Nield often found at center of Northville's community efforts

as a year of unprecedented cooperbetween Northville fownship, the City of Northville and Northville Public Schools.

Naming Nield the Northville Record's Newsmaker of the Year recognizes his contribution toward those efforts.

The senior advisory council chair led efforts to rejuvenate the former community center and is helping guide growth strategy as a member of the township's planning commission.

"Nobody is more deserving of the title," said township supervisor Mark Abbo. "I can't think of anybody who's had a more positive impact in the Northville communi-Nield said he recently received a note from a person who thanked him for his comments at a planning commission meeting.

"That makes it worthwhile," he said. "I enjoy seeing the smiles when they walk into the senior center or the (new) township hall or when a new road is paved. Even if it's just a statement in the meeting.

"It's a small enough town that you can make a difference," Nield said. "If you listen and put that into

John and Fiona Doskocz of Northville Township think the past 12 months have been pretty miracu-

After trying to conceive for three years, they gave birth Jan. 3 to two premature but healthy twin boys

Tyler and Evan. Then, after crafting their trails with infertility into an essay, the 38-year-olds won $5,000 for their sons' future education.

"I'd say 90 percent of it came pretty quickly," said John of his 400-word essay. "Having gone through, so much to try and start a family, we consider it definitely a miracle."

Grinning, Tyler took a deep breath and let out a mighty yell as wide-eyed Evan crinkled a Ranch Dorito's bag.

"I would always pick them up from the crib in the morning," Fiona said. "Suddenly they're cuddling you. It's sort of that family process."

Fiona saw a notice for Ferring Pharmaceutical's 'My Little Miracle Essay Contest" in Twins magazine. John, an Intier Automotive engineer, took second place out of several hundred national entries.

New Year's oldest lesson: drinking, driving don't mix

Plan ahead, call MADD — or pay the price, experts say

By Kim Kovelle RECORD STAFF WRITER

The Deadwood Bar & Grill handles the New Year's drinking crowd in Northville Township by f closing at 11 p.m. on Friday.

"We take it very seriously," Kimberly Ryan, operations director, said. "We give any non-alcoholic beverages on the house to whoever's a designated driver."

Law officials and bar proprietors agree that party-goers are getting -more conscientious this time of year, but accidents still happen.

If you'll ring in 2005 with bub-bly, plan ahead for a ride home.

.. MADD to the rescue

" If you end up stranded, Mothers · Against Drunk Driving offers · Project LifeRide for its 20th year, offering cab rides by calling (877) ·693-6233.

"Bars are participating and they're posting our information," Ne'chole McClendon, executive director for the Wayne County chapter. "We'll dispatch a cab to that particular location... and give them a safe ride."

Homer Smith, MADD executive director, said drinking typically picks up from 10 p.m.-midnight, then escalates.

"If someone is a party host, then they certainly should provide nonalcoholic drinks for those who are designated drivers," Smith said. If someone insists on driving drunk, he said, "You need to do anything you can to take their keys away from them.'

For a last line of defense, he said, buckle up: "You can have done everything right... but just never know what happens in the other vehicle?

Paying the price

Besides shattering lives, there are other prices to pay for driving drunk. Mark Mandell, Northville attorney, has seen both sides.

The typical case is... disobeying minor traffic ordinances, Mandell said. "So many people think there's ways to get out of it. In my opinion, 97 percent of the time, you're going to be convicted of at least impaired."

First-time offenders face $100-$500 in fines and jail/community service time.

A second offense in seven years means a year-long license suspension; getting it back means going to the secretary of state's license appeals division.

'At that point the burden's on you," Mandell said. "The best you're going to do at that is a restricted license for a year.'

For serious alcohol problems, Oakland and Wayne counties have voluntary sobriety courts.

At Oakland County's 52-1 District Court in Novi, 325 people have completed the program in nearly four years.

The goal is to teach them a new way of living that means they don't get re-arrested," Judge Brian MacKenzie said. "An officer can stop them at any time to test them. Their opportunities to drink are virtually eliminated."

Started about a year ago, Wayne County's 35th District Court program currently has 15 enrolled in four phases.

Be safe out there

In Northville Township, extra officers have been on the road since Thanksgiving Day, Lt. Ray Garbarino said.

"I've seen a decrease, I'd say, over the past 10 years," Garbarino said. "I think part of it is the education of the public. The penalties have gone up. There's a lot to lose.

The township is now able to seize second offenders' vehicles.

Garbarino said 157 operating while intoxicated arrests have been made this year; eight this month.

"Get a limousine, spend the extra money," MacKenzie said. "If you get arrested for drunk driving, you're going to end up spending thousands.

POLICE REPORT

Christmas Eve fire strikes

Fire struck condominiums on Queen Anne Court at about 10:30 p.m. Dec. 24. No one was injured, but the roof and second floor of two homes were extensively damaged, according to Northville Township fire offi-

Firefighters took an hour to douse the blaze, and to "hot spots" until 2 a.m., officials said.

"We actually did an interior fire attack because we had fire in the rooms on the second floor," Fire Chief Bill Zhmendak said. "One cat was not accounted for at the time of the fire. We did find the cat the next morning."

Mutual aid came from the Livonia Fire Rapid Intervention Team and the Plymouth Community and Northville fire departments.

One person lived in the condo that first caught fire, while four lived in the second, Zhmendak said. They're currently staying at a local hotel or with family members.

Fire officials believe the fire started in the fireplace area. "It's going to require them to actually remove the roof and rebuild the second floor," Zhmendak said.

Suspicious vehicle spotted

A Northville Township father spotted a suspicious vehicle near Moraine Elementary School on Eight Mile Road and reported it to police Dec. 21.

The blue, "older model" Grand Marquis was seen first on Eight Mile Road and then in the school's parking lot, police reported. The 49year-old father reportedly saw a lone male in his 30s seemingly cover something in the car's back seat. The father told police the car was only in the lot four minutes; no one approached it, nor did the man approach anyone. The car's rear bumper read "For Sale." The school's principal reportedly notified the board office and will send out the information district-wide.

Thefts, fires in pairs

Over four days, two vehicles Livonia female stopped at the town-were targets for theft in the township, while two others unexpectedly caught fire.

Both larcenies occurred near apartments.

Late Dec. 21 or early the next day, a 2004 Jeep was taken from a carport at the 42000 block of Northville Place Drive, police reported. The 36-year-old male Northville victim told police he'd parked and locked the Jeep overnight. Losses were estimated at $15,000.

The other incident occurred near Cedar Lakes apartments Dec. 22, when four wheels valued at $600 reportedly were taken from a parked 2000 SUV around 8 a.m. According to a witness, two white males between 30-35 were seen near the vehicle, later discovered on blocks. Both cases are open.

Flames burst in a car traveling near Six Mile and Haggerty roads Dec. 21 at about 6 p.m. The driver, a 49-year-old woman, told police she saw smoke coming from the dashboard when stopped at a red light, and said she believed the cause was recent car work she had had done at a Detroit garage/muffler shop. Damages were estimated ship's Barnes & Noble. While she was inside, police said, the 1997 Ford Escort she'd driven there caught fire. Fire officials reportedly said the problem might have been electrical. Damages to the vehicle, which she'd borrowed from her parents, were around $10,000.

On Dec. 19, a 22-year-old

'There you go, boss'

A 19-year-old West Bloomfield man plowed into two utility poles Dec. 19, injuring his passenger.

Police said the driver, traveling with a 20-year-old Southfield male passenger, was traveling on Beck Road north of Six Mile Road at about 1 a.m. According to a witness, the 2005 SUV crossed the road, fell into a ditch, broke one pole and severed another. Police reported the driver was "intoxicated" and "verbally hostile."

Police reported the suspect said he had nothing to drink and claimed he was run off the road by another driver. He reportedly refused a preliminary breath test and, when asked to recite the entire alphabet, said, "A, Z, there you go, boss, beginning to end."

The passenger was taken to St. Mary's Hospital for a blood-alcohol level test. His court date is Jan. 6.

Rosselot allegedly targeted township bank Sept. 21

By Kim Kovelle RECORD STAFF WRITER

The man police dubbed the "Sysco Kid" and whom they believe was responsible for a fourmonth string of bank heists, including a Northville Township attempt, died last week.

Kenneth Jay Rosselot, 38, died from injuries suffered following a Dec. 17 high-speed car crash. Police officials believe he was fleeing his final hold-up attempt.

FBI officials said Rosselot robbed nine suburban banks between Sept. 3-Dec. 17.

He was dubbed the "Sysco Kid" because security cameras caught the company's logo on a baseball cap he often wore, said Terry Booth, Detroit FBI spokesman and special agent.

"In most of the robberies he used a weapon, he used a note and he displayed a gun," Booth said. "He frequently wore the Sysco hat (and) darkframed prescription glasses low down on his nose." Township Det. Joe Hetu said that description matches a man who at 3:50 p.m. Sept. 21 attempted to rob the Standard Federal Bank at 39437 Six Mile Rd.

He left the bank without money.
"I would say probably with 99 percent certainty that it is (him)," Hetu said. "In the Northville Township case he was not wearing this Sysco hat, but he was wearing a hat. I'm trying to get some video from Chelsea just to verify that.

Hetu said based on surveillance footage from a robbery in Saline, the suspect was wearing a lightcolored baseball cap with an Old English "D."

A final heist?

A Chelsea Flagstar bank was the scene of Rosselot's final attempt, according to the FBI. He allegedly attempted to flee in a black BMW getaway car.

The police observed the vehicle and they chased it down Beck Road," Booth said. "It crashed at Cherry Road in Canton. At the scene of the crash, we were able to recover a Sysco hat and a hand-

Case still open

Still unsolved is an Oct. 1 robbery at Northville Township's TCF Bank. The suspect allegedly took an estimated $2,000 and fled in a light-colored

According to witnesses and video surveillance, the suspect in the TCF Bank case was 5 feet 5 inches to 5 feet 9 inches tall, of average build and between 45 and 55 years old. He had a salt and pepper "fumanchu" mustache and was wearing a light-colored ball cap and dark suit.

Anyone with information on this case is asked to contact the Northville Township Police Department at (248) 349-9400.

After the crash, Rosselot reportedly was transported to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. He suffered critical injuries, Booth said, was taken off life support Dec. 21 and then died.

The only thing that kind of struck us is he chose suburban banks and he seemed to get further and further away," Booth said. "He probably increases his risk of getting caught. It's a more rural area, things like that are going to stick out. It's a lot better chance of getting spotted as far as a runaway

In addition to Northville and Chelsea, the list includes banks in Farmington, Livonia, Plymouth, Saline, Fowlerville, Gibraltar and Midland.

Booth added that 2004 has been a record year for bank robberies in Michigan: 449 as of Monday. That surpasses the previous high - 359 in 1996 and means the state is second only to California, which has had 888 thus far.

"We had a lot of serial bank robbers this year," Booth said. "We had individuals who were doing 12, 13 robberies."

Within the last six weeks, he said six of those suspects were apprehended by law enforcement, closing 50 robberies.

Hetu said there was talk of setting up a task force to deal with the Standard Federal case days before Rosselot was caught.

We had pictures out there and no one responded to them," Hetu said. "None of the leads that turned in had turned out to be this Rosselot guy."

Booth said he believes the township's Standard Federal case was the only one in which Rosselot didn't get any money. The FBI would not release the total amount stolen.

Suspected bank bandit dies Alleged purse thief nabbed;

Detroit man linked to other area thefts

By Kim Kovelle RECORD STAFF WRITER

A phone call following a Northville Township purse snatching last week ended what police believe was a Detroit man's four-month crime spree.

Lawrence Tippins, 22, was arrested shortly after 8 p.m. when a 29-year-old Plymouth woman called police Dec. 23 to report her purse was stolen outside Kohl's department store at 20155 Haggerty Rd.

"Basically, he exited his own vehicle and approached a woman who had just gotten into her car and demanded her purse," Northville police Det. Bill Helke said.

"He had his hand inside of his coat. She was in fear he might have a weapon, and so she surrendered her purse to him."

Helke said the woman's subsequent call to township police, including a physical description of the male and his getaway car, resulted in the man being pulled over 15 minutes later in Livonia by a Michigan State trooper traveling on 1-96, west of Farmington Road.

Tippins was driving a 1989 white Buick Century, Helke said.

When the Northville victim was unable to identify the suspect, the man was arrested on an unrelated warrant.

On Dec. 24, he was interrogated by Farmington Hills officers, who believed Tippins committed two robberies and one larceny in their city.

A Farmington Hills Police Department statement said Tippins confessed to the three counts, along with purse-snatchin Farmington and Southfield.

'He was arraigned here on

Christmas Day," Farmington Hills Police Chief William

Zwyer said. While officers photographed the man's impounded vehicle. the Northville victim's credit cards were found between the windshield and dashboard.

Farmington Hills police said. Helke said he expected to have an arrest warrant for the Northville theft Tuesday. He said police believe Tippins is responsible for several similar.

Helke said two robberies in Novi might also be connected to Tippins. The Northville incident was the most recent, he said. 7

Farmington Hills police reported that Tippins is a regise tered sex offender and has been convicted for a prior domestic assault.

City Hall notes

Northville City Hall offices will be closed for the holidays, Friday, Dec. 30 and 31.

Curbside pickup

The City of Northville's regular trash collection will not be affected by the New Year's holiday.

Christmas trees will be picked up curbside throughout the city for two more Tuesdays — Jan. 4 and 11 — and disposed in a compost facility.

After Jan. 11, trees will be disposed in a landfill. Trees must be free of ornaments, tinsel and plastic snow.

As snow falls

The city's solid waste contractor, Painter and Ruthenburg, will send trucks out on schedule except in extreme conditions.

Crews ask residents to place rubbish on top of the snow. Bags and cans must be accessible from the road. Dark bags are easiest to see.

Officials said safety considerations prohibit crews from "digging out" frozen recycling bins.

Snow shovelers be mindful: Northville city ordinance prohibits residents from blowing snow into the street. Violators will be ticketed.

Planning your write-off

Property tax payments requiring a 2004 postmarked must be marked no later than Dec. 31.

Because Northville City Hall offices will be closed Thursday and Friday, Dec. 30 and 31, any envelope found in the drop box on Monday, Jan. 3, will be entered as having been received in 2004. The drop box is located on the east wall of the outer entrance to city hall.

Still time to give

Novi Bowl, 21700 Novi Rd., is selling snowflakes to raise cash for Northville Civic Concern. They also are collecting gift cards, toys and clothing through Dec. 31 for the local agency. For more information, call (248) 348-9120.

Call for artists

The Northville Arts Commission requests submissions from all Northville area artists, age 18 and older for inclusion in "Celebrating Northville Arts and Community" at the Art House grand opening March 4.

Artists may submit one or two photos of recent work in any medium (JPEG file format preferable) to us by Jan. 15. Several pieces will be selected for exhibition and all pieces will be shown via computer-generated slide show during the grand opening reception and through the month of March. Artists are asked to include their name, address, phone number, e-mail address, artwork medium, size, title, a brief biography and a two-sentence artist statement. Questions should be directed to the above e-mail address or (248) 449-9950. Watch the Northville Arts Web Commission site: www.northvillearts.org for upcoming exhibition, consignment and teaching opportunities at the Art House.

Blankets needed

Edward Jones investment representatives David Boyd, Todd Knickerbocker and Chris Willerer are supporting the American Red Cross Blanket Days program by using their offices as a drop-off location for this year's blanket drive. Local residents can help the homeless in the area by bringing in a new blanket to their Northville offices at 117 E. Dunlap, 128 N. Center St. and 1039 Novi Rd. Hours are 9 a.m.-5 p.m. through Jan. 31.

To contribute an item for consideration in this column, e-mail mjohnston@ht.homecomm.net.

Tree pick-up updates

.Township homeowners wanting to rid themselves of Christmas trees during the next two weeks should leave them at the curb.

The township's contracted trash service, Painter-Ruthenberg, will pick up discarded trees along normal routes until Jan. 13.

Make sure the tree isn't covered by snow and remove all ornaTownship Briefs

Public bodies rendered decisions that were overturned and/or appealed. Court cases are still pending.

Two houses were demolished early this month clearing part of the 3.5-acre proposed site, but project opponents say the fight against the church is not over.

Fight for rights

The controversy began in the fall of 2003 when church leaders unveiled the 2,200-member congregation's proposal. The plan is to replace the current 52-yearold-school attached to the church at Orchard and Thayer with a larger structure across the street, near the corner of Main

The two sides in January, February and March filled public hearings with emotion, assorted rationale, traffic and sound study findings, expert testimony and legal representation.

In addition to the yard signs, the conflict provoked Internet banter, 1,300 pages of documentation submitted to the city and an immeasurable rift between neigh-

Legal battles

Six local residents June 8 filed a Wayne Count Circuit Court appeal against the City of Northville, claiming the board's, reversal set a risky precedent regarding special-land-use applications throughout the city.

Our Lady of Victory July 28 filed a lawsuit against the city and the planning commission calling the July 20 tabling of the site plan illegal and demanding the plan's immediate approval. The six-count Wayne County Circuit Court lawsuit also names individual planning commission members and requests financial damages in excess of $25,000.

Fourteen days after the church's legal action, the city's planning commission granted preliminary approval of the school site plan, with 12 conditions. Final approval followed Nov. 2 after a series of tie votes, failed motions and attorney Project opponents followed up within a week, filing documents necessary to ask the Board of Zoning Appeals at an upcoming meeting to revisit the planning commission's approval. A January hearing on the Orchard Heights residents' lawsuit filed in June is expected.

sions during much of that time. The retired business owner said he helps out in the community when he can the same way he tried to reach out to his 200-plus employees.

"I understand everyone can't contribute, they're carning a living, raising kids," he said. "I just enjoy doing it. It's just inside you, I guess."

Promoting cooperation

Nield said what makes Northville unique is the willingness among public entities to share knowledge, ability and experience.

For example, Martha's background as board of education president makes him more sensitive to the school district's needs as a planning commissioner, he said. Nield said whether visiting a grand opening, eating at a restaurant or attending a fundraiser, the couple is always listening. "I am a great promoter of the city, township and the schools all working together," he said. "I do not want the city, township or schools to become too territorial.

The costs are too high for all of us." The community fielded challenging proposals this past year, Nield said, including public safety combined dispatch services, Our Lady of Victory school expansion and a planned commercial development across from Ridge Wood Elementary School.

"Overall, I think every one handles things well," he said. 'There's good input on both sides.

"At the end of the day, it appears the decisions are the right decisions."

Different people in the community have different needs, Nield said.

We should do all we can to work together," he said.

"It's a challenge on a good day. I think people in other communities are envious of Northville's relationship between the city, township and schools. It's a model that's going to be copied around the state."

A personal cause

Two years ago Nield meticulously constructed the scale model of an expanded community center.

He and Northville Parks and Recreation Director Traci Sincock subsequently pitched the concept of a facility dedicated to seniors but accessible to all ages for a variety of uses.

Northville Township, the City of Northville and Northville Public Schools gave their go-ahead. During the entire project, Nield was a daily presence at the Main Street construction site. Today he can peg each month of the 10-month project with an obstacle or triumph. It was a year ago this month the senior advisory board members ceremoniously signed the steel I-"When you reflect back on what's been accomplished since then... it was just a pleasure to see it unfold," Nield said. "It's just a pleasure to see where we've come in a year, under budget, ahead of schedule, dedicated the Fourth of July weekend, all the landscaping in, the (Old Village School) playground in... "We've gotten an awful lot of compliments on the building inside."

As the project leader, Nield personally laid hearth stone, hauled the fireplace mantel to the sawmill, coordinated interior and exterior details, acted as liaison with the contractor and updated progress to the rest of the advisory board.

The community is supporting the facility by increasingly scheduling public events there, Nield said, including wedding receptions, birthday parties, showers and holiday events. "I think we got it done at a level that was above what the community expected," he said.

Seniors new and long-time residents benefit from programs offered there, he said. More and more seniors are relocating to Northville to live near their grown children. Nield said.

Planning ahead

Nield said people move to Northville for two primary reasons: the appeal of the downtown corridor and the quality of the public school system.

Those are key considerations in his role as township planning commissioner, he said.

"We are very sensitive to proper growth for Northville," he said. "There's certainly a continual balance between the new subdivisions going in and the needs the schools have in expanding.

Nield attended the recent presentation by Bob Gibbs, the city-hired consultant who described future growth options for downtown Northville. Martha serves on the downtown development authority's steering committee following up on the report findings.

"It's important to every resident in the township and city," Nield said. "We are very sensitive to maintaining the vitality of downtown Northville.

"We want to do a proper job for all of Northville with the Seven Mile (Road) corridor and do the very best we can.'

Communication with adjacent communities such as Plymouth and Novi also is critical, Nield said. Cooperation forges more efficient service, such as the city and township's public safety dispatch service agreement enacted this fall, he said.

Nield said people from other areas are interested in how the Northville community gets things done.

The naming of the "community room" in the just-

CITIZEN OF THE YEAR

The Northville Chamber of Commerce in October recognized Jim Nield's contributions by naming him Citizen of the Year.

Sonia Swigart shared the organization's top

The chamber cited Nield's current positions as township planning commissioner and chair of Northville's senior advisory committee. His past titles include township representative to the Parks and Recreation Department, president of the Northville Swim Club, and committee chair for Boy Scout Troop 755.

His behind-the-scenes efforts include work during the 1990s on the Northville High School homecoming and all-night party projects, negotiation in lawsuit settlements, and on design teams for the new high school, Ridge Wood Elementary School, and the township hall and fire station.

opened township hall is one example of the local mind-

A chance encounter with a township board member at a downtown store resulted in a conversation on that topic, Nield recalled. Why call it a board room when it more often is used by community members, he said.

"At the end of the day - when you see the Fourth of July parade or the Victorian Festival or grab a bite to eat downtown - you just love Northville," Nield said. "It's nice. It's near. It's something you're proud of."

New Year's on the horizon

How to get everyone back into the post-holiday swing

By Kim Kovelle RECORD STAFF WRITER

Christmas week is dwindling: the presents have migrated to new homes while tinsel and garland are slowly disappearing.

As the trees start hitting the curbs, the inevitable change from holiday vacation to the old routine is nigh.

Managing the holiday homestretch calls for a healthy helping of the basics — and a dash of creativity

Back to school

For kids, heading back to the books after a week of new toys and late bedtimes can resemble a prison sentence.

Linda Orosz, director and owner of Sunny Pointe Child Care Center in Northville Township, said the key is getting back to a normal sleep and eating routine.

"Try to keep your children on somewhat of a regular sleep schedule." Orosz said. "You wouldn't want them to be staying up until 2 in the morning every morning.

She recommends a few special activities, such as a trip to a local store to pick out a new school supply like a backpack.

"Make sure that everybody has something new," Orosz said. They can kind of be excited about going back to school."

Classroom show-and-tell items and games can help make switch easier, she said, as can lunch box extras like notes or

"Send (something) a little special, like a bag of little Christmas cookies with them, so they'll have are reminder of the fun they had over the holidays," Orosz said.

Back to the cube

You know they're there: to-do piles and messages galore, all awaiting your workplace return.

In the final days of vacation, Mary Ann Pompea, president of Northville Township's Hire Expectations, said to tend to things at home, first.

"I would say try to separate personal items from business items," Pompea said, "When you come into work, you're not thinking about everything else that you need to do at home." Revitalizing regular sleep, diet and exercise regimens is important for adults, too. Once you're back in the office, get organized promptly.

'As soon as you come in. maybe spend five minutes and ask the people about their holidays and give them a little information on yours," Pompea said. "Then you can get back down to business.

"Prioritize what needs to be handled immediately and what you can put off until the end of the week. Try to only touch a piece of paper once.

Resolve: be good to you

It's easy to east lofty resolutions for the New Year. Be kind to yourself by staying realistic.

The dates of making resolutions are very artificial," said Keith Ralph, Northville psychologist. "In order to make lasting change, the motivation has... to come from within"

Carry over goals from the previous year, whether keeping finances in order or progressively kicking a habit.

People who want to lose weight, for example, start thinking about 50 pounds and more." Ralph said. "You really have to do it very gradually so you don't lose faith. Do it in bite-sized chunks so you're not trying to do it all at once.

And if you fall short, Ralph said, "Reevaluate it, but don't

Besk earns Male Athlete of the Year honors; Meteyer is year's coach

By Sam Eggleston RECORD SPORTS WRITER

Every athlete should ask themselves why they compete. Is it for the glory? Is it for the fame? Is it for scholarship to college that could be waiting for them?

Or perhaps the possibility of all of the above?

Northville senior Steve Besk knows there is nothing certain in life. His soccer team was ranked first in the state and one of the top teams in the nation. The end result? They lost in the first bracket in the state tournament.

"It was definitely disappointing," said the goalie who earned all-state honors this year. "I'd much rather Male Athlete lose by a shoot out than Besk knows all about chances. As a goalie he took them every time he came out to intercept an opponent with the ball and in baseball he takes one every time he releases the pitch. Besk also took a chance this year, playing with an injured finger on his left

"I dislocated a finger on my pitching hand," he said. "I popped it back into place myself after it happened. I didn't want to get anything done to it because I would have missed some soccer. Since soccer I've been going to therapy and it's pretty much healed right now."

He's healed to the point the southpaw is starting to throw a few pitches again.

Besk isn't a shy athlete. He's quick to take responsibility and shoulders it better than most who participate in sports. He's a bit of a critic of himself too, but realizes he has to pick up and move on.'

Here's the mission if you choose to accept it: play two sports, win a state championship in one and make the semifinals in the other. While you're at it, earn All-State status.

So the competitive Northville senior jumped at the chance to play on the girls hockey team when the squad formed just three seasons ago. After taking some severe beatings their first year the squad earned a little revenge as they made it to the Frozen Four in the state playoffs. Cauzillo, who plays defense, was selected as a member of the All-State team.

In soccer, Cauzillo, who played midfield and forward. helped her team to a state cham-

"I had the chance to do things that were more well-paying," he said, noting he had an inside referral at General Motors, thanks to his father. Meteyer chose to work as a camp counselor instead.

"It was there I found out I why he coaches? he was asked.

"I enjoy helping kids," he said. "I'm sure there are a lot of careers out there that pay better, but this one can be very reward-

Meteyer helps mold lives in the classroom and out. It's what he does best.

The Northville coach is back for another season, though he said he doesn't want people expecting an easy state championship reprise.

"It's extremely hard to repeat in this sport," he said. "We lost a lot of good players. We have a lot of good players coming back, including out top scorers. It should be interesting to see what happens. I'm looking forward to the challenge and I hope the girls are too."

Currently he has interest from Albion and Adrian to play both ports while Hope and Eastern have talked to him regarding just baseball. Michigan State has expressed interest in the soccer side of the Mustang.

"I just want to play college sports," he said, but noted he's well aware there isn't much future in soccer. "That's why most guys don't go to play college soccer. There is professional soccer, but 90 percent of the guys who play at this level aren't good enough to play it."

No matter where Besk decides athletic career, he is hoping to work in computer graphic design.

And, of course, if the opportu-1 nity to play at an even higher level were to come along he'd be more than willing to try for it.

"You never know," he said.
"Hopefully if you're good enough to play at that level or have the potential, someone notices you. No matter what you just have to go out and play your game. Hopefully it all just falls into place."

And if it does, Besk will probably take the chance. He's knows all about taking chances and, so far, they've paid off.

Cauzillo has talked to a few coaches regarding playing sports at the next level, but a recent decision finds her heading to the University of Michigan to study in their school of literature, science and the arts. #### Turning away immigrants goes against our country's heritage

They have come from El Salvador and Russia, Uganda and Colombia, Iraq and Cameroon. Most of them have been tortured. Most of the women have been raped along the way. Some die or are arrested on their way to the Trundown streets of the southwest side of Detroit.

Yet several Thousand do arrive Cevery year, finding their way across the globe to an ancient red-brick former convent in The shadow of the L-Ambassador

→Bridge called Freedom House, a non-profit organization dedicated to helping 'huddled masses Sycaming to Dreathe free" to do just that. Those who come here, and who huddle for a few weeks or months in its dormitory-style rooms, risk their lives for the promise of new ones in this nation or in Canada.

But now, thanks to a new agreement between Washington and Ottawa, Freedom House's ability to help these people may be largely cut off. On Dec. 29, something called the "Safe Third Country Agreement" will take effect and severely curtail the ability of most of the world's refugees to cross over to Canada, where asylum has been easier to win in recent years.

What it means is that refugees who land in a nation regarded by both Canada and the United States as "safe" (i.e., free and democratic) will be obliged to apply for asylum there, rather than crossing the border to do so.

"This is perfectly reasonable and meant to reduce the abuse of the asylum systems by stopping asylum shopping in both Canada and the United States," said George Costaris, who manages political and economic relations for the Canadian government's consulate in Detroit.

David Koelsch, Freedom House's

staff attorney, doesn't think it is reasonable. He thinks this is an outrage. "This is an attempt by both governments to cut down on the number of refugees in the name of national security." What it will do, he fears, is doom some persecuted people.

"It will also force people to go underground, both in the United States and Canada," he furned, since the new regulations specify that if refugees apply for asylum and are turned down, they may be detained and swiftly deported. Gloria Rivera, a Mexican-born

Roman Catholic nun who has run Freedom House for the last five years, is dismayed by the ruling, especially because so many of the refugees who she has helped go to Canada.

For many years, Canada has been much more willing to grant refugees asylum than the United States has. Members of her staff have been toiling selflessly to help them win political asylum and get a new chance since 1983, when Freedom House was founded, spurred in large part by local out-rage over United States policy in El Salvador and Nicaragua.

Many of the founders were Catholic, though Freedom House's charter is scrupulously non-denominational. Last year, the house housed more refugees from Albania than any other country, followed by the persecuted of half a dozen nations of sub-Saharan Africa.

Far more of them sought asylum in Canada than in the United States. Last year, Freedom House helped 2,481 adult men and women take the first steps to apply for asylum in Canada, and a mere 286 apply here.

Things will be different now. Not entirely; it will still be possible for people from some countries -Mexico, Cyprus, and Iraq among them — to bypass the system and make a refugee claim from the United States. Those with close blood relations already in Canada will also be able to apply.

But otherwise, starting Wednesday, if a refugee lands in America first — and there are very few international flights direct to Canada - they will have no choice but to apply for asylum in the United States. If it is denied, they won't have the option, as they have had in the past, of trying again in Canada.

They'll be sent back to wherever . they escaped from. 'This isn't about national security, it is economics," said Koelsch. In other words, the rich nations of the world no longer want the world's poor.

There is something sad about that, I think, especially given that this ruling comes at Christmas time, when people gather together to remember a homeless and stateless couple whose baby was born in a manger.

What is ironic too is that virtually all those making it harder for new immigrants are the direct descendants of persecuted immigrants themselves.

Detroit, where the refugees have huddled in Freedom House, is largely depopulated, with less than half as many people as it had half a century ago.

Canada is one of the most sparsely populated nations in the world. Taking in a few more immigrants might not hurt either country. Odds are the immigrants would give back more than they receive. They usually do, you know.

Need county road help? Better know who to call

By Kim Kovelle RECORD STAFF WRITER

Maria Kamakaris' home sits on low land by Beck Road and Main Street, two of many township thoroughfares run by Wayne County.

Water drain ditches, located along both roads, have been her main source of grief for 10 years.

"A lot of people, they make turns in my driveway," Kamakaris said. "A couple times (a) car, it falls on my property close to my house. This has happened maybe six years ago.

"If you don't know the problem (is) there, you're going to be down in the ditch."

Kamakaris is not alone in needing help for county-owned roads. That's because nearly all of Northville Township's main roads are built and maintained by the county.

That goes for all townships, by state law, since they don't have public works departments like cities. The county also covers maintenance work on residential streets, but isn't bound to take care of major

"It's not unusual to receive complaints on township roads," said Pat Hogan, director, Wayne County Roads Division. "If the roads are gravel, there is required maintenance ... almost continuously. If the roads are paved, then the complaints may range from filling a pothole to putting up a stop sign."

Township Director of Public Services Don Weaver said debris in ditches is a fairly common complaint.

"Leaves will blow in," Weaver said. "If somebody doesn't really clean that out, then it becomes plugged. It just requires a little bit more maintenance.

Paved roads, which have underground storm systems, need repairs at about 25-30 years. That's common in established townships like Call the county

Unless a road is privately owned in Northville Township, odds are it's under Wayne County jurisdiction. If you have any questions or concerns about a road, call:

 The Wayne County Roads' 24-hour hottine at (734) 955-9920, or

• The Wayne County Phoenix Yard in Plymouth at (734) 420-0535

Canton, Hogan said, but Northville has some roads that age.

At any time, Hogan said about 15-20 crews respond countywide from 13 yards, including Plymouth's Phoenix Yard. A 24hour hotline is available. Whether a road is primary or local can sometimes make a difference.

"Our funding, it comes (from) the state gas and weight tax," Hogan said. "The amount of money that we receive to maintain a primary road is about 10 times what we receive to maintain a local road. One common statement that I'd say applies to all local roads in townships is there isn't the level of funding to provide sufficient service that everyone would like."

Re-enter Kamakaris, Hogan said workers reported doing minimal clean-up to her ditches recently, as well as patchwork by a drain pipe.

But Kamakaris said she's hopeful the county would arrive to do more cleaning and deepen the ditch to stop water overflow.

Wayne County engineering come over and they promised me they're going to come with a rainy day to see how it works," she said. "I'm still waiting."

More than fame and money

Who is Henry Ford? Why do they call it Disneyland? What did Mary Kay do?

Virtually everyone knows that these dreamers turned their ideas Into realities through good, oldfashioned entrepreneurship. We marvel at the rags-to-riches stories of those who started with only a dream and created enterprises that eventually became household names.

As Americans, we take pride in honoring our fellow citizens whose innovations make our lives fuller and easier. Take Henry Ford, for example. His motivation wasn't fame and money. He liked repairing and creating mechanical things. He failed twice before his little car company started to roll.

For every Henry Ford, Walt Disney or Mary Kay Ash, there are millions of successful American entrepreneurs who have never been featured on "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous" or profiled in Fortune magazine. What's more, many of these busy business owners have neither the time nor the desire to be spotlighted for their achievements. They're content in their pursuit of the American dream. Simply being an entrepreneur, seeing an idea materialize into an enterprise that provides a much-needed good or service that customers are willing to pay for is enough. The personal pride that comes with providing life-sustaining employment for others is all the satisfaction they

Right now, all across America, another generation is preparing to test its entrepreneurial wings. As a new year begins, millions of high-school seniors are hard at work researching how to finance their higher education. Many of them share common ground with those who have already taken the small-business leap of faith: they have a dream to own their own business.

The NFIB Young Entrepreneur Foundation, is determined to make this dream a reality by providing 350 students with $1,000 non-renewable Free Enterprise Scholars Awards they can use to attend the college, vocational or technical school of their choice. It's a way to raise awareness among young people of the critical role of private enterprise and entrepreneurship in the American way of life. The scholarships will be presented next May. A recent conference report entitled "Entrepreneurship in the 21st Century," by the U.S. Small Business Administration and the Ewing Marion Kauffman

Foundation, noted in its research that an overwhelming majority of college students desire to be entrepreneurs at some point during their academic careers. Additionally, people with higher levels of education are more likely to choose the path of entrepreneurship and they are more likely to start a business with more employees. "Classrooms," the report stated, "are filled with innogators. The key is to provide the necessary skills that will allow them to foster these talents and start new businesses."

For the majority of America's entrepreneurs, the realization of their dreams is greater motivation than wealth or fame. By making this investment in the education of tomorrow's risk takers, the NFIB Young Entrepreneur Foundation is helping them build on their interest in business and possibly setting them on the track to be successful, life-long entrepreneurs.

Year's end is ideal to review financial health

By Duane Ramsey SPECIAL WRITER

As the end of one year and beginning of another approaches, the time is right for your annual checkup. Financial planning is an effective way to coordinate all aspects of your financial health.

"It's a great time for an annual checkup of your financial condition," said Matthew W. Semeyn, a Certified Financial Planner and principal of MWS Financial Planning in Northville. "Since you are gathering all of your financial information to file your 2004 tax return, why not have an unbiased review of your financial situation to make sure you are on track to meet your goals."

After the meeting, he provides a quote for his proposed services, and upon mutual agreement, begins working for the client.

Anyone who wants to better understand their financial situation is a potential client for Semeyn's services. If you want to build a secure future or protect the wealth you already have accumulated, MWS Financial Planning can help you achieve your goals.

Each plan is customized to meet the individual client's needs. The quotes for such financial services will run from $1,000 to $2,500 for a college plan and a coordinated financial plan from $2,500 to $6,000, depending on the complexity of the plan.

Semeyn also works on an ala carte basis for items that include cash flow, debt elimination, budgeting, goal planning, insurance review, portfolio risk assessment and tolerance review, investment selection, asset allocation, stock options, college planning, retirement plan review, tax planning and estate plan review. Such plans can be done all at once or over a period of time with fees applied accordingly.

A coordinated financial plan puts all aspects of the client's finances together in a way that is easy for them to understand.

easy for them to understand.

"My personal preference is completing a coordinated plan over a period of time so I get to know my clients on a personal level," Semeyn said. "By implementing one segment at a time, my clients get a complete understanding of their personalized plan."

People often don't know what questions to ask a financial plan-

"I believe there are several good duestions to ask but I think the most important questions are not the ones you ask of a financial planner, but the ones a financial planner asks you," Semeyn said. "By getting to know my clients and what they want to accomplish now and in the future, I can help my clients avoid the potential pitfalls that exist in all areas of personal finance."

• Some scholarships can disqualify students from tax credits.

• Tax scholarships are avail-

College planning programs are designed for families whose income is greater than $75,000 per year and who may or may not qualify for financial aid based on income. MWS Financial Planning uses little known and highly successful academic, financial and tax-oriented programs that can be initiated at early ages through high school years and are designed to show clients how to save as much as tens of thousands of dollars during the college years.

Semeyn also holds seminars for local businesses and organizations to help educate their employees or members. If you would like more information and a bi-weekly college e-newsletter, Semeyn will by happy to add you to his mailing list.

"The majority of people neglect their own retirement to put their kids through college, but that's short-term thinking," said Semeyn, who is a Certified College Planning Specialist. "These people cannot take out loans or receive financial aid for retirement. I will examine what their retirement situation looks like presently and determine if there are any shortcomings."

Another key to good financial health is your investment plan, according to Semeyn.

Baby boomers will remember paper dolls

There was a time when paper dolls were almost as popular a plaything for little girls as the three-dimensional versions. At the turn of the 19th century, there were beautifully drawn dolls and costumes ready to be cut out from the pages of newspapers and magazines, as well as large, stiff individual dolls with movable arms and legs.

From the 1920s through the 1950s, there was a concentration on the glamorous celebrity doll (many of which were designed by an artist named Queen Holden) - Clara Bow, Betty Grable, Rita Hayworth, Marilyn Monroe, Grace Kelly, et al, as well comic strip characters (Tillie the Toiler, Brenda Starr), figures from juvenile fiction ("Little Women," "Five Little Peppers"), historical, royal, patriotic (Victory Volunteers dolls and uniforms) and the perennial favorite, the bride.

Things changed quite drastically in the 1960s, as can be seen in the new identification and value guide "Paper Dolls of the 1960s, 1970s, and 1980s" by Carol Nichols (Collector Books). Among other trends at the time, the passion for fashion dolls like fairly concise. But, yes, whatever solution you settle on, I would advise dressing all three windows alike. It will be less busy in the long run than varying the treatments, especially in a traditional-show here. Those windows faced the garden, but also presented a need for light- and privacy-con-

Contemporary Collectibles

There were sets featuring Debbie Reynolds (valued now at $70 to $80), a stand-up Annette Funicello with 35 costumes, and Mod Fashions featuring Jane Fonda, as well as theatrical movies such as "One Hundred and One Dalmatians" and "Chitty Chitty Bang Bang," not to mention almost every hit television show of the decade, from "The Flintstones" to "The Beverly Hillbillies" to "That Girl" to "The Flying Nun."

Then there were the traditional, generic, girly-girl subjects, such as brides and ballerinas, ice skaters, stewardesses, sisters and cousins, platter parties and princesses.

One of the biggest developments of the decade was an outpouring of baby and toddler paper dolls - some named, some nameless, some paper versions of popular dolls. Falling into the first category were Cindy and Mindy, Baby Kim, Baby Bonnie, Baby Anne Smiles and Cries, Little Laurie, and Tina and Trudy, while the second included Bonnets and Bows, Babes in Fairlyland, Two Little Girls, Baby Doll, My Very Own Baby Doll, Dolly and Me, Baby Bumpkins, Drowsy Paper Doll, Baby First Step, Baby's Hungry!, Baby Go-Along, and Baby Secret.

But it is the paper dolls that relate to the "real" dolls of the period that are of most collector value, because of their crossover appeal. If you are a baby boomer, the chances are that your favorite doll also existed in the cut-out world as well - think Kewpie dolls, Chatty Cathy, Charmin' Chatty and Chatty Baby, Tammy, Pepper and Dodi, Cheerful Tearful, Liddle Kiddles, Skediddle Kiddles, Winking Winny, Flatsy, and, of course, Barbie and her extended circle -Ken, Midge, Francie and Casey, and Christie and Stacey.

The next two decades, the '70s and '80s, continued along the same direction, with the dolls and their fashions, and the graphic style of the artwork, taking on a more "mod" look in the '70s. Most of these dolls are very affordable, with prices in the $10 to $20 range. A few exceptions to this are: a 1970 set from the television show "Julia," starring Diahann Carroll ($40 to $55), Disney's "Bedknobs and Broomsticks," featuring five diecut dolls of Angela Lansbury, et al ($35 to $55), "The Partridge Family ($35 to $55) and the iconic "The Brady Bunch" ($40 to $75 - its original price was 69

Interest in paper dolls was now dying out, objects more of campy nostalgia than current enthusiasms. The late '70s saw the introduction of adult paper dolls featuring such past and present icons as Marilyn Monroe, Carmen Miranda, Joan Crawford and Grace Kelly and historic sets harkening back to the Victorian era, bringing the field full circle.

knocking holes in the plaster. A But what IS eye-level?
When you are standing or when you are sitting? Not to cloud the issue, but there are a number of answers here, depending on the height of your ceilings, whether or not the artworks are going into an arrangement over a table, over a sofa, up the stairs, or floor-to-ceiling down a wall. Taste in art displays also depends on the overall style of your decor. For example, the Victorians adored "gallery-style" exhibitions: They hung paintings and other artworks all the way to the ceiling. Forget about seeing anything at "eye-level" - they were simply out to impress with the sheer numbers in their collections.

Came the International Style a few decades later, and walls went white and bare, save for a single, usually quite large, showpiece painting or hanging dominating a room. Then Country Style led us back to a merry mix of art, quilts and other handcrafts hung at whatever level pleases, anywhere and everywhere.

The best advice I can share is borrowed from "Home Decorating For Dummies" by Patricia Hart McMıllan and Katharine Kaye McMillan (Wiley; $13.95) Among the helpful guidelines they lay out for basic picture-hanging:

- Hang art where the eye expects to see it, say, over the sofa or mantel.

- If it's hanging over a piece of furniture, the bottom of the art should be close enough to relate to the furniture, that is, 8 to 10 inches above it. - Art should be at least half as wide - but no wider - than the piece of furniture.

- A tiny piece of art hung below the lampshade on a bedside (or chairside) table can be a serendipity.

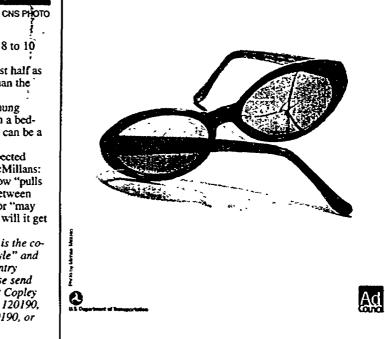

Consider other unexpected places, too, urge the McMillans: art over a door or window "pulls the eye up." Art hung between the window sill and floor "may seem unusual, but, boy, will it get noticed!").

Celebrity makeup artist Michele Probst, who has worked with Stevie Nicks and Shania Twain, offers these quick and easy tips to help you look your very best as you celebrate 2005.

Don't allow your busy holiday . schedule to discourage you from embarking on this beauty routine. It doesn't take much time to create a look worthy of a celebration.

• Moisturize before any makeup application.

 Apply foundation and powder. A nice soft pink blush on the apple of the cheek is warm and appealing.

EYES

 Go for neutral eyeshadows, anywhere from a tan to a white on the lid, but heavy for drama. Make sure there is a contrast between the lid and the contour underneath the brow bone. You can also do a nice shimmer on the brow bone underneath the brow. Blending is key, so it all runs together and looks flawless.

• As a finishing touch, stroke your blush brush across your eye shadows to blend.

LIPS

Use water-proof and smudge-proof product on your lips because you'll be kissing lots of people at midnight.

• Gloss is in, so go with a nice thick glistening lip lacquer you can find at any drugstore to pop your lips. Start with a nice rich lip pencil, fill in the whole lip, and then top it off with a rich gloss to make lips pop.

HAIR

• The week before, use a liberal dose of Teatree oil to exfoliate the scalp to remove any dead skin that's a result of the changing seasons.

 When washing hair with Suave Professionals® Color Care Shampoo for the big night, shampoo your scalp and use just a tiny bit of shampoo on the ends.

• To condition, apply Suave Professionals® Humectant Conditioner on the last four inches, or just the tips, of your hair. Then, blow dry hair in sections so that you're not hitting the same piece of hair over and over and drying it out.

SKIN

 Moisturize the night before to give yourself a little extra oomph to face the cold weather. Concentrate around the eyes.

> On the big night, allow a little extra time to get ready so that you don't feel rushed. After bathing, don't dry off completely before applying Suave Advanced Therapy

Lotion, so that your skin will absorb more moisture.

 And finally, the most important beauty tool you can have is confidence. And by using Suave 24-Hour Protection Invisible Solid, Soft Solid, Aerosol or Roll-On, you'll have total confidence when you raise your glass to toast in the New Year!

Suave® 24-Hour Protection

I don't know her name, but she's a standup comic and she always performs her act with an accordion as a prop. I'd like to know more about her.

-Edward G., Michigan "The Aphrodite of the Accordion," as she calls herself, is comic Judy Tenuta. She was raised in Oak Park, Ill. (pop. 52,524), and graduated from the University of Illinois with a degree in theater. Best known for her brash, offbeat humor, she was the first standup to win Best Female Comedian at the American Comedy Awards and has released three CDs, two of which were nominated for a Grammy. #### How much acreage and livestock does President George Bush own?

—Eunice C., California

Ranch owner President Bush

The president's ranch in Crawford, Texas (pop.-705), spreads out on approximately 1,600 acres. Two hundred head of cattle, owned and managed by a resident ranch manager, graze the land, which also serves as home to wild turkeys, deer and a man-made fishing pond stocked with bass. The Bushes bought the ranch in 1999. "It's one of the few places where I can actually walk outside my front door and say, 'I think I'm going to walk for two hours.' And although I'm not really alone, I can walk wherever I want to walk. And I can't do that in Washington," he says.

I would like to know what happened to Lee Horsley, and also a list of movies he acted in.

— Dean C., Mississippi

The star of TV's Matt Houston, Paradise and Nero Wolfe is working on a documentary about the history of the Arkansas River in Colorado. "It's where my father had taken me as a kid and spent a lot of wonderful times," he says. "The river has always fascinated me." Born in Muleshoe, Texas (pop. 4,530), Horsley's family moved to Colorado when he was in junior high. An avid horseman and fly-fisherman, he appears on various outdoors TV shows. "I've gone to some pretty neat places that I probably never would have thought of visiting-in Chile, Alaska, Canada—with these shows. It's a nice break from the soundstage," he says. Horsley, 49, and his wife have four children and have homes in Los Angeles and Denver. His movie credits include The Sword and the Sorcerer, Unlawful Passage and Nightmare Man.

Whatever happened to Hugh Beaumont, the father on Leave It To Beaver?

—Joe P., Tennessee

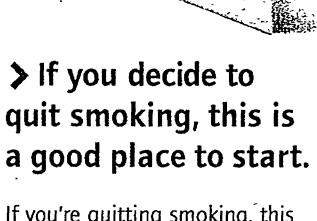

Beaumont died from a heart attack in 1982, at age 73, while visiting his son, Eric, a psychology professor, in Munich, Germany. The man who will forever stay in TV viewers' minds as Ward Cleaver was also an ordained minister. He had a master's degree in theology and remained active in church activities throughout his acting career. A native of Lawrence, Kan., he started his acting career in radio and theater before moving on to movies such as The Mole People and The Blue Dahlia. He was cast in Leave It To Beaver in 1957 and remained through the series' end in 1963. He continued to make guest appearances on TV shows such as Mannix and Wagon Train, but retired from acting after he suffered a stroke in 1972. He recovered enough to do some directing and community theater in Los Angeles and in Aiken, S.C. (pop. 25,337), where his youngest son, Mark, lived. Just two months before his death, Beaumont reunited with the Leave It To Beaver cast on a local TV newscast.

The Spirit by SUSAN C. INGRAM Photos by Adele Starr of Hancock

A new spirit is afoot in Hancock, Md., born when the town reached down and yanked on its bootstraps.

Hancock first encountered trouble in the 1960s when it was bypassed by the interstate. That hurt Main Street businesses, and when London Fog—one of the town's largest employers—closed in the early 1990s, matters looked grim for this tight-knit community of 1,725 in western Maryland.

"That was totally devastating to our community, a real challenge," says Hancock's energetic, fourterm mayor Daniel A. Murphy. "We've worked to overcome adversity all along the way."

Reviewing its strengths, Hancock found them in its history with the Western Maryland Railroad and the Chesapeake & Ohio (C&O) Canal. Both once brought commerce to town, but by the 1970s they were defunct relics. Today, they are bustling tourist attractions as the Western Maryland Rail Trail and the C&O Canal Park.

Artist Sindair Hamilton sculpts a bust for a veterans' memorial in Hancock, Md.

Hancock residents, with the guidance of the Western Maryland Rail Trail Citizens Advisory Committee, came together to help refurbish 20 miles of railroad right-of-way purchased in 1990 by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources. A portion of the canal running through Hancock was reclaimed from decades of overgrowth and rewatered. Newly completed and well-tended trails along the canal and railbed along the Potomac River now draw hikers and bikers to the picturesque town in the foothills of the Appalachian Mountains.

Hancock's C&O Canal Visitor Center is on the east end of Main Street, with information about the 184.5-mile towpath running between Washington, D.C., and Cumberland, Md. In the center of town is a C&O Canal Park, with access to the towpath, rail trail, parking and historic markers.

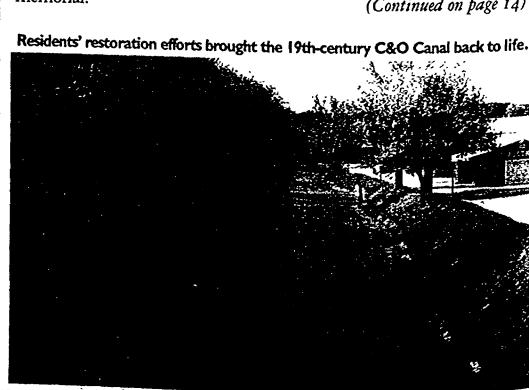

"This rail trail has been a godsend for Hancock," says Murphy, noting that last summer three major bicycling events rolled through town.

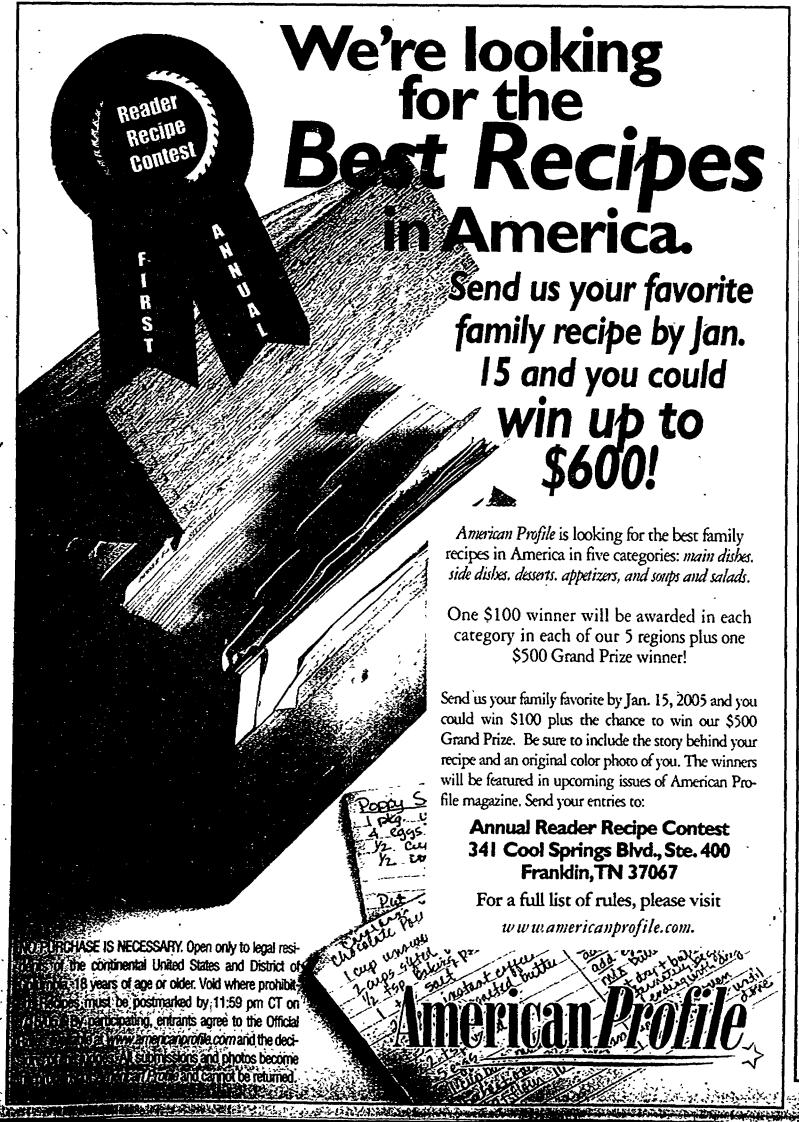

The spirit of working for the town permeates Hancock, from the VFW post raising $100,000 for a local veterans' memorial, dedicated in 2000, to picnic pavilions erected by the Lion's Club. The town council voted this year to build a park—named after Edward Joseph Hancock Jr., who operated a local ferry in the mid-1800s and gave the town its name—on property reclaimed from a flood-damaged residential area.

To bring more arts to the area, the Hancock Arts Council was formed in 2001. In its first few months, it organized the Hancock Winter Festival, which draws hundreds each February for an all-day snow-sculpting contest, along with music and food. The council has since sponsored dance and music events.

"This place is always a surprise," says sculptor Sinclair Hamilton, who renovated a Main Street bank into an art studio. Hamilton recently designed two bronze sculptures to be added to Hancock's veterans' memorial.

Clark is hoping this New Year's Eve broadcast is peaceful and uneventful, except of course, for what happens onstage. "I remember one year, we were going through the Iran hostage crisis, and the man who owned Number One Times Square from where we drop the ball had darkened the whole building and would not drop the ball," he says. "I had to go to him and plead, 'For God's sake, don't do this. It will draw attention to the fact that there are hostages in Iran. You're going to destroy people's party. That's only part of our world.' I had him turn the lights down for a period of time and let me talk about it (on air),"

So why doesn't Clark just hand the microphone to someone else and take the holiday week off? He says,

An ordinary childhood

As a child, Clark and his older brother, Brad, celebrated special occasions with their father, a cosmetics salesman, and their mother, a homemaker, in Bronxville (pop. 6,543) and Mount Vernon, N.Y. (pop. 68,543). "My parents were always very diligent and hard-working," he says. "It was an ordinary childhood—not rich, not poor. It was comfortable. I can remember saying to one of my principals, 'If I can make $10,000 a year, I've got it made!' And in those days, that was a comfortable life."

He got bit by the broadcasting bug at age 13, when his father took him to a live radio broadcast of Garry Moore and Jimmy Durante. "I just thought, 'That looks like fun and I'd like to get involved in that somehow or another," he says. "I had no idea I'd ever stand in front of a microphone."

After Brad was killed in World War II when Clark was about 15. Clark's father accepted a job managing a Utica, N.Y., radio station so that he could help his only surviving son achieve his broadcasting dreams. "I can remember my father saying to me at one point, 'If you're still a disc jockey when you're 30, you need to find another line of work," Clark recalls. "He would find it amusing that now I'm in my 70s and I still do disc jockeying."

Clark, a Syracuse University graduate, landed his first broadcasting position in 1947 at WRUN in Utica and served as a TV newscaster on WKTV in Utica-Rome before moving to Philadelphia radio station WFIL in 1952. On July 9, 1956, Clark was named the new host of American Bandstand at WFIL-TV in Philadelphia.

The American Bandstand era

The show, which was aired nationwide in 1957 and quickly became the nation's highest-rated daytime show, provided a national TV debut for acts such as Paul Anka, the Everly Brothers, Buddy Holly and the Crickets, Jerry Lee Lewis, Chubby Checker and Tackie Wilson.

"We had 10,000 musical performances on that show, so it would be very difficult to pinpoint one or two favorites," he says. "The two or three that occur to me all the time are when Michael Jackson took the microphone away from me or when Madonna was there and we heard how she was going to be a star.

seven or eight hours a week of Also, the first time Barry Manilow appeared, and he made an impression. Then they go back to when Chuck Berry first appeared and said, 'I'm gonna dance."

Clark was working seven days a week and was once on all three major TV networks in syndication simultaneously. "Most of my activity nowadays is backstage, which is the way I planned it when I was a kid. When I first got a good break doing Bandstand, I set up a corporation to be a production company, figuring that the on-air thing wouldn't last long, and eventually if I wanted to stay around the business, be involved in the production process."

American Bandstand moved to California in 1964. where it remained until 1989, when the 59-year-old Clark stepped down as host, and the show was soon cancelled.

Clark announced recently that Bandstand will return to television in September. It will still feature teenagers dancing, lipsynched performances and the rating of records, but it also will have a contemporary "reality" twist of revealing the dancers' personal lives and allowing the audience to vote for their favorite couples. In addition, footage from the 1960s can now be seen on Clark laughs during an interview with Cher (above), and poses with rock band Bon Jovi (at right). He's also interviewed Janet and Michael Jackson, Madonna and Chuck Berry. the NBC show American Dreams, which Clark co-produces.

Considered one of Hollywood's most successful independent producers, dick clark productions is responsible for shows such as Bloopers, the American Music Awards, Academy of Country Music Awards and the Golden Globes. Clark's wife, Kari, whom he married in 1977, works with him (and they bring their three dogs to the office every day); his son, RAC, produces the country awards show. Son Duane has directed or written shows such as CSI and Boston Public, and daughter Cindy is an independent producer and writer.

"I try to do things that ordinary people will like a lot," Clark says. "That's basically my philosophy, and as a producer, I try to appeal to the widest stroke of audience."

Clark, who concedes that "work absorbs me," has no plans of retiring: "I'd love to keep doing what we're doing," he says. "Hopefully, we'll have a couple of new projects in the works and maybe a film. Possibly someday, I'd like to produce a Broadway show. I've tried a couple of times and failed, but I've had the opportunity of late to try that again."

Although Clark remains a cultural icon who is just as famous as the musical superstars he introduced to the nation decades ago, he's too busy planning for the future to reminisce about his

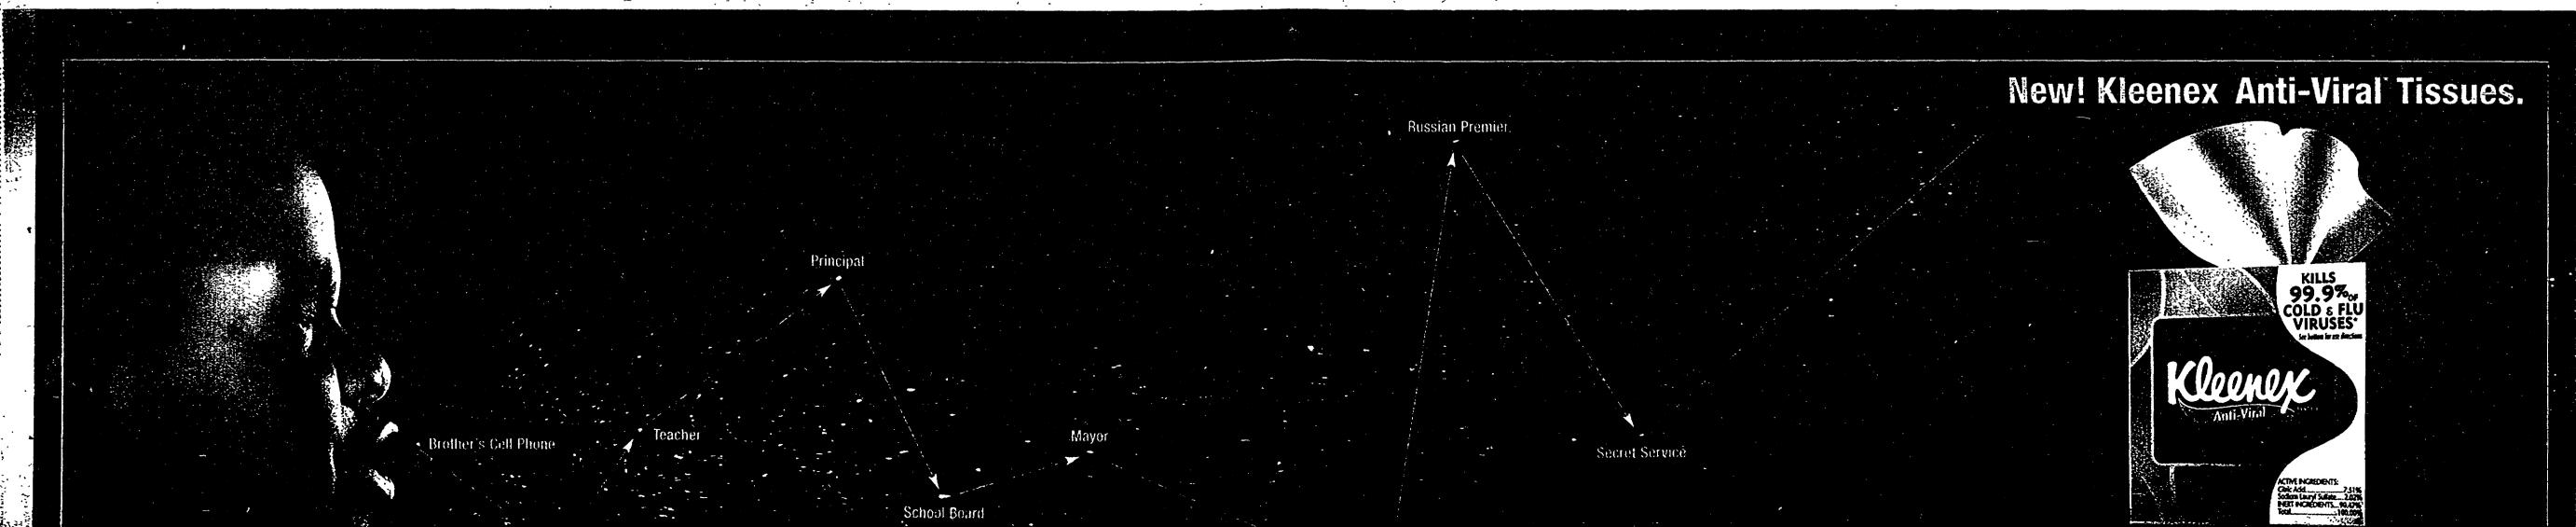

"I'm most proud of not only being around, but being able to maintain for so many years," he says. "It's incredible. There are just a handful of people that you could point to who have been able to do that.

"People say to me now frequently, at least once or twice a week, 'Thanks for being part of my life.' That's about as nice as it gets. If you spend your life enjoying what you do and getting paid enough to do it and having fun, the added issue of people saying thank you can be nice."

Bessie Zeller didn't start making her unique honey-based candy with the intent of turning it into a family business. Instead, she was just following a doctor's orders.

Zeller began creating the candy in her Lovell, Wyo. (pop. 2,367), home more than 50 years ago after an optometrist advised her that her son Mitchel's vision would improve if sugar were eliminated from his diet. Looking for a sugar replacement, she turned to honey, which was in abundant supply because of her husband Clarence's occupation as a beekeeper.

"So, I started creating all my own recipes and did all my cooking, canning and baking with honey," says Bessie, 79. "One year later, he didn't need glasses."

The doctor never gave the family a diagnosis for Mitchel's condition, and Bessie says she has never heard that advice given since.

Employee Vickey Wagner displays one of the many varieties of honey-based,

In 1976, Bessie put her honey-based recipes to use when she and Clarence, 80, started a candy company as a way to employ their sons, Gene, Von and Mitchel.

"We started because our boys wanted to stay here and make a living," she says. "They wanted to go into the bee business with their dad, but there wasn't enough income."

Today, Gene and Von still work for Queen Bee Gardens and serve as co-owners along with Clarence. The couple also has three daughters, Sidney, JoAnne and Annella.

"Everybody told us it couldn't be done," says Bessie of starting the company. "We didn't know anything about shelf life (how long a product can remain in the store) or marketing, but Clarence insisted we could do it." For example, most sugar-based truffles have a 30-day shelf life, but since honey is a natural preservative, Queen Bee candies and truffles have a 90-day shelf life.

> The first candy made for sale was vanillaflavored honey taffy, but when the Zellers discovered that its shelf life was too short, they developed a praline called Pecan Pearl, which is still their top seller. "We've added a lot of candies since we > started," Bessie says. "We have about 10 different varieties of pralines. We also make Honeymoons, which are like Turtles, as well as truffles, English toffee, Bark and > > Haystacks." The low-sugar and nosugar candies, initially sold only at a handful of health available in more than 800 stores in all 50 states.

Of course, it hasn't always been smooth sailing for the Zellers. In 1993, the company nearly went out of business when a fire destroyed their factory.

"Everything was gone," Clarence says. Luckily, fellow Lovell residents came to their rescue. They helped haul off debris and pour a concrete floor for a new honey house. Neighbor Scott Caturia, a local Mormon leader, called other congregations throughout the county to enlist aid for the Zellers, who also are Mormons.

"Everybody just kind of pitched in," Caturia says. "When you put it all together, it got them back on their feet and got them started."

Queen Bee Gardens moved its base of operation to a former Safeway store in downtown Lovell, and within 30 days of the fire, the business was up and running again.

"It was just thrilling to think that people were so kind and loving and helpful. It was heartwarming," Bessie says.

Today, the company has fully recovered and become a full-fledged family affair. "A lot of the family is involved," Bessie says. "There's my husband and me, Von and Gene, their wives, and our daughter, Sidney, and her husband, Lawrence. We also have two grandsons who are working with us, Ben and Jason."

Outside of family, the company employs four full-time workers and a host of part-time helpers, who help produce more than 200,000 pounds of candy each year.

Looking back over the company's history, Bessie is more than a little surprised at how the company literally sprang from following a doctor's orders. "Sometimes," she says, "it just amazes me."

The Balanced Spectrum floor lamp combines the benefits of natural daylight indoors with a savings of $51 over the life of one bulb!"

Ever since the first human went into a dark cave and built a fire, people have realized the importance of proper indoor lighting. Unfortunately, since Edison invented the light bulb, lighting technology has remained relatively prehistoric. Modern light fixtures do little to combat many symptoms of improper lighting, such as eyestrain, dryness or burning. As more and more of us spend longer hours in front of a computer monitor, the results are compounded. And the effects of indoor lighting are not necessarily limited to physical well being. Many people believe that the quantity and quality of light can play a part in one's mood and work performance. Now, there's a better way to bring the positive benefits of natural sunlight indoors.

The Balanced Spectrum® floor lamp will change the way you see and feel about your living or work spaces. Studies show that sunshine can lift your mood and your energy levels. But as we all know the sun, unfortunately, does not always shine. So to bring the benefits of natural daylight indoors, use the floor lamp that simulates the full spectrum of daylight. You will see with more clarity and enjoyment as this lamp provides sharp visibility for close tasks and reduces eyestrain.

Its 27-watt compact bulb is the equivalent to a 150-watt ordinary light bulb. This makes it perfect for activities such as reading, writing, sewing, needlepoint, and especially for aging eyes.

We've looked at lots of lights, but this one offered the benefit of dual light levels of 27 and 18 watts of power equivalent to 150- and 100-watt incandescent bulbs. This lamp has a flexible gooseneck design for maximum efficiency, with an "Instant On" switch that is flicker-free. The high-tech electronics, user-friendly design, and bulb that lasts 10 times longer than an ordinary bulb make this lamp a must-have.

SAVE $51 over the life of one Balanced Spectrum® bulb!"

A 150-watt incandescent bulb uses $0.013 per hour in energy cost. The Balanced Spectrum® bulb uses an average of 70% less energy which saves you $0.009 per hour. Based on 5,000 hours bulb life, the Balanced Spectrum® bulb will save $46 in energy cost. Plus, because the Balanced Spectrum® bulb lasts 10 times longer than an incandescent bulb priced at an average of $0.50, an additional $5 savings is realized.

Police Chief Donald Gossage is a self-taught grant writer who has secured more than $350,000 in state and federal funds for community crime control, prevention programs and events, including pool parties and "midnight madness" basketball games for the town's youths. "There was not a lot for the teen-age kids to do in the evenings," he says.

As rector of the 169-year-old St. Thomas' Episcopal Parish, the Rev. F. Allan Weatherholt Jr. sees community involvement firsthand. "Hancock is a very caring community," he says. "It's a wonderful blend of history and tradition and a forward looking community."

That history started with rough-and-tumble fur traders in the 1730s. George Washington surveyed the area. Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson bombarded Hancock in 1862, and President Franklin D. Roosevelt vacationed at nearby Woodmont Lodge. In 2003, the town was added to Maryland's historic Civil War Heritage Trails, with three kiosks describing Hancock's Civil War history.

Lifelong Hancock resident Debbie Reed enjoys the new spirit in her hometown. She says she wouldn't live anywhere else. "There's so much more love in a small town."

Susan C. Ingram is writer in Randallstown, Md.
