friends," Inglis said during her opening address at the celebration. "They have contributed to society for almost an entire century, and have seen more changes in industrialization and technology than probably any other generation before them or to come after them. It is our privilege to honor these citizens today."

A joint proclamation was given at the ceremony on behalf of the city of Northville and Northville Township. It gave a special recognition to the residents who offered their love, wisdom, and compassion to all the residents of the community. In attendance at the occasion were Northville mayor Chris Johnson, township supervisor Mark Abbo, state Representative John Stewart, township trustee Mary Gans and city council member Thomas Swigart. Senior advisory council members Bruce Turnbull and Virginia Bosak also attended. A state legislature proclamation was also given on behalf of Stewart and State Senator Thaddeus McCotter.

The seniors were given gifts and were treated to a musical performance by the Northville High School jazz band.

"It was a very nice and wonderful day," said Burnstrum, who will celebrate her 96th birthday next week.

Burnstrum moved to Northville in 1944 after living on her parent's Pennsylvania farm during her childhood. She said the one event that really stood out during her lifetime was the Great Depression during the 1930's. She said today's recession does not compare to that time.

"Northville has changed very much during my time here," Burnstrum said. "But I think it has been for the good of the community. It's good to see new homes be built and families come to the community."

Koivula said the celebration turned out great and that it was good to see the various organizations work on it together. The event was sponsored by the senior center, Allen Terrace, Alterra Wynwood of Northville, American House of Northville, Marriott's Brighton Gardens of Northville and Plymouth Independence Village.

THE CABOCHON CUT
With its flat back and domed top, the simple cabochon cut is used to display colors and optical effects in opaque and translucent gemstones. That is why you are likely to see everything from star sapphires to turquoise cut "en cabochon." This was nearly the only choice available to lapidaries until the Middle Ages, when it was discovered that faceting helped bring out the sparkle in gemstones with relatively high refractive indexes. It was not long before the tops and bottoms of transparent gemstones were being faceted to reflect light back up through the stones. Because the cabochon cut does more to display color than to enhance the play of light, it is the choice for most opaque colored gemstones.

Postal service holds off on Northville office project

By Lon Huhman
STAFF WRITER

Some may blame the current stalemate on the United States Postal Service's projects on last year's anthrax scare and the current national recession.

However, postal officials said such projects as the Northville Post Office expansion were on hold prior to the problems faced late last year.

According to Detroit post office communications manager Ed Moore, the standstill on the Northville expansion is due to a financial situation that has been known for some time.

"There is currently a capital spending freeze on all postal projects across the nation and this freeze has existed for a year at least," Moore said. "However, we have not forgotten the Northville project and once the freeze is lifted it will be one of the leading projects to be undertaken."

The possibility of the Northville post office expansion had drawn the ire of many Northville city residents who believed it would infringe on their neighborhoods, especially the Wing Street area.

The office is located on Wing and a previous expansion plan had the office expanding to nearly three times its current size. However, the plan may have taken a turn when the Northville Township board of trustees offered the post office a plot of property on Seven Mile Road for the larger distribution center with the condition that the retail center and primary residential postal location would be kept in downtown Northville.

To placate residents' fears of not knowing what was going on with the project, mayor Chris Johnson established an ad hoc committee involving residents and city and township officials. The group has not met since last fall because of the spending freeze, city manager Gary Word said. Word said since no planning has occurred and no more is expected in the next 90 days, the group will be inactive until such time.

Moore said the postal service has experienced a financial deficit, which is the primary reason behind the freeze. He said the halt on projects and reducing employee work hours will be two ways in which the postal service will hopefully lessen the deficit. He also said he did not know how long the freeze would last.

Staff members at the Northville post office don't expect their operations to change much with the latest freeze announcement.

"We are, and have been, dealing with it for the last few years," Northville post office supervisor Dave Priebe said of the overcrowding working environment. "We have learned to adjust by rearranging the operations for the clerks and carriers. We can't make it bigger, so we will work on as usual."

Moore said across the nation, many small town post offices that have experienced significant growth in the last 10 years — such as Northville — have not adjusted their offices to meet the population increase. He said it was a testament of the work ethic of the Northville office to be able to "juggle" its equipment and responsibilities to provide a proper service.

PTAs offer insight into personalities at True Colors workshop

By Jennifer Norris
STAFF WRITER

On Feb. 7, Jacque Martin-Downs will be launching "True Colors for Parents and Students," a workshop designed to offer insight on our own personalities.

The workshop, which is being sponsored by the Northville Area Council of PTAs, will be hosted at Northville High School at 7 p.m.

"The idea is that parents and students will come together to learn about personalities," said Martin-Downs, a Northville resident and child and adolescent therapist in private practice in Livonia. "It's important because parents are sometimes stumped by their kids reserved nature, or [an] overly sensitive nature or their wild and crazy nature."

"When you don't know what's going on with your child, understanding their personality makes it easier to work with them."

There is no charge for admission to the workshop.

Martin-Downs said the workshop is geared to assist parents and students between the ages of 13-18.

"It will benefit both parents and students," she said. "It is just a superb way to understand other people more favorably so you're not always trying to change them to be just like you."

Martin-Downs said students are welcome to attend the event.

"I would encourage [students] to come to because it would help them understand their parents better," she said.

The True Colors workshop promotes communication and understanding.

Students build future cities

As part of their studies in Hillside Middle School's Academic Resource Class, students Dan Dulzo and Stephanie Bommarito were part of a team that helped to design and build a Wasserstadt (German for "water city").

By Jennifer Norris
STAFF WRITER

When it comes to building and designing a city of the future, a group of Hillside Middle School students initiated a few award-winning ideas for their concept water city.

Four students — Stephanie Lin, Stephanie Bommarito, Dan Dulzo and Jake Hoenschmeyer — participated in a Future Cities Competition for the Michigan Region on Jan. 23 in Dearborn.

Debbie Arindaeng, an academic resource teacher at Hillside Middle School, said the competition was open to students in grades 7 and 8 and is primarily designed for students who have an interest in engineering.

The four-person team created an underwater city, called Wasserstadt, and engineered their city to be powered by harnessed lightning. Transportation was accomplished by compressed air.

"What they have to do is design a city of the future," said Arindaeng. "They have to consider communication, energy needs, transportation, way of life and trash disposal."

She also said the students had to follow a budget, produce a computerized model, write an essay, prepare a presentation and finally, construct their city.

The Hillside team won an award for the most improved quality of life, Arindaeng said.

"They did extremely well," she said. "It was their first year ever doing this."

Arindaeng acted as the team's sponsor and the team also worked with an engineer mentor.

"The kids did great," she said. "They came through. They were extremely competitive considering they were a first year team."

Approximately 30 schools from around the state rivaled in the competition.

Arindaeng said the judges, who had engineering backgrounds, were looking for several crucial elements within the students' cities.

"They're looking for innovative and creative ideas from the kids," she said, adding that judges questioned certain aspects of the cities.

"They really put the kids on the spot," said Arindaeng. "They really need to understand the science behind their ideas."

District forges ahead with host of building plans

Bolitto said the high school's addition is planned to accommodate 400 more students.

"We wanted to make the general classrooms mirror images of what was constructed two years ago," he said. "We needed to add other rooms based upon program need."

In addition, an extensive broadcast studio will be constructed at the high school.

These projects are expected to be finished in 2003.

Along with new additions to Amerman Elementary, Moraine Elementary and Northville High School, new classrooms will be also be constructed at Winchester Elementary. The renovations at Winchester are planned to be completed by August 2002.

Lastly, voters approved the district's plan to build a sixth elementary school, which will be located near the Six Mile and Ridge Road intersection.

Bolitto said the design team for the new elementary school has 16 subcommittees working to plan the layout and design of the building. The team faced such decisions as selecting cabinetry, paint, loose furniture, equipment, fabrics, tile, carpet and choosing other interior materials.

According to school officials, the new elementary would accommodate the projected peak enrollment and would be of adequate size to implement the board of education's lowered class size targets.

Bolitto said the design teams have faced a laborious task in devising the most suitable learning environment.

"We have been working like crazy on this," said Bolitto.

tion phase.

Most of the model Victorian houses was completed at school, said Arindaeng.

"The point was not to make them amazing builders, but...have them go through problem solving steps," she said. "It's a lot of work, but in the end they're pretty happy with their product. For the most part, the kids did an excellent job."

In addition to working as a group to design and construct their team's Victorian-style abode, Arindaeng said each group had to find photographs that illustrated the type of home they were building.

Jonnie Powers, a seventh grader at Hillside Middle School, said she was pleased with her completed project.

"We took pictures of different Gothic houses around Northville," she said. "It was hard, but it turned out."

The biggest test passed, Cambridge moves ahead

By Lon Huhman
STAFF WRITER

The second reading and possible adoption to amend the Northville city zoning ordinance to provide for planned-unit development zoning for Cambridge Place still remains, but Cambridge planners have a plan on how to proceed.

"We will be going back before the historic district commission in order to have them finalize the building's colors," Cambridge planner Mark Guidobono said of one of the next steps. "They have already approved the colors in concept."

Cambridge design architect Greg Presley said the 113,578 square foot building will be designed and eventually constructed in such way that it will appear to be three, distinct buildings. Guidobono said there will be three different brick colors for each section.

Simultaneously, the planners will begin to design the floor plan for the five-story mixed-use development that is intended to be built on Cady Street. The project is proposed to be three stories of residential use and two stories of commercial and office space. Guidobono said it could take two to three months to complete the floor plans.

Another eventual step will be the marketing aspect of the project that will begin this year.

"We will be going back before the historic district commission in order to have them finalize the building's colors."

Mark Guidobono

Guidobono said Cambridge will set up a sales center at location on Center Street. The sales center will have a model of the kitchen and bath facilities on display. Guidobono said the step in the pre-sale mode will give potential buyers an idea of what Cambridge's owner-occupied condominiums will look like.

According to city manager Gary Word, there are several remaining issues to be worked out, the largest being the city-mandated reverter clause in the PUD agreement, as well as in the sales and development agreement. Northville officials mandated the clause in the event Cambridge didn't materialize.

The purpose of the reverter clause is to have the property reverted back to the city. Word said because the city is required to pay Northville Downs Racetrack $136,823 for selling land the land purposes other than public parking, the city is requiring Cambridge to repay the city in the like amount should the property be reverted to the city in the event of default. Cambridge has not agreed to the clause.

However, Guidobono said Cambridge would agree to a clause, but needed to tweak the wording of the clause before an agreement could be reached.

PUD extension is another issue that may be ongoing until the project is completed. Word said Cambridge has indicated the project will require advance marketing and pre-commitments for occupancy before construction can begin. Cambridge planners have stated actual construction is not likely to begin for at least one to two years from approval. Since the PUD ordinance provides that construction shall be commenced within one year following approval, Cambridge will need to return to the planning commission at least once for an extension of the PUD prior to construction.

ten into an argument on the way home from a party. When the couple arrived at home the husband had pulled his wife by the hair from their vehicle and threw her to the ground. Based upon the woman's statement and evidence that later revealed the woman had a dislocated jaw, the man was arrested and later released on a $500 bond.

SCRATCH FEVER: Two vehicles parked in downtown Northville were felled by vandalism last week. A Canton woman parked her Dodge Caravan at the Northville District Library on West Cady Street on Jan. 27 and exited the library to discover it had been severely scratched by an unknown suspect. The other vandalism incident happened to a Northville man when his vehicle was parked at his home on North Center Street.

HIGH-TECH THEFT, LO-TECH METHOD: On Jan. 27, a Northville resident went out to his Jeep Grand Cherokee that was parked outside his home on Fairbrook Street and found it strange the items usually placed in his console were placed neatly on his passenger side seat. The city police report stated the man's lap top computer worth $4,000 had been taken during the night. The man said his vehicle was unlocked at the time.

Northville Township Police Reports

THAT'S THE AMERICAN WAY: Sometime during the overnight hours of Jan. 4 and 5, four flags were stolen from a building on Centennial Drive off of Five Mile Road. The flags included an American and German flags priced at $200 a piece. The suspect cut the cable in order to get the flags, the police report said.

OH, KAY: Near the end of December and the beginning of January, an unknown suspect broke into Kay and Co. on Five Mile Road damaging a door and doorlock, and removed $10 in coins from the store's cash drawer. The suspect pried open the door and proceeded to the storage area to remove the money from the drawer. The case remains open.

OBSCENE CALLS: A Northville woman received 10 obscene telephone calls between Jan. 23 and Jan. 27 according to a Northville Township police report. The woman said the calls had a recording on it stating obscene words. The woman informed police that she would notify her phone service provider in order to trace the calls.

small, all-optical switches, controls and measuring devices that were supposed to speed up broadband networks being developed for Internet traffic.

Prior to the bankruptcy filing, employee layoffs and reorganization process, Nanovation believed it had secured $10 million from Motorola Inc. as the lead investment in a $75 million private offering of new preferred stock. However, the investment deal needed stockholder approval, but could not get it once the company's major stockholder — Toronto-based Stamford International Inc. — legally barred it. Stamford had owned 40 percent, or 8.8 million shares in Nanovation.

Stamford representatives also could not be reached or would not comment prior to publication.

In the wake of the blocked deal, the Motorola investment deal — as well as the others — fell apart, causing the layoffs to be carried out because of a lack of money. It was reported that Stamford had wanted control of the company's board.

Nanovation was supposed to receive a $9.7 million tax credit from the Michigan Economic Growth Authority based on the promise that it would invest $41 million in the plant and create 539 jobs. However, Krebs said this was a conditional offer and if the company did create the jobs they would not be eligible. Krebs said as far as he was aware, Nanovation did not receive the credit.

The company had secured funding to continue their operations on a limited basis after the bankruptcy filing. At the time of the filing, Ofenloch said Nanovation's assets were at $48 million and their liabilities were at $28 million.

NOTICE TO THE RESIDENTS CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF NORTHVILLE NOTICE OF ADOPTION STORM WATER DETENTION BASIN MAINTENANCE ORDINANCE

This ordinance was approved for adoption at the January 17, 2002 Board of Trustees regular meeting. This ordinance will become effective upon publication. The Storm Water Detention Basin Maintenance Ordinance is being adopted to provide for the protection of the environment against pollution from storm water runoff. It has been recognized that detention basins, retention ponds or other storm water detention facilities pose the risk of malfunction or inadequate maintenance, which could have potentially detrimental effects upon the natural environment. The Township is obligated to reduce and prevent illicit discharges into the waters of the State under the Township's National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permit and poorly maintained detention basins pose the risk of causing such discharge into rivers and streams in the Township. It is necessary for the Township to inspect detention basins and to require maintenance and repair, in order to minimize the risk of failing facilities which could cause harm to the environment, and in order to comply with the Township's NPDES permit and programs implemented pursuant thereto.

A true and complete copy of the approved ordinance may be inspected at the five (5) following locations and copies are available through the Clerk's Office: Northville Township Public Services Building, 16225 Beck Road, Northville; Northville Township Financial Building, 41660 Six Mile Road, Northville; Northville Township Civic Center, 41600 Six Mile Road, Northville; Northville Township Fire Station, 48515 Seven Mile Road, Northville; Northville Parks and Recreation Office, 700 W. ## Five Mile and Beck: Is this place cursed?

Here's the million-dollar question: what's the problem with Five Mile and Beck?

In the last three years, two highly-touted businesses have fallen on hard times, and a third is in the intensive financial care ward. Nanovation has packed up and left Northville Township without a word — the same Nanovation that replaced OIS Optical Imaging Systems that hit the wall and was recruited to replace the large research and development facility. Meanwhile, Hayes Lemmerz International has filed Chapter 11 bankruptcy. While this isn't a sign of imminent disaster, it doesn't take an MBA to know that bankruptcy — regardless of the form — isn't a good thing.

It may be tempting to blame these three companies' hard times on the recession, but doing so wouldn't be wholly correct. Problems for OIS, Nanovation and Hayes Lemmerz started long before the recession, and even pre-Sept. 11. Certainly, the Trade Center / Pentagon attacks and economic slowdown didn't help, but the culpability doesn't solely rest with those sources, either.

There's something deeper going on here, and whatever it is, isn't good.

Northville Township authorities have often stated their interest in attracting R&D firms to the community. If they're effective, they bring high-paying jobs, are relatively easy on the environment, don't hoard land, and contribute greatly to the community's tax base.

The operative phrase here: "If they're effective."

Therein lies the problem. They haven't been effective. And regardless of the reasons behind the shutdowns and bankruptcies, don't think for a second that their problems won't have an impact on life in Northville Township. Eleven jobs have officially been cut from Hayes Lemmerz. Who knows how many more will be lost as a result of the OIS and Nanovation situations?

What we know is this — three large companies have come to the township with a lot of pomp and circumstance. Those same three companies have fallen flat on their faces, or are licking their wounds from a beating taken in the business world. The R&D park envisioned by the township several years ago isn't the technological hub once hoped for.

Township trustee Marv Gans announced his intent last year to revamp the township's economic development corporation. We haven't seen a lot of moving and shaking go on with this group in the last 52 weeks. Given what's happening at Five and Beck, we think now would be a very good time to get the group together and start asking some questions.

We'll even set the agenda for the meeting: what's the problem with Five Mile and Beck? Getting the answer to that question may help prevent another high-tech firm from going belly-up.

FOOTNOTE: (Look on the bright side — at least Five Mile and Beck doesn't host Enron offices, a Kmart or a Montgomery Ward. If it did, the intersection could be turned into a modern-day Mill Race Village.)

Thanks for assistance with OLP holiday party

Words cannot express the joy and happiness glowing on the faces of the 55 residents of Our Lady of Providence, along with 40 additional staff, friends, and parents at a Christmas party held at the Northville Recreation Center in December.

After lunching on subs and pizzas (provided by Genitti's, Pizza Cutter, and Dave Jerome of Jerome and Austin), a beautifully decorated cake was supplied by Fifth Third Bank. The residents then proceeded to the gym for an afternoon that included picture taking, stringing paper garland, decorating cookies, having their nails polished by former [Northville High School] cheerleaders Kelsey Jenney and Erin Harvey, and making various Christmas ornaments. The final hour of the party was devoted to dancing in the Christmas-themed decorated gym. With this facility closing in May, this was the last Christmas that the residents will enjoy together.

Although this event was supported by Ford Motor Customer Service Division, many others contributed to make this Christmas a memorable one for the residents of OLP. They include Poole's Tavern, Community Bank, Costco, Gardenvues, Gordons Food Service, Brown Art, Busch's, James Holloway, and the staff of the Northville Recreation Center.

Are FDR, LBJ, JFK bad examples of liberals?

  3. John F. Kennedy, who started the Peace Corps, backed civil rights, and expanded medical care for the aged?
  4. Lyndon Baines Johnson, who won passage of major civil rights, promulgated anti-poverty laws, and promoted aid to education? Most important of all, he was instrumental in establishing Medicare and Medicaid.

Cell-mates: fuel, auto industry

In his State of the State speech last week, Gov. John Engler talked glowingly about making Michigan the center for research and development of clean-burning hydrogen fuel cells to power cars.

He was responding to a growing consensus in the auto industry that fuel cell powertrains really are the wave of the future. A major development was U.S. Energy Secretary Spencer Abraham's announcement, three weeks ago of the Freedom Cooperative Automotive Research (Freedom CAR), a public-private group linking the government, the auto companies and the U.S. Council on employing some 27,000 people — all based on gasoline-fueled internal combustion engine powertrains that might well become obsolete in a decade.

"You can't just assume that Michigan will become a leader in fuel cell technology," says Michigan Economic Development Cooperation CEO Doug Rothwell. "Although Michigan is plainly the center of the American auto industry, we don't necessarily have inherent strengths in fuel cell technology. This means we've got to be proactive."

Engler is expected to propose a detailed plan in the next couple of months to make Michigan the center for fuel cell research and development.

A look at Michigan's economic history provides some context for all this. In the 19th century, the first two waves of economic development centered on extracting natural resources, first exploiting the copper and iron ore deposits in the Upper Peninsula and next cutting the vast forests of the northern part of the state. The capital created by these two early industries formed the economic underpinnings for the development of our auto industry in the early part of the 20th century.

Since then, economic policy makers have been searching for the next big industry to power the state's economic progress.

A leading candidate — biotechnology — emerged over the past decade. Stimulated by the MEDC, supported by Governor Engler and financed by money from the national tobacco settlement, the state has poured some $50 million per year into the "Life Sciences Corridor," running from Detroit through Ann Arbor and East Lansing to Grand Rapids. The University of Michigan, for example, is in the middle of building a $200 million Life Sciences Center on the central campus, while the city of Ann Arbor just granted a tax abatement to encourage pharmaceutical giant Pfizer to expand greatly its research labs.

Skeptics question whether trying to graft an entire biotech industry onto a relatively limited existing base of company and infrastructure support will really work.

That's one of the great advantages of an economic strategy based on fuel cells for automobiles: We're not starting from scratch. Michigan already has a wealth of a lot of automotive skill, experience and institutional momentum in the industry, and extending all that into a new kind of powertrain technology seems a logical thing to do.

This suggests a two-pronged fuel cell strategy for Michigan. Offensively, the idea is to build — promptly, firmly, immediately — on our technological and manufacturing strengths in the auto industry. Defensively, the goal is to get so far ahead that nobody else can catch up.

It's an exciting prospect. I'm looking forward to seeing the Governor's proposals as a centerpiece for building a big coalition — auto companies, the supply chain, organized labor, the universities — to help Michigan's future.

Phil Power

Automotive Research to work in developing affordable hydrogen-based fuel cell technology.

"Michigan's stake in the transformation of the auto industry cannot be overstated," said Engler. "The coming transformation means a new generation of vehicles. The new vehicles will require a new generation of engineers to design them, a new generation of plants to assemble them, and a new generation of workers to build them."

Engler's right. The stakes for Michigan are very, very big, especially when you realize that there are 10 engine plants and five transmission plants in Michigan

Attention, please — let's talk Ritalin

There seems to be a growing confusion in Lansing over what lawmaking is really all about.

"We ought not write laws based on extreme behaviors, on the worst case scenarios, when the vast majority of our residents are conducting themselves in an appropriate fashion" is an argument heard with increasing frequency in the state's Capitol.

Mike Malott

Actually, that is exactly what lawmaking is all about.

Most of us don't run around murdering other folks, but there is a law against that worst case scenario. Most of us don't hold up liquor stores at gunpoint either, yet that extreme behavior has also been banned.

Likewise, most teachers and school administrators are not telling parents to put their kids on Ritalin whether the children need the drug or not. Most don't jump to the conclusion that the cause of a bit of bad behavior is attention deficit hyperactivity disorder and try to pressure the parents into medicating the student.

The vast majority of educators in this state don't presume to have enough medical knowledge to diagnose ADHD. Very few would threaten to have a child expelled if parents refused to give their youngster the prescription. Fewer still, I'm sure, would threaten to initiate a child abuse investigation of reticent moms and dads.

But if there is even a kernel of truth to the stories parents are telling legislators in committee hearings in Lansing, then apparently some teachers and administrators — likely a very small number — are doing exactly that.

In hearings before the House Committee on Education last year, a long line of parents came forward to tell lawmakers about how they'd been pressured by teachers and school officials to put their boys and girls on mood- or attention-stabilizing medications.

It ought not be happening. According to the experts, properly diagnosing ADHD can be tricky. And only doctors are supposed to be determining the proper treatment and prescribing medications.

However rarely parents are being pressured, legislation to stop is very appropriate. And so far, three different versions of such a law have been proposed in Lansing.

The version making the most headway is a three-bill package — House Bills 5083, 5085-86 — spearheaded by Rep. Susan Tabor (R-Delta Township). The package would block teachers from recommending or urging that a child be placed on a drug to address behavioral problems, and it would bar teachers from making a diagnosis of the cause of bad behavior. Further, it would require school district to adopt policies on how "chronic behavioral conditions" be addressed, having teachers discuss the matter with parents, and perhaps recommending that the child undergo an educational evaluation or a medical evaluation.

The bills would also create a 15-member commission assigned to the job of studying whether Ritalin, and other drugs like it, are being overprescribed to Michigan school children. Passed in the House late last year, the package is scheduled to be taken up next in the Senate Education Committee.

Critics argue the bill ought not be passed because very few teachers are doing this anyway. And the law might be misconstrued. Opponents say that teachers, or more like parents, might misread this law as saying that school officials are not allowed to even talk to the family about the misbehavior of a youngster, or can't recommend that they see a medical professional about the problem.

That certainly sounds like a legitimate concern, but the authors of this legislation have anticipated it. The package — in fact all three of the different versions of the proposal — make it clear that "this section does not prohibit school medical staff from recommending that a child be evaluated by an appropriate health care provider or prohibit school personnel from consulting with a health care provider concerning the child ..."

So that argument is kind of like saying we shouldn't outlaw murder because somebody might misread it and think that it also prohibits self defense, or bans shooting the enemy in time of war.

No, like any well-written law, it should set the boundaries for acceptable behavior, and then clearly spell out the exceptions.

That's exactly what these bills do.

My 'State of the Newspaper' address

Article II, Section 3 of the Constitution provides that the president of the U.S. "shall, from time to time, give to the Congress information of the state of the union." Millions of Americans tuned in Tuesday night to hear our 43rd president carry out that mandate.

Chris C. Davis

The State of the Union concept has spread through the years. Nowadays, we hear about the State of the State, the State of the City, the State of the Neighborhood and the State of the Living Room. In keeping with that tradition, allow me to step up to the mic and deliver my first State of the Record address.

Readers, residents, visitors and those of you who only pulled off of I-275 for a quick bite at McDonald's while en route to snowmobiling country, it gives me great pleasure to come before you this day and report to you on the state of the Northville Record.

Some 134 years ago, this newspaper was founded as the Wayne County Record, and I don't mind telling you that the hairstyles used in mugshots of the day weren't all that fashionable. The folks who pieced together that first edition, which hit the streets on July 15, 1869, apparently knew they were going to be facing a tough public.

"To criticize a paper is an easy task," the paper wrote, stealing a line or two from the Clinton Republican. "To print one to please everybody and the rest of mankind is no small undertaking. Those who find fault with every little item that does not suit their ideas of right and wrong should buy type and publish an organ of their own. Let them try it for a while."

Frankly, I don't think the "judge-me-after-you've-walked-a-mile-in-my-shoes" approach is all that good in the year 2002, but what was printed by Samuel H. Little back then still holds some truth.

This job isn't easy. This job is demanding. There are a lot of balls to be juggling at one time, and admittedly, we've dropped a few over the years. We're continuing to drop them today. But I'd like to think that the Northville Record is still viewed as the pre-eminent source of community news for Northville.

We've done a lot here at the Record over the course of the last year or so. We've trimmed the fat off the size of the newspaper in an effort to save costs on wasted newsprint. We've finally entered the digital age and now offer highlighted stories and features at our website, northvillerecord.com. We're now in the third year of working with a community advisory board in an attempt to get closer to our readers. And we're continuing to open up the office to community groups interested in learning about newspaper production.

I've heard it many, many times that the newspaper isn't what it once was. They're right. Thirty and 40 years ago, color in a newspaper was a pipe dream. Today, it's taken for granted. Thirty and 40 years ago, layouts doglegged all over the place and writing styles were often conversational in tone, instead of the journalistic style now taken for granted. Thirty and 40 years ago, entire newspapers were devoted to meeting coverage. Today, we tell the stories of the woman with the huge doll collection or the boy who had a chance to appear in a TV commercial.

Yes, criticizing a paper is an easy task, but criticism isn't necessarily a bad thing. Critical comments from readers tells me that those who are doing the criticizing take an ownership in the Record, and continue to view it as their newspaper. As editor of the Record, it's my job to allow each of you — even the guy waiting in line for a Big Mac — to feel a connection to Northville by way of the paper and ink that has hit the streets every Thursday for more than a century.

In short, the Record is here, it is healthy, and it is changing. Faces and names may have changed, but the spirit of the paper is steady. Stick with us. The best is yet to come. (And our haircuts will get better, too.)

Chris C. Davis is the editor of the Northville Record. He can be reached at (248) 349-1700, ext. 114, or at cdavis@ht.homecomm.net.

Public schools are failing the test

Now it has been reported by the Bureau of Teacher Certification and Preparation in Pennsylvania that 50 percent of those attempting to gain the necessary teaching credentials to teach mathematics in the public schools are failing the test. The good news is that the Bureau has already solved the problem. It has made the test more simple so that more people will qualify.

It was bad enough when a couple professors a few months ago put a math program in place that emphasized method in solving even simple arithmetic problems. If a student were to add 4 and 2 and get 7, he was praised and encouraged to try again for he had used to correct method in his attempt to get the correct sum and that was important. Lord, have mercy.

Things were sad and bad enough in earlier years when "No phonics in my classroom" instructors impeded and postponed the learning of reading for tens of thousands of children. The reading teachers and the math instructors may have been related.

amenities. Haskins said raising the extra funding will require community support, especially fundraising on the part of the interested youth. She also said the portable park could be placed in a number of community locations including the parking lot at Hillside Middle School or at other state, county or community parks. The equipment would be kept in Plymouth during the time it is not in use.

"The creation of a portable skate park in cooperation with the Northville Parks and Recreation Department is a great collaboration between recreation departments and this new effort helps create a new program for youth in our two communities," said Plymouth recreation facilities manager Mark Hammar.

Haskins said Plymouth was planning to have special skate days during the spring and summer months when the park can be enjoyed. She said persons interested in learning more about the program and its needed fundraising they can call her at (248) 349-0203, ext. 1408.

Get a healthy dose of home cooking

Leon's offers two locations where you can get the meals like your mom made you

LEON'S

Leon's has a total of 11 locations, with two locally. One is located in Novi at 39455 10 Mile Road call (248) 478-9742 and the other is in Wixom across from the Ford plant at 29710 S. Wixom Road, call (248) 926-5880. Hours are 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday and Sunday 7 a.m. to 9 p.m.

By Annette Jaworski
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Freshness and a menu with choices might describe why Leon's restaurants are a success. It's two things you can count on when visiting the Novi or Wixom locations. But you should probably include a strong dose of work ethic by founder and owner, Moe Leon.

Back to Basics

The proprietor doesn't believe in taking the easy way out. To him, a successful chain of restaurants means long hours and good food means never taking shortcuts. That means fresh food all the time, not pre-prepared, like home made potatoes for hash browns and home made soups.

"Everything we serve is prepared here, just like home cooking. For hash browns we cut and peel the potatoes," he pointed out.

His restaurant is geared toward family dining by offering a wide variety of dishes and an emphasis on healthy eating. He's particularly proud to offer the freshest fruit and heart healthy dishes.

All Your Favorite Choices

Seven days a week you can count on your favorites. If you've got a craving for stuffed peppers, come in on Monday, any Monday, and it's on special. If you crave chicken, parmesan come in on Saturday, it's always on special. Also, six days a week you have a healthy choice of fish, from broiled salmon to rainbow trout. Or find your favorites like fish and chips or barbecued ribs. All the dinners include the all you can eat soup bar, choice of salad or applesauce, cottage cheese or coleslaw and most are $6.95-$7.95 for the entire meal. In addition to daily specials, they offer senior discounts and a kiddie menu to please customers.

Their Specialties

Another popular favorite offered by Leon's is their breakfast buffet on Saturday and Sunday. Look for fresh fruits and pastries as well as 15 to 20 other items including all your traditional favorites like waffles, French toast, biscuits and sausage and hash browns. The buffet also includes juice.

The homemade soup bar is a trademark of sorts for the restaurant. There are three different soups offered each day, chicken noodle every day and two other selections.

Depending on which day you stop in, there might be a creamy clam chowder or Canadian cheese or a lighter choice like vegetable or cabbage.

The Customer is King

And if you don't see it on the menu, they'll be happy to satisfy your appetite. Just ask and chances are great they can make it for you. The staff aims to please.

Moe Leon, owner of Leon's, offers breakfast diners many treats including eggs benedict and hashbrowns.

"I go out of my way to please the customer...if the customer is happy, everybody's happy," he said.

Leon observes that it's great help like server Gina in Wixom that makes customer satisfaction possible. One employee in Novi has been with him since opening in 1983, and now her two children have grown and work there, too. He's proud to have served the area for 19 years.

You might be surprised to know that Leon's also offers catering and a banquet room with facilities for up to 100 people. In Wixom, they also serve beer, wine and cocktails.

And in keeping with the more health conscious clientele, Leon took the bold move of turning his Novi restaurant into a smoke-free environment on Jan. 1. At first he did a trial run, and decided it was a good idea.

"Since then I've had nothing but good comments," he observed. "We've also seen a lot of families that we've never seen before."

You might also have noticed them recently on television station WXYZ where the Leon's crew spent an entire day with Warren Pierce covering dishes from omelet's to salads.

Tips to saving big on homeowners insurance

By Lori A. Bahnmueller
MICHIGAN CREDIT UNION LEAGUE

Unless you've recently purchased a home or filed a claim, chances are you haven't visited your homeowners insurance policy in a while.

The price you pay for your homeowners insurance can vary by hundreds of dollars depending on the company you buy your policy from.

Companies offer several types of discounts, but they don't offer the same discount or the same amount of discount in all states. That's why you should ask your agent or company representative about any discounts available to you.

From the Insurance Information Institute (www.iii.org), the following 12 steps may help save money on your homeowners insurance.

Shop around

Friends, family, the phone book and Internet are some of the sources you can use to find homeowners insurers. Get a wide range of prices from several companies.

But don't consider price alone. The insurer you select should offer both a fair price and excellent service. Quality service may cost a bit more, but you buy insurance in case you need to make a claim, so it's important to get a company with a good reputation. Talk to a number of insurers to get a feeling for the type of service they give. Ask them what they would do to lower your costs.

Check the financial ratings of the companies with AM Best or Standard and Poor's.

Raise your deductible

Deductibles are the amount of money you have to pay toward a loss before your insurance company starts to pay. Deductibles on homeowners policies typically start at $250. However, if you double that deductible you could save up to 12 percent. Increase it to $1,000 and your savings potential increases to 24 percent.

Buy your home and auto policies for the same insurer.

Some companies that sell homeowners, auto and liability coverage will take 5 to 15 percent off your premium if you buy two or more policies from them.

When you buy a home

Consider how much insuring it will cost. A new home's electrical, heating and plumbing systems and overall structure are likely to be in better shape than those of an older house. Insurers may offer you a discount of 8 to 15 percent if your house is new.

Avoiding areas that are prone to floods can save you about $400 a year for flood insurance. Homeowners insurance does not cover flood-related damage.

Also, the closer your home is to firefighters and their equipment, the lower your premium will be.

Insure home, not land

The land under your house isn't at risk from theft, windstorm, fire and the other perils covered in your homeowners policy. So don't include its value in deciding how much homeowners insurance to buy. If you do, you'll pay a higher premium than you should.

Improve your home security and safety.

You can usually get discounts of at least 5 percent for a smoke detector, burglar alarm, or dead-bolt locks. Some companies offer to cut your premium by as much as 15 or 20 percent if you install a sophisticated sprinkler system and a fire and burglar alarm that rings at the police station or other monitoring facility.

These systems aren't cheap and not every system qualifies for the discount. Before you buy such a system, find out what kind your insurer recommends and how much the device would cost and how much you'd save on premiums.

Stop smoking

Smoking accounts for more than 23,000 residential fires a year. That's why some insurers offer to reduce premiums if all the residents in a house don't smoke.

Seek out discounts for seniors. Retired people stay at home more and spot fires sooner than working people and have more time for maintaining their homes. If you're at least 55-years-old and retired, you may qualify for a discount of up to 10 percent at some companies.

Get group coverage

Alumni and business associations often work out an insurance package with an insurance company, which includes a discount for association members. Ask your association's director if an insurer is offering a discount on homeowners insurance to you and your fellow graduates or colleagues.

It can pay to be loyal

If you've kept your coverage with a company for several years, you may receive special consideration. Several insurers will reduce their premiums by 5 percent if you stay with them for three to five years; by 10 percent if you remain a policyholder for six years or more.

Test the limits

You want your policy to cover any major purchases or addition to your home. But you don't want to spend money for coverage you don't need.

Look for private insurers

If you live in a high-risk area — one that is especially vulnerable to coastal storms, fires, or crime — and have been buying your homeowners insurance through a government plan, you should check with an insurance agent or company representative. You may find that there are steps you can take that would allow you to buy insurance at a lower price in the private market.

Prosecutor: Northville cop deserves prison time

Christopher Andreoff and Oakland County prosecutor Cheryl Matthews pushed the hearing into early February. Andreoff said there were a number of issues that still needed to be resolved.

"I think Mr. Edgar is painfully aware of the effects of criminal sexual abuse and the punishment it entails," Matthews said. "And I believe he deserves prison time."

Matthews said the next hearing would determine whether the case goes to trial or if there would be a plea.

Edgar, a 16-year veteran of the city department, was arraigned last fall at 52-1 District Court in Novi and then ordered by Judge Michael Batchik to stand trial for first degree and second degree criminal sexual conduct charges involving a child under the age of 13.

Edgar has been accused of allegedly sexually mistreating his former step-granddaughter, who is now age 10. Matthews said during the preliminary examination hearings accusative information was given that Edgar was said to have had slept undressed with his step-granddaughter and also made her touch him in an improper manner during the situations. The alleged incidents occurred throughout a time period starting when the girl was six years old.

According to Matthews, the punishment of the first degree charge could result in any number of years of prison time, up to life, and the second-degree charge could result any number of years up to 15 years. Matthews said because Edgar served as a police officer for a number of years, and since he had experience in dealing with other persons accused of similar crimes, he should know better than anyone the consequences of the charges.

Batchik allowed Edgar to be released on a $25,000 personal recognizance bond, but ordered him not to have any contact with the victim, the victim's family or any other minor.

Edgar's wife said she has since divorced him. According to Northville city police chief James Petres, Edgar was suspended from the department in early October because of the charges brought against him.

Mustangs top Chargers, fall to John Glenn

By Sam Eggleston
SPORTS WRITER

The Northville Mustangs boys basketball team felt the agony of a last-second loss and the thrill of a convincing win this past week.

The Mustangs followed the scoring lead of Adam Konst in both games, who seems as though he is nearly unstoppable, but could only pull out one victory, which came over Livonia Churchill 66-57 in a Western Lakes Activities Association contest Jan. 25 after falling to the John Glenn Rockets 57-56 on a last-second shot Jan. 23.

Of the two, the Mustangs were no doubt happier to get the win.

"It was a tough game," Northville coach Darrel Schumacher said of the Churchill game. "We had a real good lead at the half (32-23), but they managed to come back and catch up to us."

The Mustangs were not about to let a comeback ruin a big win for them, not this time. The squad used key free throw shooting by Konst and the rest of the Mustangs to pull away in the fourth quarter.

With about five minutes left in the game we decided to stop trying to take quick shots and to hold on to the ball a little longer," Schumacher said. "We didn't go into a deep-freeze, we just became very selective and worked at getting good shots. I guess we should have done that, they decided to come out a play a little harder and they almost came back to get us."

The Mustangs followed the scoring lead of Konst, who poured in 16 points, while senior Robbie Harner added 11 in the winning effort. Thom Knapp used his considerable height to his advantage once again, adding 10 points, while Tom Borda chip-shot his way to 10 points in the winning effort while hauling down 11 rebounds for the Northville squad.

"His 11 rebounds were huge for us," Schumacher said. "He was on vacation for a while and he is just now getting back to where we think he is capable of playing."

The Mustangs (6-5) will return to action when they take on the Canton Chiefs in a Western Lakes Activities Association contest tomorrow at 7 p.m. at Canton.

The Northville/Novi combined gymnastics team — the Wild Stangs — did what they could against some of the top competition in the area when the took a trip to participate in the Farmington Invitational Jan. 26.

The Wild Stangs, led by coach Lindsay Schultz, took fourth place in the invite with 144.3 points, while a tough Rochester Adams team took first with 148.575. Tri-Farmington took second with

The Wild Stangs looked to stellar gymnast Jennifer Sturgis to lead the way as she gathered 37.85 individual points with an 8. in the vault, a 9.65 on the bars, an impressive 9.7 on the beam and a 9.6 in the floor routine.

Battle of the Baseline goes to Wildcats

By Sam Eggleston

Losing, especially to your cross-town rivals in the Battle of the Baseline, is never easy — just ask the Northville Mustangs.

There was an air of disappointment as the Mustangs left the sheet of ice at the Novi Ice Arena Jan. 25. Just moments after they shook hands with the 6-3 victors of the Battle of the Baseline — the Novi Wildcats.

"This is always a tough game to come in here and lose," Northville coach Jeff Bond said. "I don't doubt that it pains each and every one of these players. We went out there determined to play our game, and that is what we did. Novi is a hard team to keep down and they did everything right in the third period."

While it seemed the Northville Mustangs couldn't get the puck where it belonged in the final period — the back of the net.

The Northville icers were not the first to score in this contest and they weren't the last. Novi senior Adam Haberman was the player who took both of those honors. In a game like this one, some teams just wish there wasn't a third period.

The first goal of the night came from rock-steady Novi senior Haberman with three minutes, 23 seconds left in the first period with assists from Ellis and Brian Jausi. The Mustangs were quick to answer though, collecting two goals in the first period to take a 2-1 lead. The first goal came with two minutes remaining in the first with the Mustangs coming against goalie Dan Morrison on a power play. Ryan Hohl took an assist from Bobby Salerno and put it past Morrison with the second assist going to Tim Hillebrand. Just 20 seconds later, sophomore Troy Engelland added Northville's second score with a backhand on the open wide-side of the goal with assists being credited to his brother, senior Jason Engelland, and Jeff Crawford.

The Mustangs kept their momentum through the early minutes of the second period as well. Jason Engelland found Crawford standing alone in the slot and fed him the puck on a soft pass from behind the net which Crawford quickly snapped into the goal for a 3-1 lead. The second assist went to senior defenseman Adam Dilley.

"We were really going at them strong," Northville assistant coach Chad Roy said. "We seemed to have momentum going strong in our favor, but the Novi team is well coached and we knew if we didn't keep up the pressure they were going to come back later in the game."

And come back they did, especially in the third period. After the final Northville goal in the game, it looked as though the Mustangs were well in control of the situation — but the Wildcats were just

Jaskot knows what it takes to be senior, daughter and athlete

By Brian Doyle

Going out to eat with her friends, listening to loud music in their car and then going to a friends house to hang out is how Cymbre Jaskot would spend her dream Friday night. She wanted a night where she would be always surrounded by her friends.

That partially explains why she wants to go into public relations. "I love working with people," Jaskot said.

She plans on attending Michigan State University and studying public relations. Currently, Jaskot is gaining experience for that field in her broadcasting production class.

"We do the announcements and radio production," she said.

That class was also Jaskot's favorite. Another aspect of Jaskot's college plans the right in with her love for working and being around people.

"I'm looking forward to getting to know new people around my dorm," Jaskot said.

Jaskot enjoys being around her closest friends Sarah Shirock, Samantha Drouillard, and Nicole Galdes. In her perfect Friday night it was Shirock's car that she imagined listening to music in. Jaskot also said she likes hanging out with Bill Montgomery.

When she's not driving in her car she driving her own blue 1990 Buick Century. It isn't Jaskot's favorite car, but she is dealing with it.

"I'm looking to improve in that area," she said.

Hopefully, her income from her part-time job at Deadwood Bar and Grill will help her do that. Jaskot works part time as a hostess, where not surprisingly she deals with a lot of people. She also gets along very well with her co-workers.

"I love my staff that I work with," Jaskot said.

Another restaurant Jaskot is fond of is Max and Erma's where she especially likes the chicken fingers, although her favorite food is potato soup from Panera.

Another group of people that are important to Jaskot is her family. She has two sisters Daniel, who's 21, and Rebecca who's 12. She also lives with both parents who are very supportive of her.

"They come to all my games," Jaskot said and it was her dad who initially encouraged her to get into sports. Jaskot is the setter on Northville's varsity volleyball team.

"My older sister was a setter for Northville and I followed in her footsteps," Jaskot said.

She was also involved with softball and basketball during her junior varsity years.

Jaskot enjoys other non-school sports. She likes to snowboard at Mt. Holly and also likes to hike sack. Jaskot got into sports when she was little and has loved them ever since.

"I've always been a tomboy since elementary school," she said. She also said that she loved every sport she's played.

However, there is more to Jaskot's life than just sports. She enjoys hip-hop and r and b music and her favorite artist is Nelly. Her favorite movies are The Sixth Sense and The Fast and the Furious. Jaskot also enjoys movies with Adam Sandler or Cameron Diaz.

"I loved every movie he's in. He makes me laugh hysterically," she said.

Jaskot goes to Oak Pointe Church which is held at her school on Sundays. She is looking forward to her spring break trip to Puerto Vallarta.

"Andrew Meagrow is playing some outstanding basketball for them right now," Schumacher said. "We are going to have to control him if we want to win. They play some outstanding defense. This is going to be an interesting game."

The Mustangs are also awaiting the possible return of senior guard Tim Ferng, who broke his jaw earlier this season at practice.

"Tim is doing real good," Schumacher said. "We are hoping that he can get clearance from his doctors in three weeks or so."

John Glenn 57, Northville 56
The Northville Mustangs seemed as though they were going to be walking away from the John Glenn High School gym with a WAAA victory, but that is not the way it happened.

With 20 seconds remaining in the contest, the Mustangs came down the court and watched as Konst pulled up and hit a three-point field goal to put the Northville squad on top, 56-55. The Rockets were not about to let the 'Stangs get away that easy.

"They came back down against us with about 20 seconds left in the game," Schumacher said. "We took away their first two options and they managed to get the ball inside. Their guy turned, had no where to go with it and tossed the ball up. It seemed to loop around our guy and get in. It was just one of those shots that shouldn't have been good."

The game went back and forth the entire night, but the Mustangs always seemed to be on top at the end of the quarter, except the one that mattered most. At the end of the first quarter, the Mustangs held a 17-15 advantage over the Rockets and increased that lead to three points, 30-27, as the two teams headed into the locker room for halftime. The end of the third period found the Mustangs leading 46-43, but it was the end of the game that decided it all and that score found the Rockets taking the win 57-56.

The Mustangs followed the lead of Konst, who scored 37 points on the night — the most ever by a visiting player at John Glenn while Harmer added five and Knapp collected four. Roger Garfield showed he isn't ready to hang up his scoring abilities quite yet, adding six points in the losing effort.

"After Konst there really wasn't any scoring," Schumacher said. "I guess that was one of our problems. We needed more scoring but we couldn't get it."

It was at Portage Central the Mustangs participated in an eight team tournament with schools from the west side of the state. This tournament has always been a tough one for the Northville squad, a tournament to test the desire and dedication the team had to win. Last season, Northville tied for second place, the only tourney they didn't win before the play offs. ## Club Hockey News

By Jim Stevenson
SPECIAL WRITER

The Northville High School Club Hockey Team had something to prove.

After watching the Mustangs varsity squad fall to Novi High School in the earlier game of a doubleheader, the club hockey team needed to make sure that their rivals wouldn't sweep. They came out and played one of their most hard-nosed and disciplined games of the season and skated to a 3-1 victory.

The Mustangs outshot their opponents 35-17 in the contest, checked aggressively, kept the pressure in the Novi zone, and played very solid defense in front of goaltender David Ely-Bond. The first period was tight, with both teams checking closely. Novi scored first with 7:30 left in the period on a power play to take the early lead. Later in the period, Northville appeared to be in a bad situation when they found themselves two men short.

However, the Mustang penalty kill units showed tremendous hustle and fought off the penalties to end the period down only one goal. Just past the midpoint of the game, Northville got on the board when Graham Appleford scored on a scramble in front of the net. He was assisted by Andy Minelli and Will Holden. The Appleford, Minelli, and Holden line was strong all game, with exceptional forechecking and back-checking. Both teams had chances later in the second period, but both Ely-Bond and the Novi goaltender were sharp and the period ended 1-1. In the third period, the Mustangs finally broke the game open.

Defenseman Mike Arnold made a beautiful pass to a wide-open Andy Minelli in front of the net and Minelli made no mistake with the shot to score the game-winner. Will Holden also tallied an assist on the goal. Later in the period Graham Appleford put the game out of reach when he took the puck from behind the Novi net, skated toward the front and backhanded a shot between the Novi goalie and the pipe for a 3-1 lead. That was the final score as Northville played solid the rest of the way. The Mustangs have won their last three games and are now at 8-5-1 for the year.

Northville 6, Brighton 5

The Northville High School Club Hockey Team has had two primary problems this year — giving up early leads and taking too many penalties. It looked like those problems were going to haunt them again on Wednesday, Jan. 23 in their game against the Brighton High School JV squad.

However some offensive heroics from Don McKinnon and a goal in the last minutes of play allowed them to come away with a 6-5 victory.

As in many previous games, the Mustangs fell behind early in the game giving up two goals.

However, McKinnon responded with his first tally to pull back within a goal. Things looked bad after that as Northville took three penalties in quick succession, which put them at a two-man disadvantage. However, they were able to fight off the Bulldogs and actually went on a power play of their own late in the period.

Despite some good pressure they were unable to convert and they ended the period down 2-1. Penalties again hurt the Mustangs as the Bulldogs scored a power play goal early in the second period to take a 3-1 lead.

Once more, Don McKinnon brought the Mustangs back to within a goal as he skated the puck the length of the ice on right wing and lifted a shot over the Brighton goalie's glove hand. Andy Minelli then evened the score at 3-3 after some outstanding hustle from Will Holden to keep the puck in the Brighton zone.

Northville finally took the lead later in the period as McKinnon registered a hat trick, scoring on his own rebound with the Mustangs on the power play. Assisting on the goal were Kris Kojan and Tim Arnold. Despite carrying a 4-3 lead into the third period, the Mustangs couldn't hold on. Brighton came back with two goals to start the third and retook the lead at 5-4. Then, with 4:32 left in play, Don McKinnon was pulled down from behind on a breakaway while the Mustangs were short-handed and he was awarded a rare penalty shot.

McKinnon juiced the Bulldog goalie to the right and then put a backhand past the outstretched goaltender for his fourth goal of the game. It looked like the game might end in a tie, but with 2:36 left Ryan Patrosso wristed a shot toward the Bulldog net. The goalie gave up a rebound and Robble Riehl was there to knock home the goal to give the Mustangs a 6-5 victory.

waiting for them to relax a little too much.

"They came out strong against us," Novi's Haberman said. "We are a third period team and we knew it would be close for the first two. After they scored their three goals, we just put the nails in the coffin."

The Wildcats discovered that four nails would be all they would need to secure the lid to that coffin.

Novi came back with a goal from Overfield with 3:04 remaining in the second period to cut the Mustang lead to one with assists going to Justin Collins and Chaz Bulbuk. The goal came just a minute and a half after Northville's Jason Engelland sent a slap shot off of a teammate's stick and to the ceiling of the ice house, shattering the glass covering the light just above Morrison's head in goal, causing a brief delay in play that gave the Wildcat's time to come back and regroup.

"We knew what we had to do in that final period," Northville assistant coach Chris Kozlowski said. "We had to keep Novi from changing the speed of the game and to get the edge with too many unanswered goals. We did that until the end of the second period and they just came back with everything they had."

Everything the Novi squad had included Robert Vulaj, who scored with assistance from John Murray and Ellis with 12:12 remaining in the game to tie it all up. Six minutes later, Overfield scored on a tight pass from Robble Harrell that made its way through the sticks and skates of two Northville defenders before being blasted past Northville's goalie, Dave Stewart, for the score and the lead.

"We came out ready to play," Overfield said. "We were pumped in the third period and we came out there looking to score some goals."

Harrell scored at the 4:28 mark with an assist coming from Vulaj to put the cap on some well-timed and planned Novi attacks to seal the game against the Mustangs and to give the Wildcats a 5-3 lead.

With three minutes left in the game, the Mustangs pulled Stewart in hopes of being able to notch a couple scores of their own — the plan backfired. Haberman took a pass from Ellis at the blue line and made no attempt to hurry his shot as he gracefully tagged the back of the net without a Mustang in sight to cap the scoring on the night.

The Mustangs will return to action when they visit Farmington in a Western Lakes Activities Association match up Saturday at 7:30 p.m. before visiting Plymouth Salem Feb. 5 at 7 p.m. in another WLAAC contest.

STEVENSON 6, NORTHVILLE 4
Livonia Stevenson (9-5-3) put two goals on the board in each period Jan. 23 to beat the host Mustangs (7-6-1) in a WLAAC crossover at the Novi Ice Arena.

The Spartans led 2-1 after one period, but Northville's Troy Engelland scored first at 5:22 from Nick Strauch and Ryan Hohl.

Jamey Messer evened the count at 1-1 at 8:33 from Josh Latzman. Stevenson's Jared Gaudet followed at 11:32 from Messer.

In the second period, Hohl scored unassisted at 2:39.

The Spartans pulled ahead 4-2 in the same period on an Adam Miller goal from Justin Dunn and Jonny O'Neill at 4:53, followed by Dunn's goal from Miller and Latzman at 9:05.

Strauch brought the Mustangs to within one with 4:08 left in the second period from Hohl and Zobl.

Dunn gave Stevenson a two-goal cushion from O'Neill at 5:35 of the third. But Engelland notched his second to pull Northville to within one, 5-4, with seven minutes left on an assist from Jeff Crawford.

Stevenson's Tommy Zagata scored an empty netter with 25 seconds left to clinch the win. Stevenson outshot the Mustangs, 34-26, as Rob Grisius worked the final period in goal for Stevenson.

Cagers may tally plenty of points

The truth is, the Walled Lake Central Vikings are having a rough year, with only two seniors who have never really been starters and a host of sophomores leading the way. This is a good game, in my opinion, for the Mustangs to get much needed playing time for their supporting cast.

With the players on the Northville team that have the ability to shine, just not much opportunity to do it, there is no doubt in my mind that if the Mustangs take a decent lead in the contest, the back-up 'Stangs will be taking over the spotlight.

Not that I am saying a game like this is going to be easy — in fact, I think it is going to be a very dangerous and volatile situation the Mustangs are going to be stepping into. There are fewer more dangerous teams than an underdog — for you Pittsburgh Steelers fans out there, you know what I mean — and the Mustangs will have to go into this game expecting a dog fight.

With a dangerous array of weapons such as Thom Knapp, Adam Konst, Robbie Harner and Roger Garfield, the Mustangs will have plenty of options to choose from when they take on the Vikings. They have the ability to move the ball around the perimeter, shoot at will and bury the three as well as the option to go down low to the big man — Knapp.

The only problem is the Vikings. They are going to be looking to shut down anything that comes their way and they are not going to worry too much about how they do it. A team that has collected only a handful of wins is a team that is usually beginning to get desperate this time of year. Walled Lake coach Bob Shoemaker has too much experience to let that happen to his team, but that doesn't mean that they are going to stick to the traditional strategies of basketball. Remember the barking dog play? That is pretty much the type of play that a team with a smart head coach and a losing record is willing to come up with to collect a win. Take that and add in the stellar, and I do mean stellar, shooting ability of sophomore Brandon Cassisi and the determination of senior Maxx Morris and you have a possibly dangerous situation.

I am going to give the thumbs up to the Mustang cagers and hope they have the ability to take an early enough lead to get the back-ups in. They deserve it and they need the playing time — I know Coach Schumacher will do whatever he can to get those boys in the game, as he does every game.

Let's see here - I don't want to jinx the fellas with too much of a win, but I think I am going to give them a very convincing win.

Warriors notch victory

By Sam Eggleston
SPORTS WRITER

The Walled Lake Western Warriors took advantage of poor free-throw shooting and costly turnovers to notch another win this season — this time over Western Lakes Activities Association opponent Plymouth Canton 64-55.

The win boosted the Warriors to 7-5 overall this season and 4-2 in the conference while Canton fell to 5-6 overall and 2-3 in the WLAA.

It is at a moment like that when momentum plays the most vital of roles. Three straight Canton turnovers found the Warriors back in the driver's seat and Canton's errant free-throw shooting — 6-of-14 in the game, including 2-of-9 in the fourth quarter — proved enough to put the final nails in the coffin.

Western was more than prepared for their shooting from the charity line thanks to the coaching of Rex Stanczak.

The Warriors converted 20-of-25 from the line, including an impressive 15-of-17 in the fourth quarter.

of Walled Lake Central.

The Vikings held the Rocks, who were without leading scorer David Hoskins and starting guard Stevland Davis — both benched after reportedly violating team rules, to just six points in the fourth quarter and overtime combined as they rolled to a win.

The Rocks fell for the first time in WLAA play, standing at 6-5 overall and 4-1 in the conference, while the Vikings celebrate the sweet taste of victory with a 2-10 record (2-4 WLAA).

The Vikings sat back in a 2-3 zone and did their best to dictate the tempo of the game. The Salem basketball team tried to mix up their defense to get the game back in their favor, but the Vikings still prevailed.

The Central Vikings basketball team took on the Salem cagers and walked away with a 48-43 Western Lakes Activities Association win Jan. 25. The Rocks, who were playing in their third consecutive overtime game against a WLAA opponent, became the second team to fall to the Vikings this season. meet, but a lot of them need the experience."

One of the Northville wrestlers who has plenty of experience and is quick to show it is senior captain Ravi Saran. Saran dominated his 112-pound weight class with a void in the first round and pins for his second and third matches. Saran, who was top-seeded entering the tourney, took the first-place medal in the championship round with a last-second reverse to break the tie and take the win.

Junior captain Josh D'Anna placed second in the 125 class while senior captain Matt Doyle took third in the 130 class. Topping off Northville's medal winners was junior Rick Riegner, who took fourth place in the 145 pound division.

"The older members of this team are the leaders," Smith said. "They are the ones who the younger kids look to."

weight class at 119 pounds, forcing him to give up at least seven pounds to each of his opponents. In a day that proved hit and miss, Carter went 2-2 in the tourney. After losing his first two matches, sophomore Adam Blunk proceeded to win his next two and take fifth place in the 103 class while sophomore Ben Mason lost by a fall in the first round to the top-seed and eventual winner of the 160-pound weight class and refused to give up a pin to the next three wrestlers he faced.

"They just don't give up," Smith said. "They are in every meet and they want to win every match."

The Mustangs will return to action when they face Canton today at Northville. The first match is scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

Walled Lake Central held the usually powerful Rocks to just two points in the fourth quarter as they made their comeback. The Walled Lake Central basketball team outscored Plymouth Salem 16-6 in the final 13 minutes to ensure the victory.

The Central squad followed the lead of Brandon Cassisi, who continued his absolutely stellar shooting for 21 points, while the relentless and determined Maxx Morris poured in 11 points with his hard-nose style of play.

Victorian lampshades from 21st century

Made with exquisite fabric, trim, these functional artworks bring days gone by to life

By Annette Jaworski
SPECIAL WRITER

When Bonnie Foley couldn't find the perfect Victorian lampshade for her home, she took matters into her own hands — literally.

Unable to locate exactly what she wanted, Foley taught herself to hand make the exquisite shades.

"First I started redoing lampshades," Foley said. "I didn't like that idea, so I had to learn to do this myself."

Now Foley creates the unique lampshades for retail.

Locally, Foley's work is on display at The Artist's Loft, located above Nostalgia Days Gone By Antique Store in Brighton.

She has been making her lampshades for about two years and hopes to eventually turn the hobby into a source of retirement income.

Beginning with a bare frame, Foley creates the luxurious and ornate lampshades with fabric, notions and trim.

She wraps the frame completely with a material similar to seam binding. Then she adds fabric. She finishes off each creation with trim or beads.

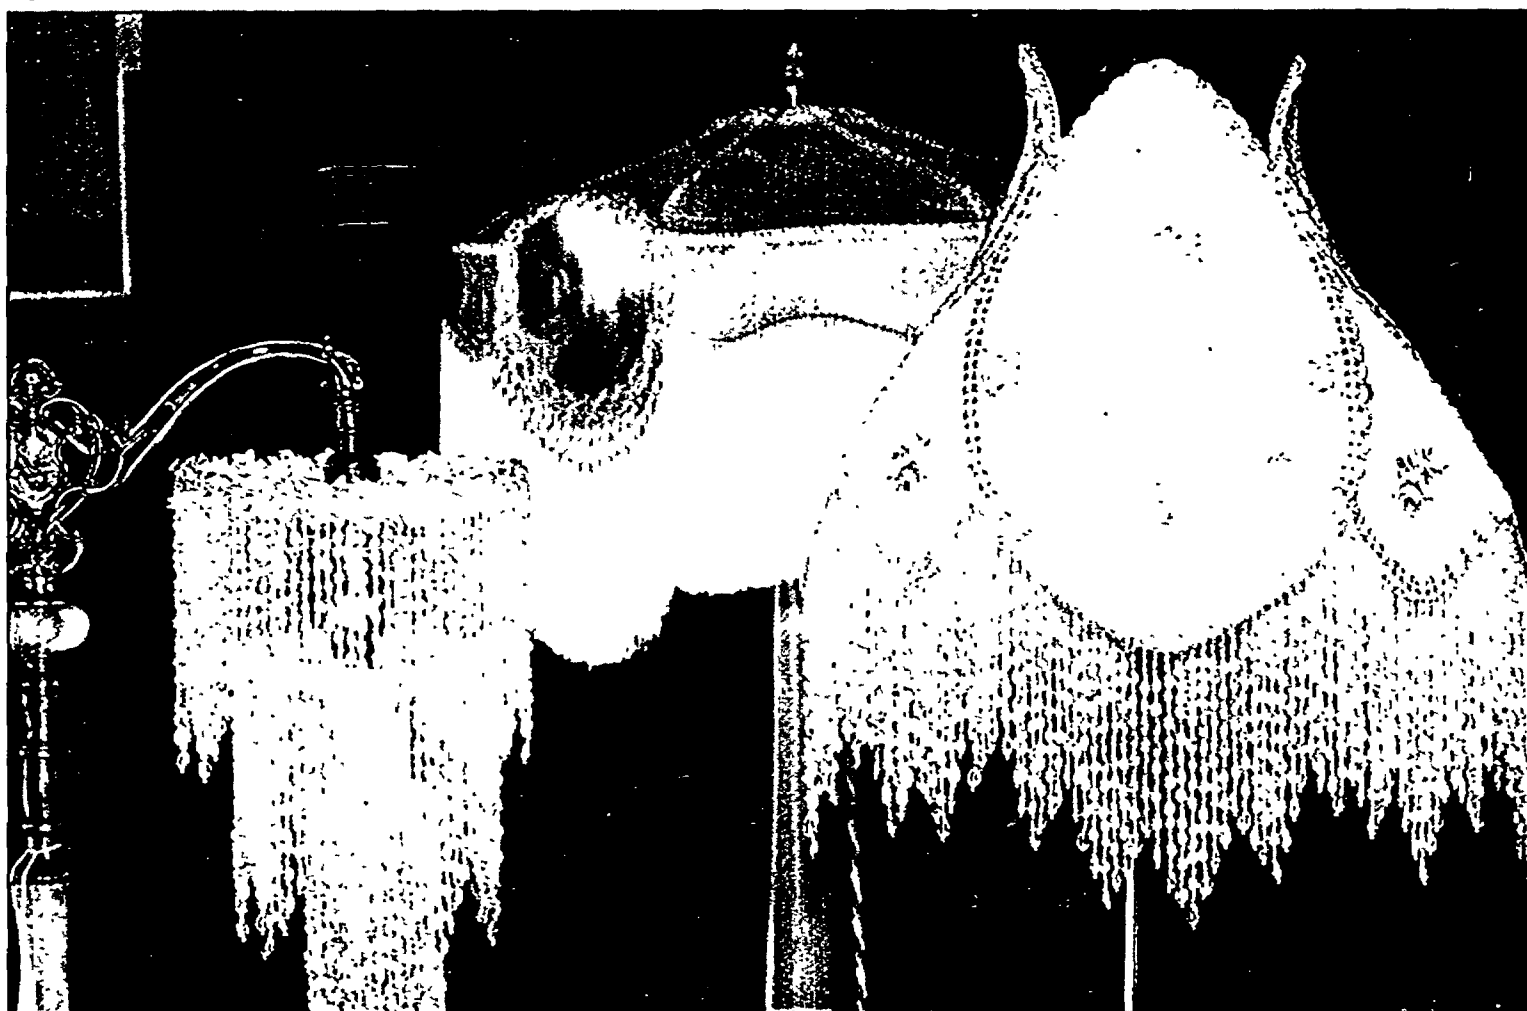

The shades come in a variety of shapes, sizes, styles and colors. Her styles range from purple crescent-shaped shades to snappy faux hats with fluffy trim. Another lampshade is created in a safari theme, with a lion's cameo and leopard print.

Foley creates large floor lamps, petite shades for desk lamps and every other size.

She even makes a small night light — an ornate twist on the traditional little glowing lamp.

"I don't like plain things," Foley said. "The lamps are for people that appreciate the beauty."

The handmade shades are very Inspiration for her functional works of art came when Foley tried to locate a Victorian shade for her home. Not finding what she wanted, she made one herself.

work intensive, taking anywhere from four to 30 hours to create.

Foley's lampshades range in price from $79 for petite shades to $300 for floor shades.

Much of that cost is in the materials. Foley imports the lovely crystal beads featured on some of the shades. She searches antique and fabric shops for the extravagant trims and fabrics — the trims alone can cost anywhere from $2 a yard to $8 a yard. Foley also uses trim from vintage 1950s dresses.

The fabrics she uses on the shades include satin, silk and chiffon. For some shades, she chooses a lace overlay or silk scarves.

"As an artist I continually like to try to make new and different things," she said.

It is hard to second-guess what colors people might be looking for, so Foley tends to stick with neutrals.

Of course, she is happy to custom create orders for any size, shape or color lampshade. She can be reached at (734) 544-2247.

Lampshades available at antiques shop

Bonnie Foley's Victorian lampshades are available at the Artist's Loft, located above Nostalgia Days Gone By Antique Store in downtown Brighton.

"When you buy one of those (lampshades), you know nobody else is going to have it," said Clarence Hines, owner of Nostalgia.

His shop carries a little bit of everything, including dishes, glasses and linens. The store even carries antique magazines, toys and games.

"I look at it as one big house. It's an accumulation of a lot of things," Hines said.

He finds that people often visit antique shops as sort of a museum.

"People are intrigued by antiques," he said. "They even plan their trips around them. When they come into a little town, the first thing they look for is an antique shop."

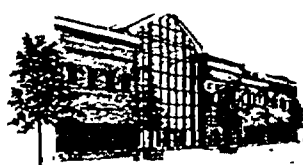

He agrees with the old adage. "They don't make things like they used to." Considering the quality of workmanship in many antiques, he said they're actually a great buy.

Nostalgia Days Gone By is located at 116 W. Main Street in Brighton. Call (810) 229-4710 for more information.

Attic ceilings: Unique decorating opportunities

Slanted ceiling can be converted into an off-beat headboard to add illusion of more space

By Rose Bennett Gilbert
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

Q: We're making a guest room in the attic and I'm confused by the slanted ceilings. They come down so far on two sides of the room that there's no place for the bed, the headboard is too high. The end walls won't work either. One has the closet and there are windows across the other. Should we just shove the side of the bed against the wall so the headboard is at right angles to it?

A: Well, that could be one solution. It might look better if you push a dresser or table against the back side of the headboard to hold reading lamps and such. But jamming the bed against the wall that way not only threatens your guests with head bruises, it renders it so exasperatingly difficult to make up.

Better, I think, to take a cue from the photo we show here. It's off with the headboard, on with imagination. What you see is a mere illusion, painted on the wall behind the bed with a center motif traced from the toile de Jouy fabric that dresses the rest of the room.

There's been no attempt at realism here, but the effect is both practical and charming. And it couldn't be much easier, according to our resource, "Bed and Bath Decorating Ideas & Projects" (Meredit Books). The editors suggest that you cut your headboard from a rectangle of brown kraft paper first to make sure it fits. Then, to ensure symmetry, fold the paper in half, draw and cut your pattern, and trace on the wall before painting.

A couple of other ideas for headboards that will fit your half-wall: a low bookshelf; a rectangle of garden trellis; a single panel of wallpaper that runs up the wall and onto the ceiling; sheer curtains hung from high on the wall and tied back to the slant on each side of the bed.

Remodeling kitchens

Q: We've been talking about remodeling the kitchen — the only thing about our lovely old Victorian that we don't love — so we'd like to know if there's anything new we should take into consideration.

A: How much time do you have?

What's new for today's kitchen could take a week or two, and that's just to list the as-of-this-moment products.

There has been one major change in the very philosophy of kitchen design. You've heard of the classic "work triangle" (between the refrigerator, stove, and sink)? Well, forget it. The triangle concept made sense in the era of one-cook kitchens but it falls short today, when we're all in there working and playing together.

At least one kitchen designer, Deborah Krasner, now mixes the old work triangle in favor of what she calls four work areas, or zones: wet, dry, hot and cold. Her idea, borrowed from high-pressure restaurant kitchens and applauded by professional organizations like the Hardwood Manufacturers Association, is to define each area by the activities and appliances it includes.

Krasner recommends that you pay special attention to surfacing materials in each area. If, for example, you have hardwood floors in your kitchen, provide extra protection in the wet area, maybe a tile insert in the floor around the sink.

This low ceiling has high style. Inspired by the toile de Jouy fabrics, this headboard is simply painted on the wall. This technique capitalizes on the low ceiling, making the room feel larger.

Backyard greenhouse offers cure to wintertime blues

By Jeff Rugg
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

It is cold and gray outside, and because there is no snow the landscape it looks rather drab. Yet I want to be around fresh-smelling plants and walk among green trees.

I have dreamed of owning a greenhouse for a long time. I want to smell flowers and eat fresh fruits and vegetables. But most of all I want my own dwarf navel orange tree loaded with full-sized fruits.

Come to think of it, I also want a dwarf banana, a kiwi vine, orchids and lots of flowers. It might be easier to move to a warmer climate, and someday I might. But for now I am stuck in a cold climate without a greenhouse.

Originally, greenhouses were called hothouses because people thought tropical plants needed to be kept hot. Now we know that most plants are comfortable at room temperature or cooler. The original greenhouses were heated with coal- and wood-burning stoves, but we can

BACKYARD GREENHOUSES

- There are greenhouses made for just about every budget. Kits are available for do-it-yourselfers. Check out Hall's at www.hallsgreenhouses.com.
- Among the more popular plants that can be grown in greenhouses are dwarf citrus trees, dwarf bananas, kiwis, orchids and tomatoes.
- Greenhouses can be freestanding or of a lean-to style that attaches to a house or garage. The frames can be made from wood, steel or aluminum. The "glass" can be horticultural glass, tempered glass or various plastics and polycarbonates, which are stronger than glass, but may yellow with age.

use solar energy and supplement it with natural gas or propane if needed.

I tell my wife a greenhouse is not an impractical dream. It is a source of fresh coffee beans for her morning coffee and fresh tomatoes and other vegetables. The tomatoes and vegetables could grow year-round, but would probably just grow a few months earlier and later than those in an outdoor vegetable garden.

I also tell her, depending on where we put the greenhouse, it could be a sun-room providing warmth in the winter, or it could extend our use of the patio next to the pond. We have been considering a gazebo, but a hexagonal greenhouse would be a lot more fun.

Greenhouses can be free-standing or lean-tos that attach to the house or garage. They can be constructed of rot-resistant wood, steel or aluminum. The glazing, as it is called, can be made from horticultural glass, tempered glass or from a variety of plastics and polycarbonates.

The polycarbonates are stronger than glass but more expensive, admit less light and yellow with age. Amazingly, greenhouses rarely have problems with the breaking glass. Some models have curved windows at the eaves that look really nice but might be hard to replace.

In building either a free-standing or lean-to greenhouse, you will need a sturdy base. Each manufacturer has recommendations that must be followed closely to build a proper base, because a good base makes the greenhouse more stable. This is also the time to put in a good drainage system. Some greenhouses also have a step to get over when going in, so a ramp may be necessary.

Next, I want wide doors. I have seen kits with such narrow doors that carrying a large flower pot through them would be difficult. Doors help in ventilating the greenhouse, but rooftop vents, side windows and fans are also important. Some vents can be computer controlled. An evaporative water cooler can be included in warm climates.

I want the sidewalls and roof cross-braces to be tall enough that I won't have to duck when I walk inside. Speaking of cross-braces, I'm not fond of the shiny silver appearance of aluminum frames. But www.hallsgreenhouses.com offers a green covering for them that blends in better visually. And it is possible to get powder-coated aluminum in other colors.

Before constructing a free-standing greenhouse, there are many things to consider, such as how difficult it will be to reach it in the winter if you must shovel a path through snow.

In the summer your greenhouse will need shade. Are there trees available? If so, will they present a hazard by dropping leaves and branches on the greenhouse? You will want to provide for electricity and water while you are building the base.

If the greenhouse is to be attached to the house, how will you access it? Where will the water and electricity come from, and can you connect to any existing drain lines?
