Township hall on hold

Missed deadlines delay opening

By Kim Kovelle RECORD STAFF WRITER

Nearly four months after it was supposed to open, Northville's new township hall still isn't complete. And after two cancelled opening dates this month, Chip Snider is not a happy township manager.

Upon inspection ... I felt that to occupy this building would be an embarrassment to the township board and to the constituents they serve," Snider said. "It was dusty and dirty. There would have been nowhere up there to store the files. The general overall condition was extremely behind schedule."

Tuesday, he announced the opening of the 40,000-square foot building will be postponed indefinitely.

"It is the opinion of this office that Usztan Construction can complete the building and when its pristine condition suits the board, then we will occupy," Snider said.

Previously, the opening was set for Oct. 11, and then Oct. 18. Whenever the move happens, the old hall and finance and building departments likely will close on a Friday and reopen the following Monday.

The incomplete list includes counters for the ground-floor departments, floor tiling in the lobby and stairwell, toilets in restrooms, heating and air-conditioning systems and outdoor landscaping.

Director of Public Services Don Weaver said when the hall opens it will bring all major township departments under one roof for the first time in more than a decade.

"We're all disappointed we weren't able to meet the deadlines. There's just no area that's done yet," Weaver said. "We want to make sure it's right. They need to have every worker they can muster."

On average, Snider said, 60 workers with Usztan Construction are busy at the building during the day.

Usztan Project Manager Mark Turbeville said he couldn't comment on the delays, but an inspection for a temporary certificate of occupancy was slated for yesterday.

"It's going well," Turbeville said. "It's going to be a beautiful building when it's

The hall is part of a three-pronged project approved by the board of trustees last year. It includes a $6.17 million hall, a new $3.35 million fire headquarters and renovation of the old hall into a police base at $1.63 million.

An additional $3.9 million covers fees and interest on the 20-year bonds used to fund the

Weaver said Usztan's work has been peppered with problems. The original mechanical contractor's bankruptcy early this year prevented closing in the building by winter. Even the arrival of ceiling tiles from Pensacola, Fla. was delayed due to hurri-

Once open, the building will house water and sewer, building and finance, planning and finance departments on the first floor. The second floor will have offices for the manager, supervisor and clerk.

It will contain custom-made carpeting and furniture in the township's trademark maroon

Fronted by a columned facade and stairs, the outside will feature heated sidewalks for winter and a waterfall that will circulate under a bridge connecting the main building to the 132-seat community room.

Township Supervisor Mark Abbo said he was also disappointed.

"It didn't occur through lack of effort," Abbo said, "We'll just make the best of the situation. The building will be opened when, we'll be in a situation to best provide for meeting the needs of our residents."

BUCKLING DOWN: students and homework

For some, parent-teacher conferences yield harsh realities

When it comes to raising grades and making sure assignment logs are complete, educa-tors agree tackling homework is the first step toward an improved academic career.

But being successful at homework goes beyond tutoring. There is more involved in being a homework whiz kid.

Get organized

"I really think kids who take school seriously are organized 99 percent of the time," said Mary Parent, Hillside Middle School math teacher. "And the kids who don't seem to be less organized."

Parent is co-organizer of the middle school's homework helpers program. The program is sponsored by Northville Youth Assistance and is available to all Hillside students at the end of the school day Monday through Thursday.

"Rarely do you see a kid in school who does well and is not organized," Parent said.

The middle school teacher attributes students' less organized habits to a variety of reasons: They are discouraged, frustrated and don't know where to

In response, teachers involved with the homework helpers program discuss discipline, time management and organizational

"Sometimes we will just help them organize their work and teach them how to keep track of things better and teach them some systems that work," Parent said. "If you show them how to manage themselves and make them feel like they have control over the situation then hopefully it will lead to where they feel confident enough to tackle their homework."

At the high school level, using a planner is emphasized as a tool for homework management.

All students are issued a Northville Mustangs planner at the beginning of the year.

Diane Costlow, Northville High School counselor and coorganizer of the school's homework help program, said a good goal for some students is just writing their assignments down.

Main Street project sparks local parking downtown shoppers by requiring local employees to use nearby allday free parking lots.

The Northville Downtown

Development Authority's plan, endorsed by the city council, will remove half of the 60 orange dots from the Main and Wing street lot. Other public parking lots will not be revised at this time, said public works director Jim Gallogly.

The parking shift was prompted by last week's Main Street construction project.

"For many years the owner of this property has let the public park on his land," Gallogly wrote in a letter to affected businesses. But with this new construction, these parking spaces will be gone.

SWEET HEARTS: couple enjoys 70 years as loving married couple daughter, Northville resident Patricia Kilgore, hosted a party of 50, including two sons, Garry and his wife Peggy of Milford and Charles of Connecticut; five grandchildren; and six great grandchildren.

Twenty years earlier, the couple celebrated their 50th anniversary in the newly constructed garage at the Six Mile Road family homestead.

A 1932 graduate of Northville High School, Helen spent most of her childhood in that house, gave birth to her oldest son there and now enjoys a leisurely pace of housework, canning tomatoes, watching daytime dramas and preparing three home-cooked meals

"They don't depend on us for anything," Kilgore said. "They don't go anywhere without each other.

When Arnold drives, Helen is the navigator, she said. But mostly, Helen said, "we're homebodies."

Arnold keeps busy gardening and maintaining the yard in the warmer months and clearing snow in the winter. His preference indoors: any kind of sports. Sometimes he will watch two contests at once and listen to a third, his daughter said.

The couple fondly recalled attending their children's high school competitions --- home and away - in athletics, cheerleading and forensics. Through weekly, and . sometimes daily phone calls, the Hixes keep in touch with their two sons and daughter.

From the time the newlyweds moved from the Hix farm in Gregory in 1935, their lives have intertwined with the area's history. He and she worked at Ford plants in Northville and Plymouth, Arnold worked at the Willow Run plant during World War II, they both retired from Burrough's.

They encouraged their children through Northville Public Schools and watched the community grow up around them

"When I lived here when I was young it was too farm-like," Helen said. "Now, I love it out here."

Forty years of their marriage, the Hix family lived on Rayson Street downtown. The first room they rented cost $10 a month, Helen recalled with a smile.

Amold's older brother Emery and Helen Fleishman's sister. Mabel, matched up their younger siblings. Then-farmer Arnold drummed in a four-member combo as a hobby at the Grange Hall in the Charlston, square dancing and other moves to the "pop" music of the day. At granddaughter Pam's wedding reception in 2002, the pair returned to the dance floor.

One of the couple's favorite stories is when Amold was counting Helen, he serenaded her with "It's only a Paper Moon" during an audition at the Graystone Baliroom in Detroit. A return appearance did not land Hix a job, but his young lady was smitten.

After an 11-month courtship, they headed for Toledo to get married. On the way to their wedding, a flat tire re-routed the nuptials to a justice of the peace in Monroe.

The ceremony during the Depression was without gown, fanfare and photographs. But the vows were for life.

Three summers ago, a lonely widow and widower found love in the most unlikely place: a garage

Northville resident Therese Bock Kurzawa, 67, stopped by to browse.

Therese came with her mother and they went in the garage and shopped around," Bernie said, "She was standing there waiting for her mother. She looked like she was a schoolteacher, and I thought she looked real pretty."

As she headed to her car, Bernie asked his matchmaking sister, Toni Forfinski, why she'd let this candidate slip by. Forfinski literally Therese never bought a thing. Still, she got more than she bar-gained for. She gave Bernie her phone number.

"I figured it was safe because the family that the garage sale was with, they were with Our Lady of Victory," Therese said with a smile. When he asked if she could golf, she said no, but that she could learn. Kurzawa called the next day. On their first date, they strolled downtown Northville.

"I was a little nervous not dating anyone for three years, but he was very friendly," Therese said. "He wanted to hold my hand and we held hands. That was sweet."

Four days later, Bernie gave her a bouquet of yellow roses with a card that read, "Thank you for the last for days. They were wonderful."

He proposed two years ago, and on Aug. 12 they were wed at Our Lady of Victory in Northville.

Establishing a routine when it comes to homework

According to the publication, "Helping Your Child with Homework," issued by the U.S. Department of Education, parents can help their students establish a successful homework schedule.

Steps include setting a daily time homework is done, removing distractions, providing supplies, preidentifying helpful resources and choosing a predetermined study place.

According to the document, a child's homework desk in the bedroom is nice, but for many children, the kitchen table or a corner of the living room works just fine. The area should have good lighting and it should be fairly quiet."

The publication also suggests allowing a child to decorate a special area for homework, adding extra incentive to visit.

Parent said some students participating in the middle school's homework helpers program use the opportunity as a study hall.

They learn good study habits, and I think they realize it is a routine," she said. "They feel comfortable, they stay and they don't leave until they get their homework done. And parents love it because they have somewhere quiet where their kids can able, results oriented and time bound.

"I really think kids who take school seriously are organized 99 percent of the time. And the kids who don't seem to be less organized."

work with less distraction and when they come home their homework is done."

Kathy Michel, Sylvan Learning Center of Novi director, agrees homework should be viewed as an everyday activity.

"I think what parents need to realize is that they are the biggest advocate for their child and they have to be as involved in their education as they are in their health," Michel said Instead of dance class. hockey or other extra curricular activities, kids may come here.'

Study smart

Northville High School offers a "Y.E.S. Peer Academic Mentoring" program, matching high social and academic achieving students with those seeking help. Costlow said one of the program's goals is having students who are looking for homework or grade enhancement help set SMART goals

SMART stands for specific, measurable, attain-

Costlow said a goal for a students struggling in the homework department would be to do better at school, but a SMART goal would be to have no missing assignments appear on their next progress

The counselor said the SMART goal meets the necessary criteria, better ensuring success.

For Sylvan Learning Center, studying smart means offering students a homework support pro-

'We offer homework support for students who are working at grade-level but just need an extra explanation," Michel said. "They are doing fine, but sometimes just what the teacher is offering in class isn't enough for that particular student so they bring their homework in and sit with a different instructor for a different perspective."

Additional suggestions

Costlow said beyond tutoring, other homework help suggestions exist. She recommends taking longterm assignments in steps.

"If a paper is due in three weeks, don't wait until the last minute because that is what a lot of students do," Costlow said.

Another important tip the counselor backs is reading ahead.

Costlow said if students would get in the habit of reading ahead, they would be familiar with the material and able to ask questions during class lectures.

You know how that goes, most kids just sit there and look," Costlow said. "Most kids don't have any questions because they don't know what to ask because the subject matter is all new to them and they have not studied. If a student reads a chapter ahead then when it is presented they are more engaged."

Sylvan parent Adam Mitchell agrees getting ahead

Mitchell said his son's fourth-grade math grade improved from a C to a B-plus after receiving help with his math homework. Costlow also credits the group Making High School Count for some great homework tips.

The group spoke to freshman, sophomore and junior students at the beginning of the school year. "A key suggestion included dividing your notepad in half when taking notes," Costlow said. The group explained on one side take regular lecture notes and on the other side write down questions most likely to appear on the next exam. Costlow said the tip is fun and helps organize students thoughts while studying.

2. Stop trying to be so perfect: Doing something is better than not doing it at all. You can refine

3. Think progressively: By the time procrastination has gotten us into trouble, the tasks may seem insurmountable. Beating procrastination is a gradual process

4. Slice the project into smaller, more manageable pieces. It doesn't have to be done at once Start with a piece of the task so simple

1. Pinpoint the fear: What is that you cannot possibly justify not doing it.

5. Be specific about each piece: "I will read three pages of chapter 6 on Saturday before lunch." rather than "read chapter 6 this week.

6. Make lists of things to be done: And check them off as you complete each one Being able to cross something off often inspires us to do another.

7. Use odd time as an ally: 10 minutes while waiting for a friend or a ride can be used to jot notes about a paper or sketch a plan for a project. Don't expect to get it all done in one sitting.

Students and teachers agree, the keys to maintaining good grades is keeping up with daily homework. Doing so requires commitment, organization and routine. Experts say getting a head start on homework is the first step to getting better grades.

Merit Scholar shares homework suggestions

By Alexandra Hollmeyer SPECIAL WRITER

Homework is a necessary evil, even for National Merit Scholars.

Daina Zeng, a Northville High School senior and National Merit Scholar who carries a 4.0 gradepoint average, said a few simple tips and solid personal study habits are the main keys to academic success.

She said any student can apply these tips to their daily regime. Zeng said homework must become a priority.

"You have to pick and choose," she said. "Prioritize yourself and do the important assignments first."

Zeng said simply completing homework and reading assigned material makes class work easier. Staying calm is key to dealing with heavy homework loads.

"Don't stress out, just take two deep breaths and realize it's not worth it," she said. Studying for tests also ranked high on Zeng's priority list.

You should read and outline the chapter or material you're being tested on and then study night by night," she said. "Also, I always get up a half an hour earlier than usual on the day of a test to skim the chapter so it's fresh in my mind."

Keeping a planner and being organized are other key steps to achieving success, Zeng said. Whether you're a National Merit scholar or not, she said the same stairway to success can be climbed by anyone.

"Always get help, and never be afraid to ask questions," she said.

Senior center works hard to find a use — for all community ages

The facility re-opened in July continues its search for creative ways to pay back $1.44 million worth of municipal markers owed to Northville Township. And though the 15-year, interest-fee repayment plan does not officially begin until fiscal year 2006-07, senior center officials aren't wait-

Officials have already courted suitors interested in renting the facility for parties, family gatherings and wedding receptions. Cost: $700. Officials are also trying to raise revenue via recreational programming and fundraisers.

The quest for self-sufficiency is an inherent part of the agreement which funded the recent $2.9 million renovation.

Funded by money and resources from the City of Northville, the township and the Northville Public Schools District, which rents the old school building to the Northville Parks and Recreation Department for $1 per year, the long-term objective was simple:

renovate the building and create self-sufficient programming.

No easy task, said recreation director Traci Sincock, whose administrative purview also includes the senior center. She said officials are working hard to make the senior center the perfect place for sedate social mingling. wedding receptions and family parties.

Recreation department staff began taking reservations July 5.

In-house calendars show uses including recreation activities, birthday parties, showers, holiday events and graduation parties next June. The center's first wedding reception will be held this week-

"Considering most people plan their wedding a year in advance, I think we're doing great," Sincock said, adding that hosts can shop their own food and beverage arrangements.

So far, rental income is about $15,000, she said, a fledgling amount compared to the $96,000

At Hillside, the recreation department rents the gym and building rooms for specific programs. Rental proceeds help pay hack renovation costs. Currently senior center and recreation department staff are marketing the senior center via brochures, the Web site and word-of-mouth. 'We had to start with something," she said. "There's still not enough knowledge out there. There are still people who have not been in there yet."

Sincock thinks, given time and the right marketing approach, the senior center will soon become a valuable community resource to families looking for a clean, welllit place to hold community-based functions.

But it won't be easy, she said. "Senior programs traditionally don't bring in a lot of revenue," Sincock said, adding recreation activities such as basketball, creative writing, karate will be key opportunities. "That's how you're going to get the revenue to operate the building."

Senior center's first wedding reception set for Saturday

By Maureen Johnston RECORD STAFF WRITER

A toast of cider, the color of cinnamon and long-time local friends will flavor the very first wedding reception to be held at Northville Senior Community Center.

Phyllis Anthony and Heckemeyer Saturday are hosting a celebration for their youngest daughter, Sarah, after her marriage to Leonard Bixby at First Presbyterian Church down the street.

The 24-year-old Northville High School graduate, who now resides in Arlington, Va., wanted to return to her hometown for her wedding, her mom said.

A whirlwind tour by the betrothed cinched the center as the reception site. "She liked it right away," Heckemeyer said. "All three of our kids were born and raised here. She liked the idea of having as much as she can here in Northville.

lt's trying to get as much of a Northville feel as possible."

The mother of the bride has met with parks and recreation staff during the past few weeks finalizing details for the 100person party. "They've been very helpful and nice," she said.

A friend recommended the newly renovated senior community center for the reception,

"When we first looked at it, it was still a lot under construc-tion, no carpet yet even," Heckemeyer said. "This is pretty amazing it looks this good."

Sarah and Leonard's selection of the center has been a change of pace from the two older daughters' at full-service banquet facilities, she said. All took separate calls for entertainment, a cake and flowers, she said.

Bullying bill sees legislative daylight Turning the teasing corner

Stewart pitches bill aimed at thwarting school harassment

By Victoria Sadlocha RECORD STAFF WRITER

Last year, State Rep. John C. Stewart (R-Plymouth) introduced a bill against bullying in Michigan schools.

House Bill 4957 was introduced July, 2003 and referred to the Committee on Education. But it was not until last week the bill attracted great attention.

Stewart said his phone has been ringing off the hook following the publicity surrounding Novi High School student, Alexandra Burris.

Burris became the center of a national

Burris became the center of a national media frenzy following her appointment to the high school's homecoming court.

Rumors spread throughout the school the 15-year-old sophomore was appointed to the court as a prank, largely because she did not fit the trim physical bill of high school royalty. Stewart said the notion is an example of high school bullying and that is why his bill was thrust in the limelight.

"I don't agree with mocking this girl at all,"

Stewart said. "That is not going to help her weight problem."

Stewart said if it is found students were behind the controversy they should be coun-behind the controversy, they should be counseled and sent through sensitivity training. Punishment is part of the representative's

The bill states by May 1, 2005 public school districts and academies must adopt and implement a bullying policy.

According to the bill, "at a minimum, the policy shall define bullying, prescribe consequences for pupils for bullying and establish a procedure for the investigation of a report made by a pupil or employee that an incident has occurred."

Stewart said the concept is simple.

"The bill is based on two old-fashioned rules," he said. "One, you never touch someone else without their consent and two, you don't use vulgarity in public."

Cyber-bullying is another aspect Stewart is proud to tackle as part of his drive.

"What if some middle school boy sets his sights on some middle school girl." Stewart said. "In my generation the girl would say get away from me you pest, go. But kids aren't doing that these days."

Stewart said now, the girl is being propositioned at school and then when she finally makes it home, the propositioning continues through computer instant messaging.

"If you put someone in a very, very uncomfortable situation by your speech, by your repeated contacts, it goes from harassment to bullying," Stewart said. "People have to have someone to turn to."

The representative's decision to sponsor the bill came after the number of problems he heard from teachers, social workers and school psychologists.

"You can call it harasyment, you can call it whatever you want, but the new term is bullying." Stewart said. "We talk about stress relief and drugs and we talk about kids and suicide. What we have got to do is give them a little freer environment to be themselves."

Stewart said he hopes a signature by the Governor will result in reducing the amount of bullying and harassment, raise a level of awareness and send a message there is going to be consequences if people don't go back to the basics.

Stewart's anti-bullying bill sits in the House of Education Policy committee.

"We have a duty to provide a safe environment. A non-harassment, non-bullying environment," he said. "The obese person doesn't need the hassle and the skinny, little person doesn't either."

By Victoria Sadlocha RECORD STAFF WRITER

More than 10 years ago, Northville High School was the site of a homecoming prank.

"One year they (the students) elected a young man who was a special education youngster," said Dennis Colligan, principal of Northville High School.

"A group of guys did the nominating and we had to get involved. It was so similar to how Novi handled it, I think they did a great job. We had to do an interview with the young man and had to interview the young man's parents and make sure they wanted to continue to go through with it.

"And you know what happened? It rallied everyone to be so supportive and to support the situation that it ended up being a real positive and a real positive experience for the young man and he was elected homecoming king."

Colligan said homecoming

events have run smoothly ever

"We have had no problems lately, the kids have been absolutely great," he said. Although recent coverage of homecoming pranks at Novi High School has piqued the principal's attention.

Colligan said the topic has generated discussions in student and administrator circles. He does not anticipate Northville will make any changes, but is examining all ideas put forth in recent weeks.

One idea Colligan likes is having nominees validate their nominations by agreeing to run.

The school's current policy advocates students nominating classmates followed by a voluntary, school-wide vote.

Students wanting to participate may fill out a ballot during their lunch periods.

Firefighters offer safety tips to students

By Victoria Sadlocha RECORD STAFF WRITER

When third-grade students at Silver Springs Elementary School were asked if they slept with their bedroom doors closed, less than half of the children raised their hands.

To Northville Township firefighter, Dan Dipple, the response meant the majority of the class was not practicing the best fire-safety practices.

"You want to keep the smoke out and keep the room very safe," Dipple said. "When the door is closed, smoke doesn't come into your room."

Dipple said statistically rooms with closed doors have nearly one hour before they are in danger, plenty of time for firefighters to arrive and help occupants to safety.

Firefighters said another tip to remember is do not jump out of a window or slide down a gutter, as one student suggested.

The tips were part of a Wednesday, Oct. 6 presentation by members of the Northville Township Fire Department before students of the Northville school during National Fire Prevention week.

Uniformed firefighters discussed the importance of a safe home using the department's Hazard House as a visual aid.

The doll-house size home is a model equipped with many safety blunders, smoke, audible fire alarms and the zapping buzz of electrical mishaps.

Township firefighter Hugh Jordan had the enjoyable job of activating the home's effects, causing jumps and giggles out of the petite crowd.

"We want you guys to be safe wherever you're at, but especially at home," Dipple told the stu-

Students participated in the presentation by placing smoke detectors and fire extinguishers in the house where needed.

"I learned that fire can injure you very badly if you don't get help quick," said Nikola Jaksic, Silver Springs third-grade student. "And I learned things can get electrocuted and catch fire quickly and find a meeting

The importance of having a home escape plan, including a meeting place, was stressed during the presentation.

Dipple said every plan must outline two ways out of the house and include one predetermined meeting place.

"You always want to make sure you have on place to go," he said. "Firefighters need to know everyone is accounted for."

On Tuesday, Oct. 5, township firefighters presented a firesafety program for the school's kindergarten students.

The program was a part of the Springs Elementary Junior Enrichment School Series.

Corriveau hits campaign trail

Northville attorney challenges for House seat, vows reform

By Maureen Johnston RECORD STAFF WRITER

Marc Corriveau wants to tone down partisan divisiveness in Lansing and tune in hometown pri-

The Northville attorney is challenging Rep. John Stewart (R-Plymouth) for the 20th District seat in the Nov. 2 election. His experience representing clients in resolving conflicts has helped prepare him for this new role, he said.

Corriveau, a Democrat, said partisan politics in the state Legislature - like the rhetoric at the national level — prevent con-sensus building that could lead to solutions to real-life issues.

The challenge of rising healthcare costs brought him into the race. "Right now, nothing is being done," Corriveau said.

He said residents need a common-sense approach to providing quality health care and prescription coverage without sacrificing quality of care. As owner of a small business, he said he has personal experience when it comes to making difficult choices.

He said Michigan's high health care costs often lead businesses to find homes in other state. They also prevent Michigan from successfully recruiting new businesses. "We're losing jobs at a critical level," Corriveau said.

Building a foundation

Corriveau said escalating health care costs would be a top legislative priority, if elected. He also favors tax abatements and small business tax credits and would support a bipartisan task force to help Michigan better recruit outof-state businesses.

"Creating a business environ-ment that's friendly will bring businesses into Michigan," he said. Keeping companies in the state would mean creating jobs, growing the economy and spending, which produces taxes that benefit

As a true public servant,

Corriveau said, he will work toward bi-partisan solutions. "Hard decisions need to be made," Corriveau said. "We need to decide what services are important to us, then decide how we're going to fund them."

He said a small group of Democrat and Republican representatives from the Senate, House and governor's office should find a way to tweak Proposal A, the method by which public education is currently funded.

Both sides agree it is not working, he said, "We need to come up with a proposal each side can agree on how to fix it," he said. Corriveau said he would bring a willingness to explore fresh suggestions to the state representative's office.

"We have to be open to the idea of changing it and fixing it," he said. The state needs to act on education before the funding dilemma becomes a crisis like health care has on a national level, he said.

The candidate said he endorses President George W. Bush's "No Child Left Behind" goal of quality education. But the mandate must be properly funded. "We need to equip (school officials) before we hold them accountable," he said.

Willing to listen

Corriveau said he does not have all the legislative answers, but he will work hard to find those posed by constituents.

Police and fire protection, infrastructure and roads remain strong priorities for residents of Northville, Plymouth, Wayne and Canton, Corriveau said. He said people are willing to pay for services they determine are essential.

The job of a good legislator is to have a pulse on what is important, then go and speak up on behalf of those concerns in Lansing, Corriveau said. Balancing the budget also is essential, he said. "Part of the problem is there's not a lot getting done because of a real rift in the state," he said. "It's tangible."

Corriveau said he personally supports Proposal 1, a ballot initiative allowing local communities to decide for themselves if they want electronic gambling. For years, Northville Downs officials have tried to convince the state legislature to allow video gambling at the Sheldon Road racetrack.

Ideally, Corriveau said casinos should be centralized in Detroit. Term limits for state lawmakers are not necessarily the answer, Corriveau said. Continuous turnover in representative positions lends an air of disruption. There also is a disproportionate number of attorneys who take on the job, he said. Law is a profession relatively easy to leave and return.

Corriveau said he takes seriously the impact a state representative can have on residents' daily lives. "What's important to you is important to me," said the father of two. "I know it sounds a little hokey.

You want to put in place a representative who you trust to represent your interests. I think that's what a public servant is supposed

ACT test scheduled for Dec. 11

College-bound high school students can take the ACT Assessment on Dec. 11, the next national test

The deadline for postmark registration is Nov. 5. The late registration deadline is Nov. 18 (an additional $15 fee is required for late registration). Students can get registration materials from their guidance counselor or they can register online at www.actstudent.org.

ACT scores are accepted by virtually all national colleges, including all Ivy League schools. The exam is administered in all 50 states. Students can find the closest testing location by searching the ACT Web ing, mathematics and science. It takes three hours to complete. The test fee is $28. Free sample tests are available from high school counselors and sample questions can be found on ACT's website, which also offers inexpensive practice tests.

Beginning in February, 2005, an optional writing test will be added to the ACT Assessment. Since many colleges will not require a writing score, students will only have to take the writing test if their college requires it. Otherwise, they may opt for the regular ACT Assessment without the writing test.

Students who plan to start college in the fall of 2006 should check with prospective colleges to find out if a writing score is required be asked to approve Proposal 1, a state constitutional amendment that would make it much harder to start new forms of gambling anywhere in Michigan.

If enacted, it would require both a local and a statewide vote in every case before any new gambling would be allowed. That means, for example, that if Hazel Park wanted to add video gaming the so-called "racinos" - to boost the dwindling revenues of its racetrack, it could only do so after both a local and a statewide vote on the matter.

Practically speaking, that would mean no new gambling would ever be approved. And that seems highly sensible at first glance. We've got casinos, racetracks, various lotteries, and scarcely need more ways for people to throw their hard-earned money away.

Yet there is more to this than meets the eye. What this is in fact is a crass attempt by the

The Chippewa Indians, who own Soaring Eagle in Mount Pleasant, have tossed in $3.2 million, and the list goes on.

Nobody wants more gambling. But locking the casino monopoly into our constitution would be both a tawdry precedent and a dangerous one. Gov. Jennifer Granholm worries it might hurt the state's ability to do creative things with the lottery. The Michigan Education Association has similar fears.

New gambling should usually be severely limited, if not prohibited. But doing so is the job of local officials and our state legislators, who get paid to make tough decisions. We don't need the casinos making our decisions for us.

LETTER

Thanks, Hidden Springs!

I just have to tell those who read this paper of the exceptional, loving care my dog "Guncha" received from the staff of Hidden Springs Veterinary Clinic. They cared for her from six weeks to age 13 and, when it came time to let her go, I realized that the staff truly loved her as much as I. With a knowing smile they all comforted me as I cried saying "never again." Three weeks later I walked into the clinic with an abandoned nine month puppy who now needed their care and attention. Somehow they knew. So, to the terrific, caring staff at Hidden Springs I want to say thank you for taking care of my pets, and me.

Proposal 2

This is in response to the editorial in the Oct. 7 issue of the Northville Record about Proposal 2. Without commenting on the proposal itself I do take issue with your statement that the amendment is unnecessary as there is a state as well as a federal law against same-sex marriage. The current Michigan law, with the right combination of Supreme Court Justices, could always be declared unconstitutional, something they cannot do if it is part of the Michigan Constitution.

Also, the federal law didn't stop the courts in Massachusetts from ruling that it is legal. Whether Proposal 2 will pass muster with the U.S. Supreme Court is another story.

Truth about Bush

Yes, the recent letter writer was right. George W. Bush shows consistency and resolve, in other words he is resolute. Bush was resolute in invading Iraq even though there was no evidence that Saddam Hussein was in any way connected to the 9/11 inva-sion or had weapons of mass destruction or the means of making any.

He was resolute in invading Iraq with insufficient troops to guard the country after the expected easy victory, despite the pleas of his generals that more were needed, so now we have a quagmire there. He again was resolute in getting a huge tax cut for the rich with a pittance for the middle class, thereby squandering the surplus funds he had inherited and putting the country into a financial hole. He and his friends and advisers, Chency, Wolfowitz, Perle, and others have all been resolute in avoiding military service for themselves and their children while sending others, mostly from less affluent families to be killed and maimed. In fact, if this movie scenario featuring the strutting, smirking would-be cowboy, George W. Bush were brought to its logical end, we would be seeing the townsfolk tar and feather the varmint and run him out of town.

> Irene Piccone Northville

Your rambling, somewhat incoherent defense of John Kerry is replete with Democrat propaganda, misguided beliefs, Step up, Kerry!

Donald Lindemier's letter to the editor (10-7-04) shows how the left wing of the Democratic party has selective understanding of the facts. Kerry was not sent, he volunteered for swift boat duty. His record in tionable. The medals he received are questionable by other officers and sailors that were there at the time. Mr Kerry has yet to allow his official military record become public. He must sign a Department of Defense form 180 to have them released. It is strongly suspected there is very damaging information in those records that reflect on his honesty and integrety. So far the media has given him a free pass on this. Keep in mind he met with the North Vietnamese delegation in Paris while he was still in the Navy Reserves. This is a court martial offense. The media set up a daily howl until George Bush released all of his records which showed he served honorably. Bush was on active duty for three years as a National Guardsman. It takes two years of intensive training to become a fighter pilot. Bush has over 600 hours as an F-102 pilot. The third year he flew regular missions in support of SAC. This is no small accomplishment. The fourth and fifth years the F-102 was no longer used by the Air Force so he could not do any more flying unless he would re-qualify on another aircraft. He chose not to but accumulated sufficient points by attending meetings to get credit for those years. Two hundred veterans have signed their name to a letter asking Kerry to release his records which he has ignored with apparent approval of the major media outlets.

Cemetery Walk thanks

Society I would like to thank all those who participated in the Oct. 10 Cemetery Walk at Oakwood Cemetery.

Tom Swigart set the tone as "Sexton", aided by Sonia Swigart, sending more than 300 people on a tour of the final resting place of Northville's founding citizens.

Thanks to Shirley Halas, Patti Mitchell, George Fomin, Debbie Eleson, Fred Shadko, Russell Dore', Ann Phillips, Kevin Wine, Bill Basse, Marlene King, Stephanie Flynn, Sherry Underwood, Lizzie Morgan, Melissa Cooper and Alex Draybuck for putting so much effort and enthusiasm in the portrayal of their characters.

The cemetery was breathtaking, lit by more than 400 luminaria, as well as the additional lighting added by each character to set the stage for their presentation. Although the weather was absolutely beautiful, a long night standing in a cemetery was a chilling experience. I hope they have all warmed up by now.

Thanks also to all the volunteers who served as guides and helped with refreshments at the reception held at our beautiful new Senior Center. We also greatly appreciated the donation of all the Voortman cookies from the Basse brothers, Roger and Rick, and the delicious baked goods prepared by Sonia Swigart. Thanks also to Judy Davis, Historical Society Board Member and proprietor of Mill Race's General Store, for her display of books and other items for sale. Thanks also to those who aided in the cleanup effort, both indoors and outdoors, and to the City of Northville for maintaining this historical treasure and allowing us to use it for this event.

Our committee, consisting of Sonia Swigart, Sandy Basse, Barbara Davies, and Mary Harris, worked hard the past few months to make the Cemetery Walk, Arguecess. We thank all those who supported this event and our efforts to keep history alive in

Limit school fundraising

I love the Parent Teacher Association and all they do for our children. I worked with, and belonged to the PTA for almost 40 years. and received their Distinguished Service Award in 1966.

As a school administrator, I would meet with the president elect in the spring of each year, and have a clear understanding of how we could work together for the benefit of the

One thing we always had a clear understanding about was that there would not be any using of the children to raise money for the PTA. The national and state bylaws of the PTA do not encourage activities of this

It appears to me that there are more and more activities where our children are collecting soup labels, selling pizza, etc. as well as Avon products to raise money. Activities of this nature are time consuming on the part of the children and staff at the local schools. Principals are under pressure to cooperate in these endeavors and have a difficult time saying no. I believe a strong directive, from the superintendent, would limit or curtail these activities. In the event the superintendent will not make a directive of this nature the school board must step up to the plate and develop a policy limiting or curtailing activities of this

Rethinking school fund-raisers

Let's give everyone the benefit of the doubt in the mild lingerie flap that emerged recently in a Northville's

Certainly, it was no more some cases, the lottery. than an oversight that items of lingerie — pictured on models - were included in a catalog that was part of a PTA fundraiser.

And just as obviously, the parents who complained had a valid point. Elementary students will be exposed to such views in today's media, but there is no reason for the school to provide the eye candy that can be perused on the bus ride home.

The mistake is easily fixed. It's doubtful there is any lasting harm.

Still, one might wonder if the excitement is misdirected. Perhaps it is time to question the very act of the school fund-raiser, sometimes viewed as little short of extortion by friends, family and neighbors who are plied for donations for candy, giftwrapping paper, popcorn, pizza and, yes, lingerie.

Oddly enough, some felt the mistake was that the children had the catalogs at all. It was the parents, they said, who were supposed to peddle the product. Indeed.

Perhaps it is time to acknowledge that the parents and their would-be customers have already supplied a healthy sum to support public Silver Springs Elementary education through the property tax, the sales tax and, in

> Through such payments, Northville has a funding level better than most schools in the state and much higher than the state average. As such, shouldn't necessary items be included in the school budget rather than sending out student solicitors to ask for more? The total amount raised by these fundraisers can only be a small fraction of the district's $60 million annual operating budget.

If the school board really feels the items purchased by these fund-raisers don't deserve to be in the budget, then the public shouldn't be asked to underwrite such lowpriority items. If they are important, find room in the budget for them, even if it means taking a slightly firmer stance in current teacher contract negotiations.

This doesn't at all negate the fine work done by the districts PTAs. But wouldn't their efforts better serve our students if the PTA could spend more time supporting the classroom and less time selling pizza? Or lingerie?

'No' on Proposal 1

The Michigan lottery is an integral part of education funding in our state. It currently contributes nearly $600 million to K-12 public education. Passage of Proposal 1 on the November ballot would eliminate the ability of the lottery to revise, improve, and introduce new games to remain competitive with other forms of legalized gambling.

There are daily new reports about education budget cuts. Class sizes continue to increase in most districts, pay-to-play sports programs are now common and support staffs are shrinking. At a time when school funding in this state is so critical, I hope the lottery has the ability to do everything possible to increase their proceeds: Any increase in revenues to the school aid fund from any form of gambling will help the children in our public school system and reduce the burden on state support from two governors. John Engler and Jenniser Granholm, and two Wayne County Executives, Ed McNamara and Bob Ficano. and virtually the entire business community, the airport city project has never quite lifted off. Part of the reason is that Ficano took nearly two years after his election to find a new economic development director for Wayne County. He finally recruited Dr. Mulugetta Birru from Pittsburgh, and Birru says he's totally on board with the program.

Let's hope so, because the lack of progress on this is disgraceful. Michigan is bleeding manufacturing jobs

The potential benefits of a first class airport city are overwhelming: In quick passenger connectivity to the rest of the world, in justin-time parts delivery, in the potential for warehousing. for corporate headquarters. for tight links to road, rail and sea transit.

And the project fits today's straitened economic realities. What is needed just now is planning and coordination, which is relatively cheap, not the big-ticket capital investment dollars that neither the state nor the county have on hand.

I asked Prof. Kasarda what the immediate priorities were. They're simple: "First, you have to reinvigorate the marketing of the Pinnacle Project (the 1,500odd acres adjacent to Metro designated as first priority for commercial develop-

You need to put together coherent land use plans and get the local communities involved to realize they're not competitors but collaborators. Without a master plan, you'll get the haphazard. inefficient, uncoordinated land planning that has dogged other airports that have tried to develop on this scale."

I asked Kasarda how long it should take to put a master plan together. "A year to 18 months." he replied, setting out a useful time check for Birru, Ficano, Granholm

However, many of them -

On Election Day, Michigan got on the ballot this fall, including Michigan's - may have effects far more sweeping than their framers intended. The main problem is in the last six words of the amendment - "or similar union for any purpose."

That was clearly meant to also outlaw civil unions between gay couples. But it would also prevent public officials from extending marriage benefits, such as health care coverage, to same-sex partners unmarried employees.

A number of cities, universities and a few private employers provide such benefits now. Some even fear the amendment would also outlaw so-called domestic partner benefits for any unmarried people, even opposite sex couples. That would affect health care coverage for an unknown number of children.

That would mean, of course, lawsuits galore. The Coalition for a Fair Michigan, an ad hoc group of those opposed to the amendment. has been making that argument in an effort to persuade votes that Proposal 2 is bad all activity between same-sex ly what the courts should do.

But that argument isn't working. "I think that marriage is between a man and a woman, period." said Randell Shafer, a Republican candidate for Congress in the hope-Democratic 12th District. Shafer doesn't have a chance, but many who vote against him are certain also to vote against gay marriage.

Surveys have found that black voters, who overwhelmingly back liberal Democratic candidates, are also some of the strongest supporters of the gay marriage ban. Their signatures, many collected in packed churches, went a long way towards helping get it on the ballot.

Some who are bitterly opposed to gay marriage have indicated to pollsters the hope and the mistaken belief that the amendment will outlaw gay sexual activity, period. But even if Michigan voters wanted to do that, they could not. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled last year in Lawrence v Texas that the state could not prohibit sexu-

The hope of those who believe in equal rights for same-sex unions now largely centers on the U.S. Supreme Court. Robert Sedler, a distinguished professor of law at Wayne State University in Detroit, predicts that eventually the high court is bound to decide the issue.

Many lawyers - including some who oppose same sex marriage - think the current amendment is clumsily written and apt to be overturned by the courts, which may rule that it is too vague to be enforced.

But it would be especially ironic if, Michigan voters outlaw same sex marriage this fall, and the Supreme Court later not only overturns the law, but decides that gay marriage is a constitutionally protected right.

Sedler, a Southfield resi-

The professor, who has been married for 44 years and whose children are all married and heterosexual, believes strongly that not only is the current amendment wrongheaded, Constitution should protect the right to same-sex marriage under the equal protection clause. There is no logical or rational reason why marriage should be limited to opposite-sex couples."

Polls show that his is the minority view today. But they also show that the state's youngest voters are in favor of a right to gay marriage. Thirty years from now, Michigan may be a very different place.

as father to their families. Brian Turnbull, who emceed his dad's party, offered a wish for love, great health and happiness. He said it is a privilege to be in the same town, living on the same street as his father.

McGuire, Allen and Turnbull have resided in Northville all or most of their life, raising their families here, operating dairy, monument and electrical businesses and giving themselves in community service. "It's fun to see all the familiar faces — Mayor Allen, Mr. McGuire," said Mike Turnbull, who now resides in Indiana. He recalled fond memories of growing up with his

Just two years after buying the Guernsey Dairy in 1940, the patriarch purchased the Orchard Drive property where he still resides. The day of the party, there was, of course, ice cream with hot fudge for everyone.

Mike Allen, Bruce Turnbull and John McGuire enjoyed time together Sunday at Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall.

McGuire's donation of ice cream at school and to the community was one of the memories the Turnbull boys recalled. As far back as anyone can remember, Guernsey's collaborated with the Langfields, then the Casterlines, to distribute free ice cream after the downtown Memorial Day parade.

On Sunday, McGuire, Allen and Turnbull gamely stepped to the sidewalk outside Genitti's to pose for a photo together. The backdrop for the dapper group was Main Street in Northville.

The highly anticipated Airport Cities Conference at Detroit Metropolitan Airport last week went off without a hitch, and provided Wayne County officials and regional planners a glimpse of what the area around the countyowned airport might look like some day. Airport officials from every continent in the world attended the two-day conference, which explored the concept of airport cities, a phrase that has come to define the way airports and their surrounding environs are developed. Presentations were made about some of the world's most notable examples of airport cities, which have become destinations unto themselves.

Wayne County officials believe the idea of an airport city is particularly relevant to Metro Airport, because of all the development potential that exists around the airport. According to Mulugetta Birru, executive director of Wayne County Economic Development, the county hosted the conference not only to learn from other airport officials, but also in hopes of stirring the interest of local municipalities and the development community.

The whole purpose of hosting this conference was to create awareness among all the stakeholders — the communities, the developers, the vendors, the universities - that there can be an airport city right here in our backyard. People need to know this is a concept that is accepted around the world," Birru said. "We believe the airport cities idea could have major implications on this region."

Birru made a presentation about the long-planned Pinnacle Aeropark project, a state-of-theart business community the county will soon begin developing the project's first phase, covering 150 acres, should begin construction next year. It will be a mix of high-tech and light industrial facilities. In addition, he said there are 25,000 acres of undeveloped land, stretching across six communities between Metro and Willow Run airports, which, if developed correctly, could become a new high-tech corridor unrivaled in the region.

The theme of this conference creating airport cities - really fits with what we are trying to do with the Pinnacle project. Wayne County fits the model. We have 25,000 acres available for development between the two airports, and all the infrastructure in place to support it, including the roads. We just have to have a collective vision to see it come together," Birru said.

The conference also included numerous presentations from local business officials, who said they also have an interest in the development at and around the airport. Doug Rothwell, executive director of worldwide real estate for General Motors, which is headquartered in downtown Detroit, said the automaker is keeping a close eye on what happens around the two airports. In fact, he said GM would offer economic strategies and marketing assistance to the airport communities as they begin to develop all the vacant land.

"GM promotes · economic development. It's in our best interest, because people need money to buy our cars," Rothwell said. "We see the airports as being absolutely critical in the local business atmosphere. If Detroit didn't offer a cargo airport like Willow Run and a passenger hub like Metro, we probably wouldn't south of Metro Airport. He said around the world did some serious note-taking during the two days of presentations. Some said they would take what they had learned at the conference and employ the new economic and development strategies at their > Donald Willis, land acquisition manager for Hartsfield Atlanta International Airport in Georgia, said this was the first Airport Cities Conference he had attended. Based on what he learned, he plans to attend more in the future.

> "For an airport professional this is great, because you get an opportunity to see what other airports are doing," he said. "You're always looking for new ways to increase revenue, so it's beneficial to hear about strategies being employed by others.

Chris LeTourneur, a Canadian who chaired the second day of the conference and is a leader when it comes to planning airport cities. said the event exceeded his expectations.

"I think we added new definitions to the concept of airport cities. Some of the aspects that we explored I've never even thought of," he said.

Now that the conference is over, Wayne County Airport Authority CEO Lester Robinson hopes it will lead to the right kind of development around the two airports.

Will we have strip malls and gas stations? Or will we have carefully-planned, dynamic, forward-thinking development?" he said. "I hope historians will look back at this conference and truly see it as a crossroads for this region."

VISITORS IMPRESSED

Wayne County officials and the other participants who attended the Airport Cities Conference held at Metro Airport last week were dazzled by images of exotic destinations around the globe.

From a beautiful travel video of the Middle Eastern city of Dubai in the United Arab Emirates to striking images of Malaysia's Kuala Lumpur International Airport, which features a Formula One Race Track and an environmental park with numerous recreational facilities, attendees were treated to the sights and sounds that make other notable airports tick.

But what did the visitors, who came from every corner of the world, think of Metro Airport and the Detroit area? Most said they were left with a great impression.

Wayne County officials, who hosted the event, said that's exactly what they were hoping for when they began planning the conference. In addition to being lodged at the luxurious Westin Hotel at the airport's new McNamara Terminal, guests were treated to a cruise on the Detroit River, dinner at the Renaissance Center in Detroit, and a tour of the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn.

Lucianella Corbeddu, head of external relations for the Italian Civil Aviation Authority, which will host the next Airport Cities Conference in Rome, said her impression of the improved Metro Airport and the Detroit area was "quite positive." It was her first time to the area.

'I'm very impressed with Metro Airport. It is a beautiful, modern facility," she said. "And Detroit is a very interesting place. The cruise was nice, and gave a great view of the city. It was just a fascinating con-

Metro Airport, which has undergone $1.2 billion in improvements in recent years, was a highlight for some of the airport officials, including Gordon Falk, head of planning for Canada's Calgary Airport

"It's been great to be here, and hear from all the major players in the airport world" Falk said. "What they've done here in Detroit is just amazing, especially from our perspective, because we have such a small

Dato' Hamid A Moh'd Ali, the general manager of Malaysia Airports Holdings Berhad, which operates Kuala Lumpur International Airport, also visited the Detroit area for the first time. In addition to the other activities such as the cruise, he was able to do some shopping at Fairlane Mall in Dearborn. He said the conference was very good, as were his impressions of the area.

However, Ali said the area is lacking in one aspect: public transportation. "The only problem I noticed is public transportation. We had to take taxis everywhere we went, and that can get very expensive. That is something they should work on," he said.

Township hall construction delay causes election disruption

By Kim Kovelle RECORD STAFF WRITER

Township hall delays have inconvenienced many, but with a major presidential election coming Nov. 2, Township Clerk Sue Hillebrand is really feeling the pinch.

"The goal was to get in there before the elec-tion," Hillebrand said. "That goal's come and gone. It is extremely disappointing."

But she, with the rest of township government, is pulling up bootstraps.

Now the election must be run in the current township hall, so its meeting room will be closed for the rest of the month. Meetings will tentatively move to the new fire headquarters.

"We're going to have to clear it out and have our training here," Hillebrand said. The 130 volunteers needed to run 18 precincts will be trained Oct. 27

The cramped quarters will delay current efforts to renovate the hall into the police headquarters. Also, the township must test its 200 voting booths. That process will take 12 days, but could have been done in six at the new hall, Hillebrand said.

Plus, 20 new machines are on the way. Fortunately, absentee ballots won't be an issue. Hillebrand said 4,000 have been requested - a recent record — but requests are tapering down. The clerk said she's staying focused.

"Everyone's putting on a straight face here," she said. "This election will be fine. You will not see a hiccup. I will guarantee that we will get it done."

"The goal was to get in there before the election. That goal's come and gone. It is extremely disappointing."

For the hall, the township extended an original June 1 deadline to July 20. After that, Usztan has been docked $500 daily for the first 30 days, and $750 per day after that. As of Sept. 30, they've lost $36,000.

For the fire headquarters, the township stretched an Apr. 8 deadline to Apr. 27. The penalties were the same, and Usztan lost $51,750.

The saved money will be used by the township for future costs in the two buildings and the police station.

Hrivnak's 'harried' pace is one for the record books

Senior cross country runner Liz Hrivnak is happy her name will read at the top of the list when it comes to the all-time-best cross country girls at Northville High School.

But Hrivnak is the first to say she would never have gotten there if it hadn't been for a great team to push

"Last year a lot of the varsity runners were injured and there wasn't a whole lot of inter-team competition," Hrivnak said. "You might think that's a good thing, but this year there are a lot of good girls and they are healthy and that has helped push me." Hrivnak set school the record two weeks ago when she competed in the Western Division

Jamboree at Cass Benton park, She finished the course, widely known as one of the more difficult, in 19:13. That time set a new school record by 10 seconds. The former record holder was Heather Moehle, who set the pace in 2001 with a

"Heather was such an amazing runner," Hrivnak said. 'To be up there with her is really cool."

Hrivnak had no idea she was running fast enough to break the school's record. Instead, she felt the hills of her home course were slowing her down.

On the largest hill of the course, one that typically makes or breaks a good run at Cass Benton, Hrivnak said she thought she was running slower than she had in other races.

"I was really surprised it was as fast as it was," she said. "I thought I was going a lot slower."

Hrivnak will have the chance to set an even tougher mark. Not only are the majority of the remaining courses less demanding than Cass Benton, the race at Schoolcraft 'cle. College, where the regional will be held, is on a nearly flat course.

"I'm hoping to run in the 18s," she said. "Even if it's the high 18s, I just want to break 19 minutes."

The senior harrier keeps her excitement subdued. To many, it seems as though she's more interested in talking about how well the team is doing instead of her personal accomplishments

The girl, she's wonderfully humble, for a lack of a better term, said Hrivnak's mother, Diane. "She revels in everybody else doing well.

Hrivnak's Jamboree run was one; for the record books - and one finished with a smile on her face.

"Her dad is always saying she better be smiling, so she knows he's enjoying it," her mother noted.

Now, Hrivnak looks to the conference and the regional tournaments to see if she and her team have what it takes to earn a couple of titles and a benth to the state finals meet. The finals are held in Brooklyn, Mich.

That would be really cool," Hrivnak said of making a finals trip. "I haven't gone before. The team hasn't gone for the past two years. I think it would just be an awesome way for everyone to end their sea- 1

Hrivnak has applied her cross country work ethic to her classroom work as well. She maintains a 3.8 grade-point average and currently takes four collegiate-level classes.

But she has no intention of running in college, despite offers from various institutions. "I just want to focus on my academics," she said, indicating she's likely to attend the University of Michigan. "I don't see running as a career opportunity for me. Even though I like it a lot, I want to focus on my academics and sports just seems like it will get in the way of

For Northville senior soccer captain Phil Yutzy, dairy is a word synonymous with mira-

Yutzy was diagnosed with a broken foot folowing an injury on the pitch against South Lyon Aug. 28. The doctors weren't very optimistic, telling him he would have to wait at least two weeks before he could walk on it

"I actually recovered quicker than they said I would," Yutzy said, noting he has been cleared for light practices just over 30 days.

The reason? He attributes a lot of his recovery time to the calcium-giving properties of

"I've been drinking a lot of milk, "he said 'We call it the 'dairy diet.'' The idea was actually one stemming from his coaching staff. Head coach Henry Klimes, who operates the Trading Post in Plymouth, had an employee who broke his collarbone and was out of hockey for what was expected to be the majority of the season. He drank a gallon of milk a day and recovered much quicker than expected.

Yutzy, however, isn't pounding back a gal-

"He's been doing the half-gallon deal," said Klimes "I know he's drinking as much as he can and getting as much calcium as possible." The senior midfielder has also spent a lot of activities such as water running, treading water and swimming laps.

He said that with the work he has been doing in the pool and the recent release he received from doctors to start non-contact drills with the soccer team, he will be ready to enter the game come the district tournament.

More importantly, Yutzy wants to make sure he's on the pitch if his team ends the season with a loss or with a win.

"That's the dream," he said. "I want to just be able to play in my last game. I'm not one for a spectator sport.' The Mustangs are looking forward to having him back as well. As a captain and a senior, Yutzy is widely recognized as one of the most formidable players on the team. "It's going to be a huge lift," Klimes said of when the midfielder gets to play again. "A senior captain with his skills and his capabilities, anyone would like to have Phil on the pitch." Being on the sideline for much of the season has found Yutzy cheering his squad on through their undefeated regular season, a division championship and the first-ever first-place ranking in the coaches' association polls. He has, however, made sure to stay an active member of the program. During practices he was shouting directions and giving tips to the more inexpenenced players and during a game he was just as vocal and supportive.

Mustangs topple Vikings, 4-0; win division title

By Sam Eggleston RECORD SPORTS WRITER

It was the first title in what could prove to be a long road of them.

The Northville Mustangs boys' soccer team, coached by Henry Klimes, secured the Western Division championship with an undefeated run through the regular season and a victory over the Walled Lake Central Vikings, 4-0.

The win came from the play of a very deep bench and a remarkable performance from junior Mike Comelius.

"Mike played an outstanding game for us," said Klimes. "Even though he only played about half the game because of a tender ankle, he did a great job. He helped keep the machine rolling."

That's the Mustang Machine, for those wondering. Klimes is well aware his squad needs strong back-ups to keep the winning rolling along like a well-oiled machine. He definitely

Running for glory Sixth-ranked girls harriers out-pace rivals, gear up for states

By Sam Eggleston RECORD SPORTS WRITER

The Northville Mustangs girls' cross country team took the opportunity to scout their main competition for the Western Lakes Activities Association meet and the regional - and they beat them headto-head while they were at it.

Last Saturday the Mustangs proved why they are currently ranked sixth in the state by the coaches' association by beating rivals Churchill and Salem in the Oakland County meet. The Mustangs earned 48 points while Churchill finished second with 52 and Salem was third with 61.

'Northville was prepared to go out and run their best today and show the others what they're made of," Nancy Smith said.

Liz Hrivnak was the overall champion of the meet, running a career best time of 18:56 to shatter the school record and place her name above everyone else.

Her lead was followed by her fellow harriers. Molly Gavin notched a sixth-place finish in 19:33, while Kate McClymont ran a 19:38 for seventh. Not far behind was Bryn Smetana, who ran a 19:58 for 11th while Mary Sprader ran to a 23rd-place finish in 20:43 and Megan Sheremet ran a 20:59 for 25th. Rounding out the Mustangs was showing Hardenbergh, who collected a 30th place with a time of 21:21.

"All seven girls received medals and Liz, Molly and Kate were honored with first-team Wayne County," Smith said. "All seven of these girls did an outstanding job today."

Northville prepped themselves prior to the race.

"Before the race we talked about what we had to do and they put their hearts into this race and succeeded," Smith said. "All season we have been working on getting our top five in the 19s and today we managed to get four of them there. The girls worked throughout the entire race, picking off some of their

The Northville boys' cross country team did some winning of their own, earning the top spot in the John Glenn Freshman-Sophomore Invitational held at Westland Central City Park.

The team collected 21 points to win the seven-team event. Jasen Turnbull was the overall winner of the race with a Northville school record time

Two big wins for cagers

The Northville Mustangs girls basketball team earned two convincing victories last week when they took on and defeated Walled Lake Western and Livonia Franklin. 48-27 and 38-25, respectively.

Against Western, the Mustangs pounded out their win with impressive interior shooting. Danielle Toney led the team with 11 points while Chrissy Castelli added seven and Heather Cox scored six. "I'm pretty happy," Northville coach Pete Wright said when asked how he felt with the way his bench is playing. "We've been working through some injuries and we've got some people playing out of position. I'm pretty happy with how everyone is contributing.

Northville was lucky enough to have Castelli back to play down low after coming off of a knee injury, but they are still without Emily Weaver in the post.

Leading the team in scoring was Karchon, who netted 14 points, while Simone Toney added 10 - including two threepoint field goals.

In both victories, Northville was able to play every cager that wasn't injured.

"I think anytime you get everyone involved it makes for a lot of good things in practice and in games," Wright said. "This team is good in that respect. They come to practice working hard every day.

In the pre-season, Northville tennis coach Sandy Woolfall was told her team was ranked as one of Michigan's top 10 teams.

one of Michigan's top 10 teams.

She questioned the early rankings. And wondered upon what, besides a crystal ball, such num-

The prophecy is proving true.

The Mustangs, undefeated in dual meets and owners of several tournament titles, made another statement at last week's tennis regional. The Mustangs earned a berth to tomorrow's state finals tournament. Friday's winners advance to play Saturday.

"We're really excited," Woolfall said. "We had a clean sweep of the regionals. Everyone played very well. I thought we could do it and we did it."

The girls thought they could do it too. Every flight for the Mustangs earned a regional championship. That accomplishment came on the heels of division and conference titles during the past two weeks.

Now the girls will try to keep their magic season alive

"I was at the seeding meeting (Monday) and we actually got some seeds this year, which is a change for us," Woolfall said. "With those seeds and possibly a little luck in our draws, I think we can really make a statement up there. Hopefully, we finish in the top three."

Colts run away from Faicons,

The junior varsity Northville Colts used a solid running game and a team effort last week to run past the Livonia Falcons, 36-0.

The Colts' (4-1) started the game with key runs by quarterback Brett Gardner and fullback Jeffrey Hewlett. Runningback Jonathon Alandt scored on a 20-yard run, sprung by tight end Drew Baldwin's punishing block.

Victor Bodrie added the pointafter conversion to give the Colts an 8-0 lead.

A solid team defensive effort featured linebackers Michael Bagian, Ken Campbell and Eric Hutting and linemen Blake Bonatz, Cody Schwartz and Steven Toth.

Gardner started a second-quarter drive with a 15-yard run, hurdling tacklers, then hit Hewlett on an 18yard pass. Alandt capped the drive with a 15-yard touchdown run behind a blocking of tight end Daniel Brenner and flanker Joel Pennington.

Bodrie added the point-after conversion and gave the Colts a 16-0 lead. Defensive standout Michael Sugawara and ends Max Williams and Michael Walukas each made big plays to shutdown the Falcons next drive. Connor Pollifrone made a big fourth down stop for the Colts. On the next play, Alandt didn't waste any time for the Colts going 68 yards on a sweep for his third touchdown of the game.

Hewlett ran in the extra point and the Colts were up 23-0.

The Colts' offense didn't slow down in the second half. Following runs by Ryan Bailey and quarterback Dawson Laabs, tailback Connor Pollifrone broke free for a 30-yard touchdown run: Laabs found Trevor Maresh for the point after attempt that gave the Colts a 30-0 lead.

Laabs continued to run and pass the ball effectively behind his offensive line of Garrett Wiska, Bradley Stegmeyer, Matthew Sopha, Nick Mencotti and Collin Koschny, Tight ends Marshall Williams, Maresh and Max Williams and flanker Emily Foland also blew open big holes for Colts' backs. Pollifrone ended the scoring on a 20-yard pass from Laabs.

The defense preserved the shutout behind Brad Currier, David Francis, Kyle Hammer and Andrew Kowalski. The Colts next game is 1 p.m., Sunday at Hillside Middle School Field against the Novi Bobcats. The Colts and Bobcats will celebrate homecoming.

Freshmen Colts lose, 33-7

The freshman Colts suffered an overwhelming loss to the Livonia Falcons Saturday at Livonia's home field.

The Colts started strong when quarterback Cameron Thomas passed to Robby Parks, who ran 55 yards for a touchdown. Parks then ran in the extra point, giving the Colts an early 7-0 lead.

Great tackles by Thomas By Sam Eggleston Huber, Rini Jusufi, Ryan Gardner, Tyler Gozdor, Mark Guidobono, Kyle Heinz, Brock Drogosch and Julian Gjonaj allowed the Colts to take over on downs. During its next possession, the Colts maintained control with three more completed passes by Thomas and big gains by Sam Tacconelli and Offensive players Greg Stewart, Kyle Clary, Alex Carson, Tyler Kwasny, Jude Jordan, Nick Koehler, Lincoln Boutilier, David Blough, Jack Ellis and Chris Komorous contributed to the first quarter success.

But the second quarter featured a Falcons kickoff return touchdown and a fumble recovery for another touchdown. Colts Chad Berryman, Taggart McCreadie, JT Kahn, Benny Marsalese, Gozdor, Drogosh and Clary played solid defensively. The Falcons added another touchdown late in the third quarter. Despite strong efforts by RJ Holloway, Kyle Brenner, Sean Wagner, Jake Slominski, Max YanAntwerp, David Borthwick and Robby Sneed, the Colts fell, 33-7.

Special Kay

Sidelined Mustang takes field — via teammates

By Sam Eggleston RECORD SPORTS WRITER

Every time a Northville Mustang football player scores a touchdown or makes a tackle, Number 80 is there.

Though he can't suit up and be on the field with his teammates. each player makes sure Kevin Kay is somehow with them. Kay has suffered injuries to his shoulders which keeps him from playing. His teammates, however, wear his jersey number, 80, on their arm bands, shoes or gloves.

"It means a lot to me that they want me out there with them," said Kay. "The guys mean so much to me. They think of me as their friend on the field. No, they think of me as their comrade, a fighter on the field with them even though I'm not."

The beginning of the end

Kay's injuries began while he was a member of the junior varsitv team. In his second game, he dislocated his left shoulder during a punt.

"After that I came back and I lifted all of the off season to get myself ready," said Kay.

The work didn't seem to be the answer. The next year, he dislocated his left shoulder again.

Kay said at that point doctors became more involved. They told him that due to damage done to the cartilage and muscle tissue a surgical operation on the shoulder would be best. Afterwards, he did four months and was determined to make a come back.

Once again, Kay lifted weights during the off season, building himself back into playing shape and preparing himself for his senior season.

And then it happened.

"During the first day of pads I dislocated my right shoulder,"

Kay said.
The risks were now too severe. If he dislocated his left shoulder again he'd be looking at another operation. If Kay dislocated the right a third time, the damage could be severe.

"I basically spent three years working toward playing football and I won't even be able to play," said Kay. "It was like a slap in the face.

But his teammates are trying to make him a part of the victories nonetheless. Northville went from winning only two games last year to a winning record so far this season. They've turned the program around and Kay finds himself on the sidelines watching each game.

There hasn't been much in Kay's life that hasn't been a challenge. At 12, Kay received the news that no one ever wants to hear — his dad was dying.

Though his father is gone, Kay said he is always watching. Such a belief stems from Kay's strict faith as a Christian - something that may have wavered slightly when his dad died. It's strong once again.

"I was obviously angry," he said. "I kept my faith though and it has helped make me the person I am today."

Kay knows Northville football has seen its share of hard knocks

"Football symbolizes my life," he said. "There has been lots of heart breaks, but we're stronger as a team because of it."

A father figure

Kay hasn't been without a father figure in his life, however. In many ways, head coach Clint Alexander has filled the role.

'Coach Alexander has really filled in for my father," said Kay. "He has comforted me and encouraged me. He's a lot like a father. He's someone to talk to and someone to share things

His teammates also offer unconditional support. Friendship fills the gaps life has left behind.

"I know Coach Alexander and the guys on the football team aren't my father, they never can be," said Kay. "They're great though. I love all of them like winning combination

Yutzy returns; Hannah lost — maybe for six weeks

RECORD SPORTS WRITER

As the Northville Mustangs soccer team prepares to get senior captain Phil Yutzy back from an injury, they've lost senior captain, James Hannah to one.

Hannah, who is a candidate for Mr. Soccer this season as well as the team's leading scorer, was told last Friday that he could miss up to six weeks of soccer — but only three weeks remain if the Mustangs manage to make the state finals.

They said I should be able to play in four to six weeks," said Hannah. "At that point, it's over. I think I'll be ready when it feels good enough to play."

The injury occurred last Thursday during soccer practice. The team was having a typical scrimmage when Hannah's leg got wrapped up with another player's and he felt a pop.

"When I heard it pop, I knew something was wrong," he said.

Hannah is confident he'll be return before the end of the postseason, if his team advances. The Mustangs won two games last week without him, beating both Salem and Walled Lake Western. Hannah was on the bench after getting a red card, an automatic ejection and one game suspension.

Northville coach Henry Klimes is confident his top scorer will be back. "I've seen sprains before that look much better in a week," he said. "I've been told James is a very quick healer and if his mind is set on playing he'll return." Until then, he plans on running in the pool and treading water. Hannah said he will also do cardiovascular exercises that won't put weight on the ankle and sit-ups. "I'm going to be back," he said. "I'm not going to end my senior season on the bench."

Northville earns playoff stripes against Zebras, 42-24

By David Aguilar RECORD EDITOR

Amid an autumm rain shower, the Northville Mustangs earned a state playoff berth last Friday, defeating the Wayne Memorial Zebras, 42-24.

"This is very satisfying," head coach Clint Alexander said, "Moreso for the kids. They have worked so hard for this."

The Mustangs (5-1) last qualified for the state playoffs in 2002. During each of the last two seasons the team has won two games.

Friday night the Mustangs ruined the Zebras' homecoming party early when runningback Mac Stilec capped a game-opening touchdown drive. A two-point conversion made the score 8-0.

Stilec and junior quarterback Charlie Thomas added first half touchdowns, giving the Mustangs a 21-6 lead.

The tandem then added second half touchdowns, along with runningback Cody Sivic.
"It was all business," Alexander said. "We needed this win. Now, they're starting to believe."

He said more work is ahead. "We've got two big games ahead of us (Livonia Stevenson tomorrow night and Novi for the battle of the Baseline Jug the week after).

"The jug is probably as important to these kids as the playoffs."

Alexander said the 2004 Mustangs have proven themselves

"I just really believed this was a special group of kids," he said. "They just really came together, and I am very proud of them."

By Sam Eggleston

The Northville Mustangs football team may technically be playing for third place in the conference, but in the hearts and minds of the team's players they are shooting for second.

The team, coached by Clint Alexander, will play host to the Livonia Stevenson Spartans tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Western and Lakes Division crossover game.

The Mustangs (6-1 overall; 4-1 Western Division) will have to beat the Spartans (6-1; 4-1 Lakes Division) if they hope to be able to make a case for second place. John Glenn is first in the Lakes Division and Canton is first in the Western Division. The two teams play for first place in the WLAA tomorrow.

"We beat John Glenn head to head," Alexander said. "If we beat Stevenson, that would technically make us second in the conference. I don't think anyone would have predicted us to be second out of 12 teams this year."

But beating the Spartans is key. Northville will have to employ their spread-offense strategy against a team that has also learned how to effectively pass the ball.

"They are definitely trying to throw more," Alexander said of the traditionally run-based Spartans.

The Mustangs don't plan on changing their practice routines for the Spartans But Alexander said getting a win is priority one.

"Right now we feel if we win out we'll be first or second in our (playoff) district," he said. "So, we're going to be looking to win."

chad Casey. His favorite target this season has been wide receiver Trevor Hearns.

The Mustangs, however, are the perfect example of passing in the WLAA this year. Charlie Thomas, the team's junior passer, leads the entire conference in passing with 889 yards. Receiver Mike Jameson is second in the WLAA in yards Northville also brings a steady rushing attack. Senior Mack Stilee has gathered 654 yards on the ground while Thomas has sprinted for 514 this year.

Stilee, however, has been injured with a sore hamstring the past two weeks and has seen limited playing time.

"He'll be back for us." said Alexander. "But if we find that we're in a position where we don't need him we're not going to push it. Cody Sivic is capable of running the football and is averaging something like eight yards a carry."

Northville's defense will be looking to get some credit too. Joe Perpich leads the league in sacks with four, while Joe Prain is tied for second with three and Andrew Kirby has two

Got fired? Start a small business

Getting fired by Donald Trump before a television audience of 20 million people might be painful for those getting the boot, but they should be consoled by the fact that Americans hold a favorable view of those who pursue a career in business, even when they aren't successful.

Although small-business owners can't get fired. they sometimes fail. But even failure, they continue to be viewed as good guys. The public, by an overwhelming majority nearly 90 percent - consider bankruptcy a good-faith effort that just didn't pan out, according to a recent public opinion poll, "The Public Reviews Small Business." conducted by the NFIB Research Foundation.

The poll revealed that the nation enjoys a culture that strongly supports small business and entrepreneurial activity. Those favorable opinions have a significant influence on the ultimate success of small firms.

Getting ahead in this country demands perseverance, sacrifice and a strict focus on one's goals. Along the way, there are certain to be setbacks and challenges, especially by those who take the path of entrepreneurship.

If you want to get ahead in America, own a small business. Two-thirds of Americans hold that view and it's even stronger among the nation's minorities, 81 percent of whom see business ownership as an avenue to opportunity. What's more, an overwhelming majority of Americans — 90 per-cent — would approve if a daughter or son started a small business.

Sorry, Donald, but the public by a large margin believes that small business exerts an even greater positive influence on the nation than television. Actually, small business ranks well ahead of many major institutions including higher education, federal government and even big business. And here's a heads-up to politicians in this election year: 67 percent of those surveyed said big business has too much influence on the way things are going in America and 58 percent believe small business has too little sway.

Public support is vital to those who take the entrepreneurial plunge because it influences the number and type of people who attempt to start businesses and often they will try. Additionally, it shapes the formal and informal rules that govern commerce.

Why does the American public have such a close bond with small business? Because many have "been there, done that." One-infour Americans have been selfemployed full time at some point in their lives; over half have had a direct association with private business ownership and operation. Many have worked in small firms and many have personal relationships-particularly friendships-with small-business owners. Most Americans think smallbusiness owners possess desirable personal attributes. Ninety-one percent of those surveyed say these business people work harder than people like themselves, and 82 percent believe that the owners of small firms contribute more to the betterment of the community than they do. So would-be apprentices, don't sweat Mr. Trump's pink slip. Take your entrepreneurial skills and join the growing number of men and women who are starting their own small businesses. Americans will applaud you for it.

Jack Faris is president of NFIB (the National Federation of Independent Business), the nation's largest small-business advocacy group. A non-profit, non-partisan organization founded in 1943, NFIB represents the consensus views of its 600,000 members in Washington, D.C., and all 50 state capitals. More information is available on-line at www.NFIB.com.

Michael and Patrick Rugg are carpet and duct cleaning specialist. Ducts and ventilation systems should be cleaned every seven to 10 years, and Rugg Brothers has the experience, equipment and expertise to do the job right.

Advertorial

Brothers have answers to cleaning

The sad news is, we can't always control how much air pollution there is in our cities. The good news is, we can control how much indoor air pollution there is indoors, inside our homes, offices and other indoor areas we use frequently. One of the ways to control indoor air pollution is by regularly cleaning your air ducts. The term "ducts' refers to various components heating and cooling components of forced air systems around your house, such as:

. Supply and return air ducts and registers

• Grills

Diffusers

• Heat exchangers

 Heating and cooling coils Condensate drain pans and

drip pans
• Fan motor and fan housing

Why clean your ductwork?

Patrick Ruggiero says Since the ventilation system/ duct work is often the biggest culprit in poor indoor air quality, inspecting the ductwork should be the first order of business. In most cases, this system has been operating for some time without much attention. Dirty ducts can circulate odors, contaminates like mold, and irritating dust, dust mites pollen and dander throughout your building or home. Recently found items in duct work such as beer cans, bottles, glass, saw dust, rocks, sand other construction debris and one dead mouse.

Think about this. Do not vacuum under your bed for five, 10 or 15 years and see what would accumulate. That is what is found in duct work.

How much of a difference does duct cleaning make?

Rugg Brothers says, you would be amazed and they even offer to show you how dirty they

How often should your duct work be cleaned?

Michael Ruggiero answers: "If the ducts in your house have not been cleaned in seven to 10 years it is time to get them cleaned."

Does every house need to have their duct cleaned?

Patrick and Michael Ruggiero both answer, no do not have the duct work cleaned until it has been inspected. Rugg Brothers will give you a free duct work cleaning inspection.

Where did Rugg Brothers learn to clean duct work?

Michael Ruggiero states, "While enlisted in the United States Navy I was a Hospital Corpsman and while on board a ship he learned how to clean duct work. It is a necessary task to clean the duct work every three months to ensure healthy living and preventing fuel (such as dust) for a fire to run through out the ship. But, a house only needs to be cleaned every seven to 10

Be careful when hiring a duct cleaner.

Michael Ruggiero states "I have been to customers houses just after they had their ducts cleaned, and when asking the homeowner how they did it, they said they used a leaf blower and shop-vac." So make sure you hire a company that has invested time and money in the equipment and that their employees to do the job right.

How long should duct cleaning take?

Patrick Ruggiero answers, "Duct cleaning done the right way in a 1,200-square-foot house should take about two to three hours."

How does Rugg Brothers do their duct cleaning

The duct work is inspected at Rugg Brothers can clean the duct system of a 1,200-square-foot home in two to three hours. Reach the company at 248-446-2008.

· An access hole may be needed in the main duct run (varies by

· They use a patented equipment that scrapes the lining of the duct work and follows all contours of the duct work.

• As the duct brush is scraping the lining, all debris is being removed by the powerful truckmounted equipment.

• The process is done throughout the house.

• The furnace filter is checked and turned back on.

· All vent and grill covers are replaced. In addition to ridding your home of the hidden dirt in your ventilation system, cleaning your air ducts can save you money by increasing the efficiency of your heating and air conditioning system. It can also help prolong the life of your expensive HVAC components. Air Cleaning Systems strives to provide you with the highest level of service available in the industry. Our service technicians are trained to protect your home and perform the job in a clean and efficient manner. When inside your home our technicians wear booties to ensure they will not soil your carpets. To avoid leaving fingerprints on your walls, they wear surgical gloves when cleaning your vents. When cleaning your HVAC system we are thorough and we never rush through a job. Since most of the dirt in your ventilation system is hidden, it could easily be overlooked during the cleaning process. To prevent recontamination of your system it is important to remove all the contaminants from the site and not just mask them with chemical sprays and deodorizers.

When does duct cleaning make sense?

There are several situations when duct cleaning could make sense If you have a problem with water in your ducts, this may result in mold growth in the duct. In this situation, solve the water problem first, clean and disinfect the ducts where mold growth has occurred, and have the rest of the ducting system cleaned as well. In some cases, it may be necessary or more cost effective to simply replace the affected duct

· If you are moving into a newly constructed house, and have doubts about the diligence of the construction crew, duct cleaning can be useful. Drywall dust, fiberglass pieces, and sawdust have no place in ducts. Duct cleaning will also catch the occurrence where lunch bags or soft drink cans have fallen or been swept into ducting. For similar reasons, duct cleaning may be advisable for older houses following major renovations.

· If you are having trouble with furnace airflow, a duct cleaning could reveal significant blockages. Have the ducts cleaned before you embark on more expensive duct replacement or rerouting to solve an airflow problem, has been shown to make difference in duct air flow.

· If you look in the return air registers and see an accumulation of debris in the duct below, you may want to have it removed. Its probably worse further in where you can not see. research showed that return air ducts, which are relatively big and have slow moving air, are generally far dirtier than the supply ducts.

How often should residential HVAC systems be professionally cleaned?

Frequency of depends on several factors, not the least of which is the preference of the home owner. Some of the things that may lead a home owner to consider more frequent cleaning include:

 Smokers in the household. • Pets that shed high amounts of hair and dander. · Water contamination or damage to the home or HVAC sys-• Residents with allergies or asthma who might benefit from a reduction in the amount of indoor air pollutants in the home's HVAC system.

· After home renovations or remodeling.

· Prior to occupancy of a new

• How much of the dirt, debris, and microbial growth do you get out of my system?

We would love to say that we got 100 percent of the material out of the mechanical system during our cleaning, but we would be stretching the truth a good bit. Our goal is to get 95 to 99 percent of the material out of the system during our cleaning. In most cases, our technicians cannot reach 100 percent of the entire mechanical system, and so we are not able to clean every inch. But through our years of experience, we know where the problem areas are, and our goal is to make sure those spots they we do have access to are 100 percent cleaned. These areas include the supply plenum, the evaporator coil, the drain pan, the blower motor, and the ductwork. The spots that our equipment cannot reach aren't the true problem spots and so the ramifications of not cleaning these thoroughly are limited.

SUFFER ALLERGIES?

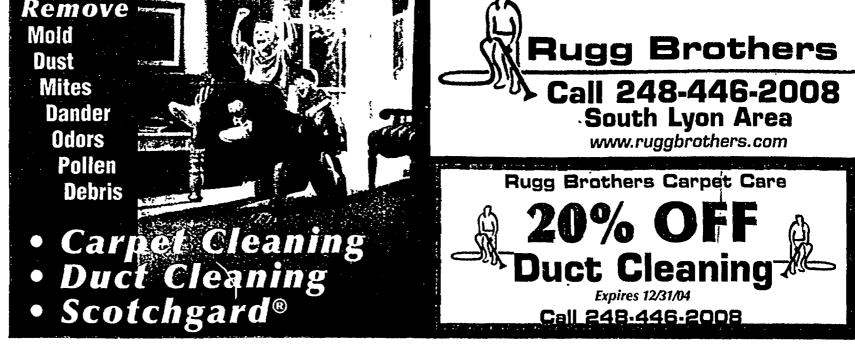

■ Rugg Brothers Process can reduce the dust, dirt and debris from the air ducts and HVAC unit. The entire air duct system can be treated with EPA-registered products to help reduce microbial contamination. SPOR!CIDIN ®

■ Allergy relief ---Eliminates up to 82 percent of mold, mildew and bacteria from your ducts.

The Cost of HVAC Cleaning The Environmental Protection Agency says that duct cleaning services typically but not always range in cost from $300 to $1,000 per heating and cooling system, depending on the services offered, the size of the system to be cleaned, system accessibility, climactic region, and level of contamination and the type of duct material. Consumers should beware of air duct cleaning companies that making sweeping claims about the health benefits of duct cleaning such claims are unsubstantiated.

should Consumers beware of blow-and-go air duct cleaning companies. These companies often charge a nominal fee and do a poor job of cleaning the heating and cooling system. These companies may also persuade the consumer into unneeded services with and/or without their permission.

Cheri has worked at the Northville Township Building Department for more than seven years where she has been involved in the new residential development in the township. She knows building codes and requirements, as well as planning and zoning ordinances that apply to home building.

"We work with the client to make sure the builder builds a house to meet all the requirements," Cheri said. "Most people don't understand the whole picture and need an agent to understand it in order to meet their present and future needs."

Cheri understands all aspects of building homes that the average person doesn't know such as easement, egress, setback and other requirements the Michigan 2003 Residential Code. She previously worked for a residential builder and a mortgage compa-

Good location key to successful veggie garden

I had so much fun growing • vegetables this year I want a bigger garden next year. I can't make this one bigger, but where would be a good place in my big yard to put another? And what do I do to this garden after harvest is finished?

A. Congratulations on a great gardening season. The next garden has a few requirements for a good location. You need to get eight or more hours of sun on the area for good veggie growth. This should also be an area that you can drag the hose to when you need to water. It needs to be convenient to stop by on a daily basis to see how your garden is doing. The farther from the house, the more attractive it is for livestock to stop by and eat. Deer, rabbits and woodchucks don't need any more encouragement to dine-in.

It is best to pick an area that isn't lower than the surrounding terrain these areas can have cold air and frost drain in. This is a perfect time to check this because of our early morning fogs. Look for areas in your yard where these are accumulating and these will not be the garden area.

For your current garden, remove any plants that were diseased from the garden and don't toss them in the compost pile. Many fungal diseases can come back to haunt you next year, especially if compost comes back to the garden. Pull out any stakes, tomato cages or temporary pea fences. Mow down plants. You may not be able to do this well if you grew corn. You can till the soil to loosen it and add organic matter like manure and till again. Toss in raked yard leaves and trash them with the mower. It's all organic and it's all good. By tilling them in, they won't blow away in the next windstorm.

If you had a soil recommendation for sulfur, lime, phosphorus or potash, this can also be tilled in. Save the nitrogen for the next gardening season. Don't add these unless you have a soil test that recommends them. Store the stakes and cages somewhere they will be out of the way until the next, big gardening extravaganza.

Why do I keep killing the orchids that I buy? I put them Home Grown some rich potting soil to all the barkjunk they come potted in. I use well water to keep them constantly damp. I have other houseplants that are fine. So why do the orchards die?

A. Because orchids are like no other houseplant you own. It's like taking the information for keeping chickens and using it for parrots.

If you want orchids, you have to learn new rules. All plants are minimally adaptive - they get even by dying. If you don't know the rules, they die. Buy some books at a bookstore. Since it takes a bit to read and learn, it is better to buy than to borrow. Check the American Orchid Society Web site. There's good stuff to be had a click away. The site is orchidweb.org.

North windows cannot supply enough light for most flowering plants, orchids included. This window may be too cold in the winter. These are tropical beauties, not snow bunnies. They need a relative humidity of about fifty percent.

Tap water has too many minerals for orchids. Distilled water doesn't have enough. Rainwater is pretty good - store some in milk jugs for the winter. Orchids need to grow in a medium that allows the roots to get air, supports the plant and holds some moisture. The smaller the roots on the orchid, the better the medium needs to be at holding moisture. Buy an orchid mix when potting. Just using bark may be too dry, but using potting soil will destroy your orchids.

Orchids are called epiphytes; they grow in bark and mosses off the ground. They cannot tolerate soil. If your orchid potting mix breaks down too much, it will hold too much moisture and rot the roots off the orchids. Read up before committing "orchidicide" again.

Finding order amid the chaos of a makeover |

It was the worst of times, it was the best of times. In other words it was remodel time.
"Having a remodeling deadline finally forced us to confront our clutter demons," says Tana Fletcher, a Maryland-based writer. When she and her husband decided to transform sheir basement into a combination workout room and writing studio a few years ago, they dread-decades' worth of accumulated "suff".

Remodel sooner. "That basement felt like a depressing dungeon for too many years," she says. "After we got it cleared out and fixed up, it became our favorite part of the house."

Yes, preparing for a remodel can be an ideal opportunity to lighten your load and "unstuff" your life. Of course, if you have any pack-rat tendencies at all, this can be a major challenge —but it's nothing compared to living with the actual day-in, day-out chaos of the remodeling

So if you're planning any type of home remodel, it's never too soon to get advice from experts who know which pitfalls can be avoided — and which ones can only be predicted

Lesa Heebner, a Del Mar, Calif.-based kitchen designer and life coach, believes clear communication is a step toward the successful outcome of any remodel. "But keeping the end result in mind is equally important," she adds. Heebner, who has been involved in hundreds of kitchen remodels (including her own), also notes that problems often result from a lack of awareness on the part of the homeowner who is naive about how disruptive a kitchen remoding the will be. "When you can't use your kitchen, you've prepared yourself." Heebner says.

To help clients get prepared, she shows them find how to apply her seven-step Recipe for Clarity with the remodeling process, which focuses on o

"Ingredients are the material components. In this case, that would mean identifying which appliances and supplies you'll need to set up and stock a temporary kitchen," Heebner explains. "Keep in mind the probable lack of a kitchen sink, which creates the major challenge. Stock up on disposable items to mini-Another type of preparation for this kind of mize having to wash anything.

remodel involves clearing out your kitchen—don't even consider leaving anything in drawers or cabinets, let alone out on counters. Heebner recommends purging anything that either doesn't work or doesn't work well. "And check your lids. If you have pots or containers that are missing them, or vice versa, this is a great opportunity to toss."

herself "the anti-cleaning guru," is the author of "How to Avoid Housework" (Fireside Books, $14.95). Jhung's recollections of her own remodeling experiences revolve around the overall lack of privacy inherent to the process. "You are never alone," she recalls rue-Remodeling veteran Paula Jhung, who calls fully. "It's no longer your home. You're living with all these characters who look at you f sometimes as if you shouldn't be there."

Her advice? "Move out. But not far away — you need to be near enough so you can keep an eye on how things are going. You want to be there early in the morning especially, to answer questions." If you do plan to rent a home away from home during your remodel, ascertain whether there will be any construction going on, in or near the place.

Jhung 15 bluntly pragmatic about the inevitability of dust. "Trying to dust during a remodel is like shoveling in a snowstorm," she says. "Learn to embrace dust, otherwise you'll go nuts." If you have dust allergies, obviously you'll need to make special arrangements.

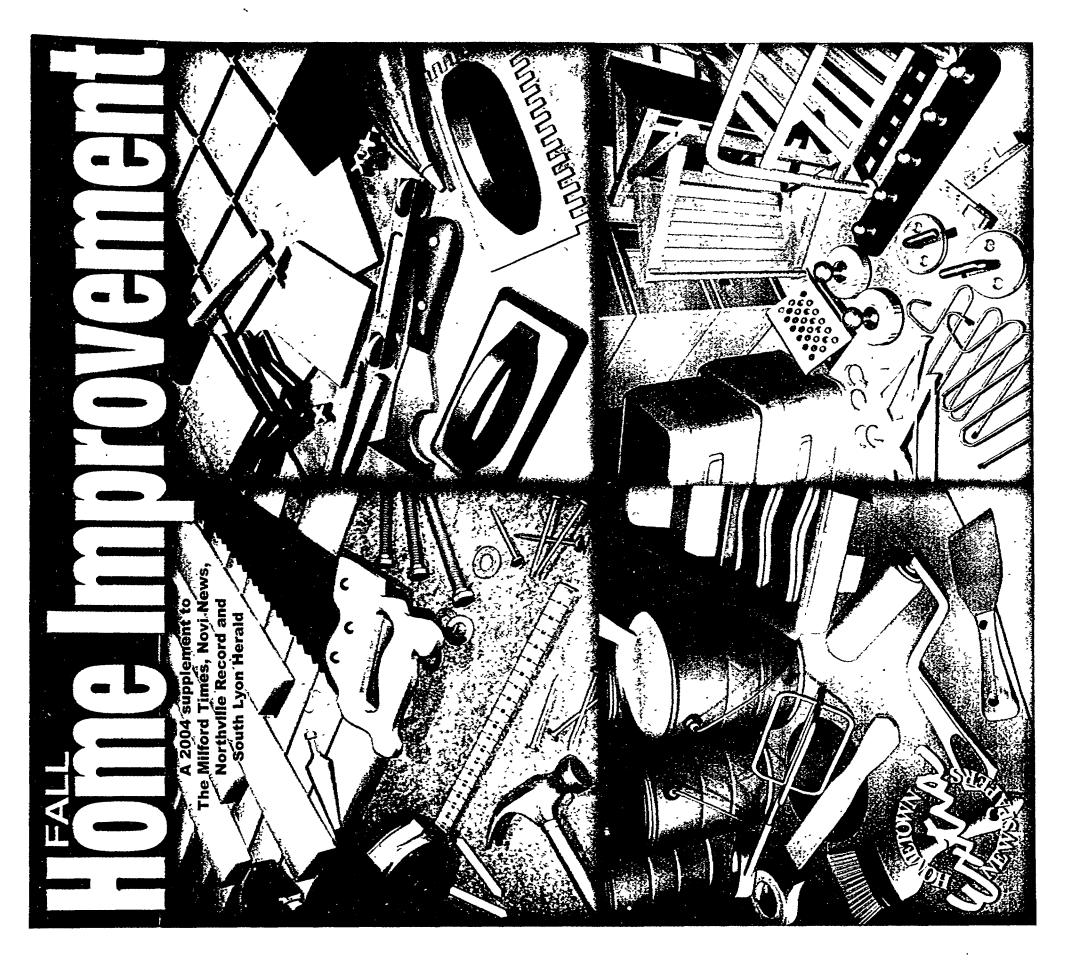

Jhung suggests having your home professionally cleaned from top to bottom as soon as the remodel is finished. "Don't try to do it yourself," she cautions. "For one thing, it will Hire professionals who know how to clean every nook and cranny. Your heating/air-system vents should be cleaned professionally too, she advises; there are companies which specialize in doing that.

Jhung points out that even though you may need to budget for these costs (some contractors do include cleaning costs in their bid), it's well worth it. "To finally walk in and see clean windows" — she sighs at the memory. "It's so uplifting to have at done — and done right — before you start putting back all your stuff."

I would like to know something about Angus T. Jones. He is wonderful on Two and a Half Men.

-Audry B., Minnesota

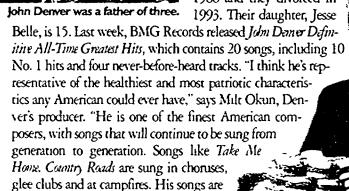

Jones' family moved from Austin, Texas, to California when he was 4, and an acting career soon followed. "I didn't really know what I was doing, just that I was having fun," the 11-year-old says. "My mom says I was a natural ham!" Starting out in commercials, he nabbed his first starring role at age 6 in the movie See Spot Run. He's also been in The Rookie and George of the Jungle 2. When he's not working, Jones is a regular boy. "I play guitar, play video games with my friends, and, in the summer, go to Texas and hang with my seven cousins."

The award-winning journalist left CNN in 2003 to join ABC 7 News/WJLA-TV in Washington, D.C. "It was time for a change," says Harris, who anchors three daily newscasts and hosts a political talk show. Harris says the best thing about his years at CNN was helping build Anchorman Leon Harris something new, and Channel 7 offered him a chance to do that again. The station is revamping its newsroom and putting together "a great news team," Harris says. The Akron, Ohio, native was anchor of several different news shows during his 20 years at CNN. He won Emmy awards for coverage of the Sept. 11

Showcasing by BARBARA CLARKE

Mark Cole isn't a man easily upstaged, though that happens to be the name of his arts-supportive restaurant-The Upstage. He quietly goes about running the place, making the century-old brick building available to a variety of local organizations that need a venue to hold benefit concerts.

Cole, 52, also provides a stage for local performers-young people in and around Port Townsend, Wash. (pop. 8,334)—making their public debut, as well as professionals who donate their time and talent for good causes.

"My idea from the moment I bought the place in 1998 was to have a casual place where the pressure would be off of young performers," Cole says.

Born and raised in upstate New York, Cole comes from a long line of vaudeville magic performers who had access to the professional stage as young men. "The idea has stuck with me—that if children can perform very early in their life in front of a friendly audience, they'll be set with a life-long level of confidence. That's why I love offering my establishment to the community.'

Mark Cole's restaurant offers performers a great venue and friendly audience

One of the many organizations Cole hosts at his 100-seat venue is the non-profit Youth Music Fund. "Mark saved our lives," says Harvey Putterman, who works with the fund. "The organization was without an appropriate place for both student and professional performances when Mark stepped right up."

The music fund, through fund-raising concerts and donations, assists aspiring young musicians with tuition to further their studies and pays for lessons and special training fees.

"The Upstage reflects Mark's personal philosophy—support of the arts and respect for the artists," Putterman says. "A small example is how he forgoes his business needs and stops serving food during performances. There's no pressure on anyone to buy a drink or stay for a meal. Most people leave a donation when we pass the har, but Mark doesn't ask for anything in return."

Cole has always enjoyed an eclectic approach to entertainment in which people are given a chance to watch a live performance. "Anything that gets people out and away from the TV makes me very happy. I'm always amazed at how Port Townsend has drawn so many talented people to its shores. So why not come out and partake of live, affordable entertainment and support worthy, struggling organizations at the same time?"

Cole has made The Upstage, which hosts everything from Shakespearean plays to poetry readings, an appropriate setting for children as well as adults. "Kids are always welcome here," he says. "Recently we had a local teacher and his students in here playing the blues and rock 'n' roll.

"I see The Upstage as a place where people can view all of the beautiful colors of the arts kaleidoscope," Cole says. "Often we have musical performances, but at other times we book a storyteller, a mime, a comedy act or a small theatrical production. This is probably true for many small towns—if they had a casual place to perform and raise a little money, the town would be so much more vibrant."

Over the last six years, Cole has been able to realize his vision for The Upstage. "The restaurant reflects my philosophy: to provide a place that's dedicated to terrific food and live performances by generous professionals, emerging artists, and children just learning. You can have a place that generates income as a business, reflects your ideals and supports community causes."

The Upstage restaurant in Port Townsend, Wash.

With no small amount of effort, Cole has been able to bring it all together and come up with something that enriches everyone. "It might be easier to sell hot dogs and put in a TV," he says, "but once I made my decision to put my ideals into my business-to create something special and different—it all came together."

The Many Faces of Breast Cancer

Every person diagnosed with breast cancer begins an individual journey. Laura Taylor of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho (pop. 34,514), was just 27 when she began hers. Three doctors told her the lump in her breast was nothing. She was too young. She had no family history of Taylor had part of one breast removed as well as nearby tissue that also was cancerous. Then she began a year of chemotherapy and radiation treatment to destroy any remaining cancer cells.

After three years of clean mammograms and the memory of treatment fading, Taylor says her life is returning to normal. "The trick is to not let cancer and its treatment consume you," says Taylor, now 30. "I don't think twice about looking at the incision—I call it my battle scar. I'm not a cancer patient. I'm a survivor and survivor is a powerful word."

breast cancer. A biopsy changed everything.

The good news

More than 2 million people in the United States are breast cancer survivors, according to the American Cancer Society, and the number is increasing. Dr. Cheryl Perkins of Calhoun City, Miss. (pop. 1,872), counts herself among them.

In fact, Perkins, who is approaching five years of living cancer-free, says with technological advances and more effective drugs and treatments, survival rates are improving.

"Treatment is more targeted for the individual patient, and we have options such as the lumpectomy instead of radical mastectomy," which removes most of the breast tissue, says Perkins, senior clinical advisor with the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, a breast cancer awareness organization based in Dallas.

"We also have sentinel node biopsy. It allows us to determine whether breast cancer has spread to nearby lymph nodes," she adds. If the lymph nodes are disease-free, less aggressive surgery is needed, and recovery is easier. The chances of the cancer coming back are reduced as well.

When Betty Odum was diagnosed with breast cancer in 1985, treatment was limited. She had one breast removed, plus 25 lymph nodes, which later proved to be cancer-free. Even after 19 cancer-free years, she's still concerned about a recurrence.

"Until you've had cancer, until you've walked in those shoes, you can't say you know what it's like," says Odum, 59, of Schriever, La. (pop. 5,880). But the grandmother of eight doesn't let her anxiety about the disease stand in the way of her annual mammogram. "I've known the fear of cancer, but everyone's journey is different, and it's not always a death sentence," she adds.

Laura Taylor, 30, considers herself a survivor.

Limited Lot! First-Come, First-Served! U.S. GOVERNMENT GOLD

Special Lot Release! 2,500 U.S. Gold Eagles Released To Public At Our Cost of $44 Each!

Authorized by Pres. Ronald Reagan (P.L. 99-185) and struck by the U.S. Mint in pure gold, these magnificent legal tender U.S. Gold Eagles are the most desirable and sought-after investment-grade gold coins in the world!

For all of human history, gold has been a coveted investment, and the most universally accepted storehouse of value. That's why gold historically soars in times of turmoil and economic uncertainty (the world price of gold is up more than 100% in the last three years alone). And that's why many experts predict that gold will shoot past $1,000.00 on its way to $1,500.00 and beyond in the foreseeable future!

should seriously consider adding gold to your portfolio of assets now. And thanks to this special lot release, you can acquire a $5 U.S. Gold Eagle at our actual cost of just $44.00, without a single penny of profit!

Why Are We Giving Away These Pure Gold Coins At Our Actual Cost?

As a major dealer in collectible and bullion gold coins, we stand to benefit from any increase in investment interest in gold. And by getting you to buy gold for probably the very first time, we increase investment interest, and potentially increase demand. We're building our customer base and making an investment in the future of the market. It's as simple as that.

Gold Is History's Safest Storehouse

Compare that with a troubled stock market and Gold has always endured market cycles and anemic interest rates, and it's easy to see why you maintained its long term value. In today's market the balance between supply and demand is precarious. Even a modest increase in demand could result in huge price increases over a short period. And in these times of terrorism, troubled stock markets and soaring oil and commodity prices, more and more people are turning to gold to protect and preserve their wealth, making a dramatic increase in gold prices ever more likely with each passing day.

Act Fast, While Our Limited Supply Lasts

The Morgan Mint is proud to release a special lot of 2,500 brilliant uncirculated $5 Gold Eagles fresh from the Mint at just $44.00 each, only while supplies last. Each will be encased in a clear crystalline capsule, to permanently preserve its beauty and value. They are offered strictly on a firstcome, first-served basis. Limit: 1 coin per order.

THIS IS A RISK-FREE INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITY. WE UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEE TO BUY BACK THE U.S. GOLD EAGLE YOU ACQUIRE FROM THIS OFFER AT THE ORIGINAL PURCHASE PRICE AT ANY TIME IN THE FUTURE, FOR ANY REASON, NO QUESTIONS ASKED. THUS THERE IS NO RISK OF LOSS, ONLY THE POTENTIAL FOR TREMENDOUS GAINS IN VALUE OF THESE

Six Reasons To Buy U.S. Gold Coins Now!

- Gold is a proven way to preserve wealth and diversify your portfolio
- Gold beat the S&P 500 for the last 5 years in a row!
- Gold is a fungible commodity that is easy to sell!
- Gold provides "insurance" against inflation and sharp drops in the value of equity investments
- Gold Eagles are an efficient, cost-effective way of adding gold to your investment portfolio
- Gold Eagles may be included in your IRA accounts

Although the price of gold has risen in the past, and many experts predict sharp upward movement in the future, all investments, including gold, are subject to market conditions and may increase or decrease in value. As the world's most sought-after gold coin, however, the U.S. Gold Eagle is certain to be immediately marketable. and to command a price accurately reflecting the value of gold.

Dr. Cheryl Perkins is nearing five years of living cancer-free.

garage, workshop or basement.

Five to 10 percent of women are believed to be at risk of breast cancer because of genetic factors, meaning a female blood relative had the disease. But women who are genetically predisposed may be able to reduce their risk through lifestyle choices such as diet and exercise.

"My mother died of breast cancer at 36, when I was 6, and my grandmother when I was 14," says Sharon Goodrich, 60, of Fairfax Station, Va. (pop. 21,498). "I've lived in the shadow of breast cancer since I was a child."

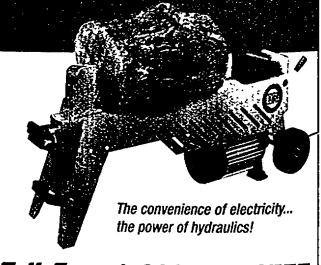

Typically, women who are at genetic risk for breast cancer develop the disease before age 40. Goodrich never underwent genetic testing, because by the time it was available, she had passed that milestone. Still, she tries to maintain her health and reduce her risk by eating well and staying active. She also does frequent self-examinations and gets an annual mammogram.

"Some people think the disease is conquered, and some women think because they've had a mammogram, they're good for another year. It's just not that simple," she says. "Everyone knows someone who has had breast cancer. Even so, 70 to 80 percent of women who have it have no known risk factors. It's frightening."

While breast cancer primarily affects women, some 1,300 men nationwide are diagnosed with it each year.

Breast Cancer Risk factors Symptoms

Preast cancer, like all cancers, develops when the body's cells reproduce abnormally. Normally, cells grow and divide only when the body needs them, but sometimes cells keep dividing when they're not needed. These extra cells can form a mass or tumor. Not all tumors are cancerous, but those that are make cells that are abnormal and reproduce rapidly, invading and damaging nearby tissues and organs.

The reasons that breast cells grow out of control remain murky, but certain factors seem to increase the risk. These include:

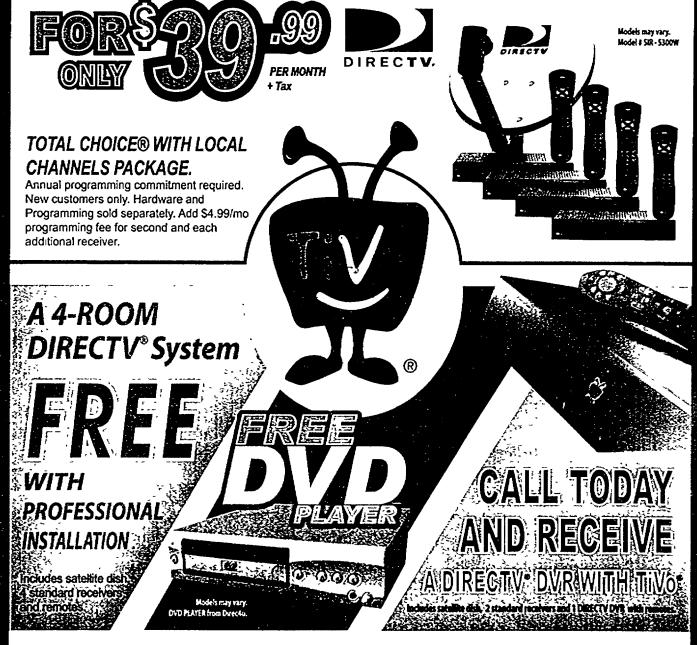

- Being over age 50 (77 percent of breast cancer patients are 50 or older).
- Having a family history of breast cancer among female blood relatives. (Five to 10 percent of female breast cancer patients have a blood relative with the disease).
- Having no children, or having a first child after age 30.
- Undergoing radiation therapy before age 30.
- Having dense breast tissue.
- Drinking alcohol.

Then there's estrogen, a hormone produced by the body. Evidence suggests the longer a woman is exposed to the hormone—either produced naturally or taken as a drug—the more likely she is to develop breast cancer. Symptoms of breast cancer include:

- A lump or thickening in or near the breast or in the underarm.
- A change in the size or shape of the breast.
- Nipple discharge or tenderness, or the nipple pulled back into the breast.
- Ridges or pitting of the breast that looks similar to the skin of an orange.
- Skin on the breast or nipple area that looks or feels warm, swollen, red or scaly.

Tending the Family by WARREN D.

JORGENSEN

In 1983, Kenneth Poore's dying wish was to have his family farm in Stewartstown, N.H. (pop. 1,012), turned into a museum. That wish came true in 1994, thanks to the town's residents and the Poore Family Foundation for North Country Conservancy.

Volunteer Audrey Reid welcomes curious visitors to the Stewartstown, N.H., landmark.

The farm's history is a rich one. It came into existence when Poore's grandparents moved into the wilderness in the mid1820s, only five miles from the Canada border and settled on the 100-acre farm. Poore's father, John Calvin, also lived there, as did Poore, until his death at age 98.

Because Poore left the farm and its deteriorating building, but no money, years of financial difficulties passed before the grounds were open to visitors.

"It was in horrific condition. They all needed work," says the foundation's Executive Director Rick Johnsen of the eight buildings in various stages of collapse. "The blacksmith shop, the woodwork shop and the hops barn were all down," he says. Fortunately, dedicated townspeople, volunteers and craftsmen came to the rescue to keep the Poore family's agricultural legacy alive.

Today, the farm, known as the Poore Family Homestead Historic Farm Museum, stands as a monument to tough New England farmers. Last year, the farm was brought to life for nearly 2,000 visitors, who walked through to see first-hand how New Hampshire farmers lived in the 19th and early 20th centuries.

During those times, the family farm was completely self-sustaining, providing food, clothing, shelter and income. If the Poores wanted a nail, they went to the blacksmith shed and made it. When they needed a shirt or a rug, they wove it. That required a loom, so they Dortie Lee, a nurse and self-taught weaver. visited Poore with her father as a child. Now she provides weaving demonstrations, using the loom made by the original owner of the farm in the 1820s. His initials are on the loom.

"The older ones talk about having seen their mothers or grandmothers weaving," Lee says. "And the children are amazed to find that sweaters did not come from stores."

The main barn houses a display of tools, farm implements, oxen and horse wagons, churns, rakes, and thousands of other artifacts used in everyday life through almost two centuries.

New England frugality is no myth, as evidenced by what was saved, from Depression-era corn flake boxes to the dozens of letters John Calvin wrote from Civil War battlefields. But nothing is for sale here. Instead, the foundation will refurbish the farm's buildings as money allows.

Raising money to keep the farm operating is a constant effort, Johnsen says, and includes events—from bluegrass concerts to old-fashion ice cream socials—on the grounds. The New Hampshire Historical Society also contributed $10,500 to the cause.

Still, volunteers do most of the restoration work. Each spring, Eugene Reid brings his Canaan, Vt. (pop. 1,078), high school carpentry class to work on the farm, which is an eye-opening experience for the students. "We look at those traditional methods and tools, and we use them," Reid says. They've helped stabilize the main house,

But for all that remains to be done, volunteers have made the museum, which ended its 10th season in September, a living institution, a treasure trove and a window on history for people of today.

"It keeps people connected to the past," Lee says, "and I think generations need to be linked together." 🌫

Mark Goldstein of Randolph, N.J. (pop. 19,974), was 55 when he noticed his left nipple was inverted.

"In a typical male fashion, I ignored it," he says. "I had bought into the conventional wisdom that breast cancer was a woman's disease."

Three months later, he awakened after surgery having had a partial mastectomy and some lymph nodes removed. Since then, Goldstein, now 70, has taken breast cancer head on. In 1990, he became the first man to run in the New York City Race for the Cure, an annual fundraiser for breast cancer research. To date. he's run in 134 similar fund-raising events around the country and has a sponsorship from New Balance athletic shoes.

"It all comes down to attitude," says Goldstein, who counsels other men who are diagnosed with, or under treatment for, breast cancer.

Like women who feel their femininity is compromised, men with the disease must grapple with the perception that it is an assault on their masculinity. "I ask them, 'What's really changed, except that you've had a disease that's atypical in men?"

Goldstein encourages men with the disease to step up to the challenge of survivorship. "When you're in the companionship of survivors and witness their tenacity and their optimism, that will

Many of the main dish recipes that we receive from readers each week call for either beef, pork or chicken as a primary ingredient. So we thought it would be a nice alternative to offer two "meatless" recipes for those of you who are vegetarian or just looking for something

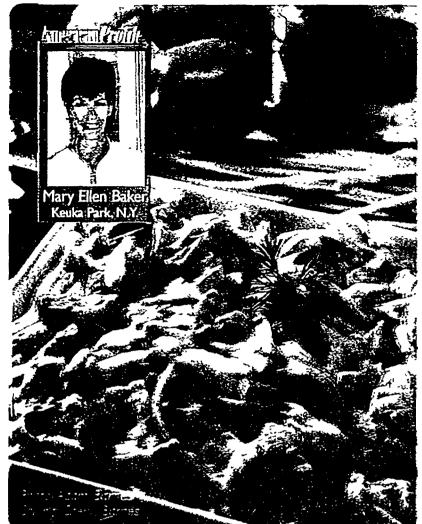

The first, from Mary Ellen Baker, is what she calls her One-Pot Noodle Stroganoff. "I have modified this recipe to lower the fat and salt content," she says. "It's full of nourishment and flavor and has been a favorite for many years." We think it will become a favorite of your family as well.

The second is a four-bean vegetarian chili from Sonja T. Carter. "As a vegetarian. I'm always looking for quick and nutritious dishes," Carter says. "My mom and I concocted this easy, meatless chili recipe."

This is a hearty and delicious soup that's great as a main dish or served with a grilled cheese sandwich as a lunch treat for the kids.

As always, we eagerly look forward each week to receiving your favorite family recipes and the stories behind them. They serve as a reminder of just how inventive and diverse America's tastes are and the stories underscore the important role recipes play in our family histories. Please keep them coming!

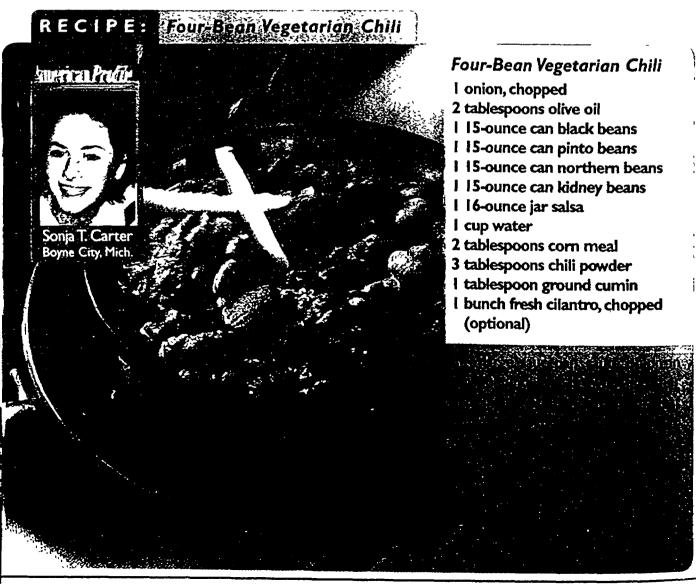

One-Pot Noodle Stroganoff
I pound mushrooms, sliced
I tablespoon olive oil
I cup onion, chopped
I quart low-salt tomato juice
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
6 ounces whole wheat noodles, uncooked
I cup low-fat, or no-fat, sour cream
I teaspoon dried, or 3 teaspoons
fresh, dill weed
Pepper to taste

Sauté mushrooms and onions in olive oil until just browned. Stir in tomato juice, pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Bring to a low boil. Add noodles. Reduce heat, cover and simmer about 10 minutes, stirring occasionally until noodles are tender. Stir in remaining ingredients and heat through. Adjust seasonings to taste.

Tips From Our Test Kitchen:

For variety, toss in 6 to 8 ounces of baby spinach, I cup of shoestring carrots, or 1/2 cup of diced sweet peppers or fresh asparagus. Garnish with fresh sliced tomatoes, chopped parsley and fresh dill.
