

Community's 911 service set for cell upgrade

By Pauline Campos
STAFF WRITER

Township board officials recently unanimously approved the purchase of the Life Line Enhanced phone upgrade in an effort to more effectively receive 911-emergency cellular calls. Officials say installation is scheduled for October.

The $24,000 system will enable the police department to locate the position of the caller as well as determine the caller's name and phone number. Currently, caller ID is only available for emergency calls made from land-based phones.

Emergency cellular calls were previously bounced from cell phone towers to the nearest state police station. From there, the call was routed to the appropriate police station.

"It's really simple," Police Chief John Werth of the new system. "It's just an upgrade with technology that will help us be more efficient."

The township department has successfully been receiving 911 cellular phone calls through cellular service providers AT&T and Cingular, but Werth said that the problem lies with the existing equipment. It will be a few more years before the township is able to receive emergency cellular calls from other companies as well, he said.

"We were not able to get the phone number of the caller. With the old system we had no idea where they were at or what their phone number was," he said. "With the new system we will be able to locate them as well as reconnect with them if communication is lost."

Werth said that dispatchers will be able to more effectively serve the community and save valuable time in emergency situations by no longer having to ask for contact information and location when receiving cellular emergency calls.

The dispatchers will be able to get emergency services to the people calling that much faster," Werth said.

Welcome back, teachers — now, shop!

By Jennifer Norris
STAFF WRITER

Instead of the traditional apple, Northville teachers returning to work Monday had a special gift bag in hand, filled with coupons, samples and flyers from local Northville merchants.

"Every year, Northville has workshop days for teachers," said assistant superintendent Linda Pallas. "We were looking for special ways to welcome them back to school. At the same time, I have a strong belief that the school should support the community and the community should support the schools. And in Northville that happens. It happens in many ways."

The project surfaced through the efforts of Jan Purtell, Education Partnership Facilitator for Northville Public Schools and Julie Fraser, president of the Northville Central Business Association.

Pallas said the gift bags demonstrate a strong alliance between two major entities of Northville.

"I'm thinking it's a real celebration of a long-standing partnership between the schools and the business community," said Pallas. "I thought that if business members wanted to offer welcome back coupons to the teachers, it would send a strong supportive message, and at the same time, would encourage our teachers to continue to support local businesses."

Fraser said such a project benefits local merchants and the school district's teaching staff.

"It's a great opportunity for our businesses to put their information in front of more than 400 teachers in the Northville Public Schools," said Fraser. "It's a way for Northville Public Schools to say thank you to their teachers and it's also a way for us as merchants in the community to say thank you. It gives them a nice variety of what's available to them in downtown Northville."

Gifts were provided for teachers from such businesses as Anne's Crafts, Community Federal Credit Union, Fifth Third Bank, Fraser Inn Bed and Breakfast, Justin York Salon, Long Plumbing Company, Long's Fancy Bath Boutique, Main St. Family Chiropractic Center, Margo's of Northville, Michelle's Hearth, Mother's Club of Northville, The North Central Business Association, Pamplamousse, Pearlaphernalia, Inc., Pendleton Shop, Salutations, Sparr's, Tiffany Art Glass, and Van Dam's.

Fraser also said the district's teachers have the ability to influence many young individuals through their daily responsibilities of instruction.

"They're really impacting our future generations," she said. "We want them to know, as merchants in the community, we appreciate their work. In turn, the children will continue to make the community the special place that it is. We'll continue to look for ways to recognize the efforts of our school district."

Dance company students bring home honors

By Jennifer Norris
STAFF WRITER

The Piazza Dance Company of Northville brought home the glory and hardware as the result of a recent national dance competition in Chicago.

"The students did very well," said Gina Piazza, a co-owner of the Piazza Dance Company. "About 35 students participated in national competition in Chicago."

Piazza said the result of the competition is a tribute to a strong sense of perseverance and personal dedication.

"It's just wonderful for us because we've been working with these kids for years," said Piazza. "They start with us when they're really little as young children anywhere from age 3 to age 8. They've stayed with us for years. They've developed their dance technique and all the other skills they need to become a competitive dancer."

"That's many years of training, hard work practice and rehearsal. It's really a big commitment. These are the kids that have put aside school sports and other activities and have decided to concentrate on dance as their main activity."

Piazza said the dance company is preparing to open its 22nd season and is located in the Northville Plaza at 42333 Seven Mile Road.

But students aren't the only individuals who revel in the spotlight of accomplishment.

"We have a staff of 11 teachers," said Piazza. "Everybody's involved in the success of these students. It's very gratifying for us to see the kids progress to this level. It's a great source of pride for all the teachers at our school."

The two sisters, joined by a teacher, Tania Garrant, went to the Chicago competition, where the students were awarded various cash prizes, trophies and medal standings.

"We've been in Northville for 22 years," said Piazza. "Of the 325 students, we have about 35 or so students that are involved in competitive dance. They compete against students from dance studios all over the state of Michigan. We did really well at the Footloose Regional competition in Livonia."

Participating students included Kalliana Basoukas, Briana Bock, Shannon Busse, Amber Cicala, Nicole Cicala, Christina Curran, Stephanie Curran, Brienne Duzniewski, Angelina Grima, Victoria Haber, Kristen Hansen, Kristen Haugen, Maria Haugen, Alison Hedke, Stephanie Jausi, Beth Ann Knisely, Caitlyn Knisely, Kirsten Knisely, Laine Kostegian, Marielle Kulling, Sara Laidlaw, Kaitlyn MacDonald, Michael MacDonald, Marybeth Miles, Gwynn Newton, Stephanie Oatten, Caroline O'Brien, Marianne O'Brien, Jordan Ozimek, Megan Ozimek, Nicole Premo, Chelsie Preston, Brynn Rosbury, Leslie Roumayah, Molly Ryan, Jenna Scott, Chelsea Vick, Michelle West, Deanna Whelan, Te'Aris Wimberly, Melaina Yono, Mishlene Yono and Kaitlin Zolna.

The Piazza Dance Company offers over 90 different classes for the fall program, which begins Sept. 9. The available subjects include Tap, Jazz, Russian-Method Ballet and Pointe, Hip-Hop, Turn-Jump-&Stretch, Polynesian and Irish Step.

DRAWING: The drawing for the Children's Log Cabin will take place this Saturday, August 24 at 1:00 p.m. at Gardenviews. Tickets are still available at Gardenviews for $5 per or 3 for $10. Proceeds will go to the Northville Community Foundation's Healthy Youth and Seniors Endowment. The Northville Community Foundation has donated grants to various organizations over the past year including the Northville High School SADD Program, Northville Arts Commission, and the Senior Citizens Prescription Drug Program. For additional information call the Northville Community Foundation at (248) 374-0200.

VETO OVERRIDE: The Michigan Legislature recently voted in unprecedented numbers to override Governor Engler's veto of $845 million in state shared revenue for local governments. The override vote followed a Capitol rally attended by over 4,000 local government officials from across Michigan. The official votes are posted at www.mml.org.

NEW HELMETS: City council approved the purchase of 32 Cairns 1010 Model F-5 (fire) helmets from Apollo Fire Equipment Company for approximately $9,000 at their August 10 meeting. The purchase falls within the budgeted amount.

ONE-TON TRUCK: The purchase of a new one-ton dump truck was approved by city council on August 19. The city received four bids, which were specified to include four-wheel drive and a snow-plow attachment. Alternate bids were accepted that included a heavy duty snow plow attachment that is better suited to plow the city's streets. The truck will be purchased from Blackwell Ford of Plymouth in the amount of $36,000.

SEPT. 11 ANNIVERSARY: The United States Senate has designated September 11 through the 17 as National Civic Participation week in response to the tragedy that struck last year. The week's themes are: Volunteer, contribute, communicate, and vote. Madonna University will be sponsoring a Metro-Detroit Civic Fair on September 11, 2002 from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. A resolution of support was requested from each municipality to be displayed at the fair. City council approved the proclamation declaring the week of September 11 through the 17 as Northville Civic Participation Week.

PARKS AND REC:

Northville Parks and Recreation will be presenting its one year anniversary celebration Friday, September 6 from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Recreation Center at Hillside. The celebration includes free swimming, skateboarding and roller-blading, putt golf, badminton and ping pong, entertainment, refreshments, and give-aways. Hillside is located at 704 W. Baseline Road.

FUN RUN: The third annual one-mile Fun Run is scheduled for Saturday, August 24 at 10 a.m. The event will be held at Maybury State Park rain or shine. The $10 tax-deductible entry fee includes T-shirts, treats, ribbons, and drawings at the finish line. Proceeds from the event will benefit the University of Michigan Trauma Burn Center and Northville Youth Assistance.

Entry flyers are available at the Northville Public Library, Running Fit, The Northville Parks and Recreation Department, and the township Fire Department. Checks can be made payable to I.A.F.F. Local No. 3961 (Northville Township Fire Fighters Union) and mailed to Chris Ponder at 961 McDonald Drive, Northville Michigan 48167. Anyone interested in sponsoring or participating can contact Chris Ponder at (248) 348-4238.

Need to borrow a tool? Maybe look to library

By Jennifer Norris
STAFF WRITER

Need a hammer? If Dave Duffield has his way, residents will be able to borrow tools at their local library.

Duffield, a Northville Township resident, is hoping the Northville District Library will approve a proposal to add a section that will allow patrons to rent tools along with their favorite books.

Although one doesn't usually think of finding tools to borrow at a library, Duffield said such programs exist at other Detroit area libraries, such as the Grosse Pointe Public Library.

"I grew up there," he said. "Very few libraries have such a system, but they're one of them. You can go there and check out a tool just like you would a book."

"I was trying to convince the library board to do the same thing here."

Duffield said this was not the first time that he has voiced his suggestion to the local library. In 1998, he submitted an on-line suggestion to the library, but it was turned down.

Although his previous request for a tool lending program was denied, Duffield hasn't given up hope.

"I'm kind of tenacious," he said. "I feel something like this would be a natural for Northville because there are a lot of community minded people here."

In an attempt to implement a program similar to the one in Grosse Pointe, Duffield has recently approached the Northville Rotary organization seeking its assistance.

"The Grosse Pointe Rotary was the one that started the program at the Grosse Pointe library," he said, adding that that service has been in place for many years.

Duffield said that Grosse Pointe's success with the tool lending checkout program was an indication that such a project could be effective in Northville, too.

Duffield, a mechanical engineer at the Robert Bosch Corporation in Farmington Hills, said such a tool lending program at the library would be beneficial for the elderly, apartment dwellers or those who don't use tools on a regular basis.

"I envision [this] as being an asset to the community for those who don't want to amass a big collection of tools themselves," he said. "While the library offers the community many different wonderful services, this might be a new additional one that the community would really appreciate."

Duffield said if such a program was adopted, new or used tools in good working condition could be donated by area residents.

Duffield said he will be contacting the Northville Rotary again.

"I'll have to get back with them," he said. "Once I get their input, I will re-approach the library in person in a meeting."

However, he said if the Rotary was not interested in backing such a project, he may help his neighbor try to institute a similar program at a Plymouth Library.

"I'm just trying to spread the joy, so to speak," he said. "The community comes first. There are people that can't afford tools, nor have any reason to buy them. The lending program would give them an option."

Second Mondays mean new quilts

By Jennifer Norris
STAFF WRITER

The efforts of a local quilting group is making the world a little brighter for the children of mothers housed at Haven, a women's shelter in Pontiac.

The Second Monday Quilt Group, a nine-member organization consisting of residents from Northville, Novi and Plymouth, has gathered together to create and donate unique pillows for the Haven residents.

Brenda Benn, a Novi resident and long-time quilting member, said the group was started in Novi nearly 20 years ago by Pam Wozniak.

Benn said the pillow project for Haven is one way the quilting group has been involved in community work.

"We've done a couple of service projects," she said. "One of them was the group made a quilt for the Festival of Trees in Detroit, that they have at Cobo Hall. We just started doing the pillows for Haven."

Benn said the project resulted after one of the quilting group members spoke with a Haven official.

"One of our members, Nancy, came in contact with someone from Haven," said Benn. "The woman said they had a need for pillows for children, particularly for older children age 10 and older. They needed some kind of comfort item. They found that was something appreciated by boys and girls of all ages, and something they could keep."

Benn said 17 pillows have been made so far for residents at the shelter.

And their work is not done yet.

"We hope to do more," she said.

In addition, Benn said that the experience of forming each pillow as a team was a rewarding task.

"It was incredible," she said

"We all felt so good. We enjoyed making each pillow. We had fun being together, but it was heartwarming to know that perhaps the pillow we were working on would bring comfort to a child going through a very difficult time."

Benn said machines were used to help craft the pillows and required a couple of hours of work apiece to complete.

Benn said the Second Monday Quilt Group is a social group that meets monthly in the homes of its members. The group is also welcoming new members.

"We always discuss families and jobs," she said. "Most of us are teachers. We are meeting again in October. At the meetings, we share quilt patterns that we have seen and books and new ideas on how to stitch things quickly and share interesting ideas that other people have learned about. We always manage to talk about children and families and jobs."

"We've all become very good friends through stitching. Through our love of quilting, I guess I should say."

According to group members, the organization primarily promotes hand stitching of quilts, but uses sewing machines as well for other projects, like the Haven pillows.

"When we do our quilt blocks, we do them by hand," said Benn. "I had never quilted before I joined this group. I joined this group and I learned how to piece things together. As long as you can thread a needle and stitch a straight line, it's not that hard. We are more than willing to give helpful hints and many lessons. The group is wonderful because it's very resourceful. It's a wonderful hobby."

Benn said the fruits of their handiwork can not only provide comfort to needy recipients, but can last for generations.

"It's a neat thing to give to your family," she said. "They're fun to make and they're so beautiful."

Back To School Safety Tips

As educators, we recognize that each of us has an important role to play in keeping our schools and community safe.

As the new school year begins, we want to take this opportunity to remind you and your children of some important school safety tips.

Learn today...
Lead tomorrow.

School Bus Safety

- Follow the instructions of the bus driver.
- Enter the bus in an orderly manner.
- Keep all body parts inside the bus.
- Wait for the bus in a safe area—away from the road.
- Remain in your seat while the bus is moving.

Walking Safety Tips

- Walk on the sidewalk, not in the street.
- Cooperate with crossing guards and the safety patrol.
- Cross busy streets at a light or a designated crossing area.
- Do not cross until cars have actually stopped.

Bully Proof Your Child

- Talk to your child about bullying so your child can identify what it is.
- Empower your child to tell a bully to stop.
- Encourage your child to tell a trusted adult.
- Encourage your child to develop other friendships.

School/Classroom Safety Rules

- This fall all elementary and secondary schools have student handbooks delineating basic school rules—make certain you and your child read and discuss these rules together.
- Individual teachers have rules to promote a safe and caring learning environment in their classroom—be sure your child understands these rules.

City businesses pass youth alcohol sting

Dave Stewart, of the Northville Gourmet, and other local merchants were recently praised by police for their checking IDs of potential under-age alcohol purchasers.

Rogowski said that every establishment asked for identification from the decoys and added that a few even took the fake ID's away once they were provided.

"I think it says a lot for the business owners and the police station," said Rogowski. "Citations have dropped over they years and I think it's a good sign. It's working and that's always good to see."

Dave Stewart, owner of the Northville Gourmet Shoppe-Cicero's Pizza agrees. His is one of the businesses whose employees complied with the law. Stewart said that his employees are provided with extensive training and are asked to secure proper identification for the purchase of any alcohol or tobacco related product.

"The training has obviously paid off," he said.

Stewart believes that local businesses must continue to work to meet the high standards of the community.

"I live in the community and my kids go the schools and I expect all of the businesses in the community to comply with the law when it comes to tobacco and alcohol enforcement," he said.

Sept. 11: The day we will remember

Difficult though it may be to believe, Sept. 11, 2002 is less than a month away. On that day — at around 8:30 a.m. — Americans everywhere will no doubt pause, reflect and remember the terrible events in our nation's history which occurred one year earlier.

In Northville, most of us woke to a bright, sunny and

People are more guarded in their behaviors. Lines at security checkpoints grow longer. Trustworthiness seems to have gone out the window.

So much is still the same, and yet so much is different.

On Sept. 12, we'll be running a lot of stories about how Northville has changed as a result of the 9/11 terror-unseasonably warm late summer day. Life, it appeared, was rather normal and routine. By the end of the day, however, the world which we had known had vanished, replaced by a landscape of disbelief, horror, and anguish. We sat fixated in front of our televisions or glued to our radios, unable to come to terms with what had occurred. We flocked to our churches, lined up in front of blood banks, and took part in a massive mobilization effort to help those directly affected by cowardly acts of terror.

AMERICA RESPONDS

Certainly, in the 11-plus months since the attacks on the Pentagon and World Trade Center, America has changed, as we all expected it would. On the positive side of things, the site upon which the Trade Center once stood has been cleared and plans are well underway to redevelop the site. The Pentagon is being reconstructed. The initial effort to remove the Taliban and al-Qaida from power appears to be working. On the downside, an economy that was already bleeding has been hemorrhaging since Sept. 11.

Darkest Day. But we certainly don't have all the ideas. We'd like to hear from you — the readers.

Where were you when you'd learned planes had hit the Trade Center?

Do you have any family members directly involved in the rescue efforts? Maybe you lost a loved one in the attack?

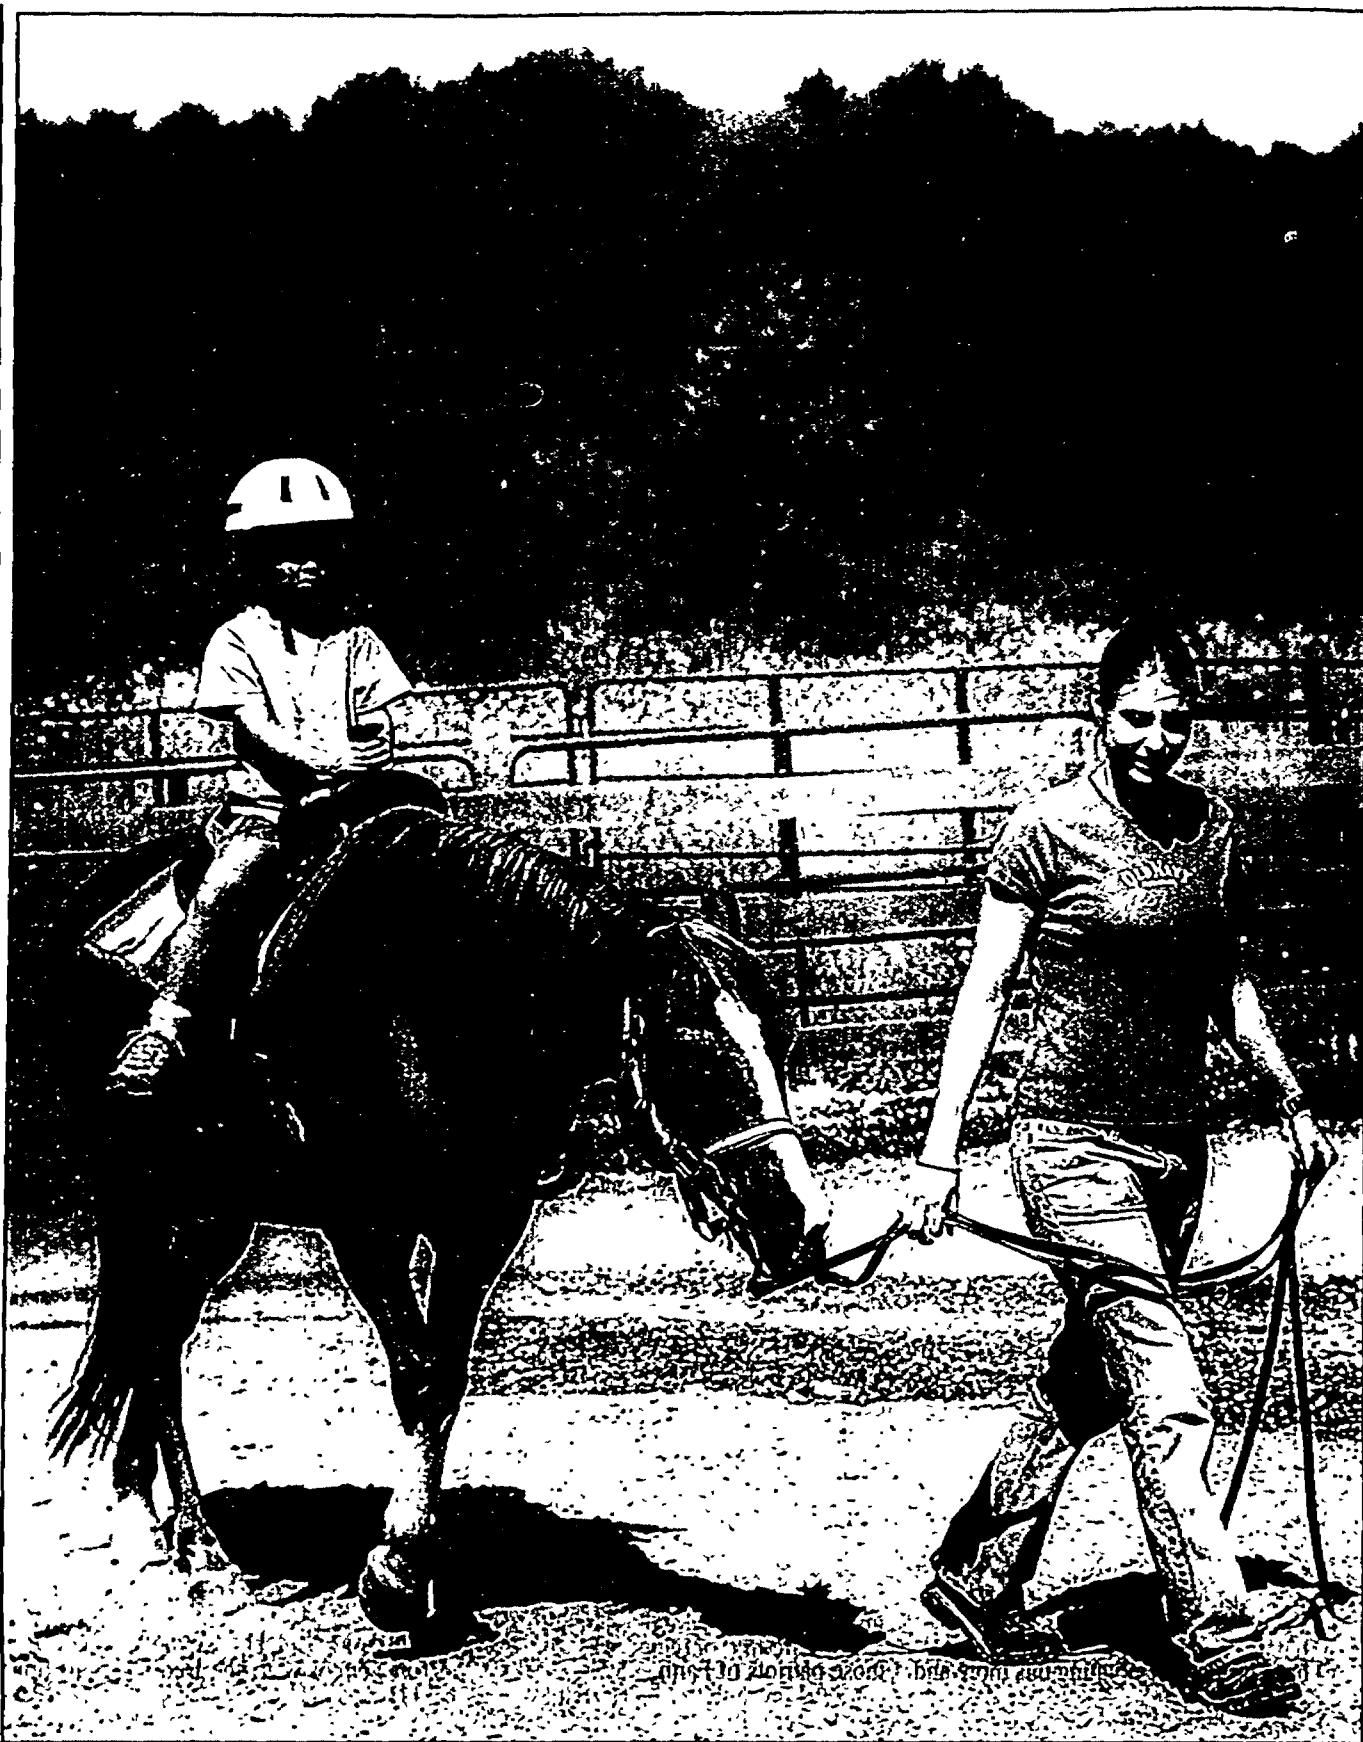

What good or evil did you witness in the days following the attacks?

Has your life really been changed as a result of Sept. 11, 2001? If so, how?

Everyone has thoughts. Everyone has feelings. Everyone will be pausing three weeks from now, if only for a moment.

Let us hear what's on your mind. Sharing, they say, helps heal the wounds.

The Record can be reached at 104 W. Main Street, Northville, Mich. 48167, by fax at (248) 349-9832, or at www.northvillerecord.com.

LETTERS

Tree ordinance still needs serious upgrade

Attached is a letter written last year and published in the Northville Record. Once again, I write on the deforesting of Northville, and its pathetically weak (ineffective and useless) tree ordinance. If you reread the last paragraph of the published letter, you can see that it was prophetic: the area between Dubuare and Caldwell streets has now been "clear-cut," adding to the adjacent six acres previously cut. This huge, almost naked area, is ugly compared to the area that once existed. I would predict that the removal of all these trees will make way for more environmental problems.

Again and sadly, it is too late to save this area, but I suggest — no, implore — the council to rewrite the existing tree ordinance. Rewrite the ordinance to include:

- Protection of existing mature trees (are there any more building sites left in the city that contain mature trees?)
- Replacement of cut trees with trees of a reasonable size — not stick size — on the same land from which trees were removed. Perhaps these suggestions will force the ordinance to do what it was intended to do.

Judy Rizzo
Northville

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ms. Rizzo drafted this letter to the attention of Northville city council, in addition to the Record. A copy of her 2001 letter, "Tree ordinance is exceedingly weak," was attached.

Nice of Clinton to show his patriotism...now

Clinton may charge $100,000 for an hour's "work," and all the deep pockets and shallow mentalities get is hot air, the big lie, or a few more "is is" incantations. What happened last week seems to contradict the truth knowing Clinton loathed the military, made sure the military ranks were downsized and their preparation for battle diminished during his "watch," and in eight years couldn't master the simple hand salute.

Last week Clinton promised he would get his musket, find the trench, and fight and die for the Israeli cause if attacked by the Iraqis or the cousins and other kin of Osama bin Laden. This exhortation from the man who was so devious in avoiding service to his Country during the Vietnam War should convince nobody. His lies and deviousness were discovered and proved. But now Clinton says he would fight for the Israeli homeland.

It is too soon after Paula, Monica, abuse of the Armed Forces, and a series of footsie sequences with China's emissaries, ambassadors, exchange students, and spies and deceivers to suggest that even the chadists could accept his pretense of possible valor.

Sink or swim, but it goes by quickly

As I conclude one of the shortest internships ever, it's time to reflect on what I've learned over the past three weeks.

since Day One. After that first day, I had six stories assigned to me, and I went home somewhat overwhelmed. But I think I've doggy-paddled my way through the internship and come out a stronger swimmer. As I leave Northville for college again, I just hope I can make it in the Ocean.

That nice collection of aquatic metaphors behind us, I've been using my free time to prepare for college. Over the past week, I've actually considered dropping out just to avoid cleaning, packing and carrying heavy boxes. However, common sense and a cold stare from my parents quickly changed my mind.

I'll be moving into a house this year, a pleasant change from dorm life. It's not very big, but being the serious academic scholars we are, my roommate and I only need enough space to study and sleep. You may remember a few weeks ago when I mentioned having trouble with women...now I'm moving in with one. Don't worry, I don't move that fast. She's not really a girl, she's just a friend. Of course, after hearing that I've said she's not a girl, she may reconsider the friend part.

It'll be good to go back to college life and have some time to relax. For the first time in my life, Summer was less of a vacation and more of a taste of the real world. A full time job replaced full time fun, and it's tough to stay out late with friends when you have to wake up at 7 a.m. for work.

If the real world is anything like this internship, however, I'm definitely looking forward to it. After somewhat boring months of June and July, August at the Record has given me plenty of material for the inevitable "What I did on my summer vacation" essay.

I've covered a story about hazardous chemicals and a possible explosion and met a former auto executive who retired to write novels. I've talked with artists and educators, parents and students. I even had the once-in-a-lifetime chance to fly in a World War Two B-17 Bomber.

Learning grammar and technique in a classroom is important, and I'd never argue that. But the real life experience I've gained has convinced me I want to be a journalist more than any teacher ever could.

Chris told me that journalists don't know a lot about anything, but they know a little about everything. My dad always tells me that I think I know everything, and my friends all know I'm pretty nosy, so I think this journalism thing may be good for something other than getting girls...it may just turn out to be a career.

Dan Ferrara is a special writer for the Northville Record. He can be reached through Aug. 23 at (248) 349-1700.

Veto override was a fair trade

Both nominees for governor — Lt. Gov. Dick Posthumus for the GOP and Atty. Gen. Jennifer Granholm for the Dems — would be well advised to watch a master at work last week.

Gov. John Engler began by vetoing $845 million in revenue sharing money appropriated for police and fire protection, garbage pickup and other services in local

Phil Power

Predictably, all hell broke loose. Local government folks screamed they had constructed their budgets based on the assumption of revenue sharing bucks from the state. A big rally was held on the Capitol grounds, replete with fire-eating speeches from local officials delivered to an audience of fire fighters and police. Republicans, already grumpy at having passed a cigarette tax as part of a budget compromise that preserved revenue sharing money, charged the Governor had welshed on their deal. Democrats merely said the veto proved Engler didn't care about ordinary people in their own hometowns.

When the vote to override the veto came, the results were fairly dramatic:

Only one vote each in Senate and House — out of 143 votes cast — to sustain the Governor. Grinning, Democrats dubbed Engler, who has a little more than four months left in his term, a lame duck. Frowning, Republicans said that the legislature, having overturned the first gubernatorial veto since Bill Milliken's day, would find it easier the next time.

But was it really that big a defeat for Engler? It ain't necessarily so. By provoking a firestorm over his veto, he actually woke up a dozing press corps to focus attention on the three November ballot proposals he says could destroy a state budget already held together with chewing gum. If passed, they would:

- Earmark for health care most of Michigan's share of the tobacco settlement money. Backed by the hospital and health care lobby, the measure, if passed, would grab money now being spent on college scholarships for high school graduates and on the high tech Life Sciences Corridor program.

- Eliminate mandatory minimum prison sentences for some drug dealers and require the state to spend $18 million annually for rehabilitation programs for offenders. While this probably would save money long term — warehousing felons costs around $35,000 per year per inmate, certainly more than rehab programs — it risks looking like it encourages softness on drug peddlers.

- Require collective bargaining and binding arbitration for state employees. Not surprisingly, the measure is the creature of the public employee unions. State budget officials say it would cost $500 million over the next three years.

Engler didn't sound too upset at the veto override: "While I am disappointed in today's legislative decision to override my veto, I am pleased that opposition to the three budget-busting ballot proposals continues to grow. ... If the ballot proposals pass, revenue sharing is absolutely up for revisiting."

In other words, Engler was perfectly prepared to trade a little lost prestige in the short run for vastly increased attention to the ballot proposals in November.

Engler was perfectly prepared to trade a little lost prestige in the short run for vastly increased attention to the ballot proposals in November.

That's not a bad trade. And it's perfectly consistent with Engler's political m.o. He's always been quite content to reach through the tactical huffing and puffing to achieve his ultimate strategic purposes. It's one of the reasons he's been an effective governor.

And it's something both Posthumus and Granholm will need to learn if they're doing to be anywhere near as effective as Engler has been.

U.S. will benefit from actions over words

What does it mean to be a United States' patriot, not only in these difficult times of post 9/11 national confusion and search for unity but an ordinary, everyday, run-of-the-mill patriot?

That is a complex question, my friends. I have been contemplating this more and more as we approach with solemnity the one-year mark of what one newspaper called "America's darkest hour".

The days and weeks following the attacks on the U.S. were filled with grief, confusion, anger and terror, but those feelings ultimately gave way in the following months to what I found to be a silent, strong determination of the people to support their country in a new, more demonstratively resolute way.

We weren't, in essence, going to let the bastards get us down.

It seems that if we couldn't prove it immediately by our actions, we were going to show them our patriotism with signs, posters, bumper stickers, and flags, which is good in the short-term, but not ultimately, for our ailing country.

The ubiquitous slogans "United We Stand, God Bless the USA" became practically more visible than the American Flag — printed on T-shirts, bumperstickers, baby bottles, banners and such. The simplistic Lee Greenwood ballad "God Bless the USA" was re-surrected from the heap of post Gulf War celebrations and was given free-reign on the airwaves, its main appeal, in my opinion, was for mainly those patriots of Faith.

Michigan author Jim Harrison noted a plethora of "In God We Trust" on Motel signs as he headed back home from a trip to Montana shortly after Sept. 11. His choice would be for those motels to display "We pray this never happens again." I concur.

I guess I would suggest that ultimately there are people of action and those of words.

Our country, more than ever, needs the former and not the latter.

People, get involved! This thing called patriotism is not a spectator sport and cannot ultimately be conveyed from the back of your car's bumper; we will all benefit as citizens if people get involved in their communities and government.

A former Record reporter, Randy Coble, used to foam at the mouth in his columns in the weeks preceding any municipal, state or national election. Vote! He urged the masses. Be a part of the governmental process instead of subject of it.

How would Mr. Coble react to the recent record-setting, yet still-abysmal turnout of 23 percent of registered voters for Michigan's August primary? I used to work near the man and can only imagine the thundering expletives that would rock our office had he seen such pathetic participation in the electoral process.

Now some may be turned off by the 2000 "election" and the distasteful mess that the state of Florida and the U.S. Supreme Court left us with, but even in my Democrat eyes, that's no reason to give up on the process.

If you want to support your country then do it: Register to vote (then vote!), write your congressman (and run for congress or at least your local city council), rip those silly jingoistic bumperstickers off your car on your way to the Red Cross to donate blood, sell your

"These Colors Don't Run" T-shirt and give the proceeds to the local food bank, join the military or service corps and then volunteer to do something in your community.

You may view the support of one's country, patriotism, as a large, well-attended Fourth of July parade: You are free to stand on the sidelines and wave a flag and watch the parade go by filled with the people and things you say you support, or you can step in the line and march along.

People, get involved! This thing called patriotism is not a spectator sport and cannot ultimately be conveyed from the back of your car's bumper.

GUEST COLUMN

All they want is a little R-E-S-P-E-C-T

There is an assumption that goes with the commonly held interpretation of that precept that the child will honor or respect the parent.

Paul Melrose

There are times and places when that sentence may be appropriate to the problem at hand. But so often the edict which comes down from the parent to a child comes as an isolated command which has no context, no set of relationships out of which either the parent of the child can make sense of it. Our children grow and mature and develop intellect, talent, skill and their own unique personality. Children grow and mature with a developing opinion and view of the world. Their experience of what is at hand will be different from their parents' experience simply because they are a different person. No two persons have the exact same view or experience.

Respect and love come to the parent, and to the child, where love and respect exist in that relationship reciprocally. The sense of love and respect may be expressed differently but it comes about because the child is convinced of the parent's love for him/her. The parents will behave in a way that while loving the child may not always agree with the child or the child's point of view. This last sentence brings us to our second concern.

Honoring each other bears in mind that the parent-child relationship is one that in some ways is unequal. Parents are older; they have more developed brains and intellect. As adults they have more expressions of emotion. They have more experience. While adults never stop growing and developing children are actively doing this all the time. They are learning about how to think.

They are learning how to feel okay about points of view which may be different from parents, teachers. They are learning how to express emotions. They have limited life experience because of the fewer number of years that they have been alive. Parents do themselves and their children an injustice, a hardship, when they expect their children to behave like adults. Often children are expected to behave or think in ways that are really adult ways. The parent has erroneously assumed that one word from them and the child will do what they say.

Conversations, thoughts, discipline, must be age appropriate.

The parent who shapes his/her interventions to the age and experience of the child already is showing that he/she is taking the time necessary to understand the child, and having the care and love to respect the child's abilities and not yet learned skills. When a parent shows a child these things he is not only honoring the child but also teaching the child how to honor the parent.

Brateman Properties a real estate firm for all seasons

BRATEMAN PROPERTIES

Jonathan Brateman Properties, Inc., is located at 40015 Grand River Ave., Suite 105, Novi. Contact Brateman at (248) 477-5000 or visit www.bratemanproperties.com where additional information regarding available properties, frequently asked questions and more is accessible.

By Linda Neff
SPECIAL WRITER

Jonathan Brateman describes himself as a "man for all seasons." His mix of creativity and attention to detail suits him well for the varied day and personality style required for his occupation.

Brateman owns Jonathan Brateman Properties, Inc., offering commercial, retail and industrial real estate services. He created Jonathan Brateman Properties in 1989 after working in commercial real estate for five years.

He grew up in Fort Wayne, Ind., and his small-town roots are reflected in his style. For Brateman, to represent something means giving his all; his word is his bond.

"I'm proud of the work I do," he said. "I have seen clients I've worked with become established in business and provide for their families. I've saved people money over the years by subleasing spaces they no longer needed or selling properties for them that enabled them to invest in other properties."

Brateman has successfully brought seller and buyer, landlord and tenant together over 350 times.

"For me, everyday is a new day. Every real estate transaction is unique as each person is an individual. The bringing together of all parties has a special dimension unlike any other," he said. "My job is to listen, bring people together, recognize the totality and facilitate a successful conclusion."

For Brateman, no two hours in the day are alike. In the morning he could be working with a lawyer, accountant or doctor who is looking for professional office space, by midday he may be with an individual company in need of showroom or warehouse space. Afternoons may find him working with a retailer for the perfect location for his or her storefront. Early mornings and evenings are often filled by completing paperwork or attending meetings.

Brateman has played an active role in developing the Grand River / Haggerty / 10 Mile Road areas; one for which he is very proud. He helped in leasing retail stores at Pheasant Run Plaza and office space at Brookside Office Park to selling parcels along Karim Boulevard, which led to the creation of the day care center and Grand Oaks Center.

His work in that same area also led to the sale of land which resulted in the mini storage facility and leasing at industrial parks along the Grand River corridor. The pinnacle of these efforts, however, was the development of his first project with his brother, Dr. Robert Brateman. Brateman Medical Center was born when circumstances changed for a client of Jonathan Brateman Properties. The client had purchased the 1.14-acre parcel, plans changed and Jonathan and his brother decided to purchase the property for themselves.

"We realized that Novi was where we wanted to continue with our businesses," Jonathan Brateman said. "My brother has created a wonderful family practice and I was enjoying working in Novi. As fewer parcels were available in the location we wanted, we realized we needed to act right away to purchase the land where our building rests today."

Brateman finds the sale of vacant land very rewarding - but at the same time the most challenging. "To be involved in the development where, in the example of a medical building, people can receive good health care where nothing existed before is very satisfying," he said. "For Novi, you are really involved in creating a city."

Brateman has been working in the Novi area since 1985 and believes he has played and will continue to play a role in the development and history of the city he loves.

Education, experience and involvement keep Brateman at the top of his field. He graduated from the University of Michigan's Graduate School of Business Administration with an MBA in 1983 and spends a great deal of time reading, researching and studying to keep abreast of all the issues surrounding his business.

His work in legislative affairs has been varied. He began working on ordinance review in Novi on the Novi Chamber of Commerce in 1994, was later named to the City of Southfield Zoning Board of Affairs, and in 1999 was elected to the Southfield City Council. His involvement with these organizations, as well as the development he created with his brother, has helped him in developing a better understanding of the zoning and planning process.

"Land has its own set of discussions and issues outside the realm of brokerage of existing buildings," he said. "There are municipal and state ordinances for example, such as woodland, wetland, storm water management. There are zoning issues, particularly in Novi which require special expertise in understanding the NCC, OST and the new DG ordinance. A good broker should understand and have an ongoing communication with the planning department and the city's elected officials."

While it may make perfect sense in the mind of the property owner or developer to see a parcel developed in one manner, it is good to have someone there, such as the broker who can explain the reality of the situation. And with a plan that may or may not be embraced by the city he can also explain how the plan could be modified to be more acceptable.

Brateman feels it is very important to develop close ties with the community and has done so through his membership and participation in various organizations including the Novi Chamber of Commerce.

"It's a great Chamber," he said. "The friendships I have made through this great organization have lasted over 13 years and I get to meet new people all the time. Not only are the business leads worthwhile to running my business, but the contacts are exceptional. From sources on printing and Web site development to furniture upholstery and supplies; I have made lots of effective contacts."

Brateman assumes the responsibility as the Chamber's chairman of the board in 2003, promising effective advocacy with city hall, networking for its members, and benefit through community service to the city.

He also intends to continue to challenge himself, to keep reaching. Whether it's hosting a television show on local issues and personalities, "People Who Make Things Happen," or trying to figure out features on his PDA, computer or camcorder; he is not content to remain at the status quo.

He said he would like to attend some classes offered through Walsh College and Lawrence Tech or U of M's Executive Education Program.

"And just for fun, I'd like to learn to play golf someday," he said.

"I try hard everyday to give the best I can to make a difference for my clients and to reflect upon my family whom I love."

No Experience Necessary

Sending out a small business story isn't as easy as it used to be

By Tim Kissman
SBAM DIRECTOR OF PUBLICATIONS

Back in my glorious newspaper days there was seldom a quiet time in the newsroom. That phone rang off the hook from the minute I walked in the door to the time I turned off my computer.

Everybody wanted a story in the paper. Kids called about their good grades, women called about family reunions and men called to find out the scores from the high school games the night before.

It was a busy environment that worked well.

However, that way of getting your story out is changing as fast as it takes to answer a phone. The Internet is becoming a major force for stories and there are news sites creeping up everywhere.

Small business owners that want to get their press releases out on the Internet find out quickly that it's a different game than what they are used to. Phone calls go unanswered and faxed or e-mailed stories just aren't picked up with the fervor of a printed publication. It's a perplexing problem.

While newspapers want a printed story in their hands, the Internet media doesn't want anything to do with your printed story other than making sure it's electronic and can be automatically loaded to their site.

As a general rule they don't have beat reporters, or real journalists for that matter. Instead they have technicians that write software for your electronic submission via news release Web sites to make sure it can be updated on their Web site.

No fuss, no muss. You do all the work and the story gets its own page on the Web site you're targeting. It must be pretty quiet in that newsroom, but the method is working.

It looks like it isn't going away any time soon, either. Here are a few tips to think about if you're planning on submitting a news release that targets the Internet.

Know the forum. Writing a press release is more important than ever. If you don't know how to write a good one, find somebody that does. Internet media don't want to respond to the press release, so include everything. Space is unlimited and they don't want, nor have the time, to edit your story. It's also nice to have interactivity includes, such as URL listings to your Web site or other interactive media. Get it out immediately, too. The Internet is open 24 hours a day and your story is relevant the minute you finish typing it.

Don't press it. Talking about a press conference is like speaking in tongues to online media. The great thing about online media is that it doesn't have to be local to appear that way.

They could be miles away and don't want to cover your conference, but they will take that great written release.

Check the sites. Surf the Internet and take the time to see the different sites you can use to get a story out and how they want it delivered. There are some sites that want it called in, but the majority wants it done through special software.

Fallen police officers benefit from day on the links

By Pauline Campos
STAFF WRITER

Golfers recently scrambled for a good cause when they participated in the second annual "Four Person Scramble" on August 5 at the Northville Hills Golf Course.

The scramble, sponsored by the Police Officers Association and the Command Officers Association, benefits the Northville township police benevolent fund.

139 golfers participated in the scramble, each paying $150 to participate in a four person team. Local businesses also participated.

Proceeds from the outing not only benefited police officers and their families in times of need but have also been slated for Northville High School activities and programs such as SADD, senior class activities, the high school year book project, and the senior all night party. Contributions are also made to Northville Youth Assistance.

Cash prizes are awarded to the top three teams in the scramble each year and this year's winners were more than generous, said Summer. Detroit Red Wings coach Dave Lewis, general manager Ken Holland, assistant coach Joe Kocur and defenseman Darren McCarty won first place honors. They, along with the second and third place winners donated their winnings back to the benevolent fund.

"It was very impressive that the winning teams donated their winnings back to the benevolent fund, specifically for the Jessica Wilson, the fallen officer from Hazel Park," said Summer. "It showed that the golfers really understood the meaning behind hew golf outing. And as police officers ourselves, we really appreciate their support."

Expansion, renovation are top school priorities

"Sometimes we go back and forth a few times," she said. "It's a good process."

According to school officials, the district goals for 2002-2003 are as follows:

Long-term Goals

- Continue to provide an environment of encouragement, support and understanding to enable each child the opportunity to develop his/her potential.
- Incorporate the Graduate Profile/Adult Roles into the curriculum development process.
- Utilize research-based instructional practices, student and graduate data and appropriate comparative data to guide decision-making in the area of curriculum development.
- Maintain the Continuous School Improvement Process. Demonstrate the on-going use of measurable goals and data collection to evidence student achievement.

Annual Goals

- Complete the 2001 bond issue construction projects for Ridge Wood Elementary School and the renovations and additions to Northville High School, Winchester, Amerman, Moraine and the cabling project.
- Monitor all Grading Committee recommendations for K-12 during the 2002-2003 school year and establish a Weighted Grades Subcommittee to review and plan action on the Board of Education charge. Grading Committee will report all results and further recommendations to the board by June 2003.
- Create a committee to review the state accreditation process (Education Yes!), make recommendation regarding adaptations to our District School Improvement process, along with considering possible district involvement in North Central (Report: January 2003)
- Complete the Late Start High School Committee's investigation with an interim report to the board in September 2002 and a recommendation to the board in Spring 2003.
- Implement all schools' safety measures as revised in district's crisis plan and incorporate any new state requirements. Update report to the board by January 2003.

- Create a joint NEA/NASA and the Central Office Committee to review, study and make recommendations regarding teacher evaluation/support process (for probationary teachers and tenured teachers) and the evaluation document. Report to board by June 2003.

Operational Goals

- High school seminar
- Athletic department concerns such as programs/clubs' consideration as a sport.
- Sinking bond funds
- Through one or more retreats, the superintendent and the board shall consider and, if appropriate, redefine the proper role of the board in the district's governance, and agree upon new methods to assist the board in more effectively performing that role.

happy and appreciate what they have."

Nestle said the experience was very humbling.

"There was a woman we worked with both last year and this year who told us that she and her husband were a rich church with thousands and thousands of members who had a little bit of money left over to spend on the Zambians."

The woman had gotten the image from television.

"They think we are all rich. But when she found out that we don't even have our own church yet and had chosen to spend our time and money with and for them, she cried," said Nestle. "I cried too. I was glad she found out because I knew that she understood that we came because we loved them as our brothers and sisters in Christ."

Oak Point Church members will be presenting "Zambia, Africa" on Aug. 25 at the Novi Civic Center. The two hour presentation, scheduled for 6:30 to 8:30, will feature videos and personal stories of events that took place in Zambia.

Building a Legace

Red Wing Manny Legace is making a life in the NHL, Novi

By Sam Eggleston
SPORTS WRITER

Yes, Virginia — dreams can come true.

In a day and age where many young people have to sit back and wonder if setting that far-fetched goal for themselves is even worth the trouble of dreaming one up, a shining example that it is indeed comes skating out onto the ice and takes his place between the posts of the goal. His face is covered with a state-of-the-art goalie mask, but all one has to do is glance at the bright red 34 on the Red Wing jersey to know who it is — Manny Legace.

Life wasn't always one of seven-digit contracts and Stanley Cups for this hockey player. In fact, like many in his sport, Legace, who grew up in Toronto, had to struggle his way through the minors before finally getting to sign his name on a four-year contract that will find him playing in Detroit for years to come.

"It's just comfort and security," said Legace, who lives in Novi, but in the Northville school district. "I have a wife and two kids. Before, we had to battle from paycheck to paycheck in the minors. Now, here I am, and if I am smart with my money I won't have to worry about it for the rest of my life. I got to sign a four-year deal, especially with this club, and it was unbelievable."

And of all places to end up, Detroit seems to be a perfect fit for the 29-year-old goalie — who's full name is Emmanuel Francis Legace II, named after his father.

"The fans here are phenomenal," Legace said. "Can't ask for more out of hockey fans. It's such a thrill just to play for them. They just live and die red. I've never seen anything like it and I have played in a lot of cities. Everywhere you go, everyone knows who you are and wish you the best. This is a special place for hockey players, a very special place."

Legace said he found it hard to believe that the Red Wings were even looking at bringing him in to play in Hockeytown.

"I became a free agent and the next morning my agent called me at 9 a.m.," he said. "When he said that Detroit wanted to sign me, I told him that it wasn't very funny. What was he trying to do, kill me? Two days later, I was signed. It was remarkable."

He noted that absorbing into the Detroit hockey family wasn't that difficult at all.

"There are no egos with these guys," Legace said. "With all of that talent, there should be egos flying around the dressing room, but everyone gets along with everyone else."

Legace said that with other programs and other teams, there may be players who dislike each other so much, they won't even speak to one another off the ice. But with the Red Wings, disagreements and problems between players are solved different than most.

"You might get mad at a guy because you are around them everyday for six months," Legace said. "If Darren McCarty hits me in the head, I have to straighten him out. Then, he throws me across the locker room and it's done. That's how things are done in a family, and that's what we are."

When he first came to the Detroit area to play, he and his wife, Karen, along with their two children — Sabrina, who is 7 years old, and Manny III, who turns 4 this month — found themselves renting Chris Chelios' home in West Bloomfield — but it wasn't working out very well.

"I didn't really like the commute," Legace said. "Taking the Lodge Freeway everyday...it was always jammed."

So they began looking for another area to live in.

"We looked in a lot of places, but we were just out of the minors and our budget was kind of low. I found that the houses here are just astronomical," Legace said. "We looked around where all of the other guys lived, but Chris Osgood lived in Northville and told me to look around this side."

Legace did indeed find a comfortable place for himself and his family.

"Novi is a great place," he said. "I just love it. I wouldn't want to live anywhere else. We have great neighbors and if we need anything, we can find it in Novi or Northville."

In most cases, when a professional athlete moves into an area, they are probably going to be visited by curious and well-wishing neighbors — Legace was no different.

"It's funny," he said. "I'm a nobody. We moved in and in the first week people were stopping by and knocking on the door asking if I was there, which I never was."

But that didn't make a difference to Legace and his family. Once they settled in and got to know their neighbors, they were quite happy with the area that they chose to live.

"They are perfect and I couldn't ask for better neighbors," he said.

"There are four families that live in our cul-de-sac, and a bunch of kids. Every Saturday, the kids are out having fun and the adults are drinking a few cocktails. It's great."

Once Legace signed his name on the dotted line for his four-year contract with the Wings, questions started to be asked.

"They were all razzing me," he said. "I signed a new deal and they all said I was probably going to move and be gone. Why would I move? It's a great neighborhood and I have great neighbors. I plan on living in this area as long as I am here."

When the Legaces are home and they have the chance to go out and grab a bite to eat as a family, it might not be uncommon to see the Legace gang sitting down to Chinese food at the China Cafe or having a nice meal at the Lazy Lizard Cantina.

With a new season of hockey getting geared up and ready to go, Legace once again finds himself playing the role of a back-up goalie — this time behind the strong net-guarding abilities of former Toronto Maple Leaf Curtis Joseph, better known by hockey fans as "Cujo."

"I was hoping they were going to go out and get a guy that I could battle with for the starting spot," Legace said. "Maybe a guy that was in the twilight of his career and had already won a Cup. Maybe a guy that was willing to let me try and take over."

Northville High School golfing sensation Kate McDonald watches as her family friend and Red Wings' goalie Manny Legace illustrates a story as the two prepared to tee off at Tanglewood golf course last Friday.

But Legace knows what kind of abilities it takes to start over players like last-year starter Dominik Hasek and this year's Joseph.

"Guys like Dom and Cujo, you just aren't going to be taking their starting job, no matter how well you play," Legace said. "You are not going to play in front of Hasek and only a few could play in front of Cujo. I am just not one of those guys. I understand my role and I have to be prepared to do it. If not, I need to be somewhere else."

Legace is ready to be the back-up goalie for the 2002-2003 season, and he knows what it takes to do it and do it well.

"Being a back-up goalie, you don't play for three weeks and then they throw you in the fire and expect you to play well," he said, noting that having the likes of Brendan Shanahan, Brett Hull and Sergei Fedorov makes that life just a little bit easier. "When you have Shanahan blasting one-timers at you in practice and Hull firing rockets before Sergei comes up and makes moves, it makes it a little easier."

"Those kinds of hands, they're (faking) you left, right and center and end up sticking your cup four rows up. It just makes it a lot easier to jump into a game after a four week lay-off. Hockey is not an easy game at all, but it makes it easier."

And being a professional athlete also has its trying moments. Losing, of course, is one of them, but the thought of being hounded for autographs by fans or being dogged for interviews by reporters could become annoying for some — but not Legace.

"Actually, it's fun," he said. "I enjoy every second of it, to be honest with you. It's a perk. There are days that you are just like 'Leave me alone.' But people want my autograph, so why would I turn them down?"

Of all people who ask for autographs, Legace said that he will never turn down a kid who wanted

one. The reason for which stemmed from an incident when he was a kid himself.

"I was standing in Maple Leaf Garden once and Rick Vaive scored 50 goals that year," Legace said. "Our hockey team was the only team there after practice and all of the guys stopped and signed for our team. Rick Vaive was the last guy out and he ran by us saying he was too busy to sign autographs. I told myself that I would never do that."

There are times that Legace thinks twice about signing away though.

"The people outside of our hotels that are getting autographs are usually just there to get them and sell them," he said. "That's not right, that they are trying to make money off of you. But a kid wanting an autograph? Any day of the week."

And Legace is also aware of his position as a role model. He knows that there are kids out there who look to him as someone they would like to be one day.

"Poor kids," Legace said with a laugh. "It's actually a real honor when kids look up to you and say they want to be like you. Some athletes go around saying they are not a role model, but you are if you like it or not. What you do is in the public eye and kids look up to you and who you are. We are all humans, and we make mistakes like everyone does, but now we have to think about what our mistakes will do. Kids look up to you and think if their role models can do it, they can do it. It's sad that kids are that way, but that's the way the world is."

Legace said that the idea of athletes being role models to kids really struck home once he had kids of his own. He realized that they would one day be looking to the television and looking up to singers, actors or athletes and hoping that they would one day be like them.

"I know my kids won't be looking to me when they get older," Legace said. "They are going to see what happens on TV and see their role models getting arrested. With the way the news is today, something happens and two seconds later it's everywhere. It's tough knowing that I am in the public eye, but athletes and role models have to know what they are doing, because my kids won't be listening to their dad, that's for sure."

For Legace, dreams do come true — just as they can for aspiring athletes and those who set lofty goals. Legace has lived the life that many dream about but few attempt and has become successful in the process.

"It wasn't [a fairy tale] in the beginning, but it is now," Legace said. "Being in the league for technically three years and winning a Cup, who could ask for more? I had my kids there to see it and we were out on the ice after with my parents and my wife celebrating. It's hard to explain. It's just phenomenal."

From the minors to the Stanley Cup — yes, Manny Legace, dreams do come true.

Erica Bivens makes short work of these five patio blocks on her way to a second-degree black belt.

Bivens takes national gold

By Sam Eggleston
SPORTS WRITER

For Northville student athlete Erica Bivens, the idea of busting through five patio slabs with nothing more than her bare hand in order to earn her second-degree black belt is one that comes in her field of study — tae kwon do.

Bivens, who will be a Northville junior this season, recently put her hand through all of those five patio blocks to earn the next notch on her belt before traveling to Nashville, Tennessee to take a gold in the National Tournament.

"I've been doing tae kwon do for about 10 years," Bivens said. "At the National Tournament I took a gold in sparring and a bronze in form."

Bivens described the sparring section of the tournament as a full-contact session for those competitors 15 years old and above. The contestants are paired up and fight in front of judges through kicks to the stomach and head gear as well as punches to the chest. The form section is a representation of sparring without contact or an opponent.

"You also have knock outs where you automatically win," said Bivens, who competes in the fly-weight division with her 91-pound frame.

Though a trained expert in the sport of taw kwon do, Bivens finds time to put her flexibility and endurance to good use as a varsity member of the Northville Mustang pom pom team as well.

"They are both really fun to participate in," she said. "I think pom helps me in tae kwon do with my flexibility and endurance while the kicking in tae kwon do helps me with kick line in pom."

Other Northville participants at the national event included Daniel Keys, who took gold in both the forms and sparring, as well as Joe Eicholtz (bronze sparring and forms), Trisha Eicholtz (bronze forms, silver sparring) and Harry Eicholtz (bronze sparring and forms).

Athletics Tryouts

The 14 and under Oakland County Athletics baseball team will be holding tryouts for their 2003 team August 25 at 2:00 p.m. Players with a birth date on or after August 1, 1988 are eligible to try out. Tryouts will be held at Northville Community Park on Beck Road between Five and Six Mile Roads.

The team will play about 60 games during the 2003 summer by competing in the Little Caesars League against teams from neighboring communities, participating in six to eight weekend tournaments, and playing in at least one national World Series.

If you have questions about the tryouts or the Athletics program, please call Coach Bill Jenney at (248) 348-5857 or e-mail the team at abjenney@comcast.net.

Softball/Baseball Private Lessons and Training

Total Baseball will help players, ages 6-18, improve their game. Instructors include Oakland University Coaching Staff, Big 10/MAC All-Conference softball/baseball players, the Toledo Mudhens Manager, former professional players and college/HS coaches. Pitching, hitting and fielding are the lessons available and are by appointment only. The fees for the lessons start at $35 per 1/2 hour or five private lessons for $160.

For more information, call (248) 668-0166 or email totalball-wixom@aol.com, or check out the website at www.teamz.com/total-baseball for more info.

Fall Ball

Registration is now open for the Fall Baseball Program run by the Northville Baseball/Softball Association. There will be three leagues — Coach Pitch (ages 7-8), Mustang (old H league, ages 9-10) and Bronco (old G League, ages 11-12). Teams will be formed in the third week of August. There will be a single practice during the week of August 26 followed by a six game Friday night Schedule through October 18, skipping September 13, which is the night of the Victorian Festival Parade.

Games will be played primarily in Community Park, Ford Field and Millennium Park with four games under the lights every Friday. Registration is $55 at the Northville Parks and Rec Department, located at 700 W. Baseline at Hillside Middle School. Due to limited participation, there will be no girls' softball this Fall. Girls participation is the baseball league is available and welcome.

Screen Beat

By Brian Renner
SPECIAL WRITER

Coming to your favorite theaters this weekend is the futuristic showbiz drama "SimOne." Al Pacino stars as a disillusioned Hollywood producer whose film is in trouble when his star walks off the movie. Desperate for a hit, he creates a computer-generated actress named Simone (played by newcomer Rachel Roberts) into his latest film. The actress who everyone thinks is a real person becomes an overnight sensation. "What does it matter if celebrities are real?" asks director Andrew Niccol, the Academy Award-nominated screenwriter of "The Truman Show" and writer/director of "Gattaca." "Our celebrity-obsessed culture can't tell the difference anyway. Our ability to manufacture fraud exceeds our ability to detect it." Featured among the cast include Jason Schwartzman, Jay Mohr, Catherine Keener, and Chris Coppola. "SimOne" is a New Line Cinema release and rated PG-13 for some sensuality.

In the romantic comedy, "Serving Sara," Joe Tyler (Matthew Perry) might just have one of the worst jobs in the world, but he'll stop at nothing to do it. Joe is a process server with ingenious methods of laying legal documents on everyone from mobsters to millionaires. Sara Moore (Elizabeth Hurley) is Joe's next victim. Her conniving partner, Gordon (Bruce Campbell), a wealthy cattle rancher with whom she has amassed a fortune, has hired Joe to serve Sara with papers that threaten to cut her off. Sara is determined to go after what she is entitled to and gets a shot at true love in the process. "Serving Sara" is a Paramount Pictures release and rated PG-13 for crude humor, sexual content and language.

Prison and boxing drama, "Undisputed" is the story of an undefeated world champion prize fighter James "Ice" Chambers (Ving Rhames). "Ice" is convicted of rape and sent to prison, where he must confront and ultimately fight the reigning prison boxing champion Monroe Hutchen (Wesley Snipes). Initially, "Undisputed" was inspired by the Mike Tyson story, after he had gone through all of his trials and troubles. "There are a number of prize fighters and champions who have had trouble with the law," director, producer and writer Walter Hill explains, "and our story started to take the form of how a real tough guy and celebrity would handle life in prison. The more we wrote, the more we wrote away from the Tyson story." "Undisputed" is a Miramax Films release and rated R for strong language.

Showbiz documentary, "The Kids Stays in the Picture" traces the legendary Hollywood producer Robert Evans through his meteoric rise, fall, and rise again. It is narrated by Evans, based on his infamous 1994 autobiography. "The Kids Stays in the Picture" is a Focus Films release and rated R for language, some brief violent and sexual images.

In theaters next week, "Fear Dot Com" (PG-13) and "Slap Her, She's French" (PG-13).

On video and dvd shelves this week, "All About the Benjamins" (R), "The Cat's Meow" (PG-13), "The Fluffer" (NR), "Iris" (R), "Joe Somebody" (PG), "Peter Pan: Return to Neverland" (G), "The Sweetest Thing" (PG-13), "Taboo" (NR), "National Lampoon's Van Wilder" (R), "We Were Soldiers" (R), "What Time is it There?" # My Big, Fat Chick Flick

Comedy worth the ticket price

By Victoria Sadlocha
STAFF WRITER

Mix together one pinch "Cinderella," two pinches of "Romeo and Juliet" and a dash of "Father of the Bride" and you will have "My Big Fat Greek Wedding."

The romantic comedy starring Nia Vardalos, John Corbett, Lainie Kazan, Michael Constantine and 'NSYNC's Joey Fatone on the surface is about the plight of a 30-year-old very single woman in a tight-knit traditional Greek family who finally meets the man of her dreams, but unfortunately, he is not even close to being her family's idea of an acceptable son-in-law.

The PG-rated wittier-than-most-of-its-genre film follows the story of Chicago resident Toula Portokalos briefly from childhood where she describes herself as "a swarthy 6-year-old with sideburns," through "30 and way past my expiration date."

In the beginning of the film she explains the sole purpose of a Greek woman is to meet a Greek boy, make Greek babies and then feed everyone until they die.

And since she is still single, Toula is not hitting the mark as far as her family is concerned.

But as she gains more confidence about who she really is, Toula transforms herself from frumpy Greek to totally sheik.

This is when she meets Ian Miller a non-Greek, but kind teacher played by former "Sex in the City" star John Corbett.

Trying to persuade Toula's father played by Michael Constantine to accept Ian despite the fact he is not Greek and then trying to pull off a wedding melding Millers and Portokaloses produces most of the truly hearty chuckles.

Underlying the obvious plot, are also many feel-good messages.

Lessons like you will never find happiness until you live from within yourself, risks reap rewards, the true meaning of family is love and a couple shots of Ouzo never hurt anyone weave in and out of the story.

The one hour and thirty-five minute film directed by Joel Zwick, is basically predictable, but enjoyable.

It is a great movie for the girls to get together to see, but I think really anyone who has either been through a wedding or has a large, strong family would appreciate the humor.

"My Big Fat Greek Wedding" actually opened June 7, but didn't hit traditional, larger movie theaters until recently after a successful showing at independent film houses.

Interestingly, the Gold Circle film in participation with Play Tone and IFC Films movie was written by the film's star, Nia Vardalos, and was produced by Tom Hanks and his wife, Rita Wilson.

My Big, Fat Greek Wedding has been the surprise hit of 2002 as it has climbed its way through the charts and into the top-10.

The performances were good and the laughs were there, so if you have the time and are looking for something lighthearted and amusing to do, invest in one ticket to see this film.

Resale shops provide a great way to change the scenery

By Linda Neff
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

As the seasons change, so does the landscape around us. The hot, bright colors of summer flowers give way to autumn shades of browns, yellows, deep reds and rusts. The deep green leaves of trees quickly turn to yellow, orange and red. And, for many, the changing seasons seem to evoke an urge within to also change their interior landscape.

This is the time of year when sheer, breezy curtains are replaced by heavy, warm drapes and quilts warm the beds where light summer spreads once laid. For some, a simple changing of the drapes and spreads may not be enough. They want more and they know just where to find it—at their local resale shop.

If you've got the time to shop around and the patience to be selective, there's a wide range of household furniture in every style and price range just waiting to find its way to your home. From retro to early American, Victorian to modern and everything in between, people looking for quality merchandise at bargain prices are usually not disappointed.

At Our Blessings Consignments in Milford, nearly 2,500 square feet of space is devoted to household furnishing items that include sofas, tables, chairs, lamps, clocks, floral arrangements and art work. Owner Marcy May said she tries to be very selective in the furnishings the store accepts, assuring quality and affordability.

Resale shops provide a great way to change the scenery

"It all comes down to getting a good value for your money," May said. "People come in the door because they want a bargain. I think it is safe to say they're looking for quality furniture at great prices."

Sometimes a change in a room can be brought about by simply adding a new side chair or by changing lamps or end tables. A change in headboards can give a worn and tired bedroom a whole new look and a shabby chic look can be created in the dining room or kitchen by painting an old wooden table white.

"For those who are handy and want to refinish a good quality piece of furniture, they can get a screaming deal," said Vicki Reid-Smith, co-owner of The Hamburg Exchange on M-36 in Hamburg.

"It's like Christmas some days. You're just shocked at what comes through the door."

— Vicki Reid-Smith
Co-owner of The Hamburg Exchange

The Hamburg Exchange opened over two years ago. Reid-Smith said business is going great. She said the inventory can change daily and she and partner Genie Dudley never know what will find its way through their doors.

"It's like Christmas some days," Reid-Smith said. "You're just shocked at what comes through the door."

A large marble fireplace surround and mantle leans against one wall of their shop. Currently priced at just $500 it was purchased by its original owner for nearly $1,500.

"In a million years I probably would never have guessed we would get one of those in, but we happen to have that," Reid-Smith said. "It's quite a bargain."

Reid-Smith recommends to those just starting out and looking for a bargain to buy a good piece of wood furniture. She tends to shy away from laminates and suggests sticking to items that aren't going to be dated. She said you can't go wrong with a good classic wood table.

"You can change the chairs somewhere down the road, but always stick with a good piece of furniture — especially wood," she said.

The Hamburg Exchange carries furniture and accessory items for every room in the house and to fit every budget. From bedding to baby furniture, dining and kitchen tables and chairs, end tables, dishes, glasses, lamps, lighting fixtures, sofas and more.

"It's amazing what people have stored in their garage thinking they're going to use it and they never do," Reid-Smith said.

Reid-Smith said she sees a lot of people who are downsizing.

"People who have sold their big homes and they are condensing everything into a smaller two-bedroom condo or smaller," she said. "They're looking for just the right pieces and they have a little more time to spend looking for those things."

Resale shops aren't the only places to find a good bargain. For those who have the time, regular visits to the Salvation Army and Goodwill stores can often turn up a bargain as can garage sales and the local want ads.

In Memoriam

IN LOVING MEMORY of our Son, Bradley Reed Cathey. It's been 10 years since you've been gone. In the 19 years you were with us you touched so many lives, and we thank God for blessing us with you for the short time we were together.
We miss your big smile,
your laughter and your clowning. Your fishing, hunting, and golfing companionship are also missed. It's been lonesome and difficult without you.
Your memories will remain in our hearts and you will always be loved and missed. From his mom, dad, sister, grandparents, uncle, and nephews.

BORDER BRIEFS: NEWS FROM WINDSOR

DaimlerChrysler HQ to open in city centre

Windsor's city centre is preparing to roll out the red carpet for the opening of DaimlerChrysler Canada's headquarters.

Windsor's largest employer and a Fortune 500 company, DaimlerChrysler's new office tower is located at the corner of Ouellette Ave. and Riverside Dr.

The company's roots in Windsor date back to June 17, 1925 when The Chrysler Corporation of Canada Limited was incorporated, 11 days after Walter P. Chrysler founded the Chrysler Corporation in Detroit.

Chrysler Corporation of Canada was the successor to the former Maxwell-Chalmers Motor Company of Canada. The company's name was shortened to Chrysler Canada Ltd. in 1963. With the historic Chrysler-Daimler Benz merger in 1998, its name was formally changed to DaimlerChrysler Canada Inc.

Career Expo set for Sept. 24

Employers and people seeking a career change are invited to The Windsor Star Career Expo next month.

Career seekers will have an opportunity to meet face to face with hiring managers and recruiters of some of the region's top managers. As well, event organizers still have spots available for interested companies looking to recruit career seekers.

The first fair in March was so successful that organizers decided to hold a second, with a focus on engineering, technology and health care.

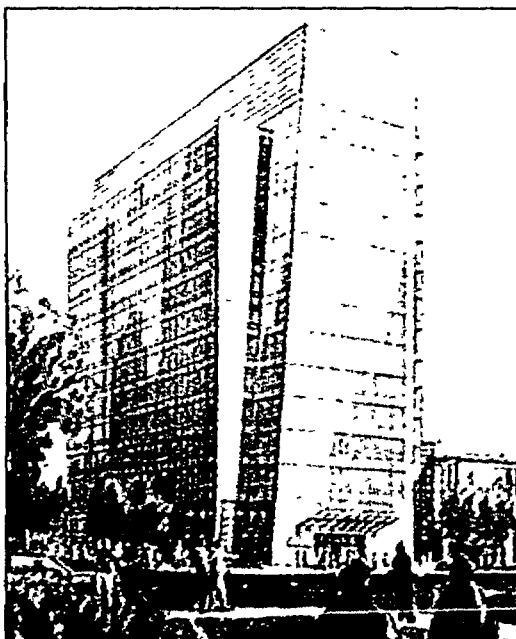

The fair will be held Sept. 24 at the Cleary International Centre. Sessions will be held at 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., and again from 3 to 7 p.m.

Companies interested in participating can call Expo Experts at 1-877-842-3976 or email admin@newspaperjobfairs.com.

Rail tunnel plans unveiled

Plans for a converted rail tunnel under the Detroit River to accommodate truck traffic and ease border congestion were laid out before Essex County Aug. 7.

Under the plan, the existing rail tunnel would be converted to handle truck traffic with a two-lane truck highway along the existing rail line to Highway 401. A highway on the American side would link with I-75.

The project, which would will cost $500-$600 million, has already gone before local, state and federal representatives on the U.S. side.

Canadian Club centre opens

One of Windsor's oldest industries is receiving favourable reviews for the opening of its new visitor centre in its landmark executive building.

Hiram Walker's Canadian Club Brand Center is open to the public for tours daily seven days a week. It is a showcase for the history of Hiram Walker, now owned by Allied Domecq. It also celebrates the company and educates visitors about both the brand and community.

Canadian Club, which calls itself "the world's favourite since 1858", was first blended by Hiram Walker. He combined a Bourbon aura with light, smooth and mellow qualities to create his now world-famous whisky.

WEB: CANADIAN CONSUMER INFORMATION

'Gateway' to reliable info

The Canadian Consumer Information Gateway opens the door to reliable consumer information, one that many people may not have realized was available.

It gives visitors the tools needed to make informed decisions and safe and healthy product choices. It also alerts visitors to recalls and scams and provides contacts to seek recourse.

This on-line portal is the first of its kind in Canada. Available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, it gives visitors access to comprehensive consumer information compiled by more than 25 federal government departments and agencies. More content will be added as new information becomes available and new partners come onboard.

The Canada Customs and Revenue Agency is a partner with the Canadian Consumer Information Gateway.

TRAVEL: PEELEE ISLAND AIR SERVICES

Tourism industry in full flight

New airliner offers trips to Pelee Island

A new Windsor-based airline is bringing Pelee Island a lot closer to visitors.

Pelee Island Air Services is offering half-hour flights from Windsor, Leamington and Pelee Island. The flights are available three times a day, along with six 10-minute runs to the island from Leamington.

Five flights off the island are also being offered daily. The last flights depart at 9:50 p.m.

The only airline now servicing the island, located south of Point Pelee, offers flights from Pelee Island and Sandusky, Ohio.

"It's a difficult place to get to if you're from out of town," airline spokesman Mitch O'Connor

Mitch O'Connor is a spokesman for Pelee Island Air Services which expects a mix of business in its flights between Windsor, Leamington and Pelee Island, from day tourists to commercial transport.

told The Windsor Star earlier this month. "With our service you can fly out, spend the day...and catch the last flight and be home by 11 p.m."

The airline is using a nine-passenger Cessna Caravan with plans to expand to a 19-seat Beech 1900 as demand increases. It also has access to a six-seat Piper Cherokee.

Pelee Island is contracting the planes from another airline.

The only catch to the new service is that its flight schedule depends on demand.

That means a flight could be cancelled if the plane is not at least half full.

The airline guarantees it can get passengers to their destination the day of booking, but won't always be able to guarantee a time.

Flexible schedule

Still, O'Connor noted the schedule is flexible and can be shuffled around to accommodate passengers who need to travel at a specific time, providing the airline can meet its costs.

The airline opens the possibility of more tourist activities on Pelee Island during the winter months. Currently, there is no ferry service to the island between mid-December and mid-March. As well, the ferry — called the Jimaan — has broken down, disrupting business on the island.

Canada reports 8.1% U.S. tourism increase

The number of U.S. residents who visited Canada grew 8.1 per cent during the three months of 2002 compared to the previous quarter, Statistics Canada reported last month.

The figures represent the first gain since the first quarter of 2001, according to Canadian Tourism Commission.

The commission noted tourism spending during the quarter rose 0.7 per cent, mainly due to an increase in spending by international travelers. "Following a turbulent year, these numbers are indicative of the soundness and resilience of the Canadian tourism industry," said Jim Watson, CTC's president and CEO.

Full recovery

Despite the good news, Watson said the industry still lags 3.2 per cent its level of one year ago before reaching full recovery.

He added the CTC will continue to work with partners from industry and governments to "ensure that various research and marketing programs support Canada's tourism businesses and provide them with the means to meet the challenges of a more than ever competitive sector."

A CTC/Statistics Canada initiative, the National Tourism Indicators measures tourism and its socio-economic significance for Canada. Canada is the first country in the world to develop and publish such indicators.

The CTC is a Crown corporation working in partnership with the tourism industry and provincial and territorial governments to market Canada as a four-season destination.

ENVIRONMENT: DETROIT RIVER BOAT TOUR

Take me DOWN TO the river

Education, activism components of CEA's 5th annual tour Sept. 21

Enjoying a Boat Cruise on the Detroit River were (l-r): Tova Perlmutter, Kevin Atkinson, (looking out at the water), Sarah Atkinson, Harold Atkinson (partially hidden) and Michael O'Reilly. Tova and Michael, friends of the Atkinsons, were married only weeks before this cruise in 1999. Below, participants in the cruise enjoy the view of both sides of the Detroit River.

- Courtesy Citizens Environmental Alliance

The Citizens Environment Alliance (CEA) of south-western Ontario and southeast Michigan, a non-profit, education and research organization, is preparing its fifth annual tour of the Detroit River.

This year's event sets sail at noon Saturday, Sept. 21. Boarding begins at 11:30 a.m. at the foot of Ouellette Avenue in downtown Windsor.

Detroit-radio personality Peter Werbe is back as master of ceremonies. Several Great Lakes experts will address the passengers, including Gail Krantzberg Ph.D.

Dr. Krantzberg, recently appointed director of the International Joint Commission's Great Lakes Regional Office, will outline the IJC's role in efforts to restore contaminated or degraded sites throughout the Great Lakes basin.

From the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Ronald Rossmann, Ph.D., will discuss EPA analysis of contaminated sites throughout the Detroit River and its sub-watersheds.

From the General Accounting Office of the United States Congress, John Wanska, assistant director of the recently published report, "EPA Needs to Define Organizational Responsibilities Better for Effective Oversight and Cleanup of Contaminated Areas" will discuss the research and recommendations of the report.

Cleanup, restoration efforts

Also scheduled is a senior researcher from the Office of the Commissioner of the Environment and Sustainable Development, Canada. The discussion will focus on the commissioner's 2001 report to the House of Commons which focused attention on efforts to cleanup and restore the Great Lakes.

The Detroit River, identified by a protocol of the Great Lakes Water Quality Agreement (GLWQA) as an Area of Concern in 1986, remains one of the most heavily polluted waterways in the Great Lakes basin.

The Great Lakes Water Quality Agreement (GLWQA) and subsequent protocols established ambitious goals for the cleanup of the Great Lakes basin. The zero discharge of persistent toxic substances, remediation of contaminated sediments and a bi-national toxic management strategy, cornerstones of the agreement, have seen little meaningful progress, according to the CEA.

The alliance urges people on both sides of the river to continue to insist on all levels of government and industry to work with the public towards the principles of the agreement. It calls the tour a great opportunity to learn more about the Detroit River and need to begin real and meaningful environmental restoration and rehabilitation.

GREAT LAKES ENVIRONMENTAL FACTS

- Since 1850, approximately 96 per cent of Essex region's original wetland area and 95 per cent of the original forest area have been lost as the result of forest clearing and wetland drainage for agriculture and urban development.
- 97 per cent of the coastal wetlands on the U.S. mainland of the Detroit River have been lost to development since European colonization.
- According to a Windsor Star September 2001 report: "Many areas of the riverbed are so toxic one science technician burned his hands scooping up a handful of sediment in the area near the Great Lakes Steel plant, downstream from the Rouge River."
- According to John H. Hartig, River Navigator, Greater Detroit American Heritage River Initiative: "The Detroit

River-Lake St. Clair ecosystem is one of a handful of areas in the Great Lakes with an exceptional variety of plants, fish, birds and the habitats to support them. At least 29 species of waterfowl and 65 kinds of fish make their home in and along the Detroit River. "We must do everything possible to protect our unique biological features and our natural capital. Public support is needed for the remedial action plans for the Detroit and St. Clair rivers and for a Lake St. Clair watershed management process. Not only should we be proud of the international recognition for the wealth of biodiversity in the Detroit River and Lake St. Clair, we must do more to demonstrate our stewardship for this wonderful place we call home."

HERITAGE: FRANCOPHONE COMMUNITY

Jeanne Lefrancois, 92, a descendant of the Mailloux family and one of the first francophone settlers in the Windsor-Essex region, poses in front of the Mur des Noms (Wall of Names). Her ancestors are among the francophone founding families whose names are engraved on the plaque.

So, what's in a nom?

Wall honours French heritage

One of Windsor and Detroit's shared legacies is its rich francophone tradition.

Indeed, Detroit's very name is French. The city was also founded by a French army officer and fur trader, Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac, and many early settlers were French.

The legacy of francophone settlers also runs deep in Windsor and Essex and Kent counties. Last month, an $18,000 black granite monument containing 829 of those early settlers' names was unveiled in downtown Windsor.

Located at the southwest corner of University Avenue and McDougall Street, the plaque stands about two yards tall and sits on a four-tonne granite slab. It's known as Le Mur des Noms, or the Wall of Names.

The monument, whose unveiling July 24 capped almost three years of tricentennial celebrations, sits on a grassy piece of city land next to the provincial government building. It is illuminated at night by spotlights set in the pavement.

"Cadillac came here in 1701 with 50 settlers and 50 soldiers," said Paul Chauvin, chair of the Essex, Kent and Windsor French Canadian Association.

Because of tensions between the French and Iroquois because of their alliance with the Hurons, the original settlers had to travel to the Windsor area from Quebec via the treacherous northern route, a journey that took them along the Ottawa, Mattawa and French rivers into Georgian Bay and Lake Huron.

There were many portages along the way, Chauvin said. "Each voyageur was responsible for 460 pounds of material," he said.

TRIVIA: CUSTOMS FACTS

Rich history

Canadian Customs has a rich, long history in Windsor and Detroit. Some highlights:

- 1801: The Amherstburg and Sandwich customs offices begin operations on July 9. John Askin Jr., a military man, is appointed collector for both ports.
- 1820: Ferry services (a canoe in 1820) begin between Sandwich and Detroit and continue until 1938.
- 1855: The Port of Sandwich is renamed the Port of Windsor.
- 1909: The Sandwich Post Office is built and serves as the Custom House.
- 1929: The Ambassador Bridge opens.
- 1930: The Windsor-Detroit Tunnel opens.
- 1978: The Customs Detector Dog Service begins as a pilot project in Windsor.
- 1985: Windsor's Customs officers create a missing-children program, which is adopted nationally in 1986. By 2001, 984 children were recovered.
- 2000: Windsor Customs officers are the first in Canada to exercise new powers of arrest and detention under the Criminal Code.

REGULATIONS: SMALL VEHICLE LICENSES

More bang for your buck

Visitors to Canada who want to use a boat, if its motor is 10 horsepower or bigger, are required to get a small vessel license. The license is available from any customs office free of charge. Or apply for the license in person, by mail or by fax.

If you bought a new boat from a dealer and the dealer did not get the license for you, show your sales receipt when you apply for the vessel license.

If you buy a used vessel, make sure that the previous owner endorses the original Vessel License.

If you don't have the original license, the previous owner can declare that he or she endorses it. You might need the bill of sale from the previous owner.

To get a declaration form, contact your customs office.

The license number for a small vessel remains the same for the life of the vessel.

If you buy a vessel outside Canada and then bring it into Canada, you will need documents showing that you paid duty on the vessel.

RETAIL: SHOPPING MALLS EXPAND

Old Navy sets its anchor in Windsor

Devonshire Mall completed its fourth expansion in seven years when a spate of new stores opened earlier this month.

With the opening of the new stores, including U.S. clothing giant Old Navy's high-profile location that has been eagerly

DEVONSHIRE FACTS, FIGURES

- Owners: Ivanhoe Cambridge.
- Size: 176 stores, 1,060,000 square feet.
- Built in 1970, expanded in 1974, 1985, 1995, 1999, 2000, 2002.
- Traffic: More than 500,000 shoppers per month, or more than six million per year.
- Cost of addition: $6 million.

ly anticipated by teen shoppers and their parents, retail space in the region's dominant mall has grown to well over the million-square-foot mark.

Old Navy's store was joined by: Crabtree & Evelyn, a fragrances store which is taking aim at the Body Shop's clientele; Tattoo, a new family shoe store; women's clothing store A.E. Sport & Co.

and a new and larger location for Danier leather.

Some existing stores are downsizing or simply moving shop.

Mall manager Doug Wolfe predicted Old Navy will be "a huge retailer in this area. Everybody knows them and they are presold; they're extremely popular at a number of levels, not just children and they are going to do huge volume here."

Old Navy is expected to be a big draw for U.S. shoppers looking for a bigger bang for their stronger dollar, Wolfe said.

"It's going to be great for us and it's going to be great for Windsor."

And Devonshire isn't finished growing, Wolfe said. Its next project is finding another big box retailer with a well-known brand name suitable to fill the last available slot along the mall's high-visibility western wall between Globo and Sears.

Devonshire Mall is located at 3100 Howard Ave. in Windsor, about a 10-minute drive from either the Ambassador Bridge or Canada-U.S. Tunnel. For more information, call (519) 966-3100 or visit the website, www.devonshiremall.com.

OUTLET MALL COMPLETING FIFTH PHASE

Windsor Crossing is set to expand too.

This month, SM2, Jacob Annexe and ARA Shoes outlet stores were all expected to open in the premium outlet mall according to its website, www.windsorcrossing.com. As well, Windsor Crossing will complete its fifth phase of construction in a few months.

The outlet mall is located in LaSalle, near the western border of Windsor.

VISITOR INFO: EXCHANGE RATES

More bang for your buck

Knowing that the American dollar is worth more in Canada is one thing, but exchanging those greenbacks for Canada's more colourful currency is another matter.

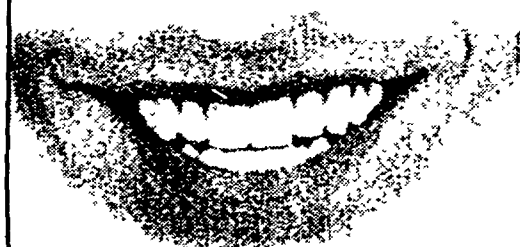

In fact, the Convention and Visitors Bureau of Windsor, Essex County & Pelee Island urges American shoppers to consider using their credit cards first, followed by ATM cards, the border currency exchange sites or a bank, in order to receive the fairest exchange rates.

Definitely don't rely on retail establishments, says Elizabeth Hamel of the bureau.

Retailers don't offer a guaranteed exchange rate, she adds. In fact, it is entirely legal, if short-sighted, for merchants to offer no exchange at all. Such instances are rare, but Hamel's advice helps customers to avoid the possibility.

The bureau offers currency and other information on its website. Log on to www.city.windsor.on.ca/cvb.

ATTRACTIONS: ODETTE SCULPTURE PARK

Ever wonder about the sculptures along Windsor's riverfront?

The official name of the display is the Odette Sculpture Park and it's been described as a "museum without walls." It was made possible by the generosity of local philanthropists Mr. and Mrs. Louis Odette and is maintained by the Department of Parks & Recreation.

It is located along the riverfront at Ambassador and Centennial Parks.

The park showcases large-scale, internationally recognized contemporary sculpture by world renowned artists. Windsor Parks and Rec, on its website (www.city.windsor.on.ca/parkrec/), says Odette Sculpture Park "is about convergence and divergence, differences and similarities. The garden is about connections."

The park is open year round, free of charge.

Explore Windsor & Essex County is profiling the individual works of the artists to help visitors know the story behind the sculptures.

Businessman on a Horse

About William McElcheran

The nine-foot tall bronze work seems to bring the viewer into a kind of shared compassionate joke.

McElcheran's self-important businessman has trouble seeing himself as the contemporary descendant of the triumphant returning generals or war leaders of the past, the traditional subject of a historic horse and rider sculpture. As many critics have noted however, McElcheran's subjects are not just the focus of his jokes, they are also under his protection.

"We get a sharp sense that each of these figures is cared for by the sculptor, wrapped in an unseen cocoon and that we, as viewers, are being asked to care for them too," one critic noted.

Born in 1927 in Hamilton, Ontario, William McElcheran graduated from the Ontario College of Art in Toronto and was awarded the Lieutenant-Governor's Medal in 1947.

As the chief designer for Bruce Brown and Brisely Architects, he planned and designed 23 churches and university buildings.

In 1973 he formed Deaduls Designs, a company dedicated to the integration of decorative sculpture within architectural planning. His famous businessmen with pork pie hats are found in corporate collections all over the world and reflect his philosophy of "New Humanism" in both style and utility.

McElcheran has produced public commissions in Canada, the U.S., Germany, Italy, and Japan. William McElcheran was a member of the Royal Canadian Academy.

Windsor-Detroit border stats

Windsor-Detroit is the busiest land border crossing in North America.

There are about 320 customs officers of which 60 per cent are full time.

Between 160-170 are deployed at the bridge, another 110-120 at the tunnel and the rest in commercial warehouses.

An estimated $400 million in goods flows through the border daily, according to the Windsor and Essex County Development Commission.

CLUBBIN' 'N GRUBBIN': NIGHTCLUBS AND EATERIES

Yes, that's a Flying Monkey

Staying small helped Chanoso's restaurant on Pitt Street East turn into a big success during six years. Now it will anchor three separate yet related operations in a renovated building at 255 Ouellette Ave.

Chanoso's owners — Mark Boscarol and Eric Donoso — have gutted the almost century old structure and an adjacent annex and started from raw brick walls. Each of the two storeys covers 5,500 square feet — the restaurant itself is only adding a few seats, up to about 52, plus 14 stools at a bar.

On the street level is the Flying Monkey Cafe and Juice Bar. It can hold 60, plus a dozen on a small covered patio, serving breakfast, dessert crepes, fancy coffees, smoothies and a dizzying array of health drinks. Internet connections are hooked up too.

On the south side, another entrance leads to a private dining room beside the Chanoso's restaurant. Another door leads to Room with a Cue on the second floor, an upscale pool room with bar and small dance floor and capacity over 300.

The Chanoso's structure was originally a Woolworth's store in the early 1900s, Boscarol said, then a Bank of Montreal and other uses, including a Cole's bookstore and in its last years a video shop. The partners won't comment on the total budget for the renovations but agree it's in the $1-million range.

For more information, call Room with a Cue (519) 252-5991; Flying Monkey Cafe (519) 253-0037 or Chanoso's (519) 254-8530.

Old country-style pubs serving

Windsor's far eastern borders boasts two recently opened old country pubs.

Opened last month, Murphy's Irish Pub on Lauzon Parkway goes mug-to-mug with established competitor, the Butcher & Banker, at Tecumseh's main intersection. Murphy's takes the place of Kelsey's chain restaurant.

Helen and Kelly Price opened the Butcher & Banker in March after renovating a former wood shop and then funeral home on Lesperance just north of the Tecumseh Road crossroads. It is attracting loyal patrons who treat it as a second home, much in the same way neighbourhood pubs do in Britain, with its homey look of wood paneling, textured ceiling, some frosted glass and 18 draught taps working on the bar, all designed by its owners.

At Murphy's, owners Susan and Derek Dunbar collected the Irish bric-a-brac for their 225-person capacity pub. (The patio can hold another 100). It serves 20 draught taps and premium drinkers can head for single-malt and Irish whiskies.

Meanwhile Windsor's core area boasts the Kildare House in Walkerville and Patrick O. Ryan's and the Harp & Fiddle downtown. And in Sandwich, in west Windsor, the Abbey can make some thin claim to be a Scottish golfers' pub.

Butcher & Banker, (519) 739-3901, is located at 1071 Lesperance Rd.. Murphy's Irish Pub, (519) 945-5777, is located at 2601 Lauzon Pkwy.

Also on the nightclub scene:

• RUSH EXPANDING: Rush nightclub will expand its capacity to 363 people from 300 following approval from the Alcohol and Gaming Commission of Ontario this month. The club opened in 1998 at 457 Ouellette Ave.

• THE JUNGLE TAKES OVER: The former Electric Fish nightclub in downtown Windsor was taken over by The Jungle earlier this summer. Located at 762 Ouellette Ave on the popular south-Ouellette dance club strip, it fills the former Electric Fish with bamboo while sticking to the formula for that area's party-party weekends.

COVER STORY: H.M.S. DETROIT

Amherstburg to launch 'Ambassador of Friendship'

The launching of the tall ship HMS Detroit will be celebrated later this month in Amherstburg.

The replica of the tall ship that once served as Canada's Flag Ship will serve as the "Ambassador of Friendship" for Canada and the U.S. and as educational forum, tourist attraction and goodwill ambassador in the Great Lakes Tall Ship Fleet., according to the Project HMS Detroit.

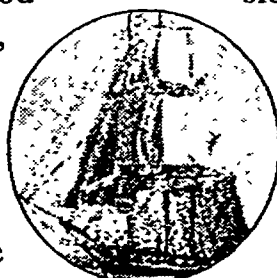

The group notes the historic occasion marks the completion of phase I construction.

H.M.S. Detroit, named in honour of the Capture of Fort Detroit in the War of 1812, played a significant role in the development of the two nations. The replica will be launched Aug. 17 at 8 a.m. at Hike Metal Ship Yard in Wheatley and will be moored in its home port Amherstburg, Aug. 24- 25. The U.S. flag ship Niagara will be moored at the Canadian Coast Guard base in Amherstburg both days, offering free dockside tours from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The tall ship will be open for public dockside tours, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Hosts are Project H.M.S. Detroit, U.S. Brig Niagara League and Amherstburg Chamber of Commerce.

↓ To visit Wheatley for the launching, take Highway 3 (accessible from Huron Church Rd. off the Ambassador Bridge or Dougall Road from the tunnel) Hwy. 77 in Leamington, turn left on Hwy. 34 to Wheatley, then right at the first set of lights in Wheatley and follow the signs.

↓ To visit Amherstburg, follow E.C. Row Expressway (off Huron Church Rd.) or Riverside Drive (from the tunnel) and travel west. In Amherstburg, follow Sandwich St. to Richmond and turn right to the lake.

Battle ON THE Erie

The H.M.S. Detroit, named in honour of the capture of Fort Detroit, would eventually become the most powerful battleship on the Upper Lakes.

However, completing it did not come easy.

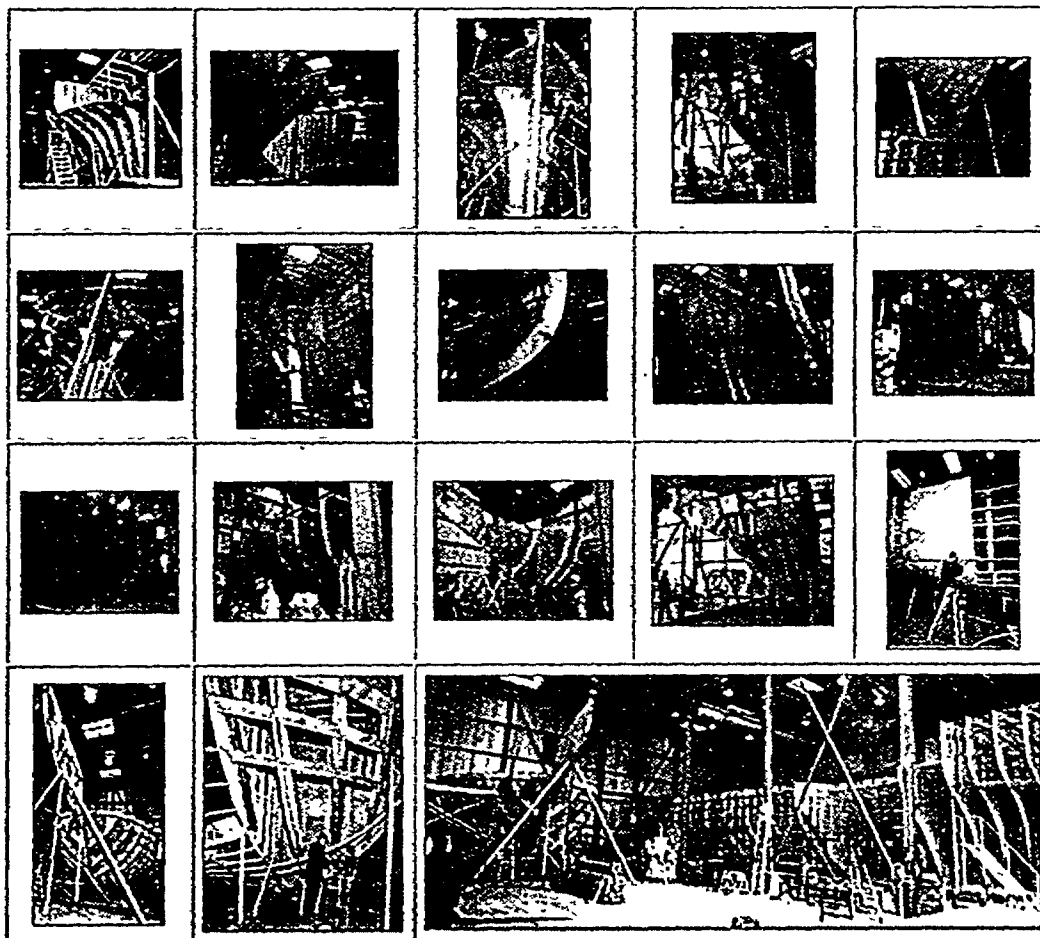

Its construction was constantly plagued by a lack of building materials. Many of the necessary supplies needed to be imported from England and the industrial resources of Upper Canada were found sadly lacking.

It is probable that Master Shipwright William Bell was forced to reuse parts from other ships at Amherstburg in order to equip the H.M.S. Detroit.

For example, the corvette was planned to carry sixteen 14-pound carronades and four long 12-pounder, but in the end was outfitted with a confusing assortment of cannons and carronades due to supply difficulties.

To compound the supply problem, there was also an insufficient number of craftsmen to continue the ship's construction of the H.M.S. Detroit at a suitable pace.

Despite these troublesome problems, the H.M.S. Detroit was launched in August of 1813 as the Battle of Lake Erie loomed.

The website hmsdetroit.org includes photos that show the rebuilding of the replica H.M.S. Detroit.

In the weeks leading to the epic battle, Commander Robert Heriot Barclay, then a 28-year old Royal Navy officer, distributed guns, munitions, and manpower within his makeshift squadron the best he could.

Underequipped, undermanned

Although reinforced by a small detachment of Royal Navy personnel during the final days before the battle, Barclay still considered his squadron to be underequipped and undermanned.

With provisions running dangerously low at Amherstburg, Commander Barclay set sail Sept. 9, 1813 to find the American squadron. By dawn the next day, Barclay's squadron, led by H.M.S. Detroit, had found the enemy near Put-In-Bay.

Although the wind had shifted in favour of Perry's fleet, Barclay committed his ships to battle amid bulging from the Detroit and cheers from the British line.

In the opening round of battle, the H.M.S. Detroit inflicted considerable damage to Commandant Oliver Hazard Perry's Lawrence as the U.S. Navy Commander struggled to manoeuvre his ship into close quarters with the Detroit. By the second hour of battle both the Detroit and the Lawrence had sustained heavy casualties.

Despite the ongoing carnage which surrounded the two opposing commanders on their own decks, the battle pressed on until Commandant Perry was finally forced to abandon the battered and broken Lawrence and moved to the Niagara.

The H.M.S. Detroit, however, was only in slightly better condition while the Niagara had gone practically unscathed due to her distance from the main action. There, as Perry was being transferred to the Niagara through British sniper fire, Barclay was struck by a portion of a salvo for the enemy line, shattering his right shoulder in the process.

The command of Detroit and the British Fleet was transferred to Second Lieutenant George Inglis. The battle's conclusion drew near.

To offer fresh resistance to the incoming Niagara, Inglis decided his best chance lay in directing the Detroit's starboard battery to action.

As the Detroit's sailors struggled to bring the ship around with its tattered sails and rigging, the Queen Charlotte was also aiming to pass the Detroit and was at the Detroit's stern on the starboard side.

Midway through the Detroit's turn, however, disaster struck. The wind pushed the Detroit backwards and into the Queen Charlotte, causing their spars to become fatally entangled.

Taking advantage of the situation, the Niagara raked the two entrapped corvettes with her carronades. The Queen Charlotte was forced to surrender soon afterwards.

Little resistance

By the time Inglis managed to free the Detroit, even the flagship of the British Squadron could offer little resistance and was thoroughly unsailable.

On the Detroit, one man in three had been killed or wounded. Inglis had little choice but to surrender.

The H.M.S. Detroit spent the winter of 1813-1814 in Put-In-Bay and then brought to Presque Isle (now Erie, Pennsylvania) until the declaration of peace. The Detroit, along with the Queen Charlotte and the Lawrence, were mothballed with their masts removed and finally scuttled.

After spending years beneath the waves, both the

H.M.S. DETROIT SPECS

- A three-mast, 207' (sparred length) square rig - "The Whole Nine Yards"
- Named in honor of the capture of Fort Detroit in the War of 1812, the H.M.S. Detroit, flag ship for the British fleet, was originally built in Amherstburg's King's Navy Yard Park. The replica H.M.S. Detroit headquarters is located in Amherstburg.
- Its length is 126 ft. on deck, 120 ft. on main deck and 132 ft. overall with a sparred length of 207 ft.
- Depth: (keel to main deck at midships) is 13'6"
- Draft to load waterline at midships is 9'10"
- Displacement is 490 MT
- Breadth (Moulded) is 30'6"

Detroit and the Queen Charlotte were raised in 1837 and refitted for merchant duty.

The Detroit's service as a merchant vessel lasted only until 1841 when the derelict ship was purchased by a group of merchants in Niagara Falls, New York. Sent down the Niagara River as a spectacle and political statement, the old warship for Amherstburg gradually broke up in the river, and was no more.

BEER: A CANADIAN PASTIME

Drinking, driving law tough

Canada's drinking and driving laws are among the toughest in the world, according to the Brewers of Canada which is arguing against calls to reduce the blood alcohol limit from 80 mg to 50 mg alcohol per 100 ml to make them as tough as other countries.

While some countries do have a .05 per cent limit, violators of the limit do not receive criminal sanctions. It is common for them to receive fines or short suspensions but criminal sanctions are not applied to drinking drivers with levels under .08 per cent and in some instances at levels much higher than that.

In Canada, however, every province except Québec has penalties at .05 per cent or lower. An immediate roadside suspension has proven effective and is more responsive and less expensive than criminal prosecution.

Of all drivers killed on the road in 1999, 20 per cent had levels of .15 per cent or higher; 7 per cent were between .08 and .15 per cent, while 67 per cent had no blood alcohol level. Three per cent had levels between .05 and .08 per cent and 3 per cent below .05 per cent.

The Brewers of Canada maintains that the target for further sanctions should be the chronic drinking drivers. Higher awareness of these laws would also affect public attitudes and behaviour towards

COOKING WITH BEER

The varied and complex qualities of the different styles of beer make beer an excellent beverage to enjoy with any meal. Beer also adds a unique quality to all kinds of dishes.

Some beers are sweeter, some are drier, some are heavier, and some have a hint of chocolate flavour. And with the huge range of beer choices available to Canadian consumers, you are sure to find a beer taste to complement any food.

Contact the Brewers of Canada for "Good Food Brewing", a cookbook using beer, 650-100 Queen St., Ottawa, Ontario K1P 1J9 or visit the website www.brewers.ca for more information.

drinking and driving. Media awareness campaigns, responsible drinking programs and a range of new public policy initiatives over nearly 20 years has helped lower the incidence of alcohol-involved driver fatalities by about 45 per cent.

Go to Bed Happy...

...and happy you'll be waking up in a brand new luxurious bed from our store. You spend more time in the bedroom than in any other space, so it follows that your bed should be the most well thought-out piece of furniture in your home. Start the day in a bedroom surrounded by things that you love—a beautiful armoire, a grandiose paneled sleigh bed, a hand-painted trunk that holds precious mementos and warm blankets—add some soft bed linens, lots of pillows and a few family photos on your night table and you might notice that the “wrong side of the bed” simply ceases to exist.

FREE Color Matching & Mixing

- Get the exact color you want in premium quality paint you can rely on
- Bring us a quarter-size color sample
- Within 60 seconds, our computer will give us the formula to duplicate that color
- Then we'll mix it...FREE
- Don't pay more somewhere else; we guarantee the low price and your satisfaction

Choose the Perfect Paint, Right Down to the Finish

Flat

Traditionally used on interior walls, a flat finish is soft, non-reflective and good at hiding minor surface imperfections.

Eggshell

A close cousin of the flat finish, an eggshell finish gives you increased durability and washability.

Satin/Silk

This is your most versatile finish, excellent for higher traffic areas and kids' rooms.

Semi-Gloss

This shiny finish provides decorative contrast with flat, eggshell or satin/silk. Highly wear-resistant, semi-gloss finishes work well in bathrooms, kitchens and on trim.

Hi-Gloss

Very luminous and reflective, a gloss is used for bold, decorative accents or where maximum durability is required.

Lifetime Warranty!

NO EMPLOYEES!

Highland MI- Jay Chevrolet just announced plans to hold an "$88 USED CAR, TRUCK AND VAN SUPER SLASHER SALE" on Friday, August 23 and Saturday August 24. Record sales from the last few months have resulted in an inventory crisis causing an overstock of trade-ins. "We have to take immediate action NOW to reduce the number of used cars, trucks and vans on my lot. We have over a million dollar inventory. During this GIANT event, every used car, truck and van will be sold for up to thousands below its original price".

ALL VEHICLES WILL BE ON DISPLAY AT JAY CHEVROLET
AT 3372 WEST HIGHLAND RD. 248-889-3232

HERE'S HOW!

At 4pm on Friday and 10am Saturday, all vehicles will be opened so that buyers may inspect the vehicles for an hour before the sale begins at 5pm Friday and 11am Saturday. Whoever is sitting behind the wheel at 4pm on Friday and 10am on Saturday, when the prices are slashed will be given the first opportunity to purchase the car, truck or van at the drastically reduced price. We want to remind everyone that this is for two days only. When our inventory has been reduced, we will remove the sale prices and return to normal operations. "Since Jay Chevrolet is a local business, we would like to give back to the community. The owner would rather allow local people to buy these over-stocked vehicles than wholesale them at auction".

Q We recently visited Dollywood, and there was so much information about Dolly Parton's career and her family, but virtually nothing about her husband. Does she have children? I do not recall ever seeing even a picture of her with her spouse.

—Jill B., Indiana

Country superstar Dolly Rebecca Parton met her future husband in 1964 on her first afternoon in Nashville, Tenn. Parton describes her husband, Carl Dean, as moral, unselfish, and witty. She also says he's a homebody, which is why you don't often see him out with her at awards shows and such. He maintains a distinct separation between the different worlds in which he and his wife of 36 years move and rarely appears with her at public functions. Parton, an East Tennessee native, got her first big break when she started appearing on Porter Wagoner's syndicated television show. Eight Country Music Association awards, seven Grammy Awards, several number one singles, and dozens of other awards tell the story of Parton's extraordinary career, which has evolved to include starring roles in movies and television shows as well. She is touring to promote her new album on Sugar Hill Records titled Halos and Horns, which was released last month. She and Dean have no children.

Touring for the first time in nearly a decade.

Q My favorite actress when I was in my teens was Deanna Durbin. She got married and moved to France. I haven't heard anything concerning her in all these years. Is she still in France? Did she have a family?

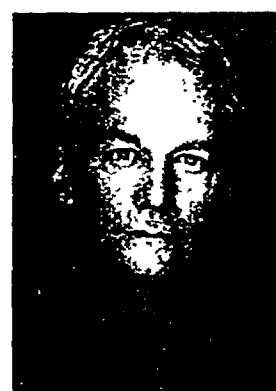

—Rita S., Arizona

The Canadian-born actress and singer was a huge star in her teen years, but she never much liked the spotlight. When she married her third husband, French film director Charles Henri David, she said that she wanted to live the life of a "nobody." They moved to France, and she mostly got her wish. She stopped doing movies and refused to give interviews. In the last few years, with the advent of the Internet, fans found Durbin. Though flattered by the interest, she found herself spending a great deal of time answering the letters and requests from fans. When her husband died in 1999, Durbin sent word to a fan club in England, called the Deanna Durbin Society, that she had "re-retired." Now 80 years old, she is happily a "nobody" again, still living in France. She has a daughter and one stepson.

Q What can you tell me about James Morrison of Space: Above and Beyond. I've seen him guest-starring on a few shows.

—Debra H., Pennsylvania

Born in Bountiful, Utah, and raised in Alaska, the 48-year-old actor began his career as a clown and wire walker, going on to learn his craft as an actor with the Alaska Repertory Theater from 1977 to 1979. He moved to Los Angeles in Space's James Morrison.

1982 and has worked regularly on stage, film, and television. In addition to Space: Above and Beyond, he's guest-starred on Nash Bridges, The X-Files, Frasier, and Six Feet Under, among other television shows. His first movie role was as the "Man at Construction Site with Stop Sign" in the Michael Douglas film, Falling Down. Morrison is also a writer, director, and filmmaker, most recently collaborating with his wife, Riad Galayani, on Nude Descending. He is also a dedicated yoga practitioner and has become a certified teacher. He lives in Los Angeles with his wife and their 3-year-old son, Seamus. ☆

Wave® radio/CD

Acoustic Wave® music system

Wave® radio

Our reputation stands behind them.

Great sound. Small size. No compromise.

With more than 30 years of industry-leading innovation, Bose® has created three acoustic waveguide products that are favorites of audio critics and music lovers alike. After experiencing their award-winning sound, compact size, and intuitive simplicity, you'll understand why Bose is considered the most respected name in sound.

Rich sound from our top-of-the-line integrated system.

Why settle for the big and bulky components of an ordinary stereo when you can enjoy the extraordinary sound of a sleek, all-in-one music system? The Acoustic Wave® music system includes an AM/FM tuner, a CD player, and something you won't find in any conventional stereo — our acoustic waveguide speaker technology. Much as a flute strengthens a breath of air to fill an entire concert hall, the waveguide produces rich, room-filling sound from a small enclosure. In fact, when we first introduced the Acoustic Wave® music system, Stereo Review said it had "possibly the best-reproduced sound many people have ever heard." Hard to believe the entire system is the size of a briefcase.

You'll hear the difference the very first time you turn on the Acoustic Wave® music system. Patented Bose technology gives your favorite CDs and radio programs a clarity and richness that will astound you — no matter what the volume. And with our credit card-sized remote, you can control this award-winning sound from the palm of your hand. With all this, it's no wonder many people use it as their primary stereo.

Even smaller systems for even smaller spaces.

Wish you had great sounding music in your bedroom or office? Try the Bose Wave® radio, with or without the built-in CD player. It utilizes a smaller version of our acoustic waveguide speaker technology to give you sparkling high notes, full bass, and a clarity that's remarkable for something its size. The Oregonian said that the Wave® radio/CD "remains one of those little unexplained miracles of acoustic physics." Our original Wave® radio is designed just as impressively. Other features include dual alarms, a credit card-sized remote control, and six AM and six FM station presets.

Call and make 12 low interest-free payments.

Take advantage of our payment plan and make 12 low interest-free monthly payments.* Choose the Acoustic Wave® music system, our premium waveguide product, and we'll send you a Bose Pedestal with inputs for your TV, VCR, DVD player and one other music source — absolutely free. (The Pedestal is a $149.95 value.) And no matter which waveguide product you choose, our 30-day risk-free in-home trial guarantees your satisfaction.

So let Bose put an acoustic waveguide product in front of you. And hear all that stands behind them.

Call today,
1-800-741-2073, ext. C915.

All three products are available in your choice of Graphite Gray or Platinum White.

Hometown Hero

by CHUCK CECIL

To Save a Prairie

For more than 20 years, wildlife photographer Jim Brandenburg has traveled the globe, preserving on film those special moments in nature that touch the heart and capture the imagination.

Now, as one of the world's premier natural history photographers, Brandenburg, 56, is working to preserve a piece of that natural world—contributing money from sales of his photographic work to save one of the last vestiges of native tallgrass prairie in America.

Just north of Luverne, Minn., on a high ridge near Brandenburg's great-grandfather's homestead, the Brandenburg Prairie Foundation has set aside 360 acres of prairie that have never been tilled. In the coming years, the land—along with additional acreage as it is purchased—will be restored to its original grandeur.

The foundation receives its funding from the Brandenburg Gallery on Luverne's busy Main Street where Brandenburg's photographs and books are sold. All profits are plowed back into the foundation, which was formed in 1999 to promote, preserve, and restore native prairie in southwest Minnesota.

"It wouldn't have been possible without him," says Dave Smith, Brandenburg's longtime friend, foundation treasurer, and executive director of the Luverne Chamber of Commerce. "His fame, reputation, and devotion to prairie restoration give the project credibility when we talk with people about what we hope to do."

Tallgrass prairie once covered more than 400,000 square miles in North America—an area larger than Texas and New Mexico combined—with hundreds of wildflower and grass varieties growing up to 8 feet tall. Less than 1 percent of the prairie remains, although efforts such as Brandenburg's are under way in many states to re-establish the ecosystem in smaller pieces to give us a glimpse of what once was.

The first parcel of native prairie in Luverne was acquired last year in conjunction with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. It will undergo a 15-year restoration, including the eventual addition of buffalo on the land.

A second project is to restore 11 acres owned by the Luverne Public Schools. Starting next year and continuing each year thereafter, first-graders will be assigned a 20-by-20-foot garden on part of the land until each grade has a plot. Students will select, plant, and care for a native grass or flower throughout their 12 years of school. As seniors, they will harvest and replant the seeds on the 11-acre outdoor prairie classroom.

Both projects excite Brandenburg, who lives in Ely, Minn., as much as when he lived among—and made his famous photographic essay on—wolves. One poignant photo is of a curious gray wolf peeking with one eye from behind a tree.

Brandenburg recalls that as a youngster he was a dreamer. "I wasn't a very good student, either," he admits. He has since learned that he had, and still has, attention deficit disorder (ADD). It is, he says, "my gift." He tells young people in lectures and commencement speeches that ADD allows him to view his surroundings in different, creative ways.

In his youth, Brandenburg hunted and trapped until one day when he was about 14, he bought a $3 plastic camera on sale at the local drugstore. "It changed my life."

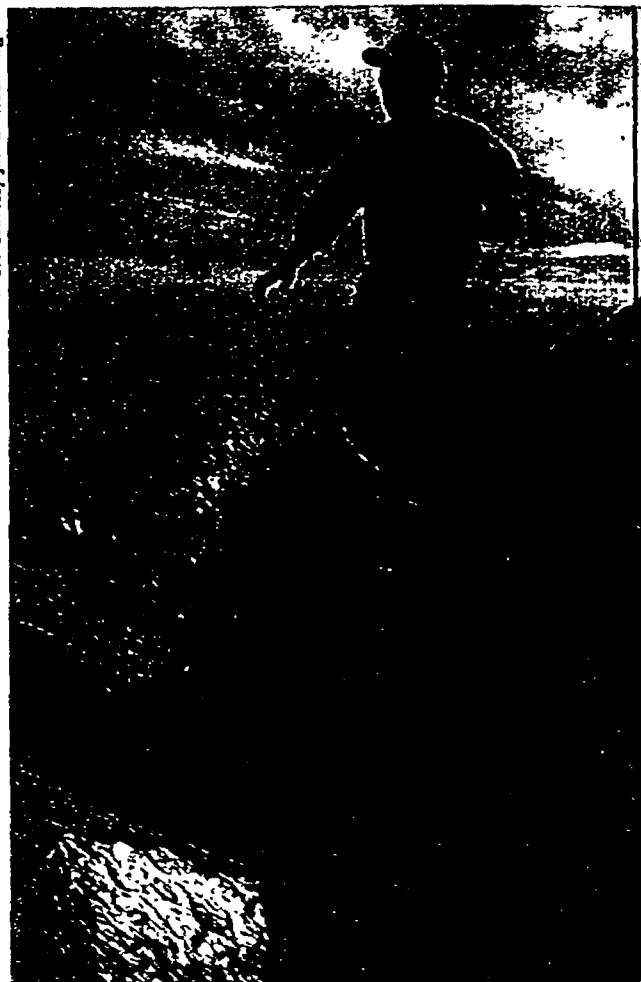

His first wildlife picture was taken with that little Argus camera. He coaxed a red fox into range by hiding behind a rock and imitating the sound of a mouse. That grainy black and white is still one of his favorites and is featured in one of his books.

After college, Brandenburg became a photographer for the Worthington (Minn.) Daily Globe. In 1978, he became a contract photographer for the National Geographic Society and has 18 society magazine photo essays under his belt.

On his wall of honors and awards is the World Achievement Award from the United Nations Environmental Programme, presented in 1991 in recognition of Brandenburg's "use of nature photography to raise public awareness of the environment."

As his busy photo and writing career winds down, Brandenburg is finding life's circle is closing. "Though my work has taken me all over the world, I still feel the pull of home—the urge to explore what is left of the American prairie and to play a role in its restoration." ☆

Then I learned about Arthro-7 from Gero Vita.

Are sore bones and joints preventing you from doing the things you love? Do the side effects of prescription drugs have you concerned? If so, then you should know what more than 1,000,000 people already know: Arthro-7 could give you a new lease on life.

Arthro-7 is a unique formula developed by Gero Vita International, a leader in nutraceuticals. The main nutrient is collagen type II, which encourages cartilage production for overall joint health. There's also cetyl myristoleate (CMO). This nutrient acts like a super-lubricant, softening cartilage and making it more pliable, so joints can glide smoothly.

The result? People report that they have returned to living their lives again after only three months with Arthro-7.

Before you give up the things you love, try a 30-day supply of Arthro-7 for just $29.95. It's natural. It's backed by our 30-day money-back guarantee, so there are no risks. Best of all, it's from a company trusted by millions of people.

Find out how Arthro-7 can help you get back in the game. Call now or visit our Web site for more information and to place your order today. You even get FREE shipping (a $6.95 value).

Wagner makes new bikes out of old parts for the sheer joy of it (and for those with a disability). At right, several creations hanging in his shop.

The Bicycle Recycler

by BARBARA BOUGHTON

Photos by Joe Doane/Randy Janoski

A glance at the bicycles lining the walls of Peter Wagner's garage easily reveals his imagination and originality. He has working bicycles of every type, such as tandems, hand pedal bikes, and even something called—very appropriately—a “Whymcycle” (pronounced “whimsical”).

Wagner, 49, is known as “the bike guy,” and on any afternoon, you're likely to see children in his Davis, Calif., neighborhood trying out his collection of unconventional bikes, created from parts given to him by friends, neighbors, and people who know his reputation as a man with a passion for bikes.

“I'm just a guy who tinkers around,” says Wagner, a schoolteacher. “In creating my bikes, I love taking an idea and making it a reality—and seeing people actually ride what I've created.”

He hasn't kept strict count, but Wagner figures he's made nearly 200 bicycles since junior high, many patterned after antique models. About half have been Whymcycles.

His most complicated bike to date is a lime green model that also floats on water. It was created for a 1999 kinetic sculpture race of human-powered, all-terrain works of art. Wagner built a brightly colored amphibian bike—a four-seater with pontoons on the sides and a paddlewheel on the back.

This year the bike endured its heaviest load yet on water when four grown men rode it at the junction of the American and Sacramento rivers. “Their combined weight must have been at least 800 pounds,” Wagner says with a chuckle. The unusual bike tilted a bit at the end of the race, but made it to dry ground and won the award for “most artistic bike.”

“It was the largest vehicle to complete the race,” Wagner says, with a hint of pride.

Whimsical and useful

Wagner got hooked on pedal power at 4 when he rode his sister's bicycle. He loved the feeling of freedom that a bike gave him. When he made his first bicycle—a crude tandem—at age 13, he used diagrams published in Popular Mechanics. Since then, he's refined his technique.

His trademark—the Whymcycle—is a bike with a platform, the width of a skateboard, between its two wheels. The rider powers it by making a bouncing motion on the platform, which turns an offset rear hub and propels the bike forward. The Whymcycle is Wagner's version of the Ingo-Bike, also called the Exercycle, manufactured by the Ingersoll-Rand Corp. from 1934-37.

The Ingo-Bike had a small wheel in front, a larger wheel in back, and a platform in between. Wagner saw the bike in the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Mich., and resolved to make one.

Wagner occasionally gives away the Whymcycles to his friends, and he also sells them for less than $200 through a juggling catalog (jugglers like the unusual bikes to spice up their acts).

He's not interested in capitalizing on his love of tinkering. "I'm not a businessman. People tell me I should advertise my bikes on a website and sell more of them, but I'm not interested," he says. "I build bikes for the love of them."

Wagner spends at least five hours—sometimes much more—each week, tinkering and creating something useful from parts that others ordinarily would throw away. When an employee at the nearby recycling center saw three old bikes being thrown away, he saved them for Wagner.

"Rather than going through the crusher, they were used to build a hand bike for a 3-year-old with bone disease, so he can go gallivanting around town just like everyone else," Wagner says.

Indeed, Wagner's inventiveness has helped about a dozen others living with a disability—such as Michele Mantay, 45, who suffers from a disease that weakens her muscles. For Mantay, Wagner created a quadricycle in which two or three people can sit on the bike's platform.

Mantay likes the bike because the larger wheels make it easy to pedal. "I can get exercise with another person and use the bike even though I'm not very strong," she says.

Wagner, who worked closely with Mantay to build the bike to her needs, made pedals from an exercise bike with loops to hold her feet and placed a plastic box on the back to hold groceries. The designer bike easily can be steered with a tiller by any of the riders.

Such custom bikes for special needs may retail for as much as $1,000, but Wagner sells them to people he happens to meet or who seek him out for a fraction of that cost. Or, he simply gives them away.

"I am not in this for the money," he says. "I like building unique custom bikes because it enables me to use the parts to provide a solution. I'm a problem solving sort of person."

Occasionally, his special-needs inventions don't involve wheels. When he met Paul Knott, a paraplegic and former firefighter, they struck up a conversation, and Knott mentioned that he was trying to build a backrest for his new van—one that would keep him upright, because his upper body muscles aren't strong.

"He came over to my house one day with a big grin and said he had made the backrest for me—all out of bike parts already stored in his garage," Knott says. The backrest is now installed permanently in Knott's van. "My one complaint is that he just never mentions money," Knott says.

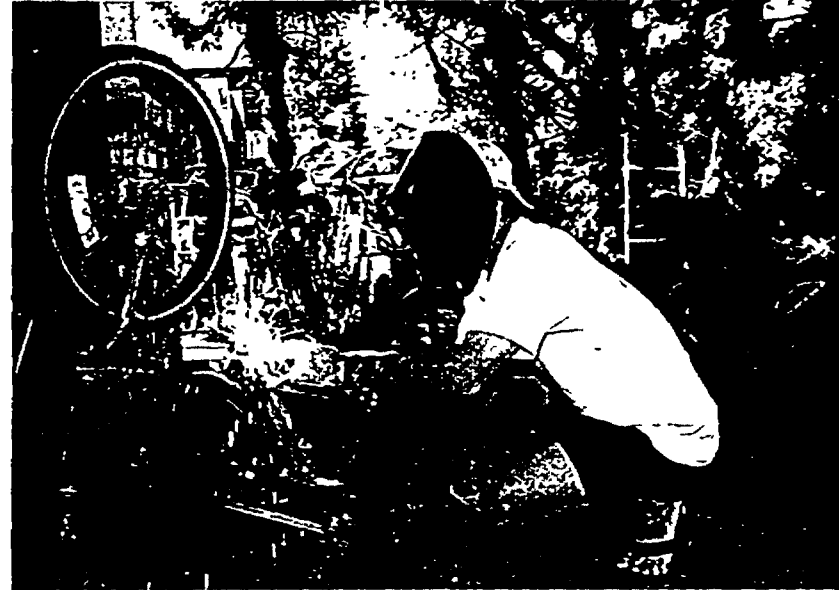

"I pay him whatever I can, when I can."

'For the fun of it'

Wagner's love for bicycles certainly puts him in the right place. Davis is known as a bicycle town; its logo is a high-wheeler or penny farthing bike, with a high front and low back wheel, a model popular in the early 1900s.

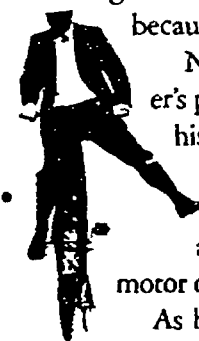

Davis began building a network of bike paths throughout the town in the 1960s to encourage efficient and non-polluting transit. At the town's annual bike parade, the Cyclebration, people ride on all kinds of bikes to celebrate pedal power. Wagner is a familiar sight at the Cyclebration and always arrives with half a dozen bikes for the crowd to try.

"Bikes are a low-cost, fun way of transportation," he says. "And they last forever. My motto is that people should ride as many bikes as they can."

Wagner works on a hand-powered bike for the disabled.

Armand Prieditis, 41, who owns a software company in Davis, bought one of Wagner's Whymcycles several years ago. "You get a wider field of view than on a traditional bike, since you're standing up," he says. Prieditis finds riding the Whymcycle gets his quadriceps in shape for skiing and running; his children, ages 10 and 6, love the bike because it's so novel.

Novel is what fuels Wagner's passion. On a recent day in his garage, he showed off a bike that once was a Yamaha motorcycle. Pedals are placed where the motor once revved.

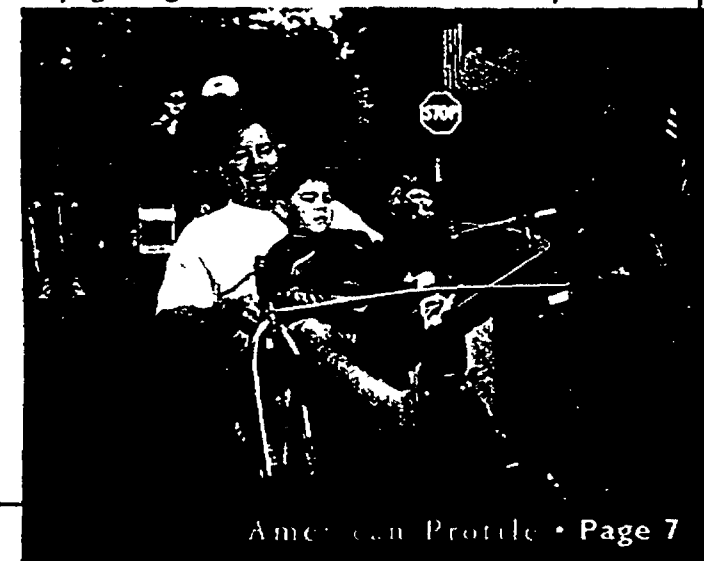

As his son, Colin, 12, and his friends rode Whymcycles and high-wheelers, Wagner tried out an "upside down bike"—a bike literally turned upside down, with pedals where the seat used to be, and a new seat placed on top of a spoke several feet in the air. With a running jump, he was up on the bike and wheeling down the pavement eagerly.

"I make bikes for the fun of it," he says. "Riding them and building them keeps me happy." ☆

Music

Wheels
Hometown News
VFR Records

Comparisons to the Everly Brothers are inevitable, particularly with the extraordinary vocal blending that showcases this duo's tight harmonies. They're not brothers, but Scott Whitehead and Ron Kingery share similar backgrounds, musical style, and songwriting.

The debut album's first release, Minivan, with the lyrics, Goodbye 20s, hello minivan, is a humorous "coming of age thing," Kingery says, about trading in the sports car (and carefree youth) for room for car seats. Wheels, the title cut, is a touching "circle of life" piece about rolling through life—first in a stroller, finally in a wheelchair. Nine more songs that Kingery and Whitehead call "homemade music" round out the album.

"We have this criteria we use for songs ... and we call it the 'Grandma Test,'" Kingery explains. "We came to an agreement that we wouldn't ever sing or write a song that would embarrass our grandparents."

Grandma—or anyone—would like Wheels just fine.

Books

Oceans
By Anita Ganeri
Space
By Carole Stott
Kingfisher

Oceans and Space, part of Kingfisher's Curious Kids Guides series, answers questions from the oceans to space. To such questions as, "What is a red giant?" or "What's it like at the bottom of the sea?" Space and Oceans provide bright illustrations and interesting explanations.

For example, the ocean's salt originates from rocks on land. Rain washes salt into rivers, which carry it to the sea. And stars don't really twinkle. Their light is "bent and wobbled" by air surrounding the earth, making them appear to twinkle.

And a red giant is a dying star that swells up to 100 times larger than its original size, and emits a red glow, resulting from a surface temperature lower than the center.

Oceans and Space show children—and their adults—that the natural world is extraordinarily fascinating.

Home video

We Stick Together Like Glue
Touch Studios

We Stick Together Like Glue, an animated video, is about two best friends—Gil the Guitar and Eddy Electric—who learn the importance of friendship after theirs is threatened. Eddy's return from a concert tour sparks a misunderstanding, causing Gil to think that Eddy is now too famous to be his friend.

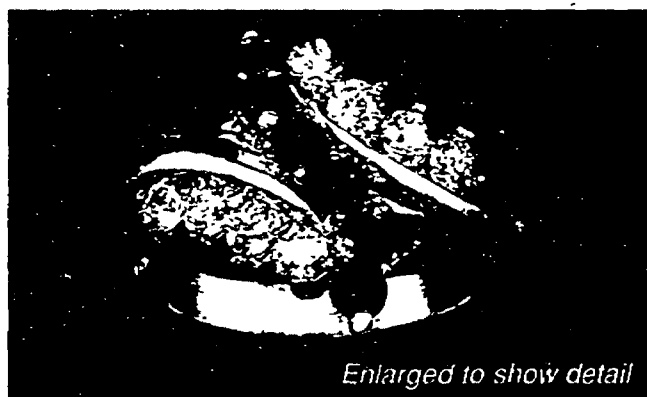

Gil's jealousy causes him to do some pretty ridiculous things. "In the end he realizes his foolish behavior, learns how to overcome his pride, and recovers his valuable friendship with Eddy," says Carla White, series creator. "He also learns the importance of being himself."

We Stick Together Like Glue, a 30-minute video for ages 3-10, features eight sing-along songs by pop singer Crystal Lewis and other artists and is the first title in The MusicLand Band video series for children. ☆

Hometown Spotlight

by TONY LOLLI

Faith AND Cow Mountain Pond

Cow Mountain Pond, a 10-acre body of water, was full of native trout, and parents had been taking kids there to fish for generations. The town even kept a community rowboat tied up on shore for anyone to enjoy—this being a place where folks can be trusted. Townspeople also had camped, hiked, hunted, snowshoed, and picked berries on the hills and meadows around the pond for as long as anyone could remember.

A town hall, a post office, and this church make up the town's center.

Faced with the possibility of losing their favorite fishing hole, Granby's 86 residents rallied to save it.

So when Champion International Paper Corp. announced in the mid-1990s it was selling the pond and 1,600 acres of surrounding forest for $500,000, the 86 residents of Granby, Vt., knew they had a problem. The town has only a one-room school, the nearest paved roads are 15 miles away, electricity hadn't reached local homes until 1965, and Granby's annual budget was barely $100,000.

Any chance of buying the pond and forest to keep it from development seemed impossibly remote—but Granby thought it over. After all, the town had raised the money to bring in electric power when the electric company thought Granby was too far off the beaten track. Accustomed to getting things done—and willing to act on faith—the town went into action.

At a town meeting it was decided to explore the matter. "Some folks were concerned the land would be developed by outside interests and Granby's way of life would suffer," says Bruce Berryman, a member of the town's acquisition committee. Others were concerned access might be lost if strangers bought it. This was land worth saving because it was part of their lives—and of special interest was Cow Mountain Pond, Vermont's last undeveloped native trout pond.

After months of research, a committee of citizens made a proposal that the town approved, Berryman says. The package included a grant of $300,000 from the federal Forest Legacy program and $150,000 from the state, with The Nature Conservancy donating expertise and legal assistance. That left the town's contribution at $50,000, an amount equal to half of the annual town budget. The effort got underway.

Granby went to work in time-tested fashion, holding potluck suppers, cakewalks, and quilt sales. But in the limited time available to the town, only $1,500 could be raised. So when residents said they were willing to raise taxes to repay borrowed money, Granby sought a bank loan. At the 11th hour, additional funding by the state's House Appropriations Committee averted a tax increase, so, all was right with the world—or so it seemed.

At the closing, the seller's attorneys checked the figures one last time—and found the town was $500 short. "No deal," they said.

"We were speechless," recalls Berryman. They'd been to enough potluck dinners to last a lifetime, and now the sale had gone south. The meeting was put on hold while town representatives put their heads together.

"A call was made to a new resident of Granby, who, in turn, called his father whose relatives once lived in town," Berryman says. "The father would donate $500 if a trail would be named for the Carpenter family." Finally, the attorneys were satisfied and the Granby Municipal Forest was established.

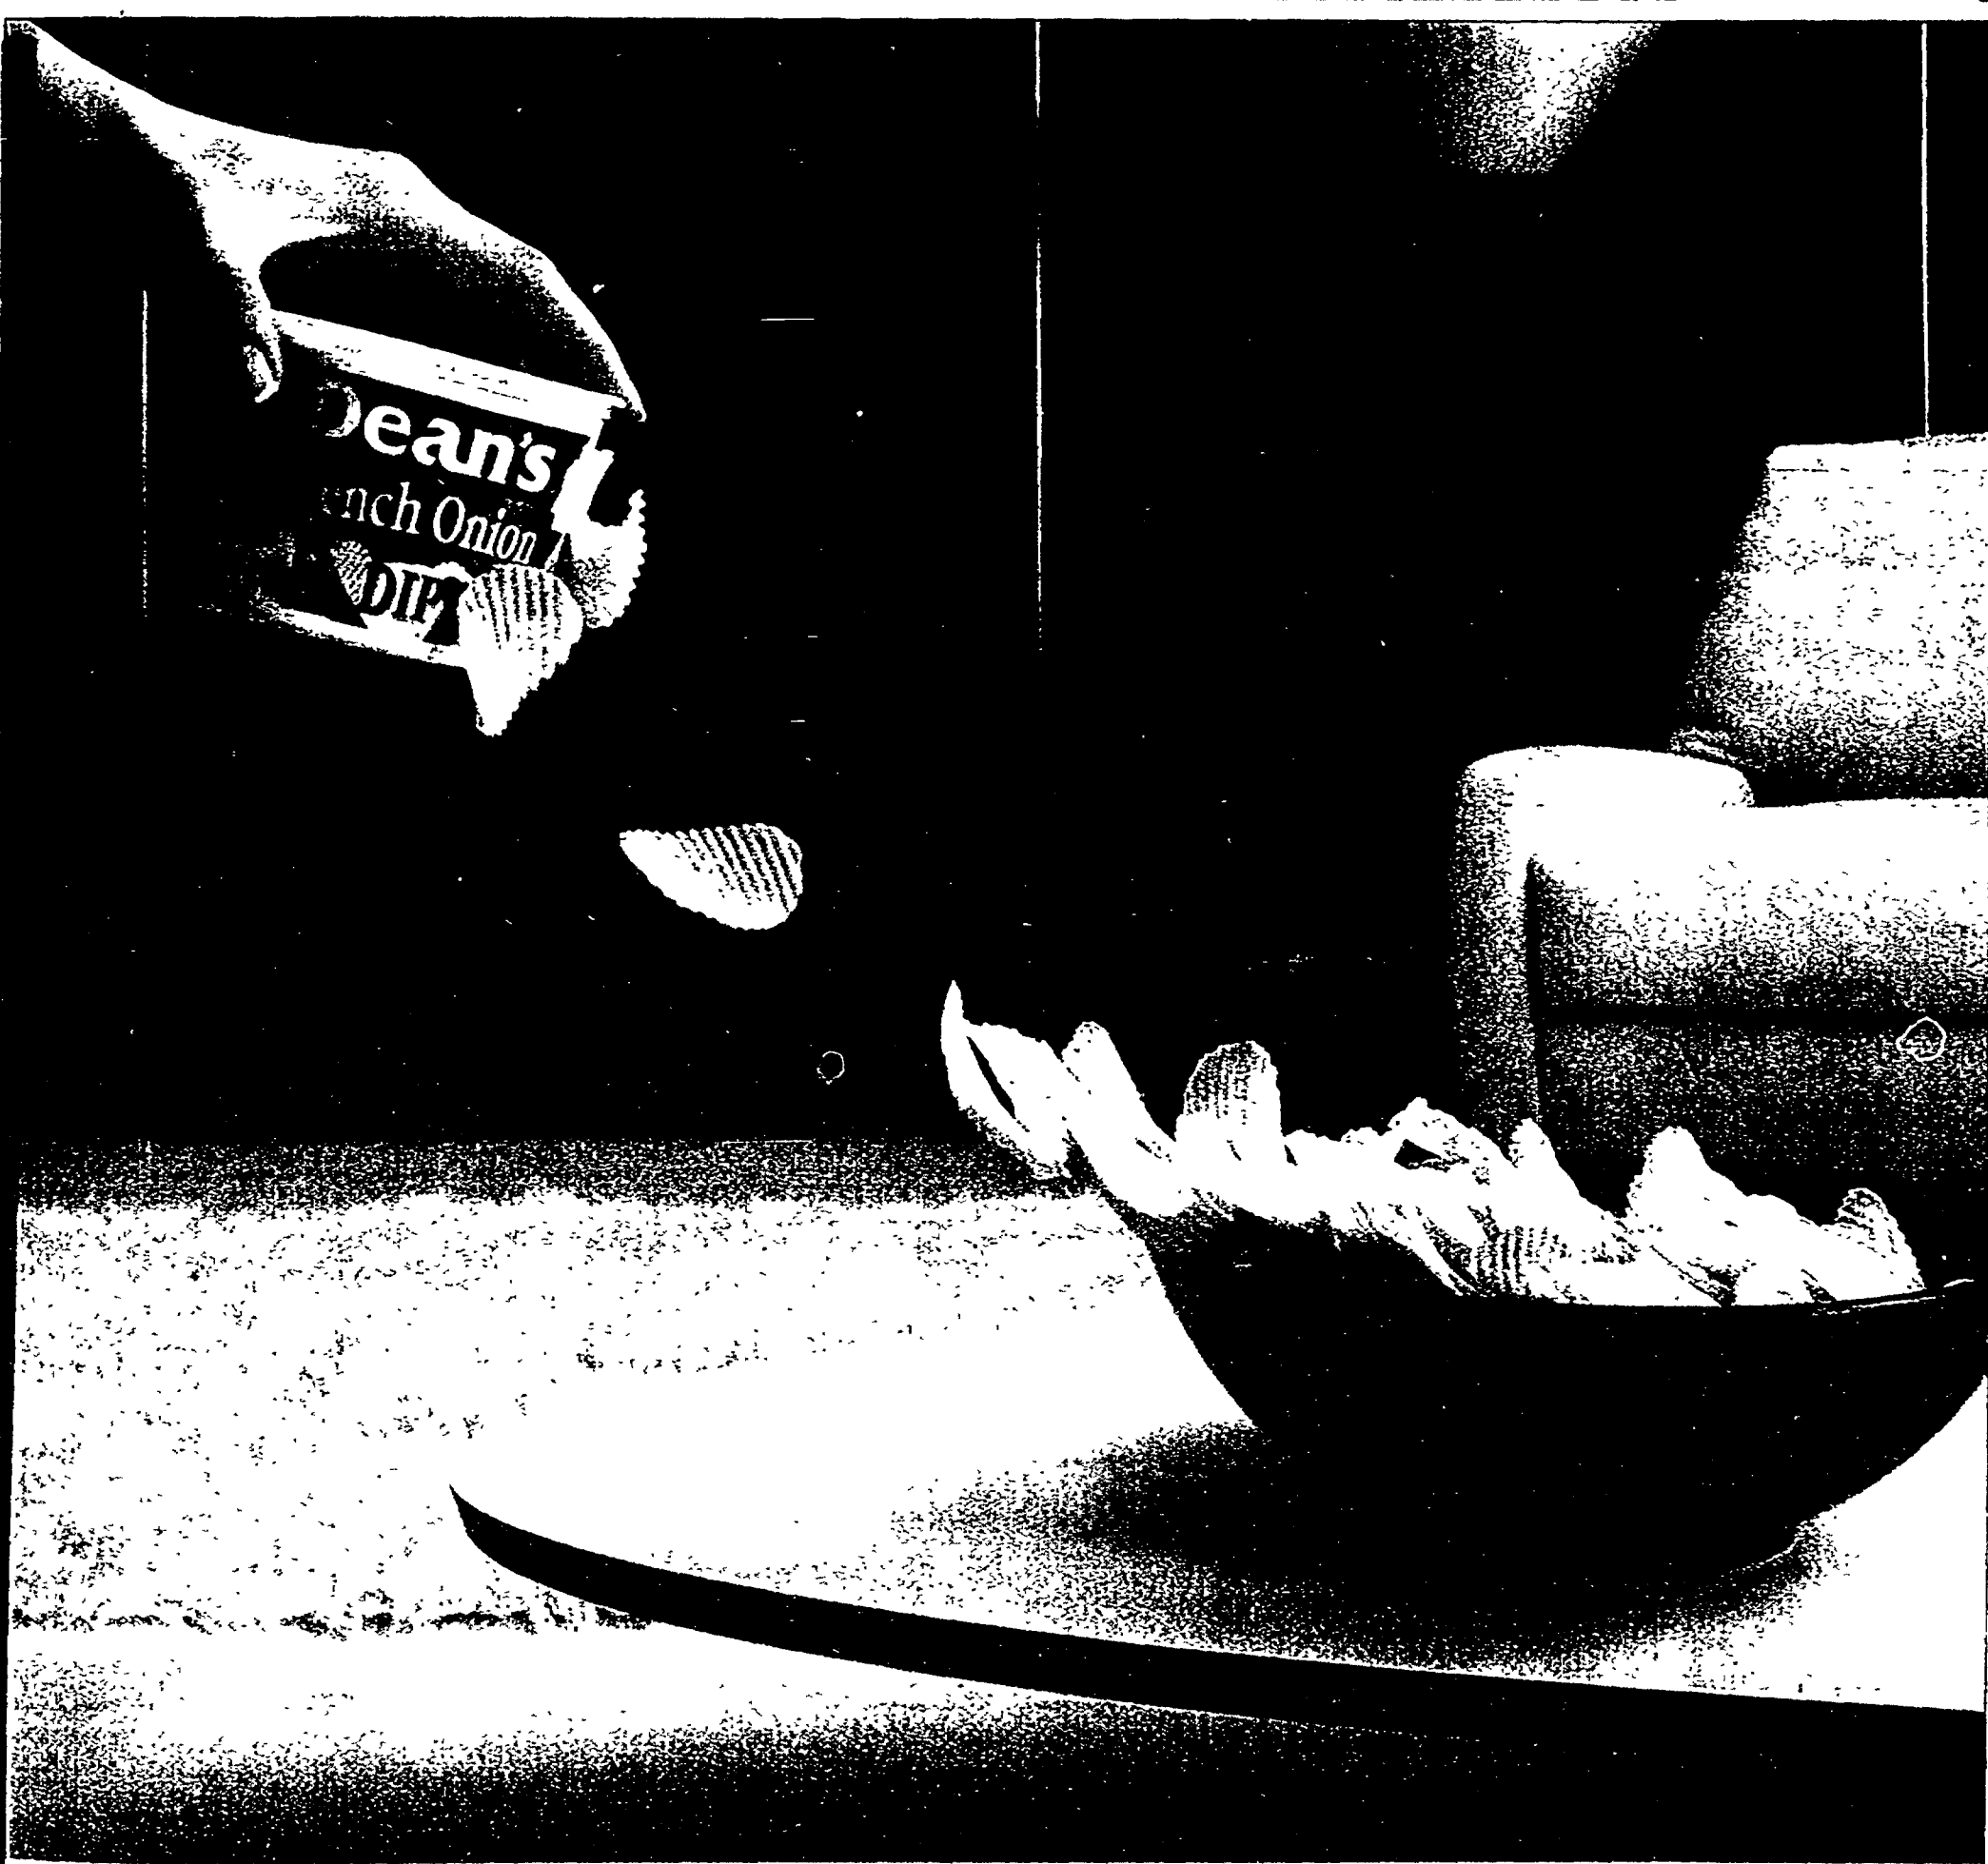

There were other bonuses. Little Cow Mountain Pond, a pristine three-acre area harboring endangered plant species, is now protected. Also, a 200-acre parcel, home to 200-year-old trees, was declared "old growth" and permanently preserved.

The town got together with state and federal folks for—what else—a celebratory potluck. Following dinner, the group hiked to Cow Mountain Pond.

One notable stipulation for Granby's forest: no new trails could be made. Trails were restricted to old logging roads, moose paths, and hiking tracks already in existence. As it turns out, this isn't a burden—there were, and still are, plenty of moose, and residents can walk the Carpenter Trail.

And the community rowboat still is there for all to use. ☆

An ant to a picnic. A bee to honey. A chip to Dean's' Dip. There's no denying an irresistible attraction. Especially when it comes in flavors like French Onion, Ranch, and Guacamole. So when you find yourself drawn to the dairy case and grabbing one, don't be surprised.

Mexican Casserole

I came up with this recipe when I was dieting and looking for something that was simple, filling, low fat—and most of all, tasted good. ☆

RECIPE: Mexican Casserole

- 1/2 cup cooked brown rice
- 1 11-ounce can sweet corn, drained
- 1 14 1/2-ounce can stewed tomatoes
- 1 4-ounce can green chilies, diced
- 1 16-ounce can pinto beans, drained
- 1/2 green pepper and 1/2 red pepper, chopped
- 1 garlic clove, chopped
- 1/2 medium onion, chopped
- 1 stalk celery, chopped
- 1/2 pound cooked lean ground beef
- 2 tablespoons chili powder
- Tabasco to taste (optional)
- Low fat shredded cheese
- Reduced fat sour cream (optional)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Mix all ingredients, except cheese and sour cream, and put in 9-by-13-inch casserole dish. Top with cheese. Bake about 10 minutes or until cheese is melted. When serving, top with reduced fat sour cream, if desired. Note: Vegetables will be crunchy.

Tips From Our Test Kitchen: Add salt, to taste. Try adding 1 1/2 teaspoons cumin as you brown the ground beef. Some may prefer sauteing vegetables before adding to the mixture.

A WORLD WAR II DOCUMENTARY CLASSIC

AIR POWER

Narrated By Walter Cronkite

Air Power was CBS's answer to NBC's highly successful Victory at Sea...the famous NBC series that charted the course of the great conflict on the oceans. The 26-week series Air Power chronicled the impact that the fighting machines of the air had on the outcome of World War II...from Hitler's attempts to conquer Britain by sending the Luftwaffe over the English Channel to bomb London, to the infamous day when Japan's Air Force attacked Pearl Harbor, the invasion of Normandy and the deadly dogfights in the Pacific.

As far as we know, this sought-after documentary was unavailable on video until 1999. The producers of Air Power spared no expense or effort in creating this landmark saga. They went through over 300 million feet of film, including rare German footage and captured Japanese reels. The carefully written script is a masterpiece of historical narration—movingly read by newscaster Walter Cronkite. The resulting series premiered in 1953 and was a resounding success.

Now you can get the entire series on one boxed extra-length tape that runs 6 hours... for only $19.95. So call now to make sure you don't miss out on this special collector's opportunity.

VOLUME 1: THE NAZI WAR MACHINE Long-range bombers and fighter planes changed everything. Relive the war above Europe. 90 min.

VOLUME 2: ALLIED VICTORY American and Allied air forces exploit the incredible military potential of air power. 90 min.

VOLUME 3: JAPANESE CONQUEST Imperial Japan built its air force in secret, then used it to devastating effect in lightning-fast attacks. 90 min.

VOLUME 4: VICTORY FROM THE SKY Outraged and inspired at Pearl Harbor, Americans took to the skies, fighting from island to island. 90 min.
