Local art galleries will set up booths in front of their retail locations to display store items, have an artist demonstration or make their own interactive art area.

Northyille's central business district will be closed to vehicles, but open to displays of art, contemporary musical entertainment and concessions. More than 20,000 people are expected to attend, Bloom said.

After screening applicants earlier this year, the chamber invited 130 local, regional and national artists to set up booths along Main and Center to woodwork to paintings.

Police arrested Sprowl on the assault charge and ticketed him for improper lane use. A licensed firearms dealer, Sprowl has a valid state concealed weapons permit, aid Det. Sgt. Michael Carlson.

The two officers dispatched to the scene after an ONSTAR traffic accident report asked both men to describe the sequence of events. They also questioned witnesses nearby.

The main discrepancy was whether Sprowl removed the gun from his console to threaten the black Lincoln LS driver, the police report said. Officers concluded a threat had been made after the Northville man described the weapon.

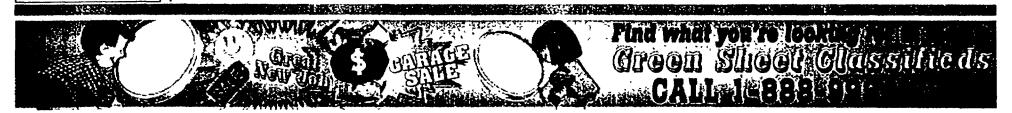

The Lincoln driver said Sprowl followed him closely while traveling eastbound on Eight Mile Road between Beck Road and Randolph Street. At Randolph, where Eight Mile narrows to one lane, the man told police Sprowl caused a collision when he turned left suddenly,

The Northville man approached the truck, yelling at Sprowl, who then allegedly told him to step back while aiming the gun at his chest, the report said.

Following the collision, Sprowl contacted ONSTAR to report the accident, police said. The company agreed to provide a recording of the transmission, which may include the argument.

Sprowl pleaded not guilty and was expected to be released on $20,000 personal bond Tuesday. His next court date is June 24.

Downtown watchdog says first things first: parking

This is the final installment in a six-part series looking at how downtown Northville business owners are employing low-cost techniques in the high-stakes competition for retail customers.

By Maureen Johnston RECORD STAFF WRITER

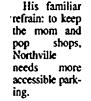

Rod Bodnar is downtown Northville's watchdog.

He barks at a whiff of fiscal mismanagement. He growls warning about stores leaving town. He yips incessantly at suggested changes.

Downtown's recent self-examination is fine, he said. But battling competition by investing in facade improvement, customer service, increasing technology, extended hours and collaboration won't be enough.

The city must choose to become a retail destination, or surrender to market forces that will replace weak stores with professional service offices.

People still want to walk around and shop downtown, he said

First things first Downtown's commercial growth could be stunted by its own attractiveness, Bodnar said. The people reporting to their offices for the day or coming home to Main Street will walk a couple of blocks, he said, but people stopping to spend money want curb-side convenience.

"If you don't get the parking, you won't get the type of business you want," Bodnar said. "You've got to make this at least a reasonably attractive place to do business. "It's very simple, if there's no parking, the customers won't come.

Commerce president Jody Humphries called recent merchant improvements basics of good business "I like to use the analogy of the tool box, those are all tools to use," she said. "It's a combination of all those working together that will increase the probability of being successful.

"Parking is an issue after you're doing all those things," she said. "To me, if you don't have the product and the service. I'm not coming to your store. Then there will be lots of parking places."

power, Humphries said the commercial district would not survive with all businesses operating independently.

Bodnar bristled at the notion of replacing piles of paper with stacks of CDs. He's comfortable with what others deem a clutter box.

"I have no faith in Internet businesses for this community," Bodnar said.

Bodnar's 342 E. Main Street yard and building exterior aren't slated for transformation either. He said the vehicles in his back lot allow him to indulge his tinkering hobby when he has a chance.

"It's private property," he said. We're on the tail end of the world down there. I didn't get flower pots, they don't water my tree, they don't plan events down there.

That's the micro-manging, the finger in the dike."

Bodnar said if he thought moving stuff from his premises would make the difference in the downtown's viability, he would make the change.

Eye of experience

As eager as Bodnar is to see his 32-year hometown healthy, his suggestions sometimes breed skepticism.

Frequently at the center of Tuscan Cafe banter, the Copy Boy Printers owner speaks candidly about the size of outdoor artwork. the need for parking, the condition of streets and the continuous business turnover because he cares about the town.

"When you're in such a small area, you can spit in any direction. you're going to hit someone even that you like," he said. "I feel you get misunderstood for that."

Between puffs on his gnarled pipe and coffee sips. Bodnar prowls among his fellow' merchants. He cocks his head for news Thursday, June 18, 2005-NORTHVILLE RECORD of businesses going in and out and buildings changing hands.

People excited about the newest shop opening up overlook the vacancy often is created by the heartbreaking failure of a predecessor, he said.

He said he has watched retail offerings in the central business district turn from everyday items to non-essentials. He knows downtown change is inevitable, but what lies ahead is a little unsettling.

"There's a lot of sweat equity in these businesses," he said. "You're seeing some impressive changes. "They'll survive or the next thing will come in."

The real story?

Local leaders have their own challenge, Bodnar said: apathy. Meeting after meeting without an audience gives officials the false impression no one cares.

'Just because they're officials doesn't mean they're evil people," he said. "If people go to the meeting, they'll respond."

It takes smarts and learning new tricks to handle the politics of a long-established community. Bodnar said.

"It is a little unsettling," he said. "Like whenever a new dog comes into the park, there's a degree of growling and sniffing."

The threat of a faux downtown outdoor shopping "lifestyle center" chomping into downtown's viability was overstated, Bodnar said.

And when voters in November 2003 buried the plan to build the multi-level Wing Street parking deck, it was courtesy of a campaign of misinformation, he said.

"Even people who knew better,

"You've got to make this at least a reasonably attractive place to do business."

they were trying to tell the residents they were going to pay for it."

Bodnar said Northville sometimes seems like Rod Serling's Twilight Zone." Everything is not quite as it seems.

As merchants try to gauge local demand for the type of products to offer, residents ask in public forums for "everyday" items. But hardwares, the independent pharmacy, furniture store, the five-anddime, the bookstore and others have come and gone.

"Northville is always going to be Northville," he said. "It's always going to have a quaintness, a small townness.

"I'd like it not to get any taller. but it's not any of my business because I don't own any of the buildings."

There might always be bones Bodnar can't ignore.

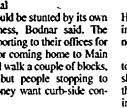

You know downtown's best kept secret?" he asked. "Where are the public restrooms?"

Northville Downs owners fight against new racing venue

Northville Downs' attorney Edward Draugelis June 7 filed in Wayne County Circuit Court an appeal of the Michigan Racing Commission's decision to grant the license to Magna Entertainment Corporation. The court has until June 28 to rule on the lawsuit.

"We're disappointed with the issuance of the license," Carlo said. "We think it's very detrimental to what we're trying to do."

Sporting tradition

The race track location at the corner of Center Street and Seven Mile Road has hosted harness racing seasons for the past 60 years.

The two entities jointly operating the track, the Northville Downs Partnership and Northville Racing Corporation, were embarking on a multi-million dollar renovation project when they received word of the commission's May 17 decision.

"We plan to go ahead with the improvement." Carlo said. "We're doing it in stages. Right now our focus is on keeping what we have.

"Our goal is to keep this place going and stay as competitive as we can."

Vested interest

City of Northville officials keep their pulse on the health of the racetrack, the city's single largest source of property tax revenue.

Last year owners of the Downs grounds and related property paid $305,495 to the city, said city finance manager Nickie Bateson — about 5 percent of the city's $6.2 million annual budget.

The track annually pays the city a percentage of gambling payoffs, which in the 2004 fiscal year amounted to more than $324,000. During the past decade, the city has recorded the funds — less the cost of police and fire department service provided at the track — in a public improvement fund.

The city council earmarked the 2004 money for emergency waming sirens, a police department carport, grant-match money, a rainy-day fund and other projects. Typically, those funds are used for capital outlay and construction-related activities. Bateson said.

New sign aims to make local intersection safer for drivers

By Maureen Johnston STAFF WRITER

Within seconds of Northville patrol officer Anthony Tilger steering into his Carpenter Street vantage spot, he caught a white pickup truck violating the no-right-on-red law. Again.

The intersection of Eight Mile and Novi roads is one of the most hazardous in the city, Tilger said. Frequent violations by southbound drivers turning west is one of the reasons, he said.

"In my mind, it's very evident what you need to do at this intersection," he said. "There's a line to stop at. Simple. People want to complicate it.

"The only decision I have to make is, 'when the light turns green, I can go, right?" The Northville City Council and Wayne County Division of Roads are teaming up to try to make the intersection safer for pedestrians and motorists with installation of a lighted sign telling them when to advance.

It will be similar to the overhead sign at the intersection of Seven Mile and Northville roads permitting right turns while westbound Seven Mile Road drivers have a green left-turn arrow.

Hazardous site

"Anything that can be done to make it less hazardous is a good thing," Tilger said. "You can see the people, all the sudden, wham, someone comes over the crest of that hill at 50 (mph)."

In addition to illegal turns, Eight Mile Road traffic volume and the intersection's configuration contribute to safety concerns, Tilger

Northville ranked as Michigan's 'safest' city

Police say pro-active policies, location help keep local crime rates below average

By Maureen Johnston RECORD STAFF WRITER

When Julie Reed reports for her 6 a.m. shift at Great Harvest Bread Co., she doesn't warily look over her shoulder while she locks her car and crosses the parking lot.

The bread store employee is among the few who arrive in town that early, but speaks for many who say they feel safe in the city.

And rightly so, according to the Web site www.city-data.com, which once again ranked Northville as the state's safest city with populations 5,000 or higher.

Considering murder, rape, robbery, assault, auto theft and other crime numbers, the city is the 18th safest city of its size in . the nation, according to the site.

Reed, who has opened the 139 E. Main St. store for more than two years, said she's had no trouble.

"I know our morning guys got stopped the first couple of weeks on the job until the police

'He doesn't think twice about it."

Northville's small town atmosphere, community pride and the police department are responsible for that sentiment, said Councilman Jerry Mittman.

Proactive enforcement

"Typically small towns are safer than larger urban areas," Northville Police Chief Jim Petres said. "Also, we've got the small-town atmosphere where people know each other. It's more like a neighborhood than just a city.

Petres each month submits to the council his department's activity report detailing training, community programs, sting operations, weapon permits and crime statistics. He tracks 30 offenses, from alarms and assaults to disorderly conduct and drug violations to larcenies to traffic damage.

City officers most often respond for traffic violations and alcohol-related offenses, Petres said.

Mittman said low crime rates begin at home and include keeping kids busy. He said a downtown police presence also helps.

Sixteen sworn officers provide 24-hour police service as part of the department's $2.35 million annual budget, Petres said. With recent sergeant and captain retirements, Petres said he is planning to fill the vacancies as soon as possible to maintain a consistent staff level.

Det. Sgt. Michael Carlson said a proactive enforcement policies coupled with a number of subtler police procedures midnight patrols, flashing spotlights down driveways and familiarity with the community

-- also go a long way. "We actually walk around and check store windows and doors on a consistent basis," he said. We know which businesses open early and which ones work late."

One trigger for Northville officers is the city ordinance prohibiting overnight parking, Carlson said. "Occasionally, we find one that's stolen or doing something it's not supposed to do."

Still an oasis

Policing a small city has its pros and cons, Petres said. "We staff more officers per square mile than most communities," he said. "As areas get bigger, you don't have that level of staffing. "That's not a good way to do business to only have one guy But the decision not to have a

So after maternity leave. Valerie went off to work while Dave kissed her goodbye at the door.

Without fanfare, he'd officially begun his new job: Caring for two premature children.

What is wrong with him?

Dave Delis expects the reaction he receives when people find out he stays home while his wife goes to work.

"You get that same look, or people tend to have a tendency to stay away. I mean, a guy at home isn't that common and they automatically think, 'Wow what is the matter with that guy?"

Delis said they think he either has a mental problem or a criminal history. They likely Google him on the Internet.

"My wife and I feel we should be active in the schools," he said. "Anything with our kids we want to be involved."

And although the camaraderie among other mothers isn't always hared, he perseveres.

He sometimes wonders what it would be like to talk about the game last night and have a cigar.

Being a guy, I'm kind of limited to my social activities I guess you could say," he said. "Some of it is I don't have as much in common.

Delis said once his 5-year-old son asked him why his mom worked and he stayed at home.

He told him: "Right now it is my job to make sure you are on the right path."

Father's Day

"I have never really given much thought to what Father's Day means to me," Delis said.

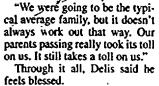

Sunday there won't be any parties or special recognition.

It's his own request. He doesn't want to be the focus. Instead, the family will visit the grave sites of the couple's fathers.

While the Delis family was adjusting to their new family life. Dave and Valerie's parents died.

"The death of both sets of moms and dads, took its toll. Delis said. "It really focused us on that family is very important

In the end

After 10 years of marriage, family loss and two vibrant children, the Delis family is hitting its stride.

"My kids are doing well," Dave said. "I am very proud of them." The Northville father will start working on a Master's degree in finance from Walsh College in School officials invite all to education funding rally

By Victoria Sadlocha RECORD STAFF WRITER

Northville residents are invited to join school district representatives on the steps of the state's capitol Tuesday afternoon, championing for adequate funding for Michigan schools. The rally is to bring attention from multiple groups from every. part of the state of Michigan to our legislators in Lansing that we are concerned with the funding or lack of funding for public education" said Leonard Rezmierksi, superintendent of Northville Public Schook.

"And our kids can't wait. We are now heading into our fourth year with arguably no new funding."

The timing of the June 21 kindergarten through university student funding rally was set to show sup-port of Sen. Bill 246 and House Bill 4582.

According to legislative documents from the Mackinac Center for Public Policy, both bills introduced this year, prohibit the state from appropriating less money for public schools, colleges and universities than was appropriated in the previous year, plus 5 percent or the rate of inflation, whichever is less.

Ride with LAN A Residents are invited to :- carpool with members of the Northvie Legislative Action Network to the K-16 educa-tion raily in Lansing by meeting at 10 a.m. Tuesday, June 21 at the Board of Education office, 501 W. Main Street. Please park in back of the building on Cady Street. Noon registration will take place at the Lansing Center.

55.25 According to center documents, the bills also request schools' payroll contributions to the state teacher pension fund would be capped at 12.99 percent, meaning state taxpayers would make up potential shortfalls.

The rally will be attended by many including members of PTAs, School Michigan Board Association, teachers unions, principal associations and university boards.

"We have been asked to bring as many citizens, stakehoklers, be they parents, teachers administrators board members to Lansing on that date to show in a rallying effort our concern and commitment for fund-ing¹ for public education in Michigan K-16," Rezinierksi said. "We are also rallying through our Legislative Action Network and through our building PTSA, our building principals and our board of ed for individuals to join me."

Carol Poenisch, chairwoman of the Nonthville Legislative Action Network, said the community organization is making signs for participants to show community support.

"I think there was some hesitancy in Lansing to protect public educa-tion," Poenisch said, "There was some fear that we don't know what our economy is going to be like and where we are going to have to make the cuts and all we are asking is please don't cut public education."

Poenisch said Gov. Jennifer Granholm and state senators and representatives should speak from the capital steps about 2 p.m.

She said the speeches will be preceded by a march from the Lansing Center to the capitol building.

'I think it will be exciting," Poenisch said. "I think they are expecting a big crowd. A lot of busses are going from different communities and there are many organizations in the state that are supporting it."

It's all in the name

The students in kindergarten teacher Heather Zoldak's class learn new words in a fun way at Ridge Wood Elementary School. Word Shirt Days is the name of the program created to help the young children learn high frequency words while having a good time. On designated days, students pulled mystery, magical shirts from a special bag. The minute they put on the shirt, the students' names changed to whatever was printed on the front. Zoldak said it was a riot to hear students talk to each other while using the designated words for their names. The students even learned how to spell their new names.

Final Farewell

Northville principal says goodbye to Thornton Creek

By Victoria Sadlocha RECORD STAFF WRITER

Saying goodbye to little children is never easy.

So when some Thornton Creek Elementary School kindergartners asked Cheryl Casterline why she didn't want to be their principal anymore, she knew with conviction it was the students she'd miss most.

Casterline explained retirement to them the best way she could: She wanted time to go to her grandchildren's schools on special days just like their grandparents do who come to Thornton Creek.

"Of course it is always the children you will miss most," Casterline said. "Seeing their smiles on a day-to-day basis keeps you going."

The decision

Casterline's retirement announcement followed 30 years in education, six of the years spent as principal of Thornton Creek.

Prior to Northville, she worked in the Plymouth-Canton Community School District in many capacities.

"Northville is such a wonderful district to work for," Casterline said.

The departing principal said she wanted to work in the Northville school district because of its reputation for educational excellence, valuing early inter-

"I really believe overall conditions, education and philosophy don't get any better than in Northville," she said.

But other aspects of her job like the sweet children, exceptional staff and tremendous PTSA are aspects Casterline said she will miss most on a daily basis.

"We have outstanding staff, children and parents who value education," she said.

Her career

After she is long gone from the hallways of the Northville elementary school, Casterline said she hopes people say: "She really first and foremost cared what is best for the kids. That my priority was what is really best for kids." Casterline said her students were the driving force behind a lot of decisions. Points of pride during her Thornton Creek career include personally hiring 75 percent of the school staff, implementing an annual school theme and experiencing community involvement activities such as the in-school Community Financial student credit union and the Victorian Festival.

She revels at how thin her discipline book is and by the level of achievement reached by her students, evidenced by Michigan Educational Assessment Program

New life

Casterline said she knew it was time to retire.

She is eager to enjoy her new schedule by spending as much time as possible with her father.

The Northville principal will also join her husband in retirement so they may travel, visit their five grandchildren, spend time with their children and play with her newly acquired Golden Retriever, Austin. "Of course you look to the future," she said.

The couple will soon move from their Canton home to Spring Lake, bordering Grand Haven, and hopes to find a nice winter home somewhere warm. Casterline's new journey begins the first day of July, following her June 30 departure through Thornton Creek's doors.

"I think it will be hard to see that school bus pull in the neighborhood next year on the first day of school," she said. "I think it will be sad."

Thornton Creek throws school finale on the 'side'

By Victoria Sadlocha RECORD STAFF WRITER

Ring the school bell one last time, this afternoon summer vacation officially begins.

June 16 is the last day of classes for Northville Public Schools, evidenced by crowds of ecstatic children filling downtown Northville and surrounding kid hot spots.

And although the students released their summer-time energy officially today, they were practicing for weeks.

At Thornton Creck Elementary the party began Friday, June 10 with the school's annual first grade finale. This year's theme: Beach Blast 2005.

"The kids know their siblings have had the finale party and it is coming up so they are really excited," said Kim Grinenko, Thornton Creek Elementary first grade teacher. "It is a celebration not just to end the year, but of education."

Themed stations sprawled inside and outside of the school including the Newport Beach obstacle course, flying fish, the tattoo hut and beach blanket quilt.

During the flying fish activity, the kids used homemade fishing poles to catch live goldfish swimming in a baby pool of water.

Before the petite fishermen began their quests, they had to fill out a first-grade fishing license. As a reward, the kids received gold fish crackers as a snack.

"I caught a big fish," said student Arjun Vashi. Vashi's classmate Ray Toroyan, liked the fishing, but was more excited about popsicle time.

Every student also enjoyed coloring in their own square of the school's beach blanket quilt.

Kids used their section of the school blacktop to create palm trees, the sun and rainbows of varying colors.

"I already had an idea of what I was going to do," said student Austin Hayek.

Hayek worked on coloring a blue dolphin. "Regular fich don't inst immo mammal." he said.

About 70 students from the school's four first-grade classes enjoyed the morning two-hour event despite the near 90 degree temperature.

"It is a hot, sweltering day, so it turned out really fun," said parent volunteer Maria Lindow.

A group of parent volunteers made the special day come alive. "Parent volunteers have really come together to pull this and come together to pull this one off," Grinenko said.

Ladies and gentlemen, start your planting.

It's only a year until the first-ever garden walk organized by the Gardeners of Northville-Novi. There's no time like the present to think about being one of the homes on the walk.

Members of the 3-year-old garden club, which has several Northville members, will start scouting out Novi yards this fall in search of five gardens to be part of the walk.

The walk will be followed by a tour of Michigan State University's Tollgate Center in Novi on the northwest corner of Meadowbrook and 12 Mile roads.

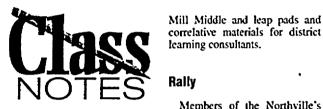

"Novi has never had a garden walk, so we're working on the project now. We want to have one in the summer of 2006," said Doris Brownell of Novi, vice president and program chair of the club.

To give residents a chance to think and prepare their gardens, members wanted to get the word out now.

Although the club is only three years old, it already has 28 members, Brownell noted. Meetings at 6:30 p.m. on the second Monday of every month from September to June alternate between the Novi Civic Center and the Northville Public Library. Yvonne Demattos, president of the club, lives in Northville. Dues are $20 a year.

Besides starting to scout out Novi homes for the garden walk this fall. club members are enhance flower beds around the Novi Public Library on 10 Mile Road and the Northville Chamber of Commerce office on S. Main Street.

Move historic barn?

Some township residents hope a historic barn off Sheldon Road could be moved to the future home of Thayer's Corner Park along Napier Road.

At a special board of trustees meeting June 7, trustee Marv Gans said the move could cost upwards of $40,000, including site preparation, clean-up, restoration and required permits. Gans said the mid-1800s structure could be used for seasonal community activities if moved to the new locale between Six and Seven Mile roads. Northville Township's Ravines neighborhood currently owns the barn, just outside downtown.

"Barn committee" members from Ravines said the group would be willing to raise and donate $10,000 to the cause.

"Sometimes we have to think beyond the dollars," resident Chuck Nichols said. "We have history in the township."

Discussion included possibly tapping community groups, volunteers or privatized funds. The board did not make a decision on the topic. The board is scheduled to discuss the item tonight during it regular meeting at township hall.

Finance building future

Vacant since the new township hall opened, the former Northville Township Finance Building may eventually host emergency vehicles.

Trustees talked about options for the Six Mile Road building at a June 7 study session. Township officials said an ambulance outpost at the site would benefit the east side of the township, which accounts for 65 percent of all emergency runs, in about three years. A park area or possibly selling the land also were discussed.

In the meantime, the township could lease the land, its legal counsel said. Trustees agreed to find a community group to use the building.

Outdoor summer events require planning, patience

By Angela Harris SPECIAL WRITER

Traveling in the summer or attending festivals can be a stressful time for families trying to prepare for any type of weather that may pop up.

When packing, Janet Bloom, Marketing and Event director for the Northville Chamber of Commerce, suggests preparing for all types of weather.

"Sunscreen is a number one essential," she said. "But in this case, less is more."

An umbrella, sun glasses and sun screen are always good things to have on hand.

She also suggests keeping a poncho or umbrella in the car, or a plastic bag in case it rains. Also, check the daily weather forecast. Accessibility to necessary items is key, whether stuffed in a bag, strapped to a stroller or slung over your shoulder.

Always be sure to include things for children, including toys to entertain them while you are distracted by a different activity. If you have young children, don't forget the hand wipes. "This is a number one with kids," Bloom said.

Money is also a good thing to keep on hand, not just for festival related purchases, but also for water, food and other purchases.

"Have money on had to keep everyone satisfied," Bloom said. Above all, take the entire day for the festival.

"Do not rush through it." Bloom said. "Take your time. relax and enjoy it."

Barn debate

Officials ponder using taxpayer money to save historic barn

By Kim Kovelle RECORD STAFF WRITER

The minute Marie Gaiski set foot inside the aging barn on Sheldon Road, she fell — in love. "It sung to me," said Gaiski, who can see the 1800s building from her Ravines of Northville home. "I've never seen such old, weathered wood. You can all the chop marks from the axes.

"It'd be such a waste to tear it down."

The future of the barn, located north of Six Mile Road, was discussed June 7 by the Northville Township Board of Trustees. The board will discuss the issue again tonight during its regular monthly meeting.

Trustee Mary Gans proposed the barn be moved to the future home of Thayer's Corner Park at Napier and Six Mile roads, for eventual use as a community activity and gathering spot.

Estimated costs for hauling and fixing the 32-by-44-foot barn are at least $40,000, he said.

Among the issues: should the township foot the bill in the name of community recreation?

Or is it a job for volunteer foundations and private corporations? Township Treasurer Dick Henningsen said with five mill-

"Any architectural antiquity is a good thing to save," Henningsen said. "I'm not too sure I'm interested in using taxpayer dollars.

"I'd sure like to see private funds accumulate." Currently, Ravines residents help prune foliage, plant flowers and look for trespassers on the subdivision-owned land. If moved to a park, Henningsen said, any repairs or vandal alerts become the township's liability.

He also cited costs bringing the barn to township-mandated standards.

"Building restrictions are what they are — building restrictions. Those things could be filtered into the cost of moving it," Henningsen said.

Gans said he has no qualms with the township covering the move through a $900,000 capital improvement project fund

"I think the township has an investment in the community and the future," he said. "The township should try to preserve some of its heritage.

"These are tax dollars that would be well-used in a public park setting."

He sees the historic barn possibly hosting interpretative displays. local groups, camping classes and even square dancing lessons.

Gans said he's received positive feedback from utility companies and other parties.

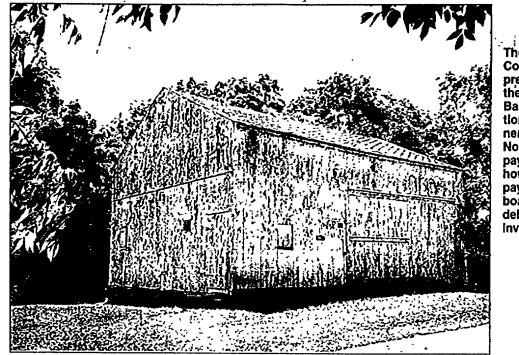

At the meeting, Ravines residents expressed willingness to donate $10,000.

"I'm not opposed to accepting funding," Gans said. "It's a very complex thing."

All six present trustees at the meeting agreed they were interested in preserving the barn, though did not agree to a timeline.

What do you think? Northville Township officials are considering moving a his-toric barn from Sheldon Road, north of Six Mile to the future home of Thayer's Corner Park at Six Mile and Napler Roads. As proposed, the barn would become part of a public park. The move and updates could cost more than $40,000. Should the township cover the move with tax dollars? Or should private corporations, foundations and volunteers pay? Let us know what you think.

Closing the door?

Tonight the township board of trustees will again discuss whether or not taxpayer money should be used to move, preserve and restore a barn located near Six Mile and Sheldon roads.

Price tag for the about move: $40,000. That's merely an estimate, and one not fully contemplating what repairs, improvements and liability costs township taxpayers would also be inheriting, if such a plan were adopted.

Supporters contend the money is a sound investment toward preserving Northville Township's legacy. They believe it's a financial pittance compared to the cost of losing forever the remaining hints of a once rural community, now on the brink of being bulldozed into suburban obscurity.

Noble intentions. But at what cost, and at whose expense?

Preservation supporters have pledged $10,000 for the project, yet uncollected. That's certainly a good start.

But why not continue that effort, and see how many local businesses and private residents have a similar preservation desire - before reaching for taxpayer money?

For the past five years, elected officials of all political persuasions have grumbled about state funding cuts and shrinking rev-> then enues, waxed poetic about "fiscal conservancy" while touting their unique ability to "make tough choices" when it counted most. This is a no-brainer. Before one township taxpayer dollar is spent toward preserving a barn, the board should know full well will be what given up, and what additional long-term costs will be taken on. Remember, this is a board which approved a Community Park expansion, absent necessary operating revenues. That's akin to building a public library without money to turn on the lights once it's complete.

Tough economic times call for tough choices, sound planning, creative thinking and community collaboration.

Should the township play a role in preserving its own legacy? Absolutely.

Should it do so blindly by simply waving a blank check and making it payable to a 'Good Intentions Fund?' No.

Board members advocating the township jump into this boat with both feet do so without requisite decision-making collateral. It's a cost borne of previous poor policy.

The lesson: Little things add up, a decision here and a decision there. Pretty soon, we're talking real money.

The iron law in politics always has been, "Take care of your own."

Thank you!

Love.

Two years ago my daughter Caitlin died due to birth trauma to my son via c-section. Having no hair to donate and after much

And that's been the story of state appropriations to Michigan universities For years, two powerful, now-retired legislators, Detroit's Rep. Morris Hood and Marquette's Dominic Jacobetti, took care of the universities in their districts.

As a result, Wayne State and Northern Michigan got favored treatment when it came time to divvy up state funding. The results were dramatic: per student, Northern got 77 percent more than Grand Valley State University and Wayne State got 36 percent more than Michigan State.

But the world is changing, and with much fanfare, the Republicans who run the state House of Representatives revealed a couple of weeks ago a new funding plan they claim eliminates all that bad old patronage.

Their new formula is based on total enrollment, graduations (with certain fields such as engineering, health and other technical subjects getting up to four times more per graduate than English or anthropology) and the amount of sponsored research done at each institution.

So is a truly level playing field being restored? Ho Ho. A careful examination of the House plan provides proof that the iron law of politics remains unchanged, regardless of the nice rhetoric about bringing objectivity to university funding. Winners include Grand Valley (up 22 percent), Saginaw Valley and Oakland universities (each up 9 percent).

The big losers are Northern Michigan (down 10 percent) and Wayne State (down 5 percent). The merchants of spin in Lansing would have you believe that the way the formula worked out has nothing to do with the fact that Detroit and Marquette are represented by Democrats while Grand Rapids and Oakland County are represented by Republicans.

Believe that and I've got a bridge 1 can sell you cheap.

But beyond the obvious usual politics, there are dangerous features throughout the House plan. First, it sets in place an attempt by the legislature to micromanage what Michigan's 15 public universities do.

University funding plan is flawed

What possible rationale accounts for giving graduates in engineering, health and technical degrees four times more funding than graduates in the arts and humanities? Who says that today's legislative or social priorities will be the priorities of tomorrow?

Indeed, how can some legislator in Lansing tell a student whose long-time interest is in learning Chinese that their goal is worth only one quarter of that of another who wants to be an engineer?

The second problem is that the House plan practically encourages universities to make bad decisions that in the long run will prove very expensive and hurt the overall excellence of our university system.

Worse, it threatens one of that system's biggest historic strengths, which is the realization that not all universities have the same mission.

The people who run our universities are not stupid; they are quick to respond to meentives. So if the legislature proposes to pay engineering grads four times more than history majors, you can depend on it that a whole bunch of expensive new engineering programs will be started PDQ.

But setting in place the infrastructure to support an engineering program is expensive, and a poorly supported new crash program is likely to produce inferior engineering graduates.

Moreover, does the state really need all its universities switching to engineering, technical and health? What about business? What about the liberal arts? What if in 10 years, there is a nationwide glut of engineers?

Similarly, in proposing an incentive for research, the House plan will encourage universities without much research activity to get into the business. But good research is expensive, and it takes a long time for research programs to find the balance that will enable them to achieve economies of scale. Those are all factors that argue against making all universities in the state into research institutions.

Naturally, this stuff about the wonder of incentives can go too far; the House formula would cap the University of Michigan's share of research incentive money at 40 percent what it would otherwise get.

Worst of all, the House plan does nothing to redress the biggest immediate problem higher education is facing: This state's amazingly irresponsible decline in overall support for higher education - now more than 20 percent over the past three years. How Gov. Jennifer Granholm and legislators can call for a doubling of the state's college graduates without proposing to spend more money on our universities is beyond me.

Here's a modest suggestion: decide how much the state wants to spend on higher education. Give each admitted student a certain amount of money. Let the student take that money wherever he or she wants to go.

If they want to go to a school with low tuition and (likely) low quality, that's fine; if they want to go to a University of Michigan-class school with high tuition and high quality, that's fine as well.

Let free choice in the market be the deciding factor. How could you have a more free-enterprise friendly plan than that?

But such a plan would certainly be rejected. Why? Because it goes against the iron law of taking care of your own that drives all legislative behavior, regardless of the fancy rhetoric. We need leaders who realize that "taking care of our own" needs to mean making the right decisions for higher education for all of Michigan. And the tragedy is that those statesmen are evidently nowhere to be seen.

No such luck.

Dad retired from baseball that day. And his life, as I had always known it, retired with him. He cashed it all in for a 12-hour workday and a gray folding lunch box. And never once looked back.

The stark reality of my father's limitations was bitter-sweet. It was debilitating and, empowering... a , six-inch, hypodermic filled with possibility thrust suddenly straight into my navel.

I stood there that day, outwardly stoic, a sweaty glove on my left hand, a freshly passed torch in the other. We tossed the ball back and forth a little while longer. and I acted as though the world had not just ended.

I feigned bravery with a

Time is a father's worst enemy. It exposes him for all he is and all he will never be Lines shaping a strong face soon enough become wrinkled circles on a bulls-eye; places on a target where dreams come to die.

And yet he cheers the day you pedal yourself down the sidewalk for the first time, away from him, freedom splashing across your face. He cheers again the day you finally beat him at arm wrestling.

Meanwhile, a father bites down hard on life and quietly swallows its toughest lessons. He sighs before making the monthly mortgage payment from an over-taxed paycheck, and measures life in overtime hours, rather than by mountains yet to climb.

One father - my father -spent his life determined never to forget the small Mexican town in which he was born, the dirt floors upon which he slept and ale, the poverty that stuck to everyone and everything. He spent it trying to stay true to a promise he made once as a small boy: "Deliver me from this, Lord, and I will do your work. I will never forget. He fought in a World War, then moved north upon his return, into a Detroit apartment building filled with as many broken dreams as tenants, where he and his new wife used empty tin cans for drinking cups because there was not yet enough money to afford such luxuries. A father - my father -- started a family and dreamed of a better day. He worked. He paid his taxes. He got a second job, then a third. He built one house, then a second.

Thirty years ago, he bought himself six acres in a small town named Salem. where tractors puttered and urban mile roads turned to dirt. And he dreamed some more, always of the same thing a better life for his, family.

He filled an address book with names and numbers legible only to him, and carried it everywhere. He worked with the elderly and with the sick, and rememyouth trailing off its stitched seams, sparks pouring down like a hydrant relieving itself into a neighborhood street.

Then it surrendered to gravity. Re-entry carried an unexpected payload.

Reality was weighing it down.

Red laces flashed end over end in the translucent summer sky as the ball descended toward my father, home from work only 15 minutes before I corralled him for a game of catch. He was still dressed in the blue factory clothes in which he spent so much of his life.

He stood there, in front of the first house he and my mother had ever owned. arms wide open, palms faceup. "Thud!"

The ball zipped straight through his outstretched hands and hit the concrete sidewalk. A moment later his hands clapped together. His reflexes had betrayed him.

That's all right. Dad," I whispered beneath my breath. 'You'll get the next one." It had been a while since Dad had been in the field, I reconciled. So I cut him a break. "Throw me a fly ball like that." I said. trying hard to get him back in the game casual smile. The truin? I felt embarrassed for him. fate having shared a laugh at his expense, having no doubt snickered at the hapless manner in which he had been publicly un-dressed.

The world turned cold that summer evening as fate pushed my father to the frozen doorstep of my life. Even today, the chill wind blows.

Looking back, it's clear mortality touched me for the first time that day. It pushed up against me and raked a cold finger against my cheek. Its scratchy voice echoed in my car: You cannot save him. He belongs to me now."

I left my father for dead that evening, the way children sometimes do. I tucked the ball and the memory intothe same nutt, and never again returned to the spot where my father and I last played catch.

After that the sidewalk in front of our old house became a treadmill. And the 20 feet between a father and his youngest son became 20 miles. Then 20 more added to that, until the miles became light years and a trail of shared memories was the only road connecting two lives suddenly heading in opposite directions bered always the promise he made once to God: "I will never forget."

His payoff was this: pity. His youngest son, blinded by youth, saw only the man with the failing arm and broken reflexes. In the squinted light of one summer evening. a son stepped over his father like a corpse, not yet old enough to realize there was more to his dad's life than pop-ups and grounders, baseball mitts and 10speeds.

A father does his best to chart a path for his children, but sooner or later he must let go. And the children must find their way alone.

Dad let go 22 years ago. The heart which had spent a lifetime giving back, finally gave out. I was 17 when he died, still too young to comprehend all I had lost. Now I'm too old to take for granted all that I still have left.

Eventually, I forgave Dad for being human.

I only hope one day he will forgive me for stealing his act, and for trying every day to be just like him.

Street parties promote atmosphere of community celebration, togetherness

By Maureen Johnston RECORD STAFF WRITER

Jenny and Abby Willerer will whoop it up when they climb down from the bus on the last day of school today.

More fun awaits tomorrow.

Julie and Chris Willerer are hosting a June 18 Grandview Avenue party for their daughters, toddler son Jake and a dozen other Amerman Elementary School pupils and their parents who reside on their street. The street will be closed 2-11 p.m.

"The end of the year is so much fun for the kids," said Julie Willerer, who came up with the idea. Kidfocused events will include a moonwalk, relay races and balloon toss.

A lifetime Northville resident, Willerer said she and her husband have lived on Grandview for eight years. Ten families with 40 children

In short order, the parents of eight turned into hosts of an annual bash.

Casual tradition

This is the 10th year Kage has parents provide most of the feast, friends and family bring dishes as and ride their bikes protected by the city barriers, Kage said.

"It's the one day a year they get to ride their bike in the street," Kage said. "It's just a really, really fun day." Kasprowicz said the tradition of block parties says something about the character of Northville. "We are a small-town communi-

THANKS Matt Williams gives credit where it's due

Matt Williams is the kind of athlete who never has to say thanks to anyone. He's built his entire career off his own ability.

He does so anyway. He's thanked his teammates and his coaches. Now, Matt wants to thank his father, Steve.

"I'd just Sam like to thank Eggleston him for the countless hours and unwavering support he's given me," the Mustangs' standout baseball catcher said. "Regardless if I've done good or bad, he's always been there to support me. I'd like to thank him for that."

Steve Williams is more a father figure to his son. He's a college coach, helping Matt find Duke to sign his talents to.

Steve is also a recognizable fan in the Northville stands. There are few sports he hasn't attended. There are few people who go to the games who don't know who he is.

"Every time I turn around he's saying 'Hi' Jo. someone else," said Matt. "He knows everyone and the people he doesn't know he introduces himself."

Matt has always been known as a confident player who embraces the fundamentals^{*} baseball was founded on. He plays as a gentleman.

"He taught me the right way to do things," said Matt. "He taught me the way to do things in every aspect of life."

ates, Matt said he expects his father will be a big part of Northville athletics.

"He will definitely be involved," Matt said. "I don't know if you have to be a parent of a current player to be a part of a parents' association or not. If at all possible, I know he'll be a part of them.

"If he can't, I know he'll still be at football games and baseball games long after Dan and I graduate."

Matt's hero has always been Pudge Rodriguez, the Detroit Tigers' catcher. His biggest influence, however, hasn't been a part of the Major Leagues.

It's been his dad.

"He's always been the biggest influence in my life," he said. "He always gives me props and tells me how proud he is of me.

"What he doesn't know is how proud I am of him. He's sacrificed a lot of his time and money for me and my baseball. I don't know if I could ever thank him."

And it's not just Matt who thinks highly of his father. "All of my buddies and the

"All of my buddies and the guys who know him are always saying they love my dad because he's so cool," said Matt. "He's such a nice guy and he's supportive to everyone. He's really easy to like."

They say you can pick your friends and you can pick your enemies, but you can't pick your family. Matt doesn't mind. "I love my dad," he said. "I don't know what I would have done without him." Father's Day is just three days away. Pick up the phone, call your dad or — even better — go see him. Shake his hand or give

East-West game ready for action

By Sam Eggleston RECORD SPORTS WRITER

With only some minor tweaks in the schedule, the East versus West All-Star baseball and softball games are on track.

The softball game has been switched to June 22 and the baseball game moved to June 21 to better accomodate player scheduling conflicts. Both 4 p.m. games will be held at Milford High School.

The teams will be well represented this year as some of the best players in Livingston and Oakland counties gear up to play against each other.

The games are co-sponsored by the Northville Record and the Novi News, along with sister publication the Livingston Country Daily Press & Argus.

. Coaching the East softball team will be Lakeland's Joe Alsup while the baseball squad will be coached by Rick Green.

Nearly 40 baseball stars and 30 softball standouts from both counties will take the fields with their peers.

The East teams — or the Oakland All-Stars — consist of players from Northville, Novi, Milford, South Lyon and Lakeland while the West teams — the Livingston All-Stars have players from Hartland, Howell, Brighton, Pinckney and Fowlerville on the roster.

Photos by SAM EGGLESTON/RECORD SPORTS

The East squads have had plenty of success over the past five games. The baseball teams, which have had such stars as Mark Sorensen, A.J. Rowe, Mike Hart, Brendan Buckley and Mitch Maier take the field, have compiled an impressive 4-1 record against their Livingston counterparts.

The East softball team, boasting such notables as Kim Zarzcynski and Kim Larson on last year's squad, leads the annual series, 3-2.

Novi and Northville each have four baseball and three softball invitees for the game.

Novi's Alyssa Wagner and Northville's Kristen Zawacki, Jane Kruszewski and Kim Bagian have confirmed their intentions to play for the softball team 'as have Richard Vandeveer, Billy Morrison and Zach Flavin from Novi and Tyler Laing and Rick Birdsall from Northville for the baseball game. Northville's Matt Williams and Novi's Kevin Cislo are also expected to be in attendance.

In it's 24th year being played, the Michigan High School Baseball Coaches' Association East-West All-Star Game has made a mark in Novi and Northville.

The two cities will be well represented when Northville's Matt Williams and Novi's Kevin Cislo take to the field June 23 at 11 a.m. at Comerica Park. The cost is $5 per person at the gate.

The two athletes will play on the East squad, coached by Bob Dieters of Rochester. The East will be the home team this year.

"These teams normally have some great talent and some great kids," said Mario Borrocci, the head baseball coach at Fraser High School and chairman of the MHSBCA East-West All-Star Game and the Hall of Fame. "It's amazing what they can do. It's an honor just to be nominated by their coaches and to be selected by the all-star coaches for this game."

Both Cislo and Williams said they thought it was indeed an honor. The two standouts had already earned nods to the Sixth Annual East-West, All-Star Game hosted by the Northville Record and the Novi News as well as the all-star game hosted by the Detroit Tigers in celebration of Negro League baseball.

The two players will joint the ranks of such players as Steve Avery, John Smoltz and Pat Hentgen and others who have

It's time to start moving

Our message to "get moving" is finally getting national media coverage. The recent June issue of Time Magazine (circulation: 4,250,000) featured a 21-page special report entitled, "Get

Moving, 4 which. urges Americans to pay'-' more altention to regular exercise. 1 urge you to read the report. Even the world famous

Ronald McDonald is getting . 'an unlikely image makeover as a snowboarding, hoops-shooting fitness guru for tots.

The Time Magazine report notes, "We have two epidemics in America: one is obesity, the other is physical inactivity. One is the focus of best-selling books; the other is ignored."

This is one of the single most powerful quotes I have heard in the last few years. The media has flooded the market with books, articles and TV spots debating everything we should and shouldn't eat from the right carbs and how much fat to what food pyramid to follow.

, It seems every celebrity has the secret diet. While food intake is certainly vital to a healthy lifestyle the media has overwhelmed the general population to the point of making little or no change at all.

A first choice for most is to eat in moderation, drink plenty of water and move more. This alone would start people down the path to a healthier weight and better overall health.

The Time Magazine report points out, "As technology advances, the daily requirements to move diminish. To put modern society's lack of movement in context, researchers at the University of Tennessee's Department of Health and Exercise Science studied a group of Old Order Amish, a religious sect that shuns cars and modern conveniences. Using pedometers, the researchers found that the average Amish man took 18,425 steps per day and the average Amish women took 14,196 steps. A typical American, by contrast, takes about 5,000."

The bottom line — don't get bogged down with spending hours searching for the super diet, rather put that time into getting and staying more active. We have found people are very motivated to avoid physical activ-

ity. So what's the first action step? Start moving more! Before you get bogged down with what that means and how to go about it, let's start with walking. Purchase a pedometer and make a daily challenge to get more steps in each day than the day before with the ultimate goal of a minimum of 10,000 steps per day. It is really just a tough daily choice of looking for the opportunity to walk versus our deeply ingrained habit of the opposite ... looking for the opportunity to not

Park a little further, use the stairs, walk a little at lunch, etc. Force this little change daily and it to will become a habit, the results are worth it. You will feel better and have more energy in the first week.

So put down that book on the latest fad diet and get off the couch. You can do it --- one step at a time.

Champs — again!

The Northville Broncos 11-year-old baseball team captured the championship of the Ivor James Memorial Invitational Tournament held June 4-5 in Riverview. After recording victories over the Macomb Yankees and the Milan Diamond Dogs, the Broncos rallied from a two-run deficit in the bottom of the sixth inning to defeat the Avondale Junior Jackets, 8-7, in an exciting championship game. The Broncos overall record currently stands at 27-3, and they will be hosting a league game at Ford Field against Westland on Friday June 10 at 8 p.m. Pictured are: (front row, left to right) Connor Smith, Bobby Nayh, Billy Mitchell, Greg Putman, Jeffrey Gertley, and Brett MacDonald; (back row) Coach Mike Putman, Eric Hutting, Michael Schultz, Jeffrey Hewlett, Coach Chris Schultz, Trey Slominski, and Andrew Poterala.

been drafted and played in Major League Baseball.

A player that will be taking to the field for the West team that isn't too shy of being drafted by the Major Leagues is Ann Arbor Pioneer's Zach Putnam, a pitcher. It's in question as to if he'll be able to play or if he'll be ineligible after signing a contract on draft day.

Even if Putnam is drafted, Borrocci said it's not so hard to make arrangements.

When Steve Avery was drafted by Atlanta, I talked to this dad, who was an athletic director at the time," said Borrocci. "He said there was no way in the world he would sign before he could play in the all-star game. It's quite an honor for a lot of people.

"Some of these kids who are drafted, I ask them 'How many times will you get to play in Comerica Park?' What's the difference if you sign on the 23rd or the 24th?

Though neither Williams or Cislo are expecting to get a call on draft day, both said they'll be honored by getting the chance to appear on the same soil the Tigers play on.

They'll also be playing a nine-inning game like their professional counterparts. "It's a huge honor," said

Williams, who will play at Duke University next season. "I can't wait to play there."

And neither can Cislo, who has signed with the University of Michigan to play baseball for the Wolverines. Cislo will also play punter in the East-West All-Star Football Game later this summer.

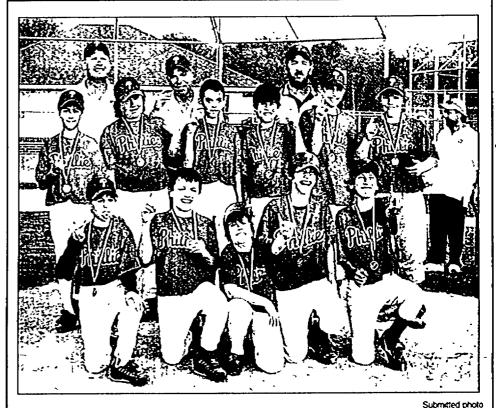

"It's been a great year," he said. "I couldn't have asked for a better way to end my high school career."

The all-stars will also have a banquet at which the inductees into the Michigan High School Baseball Hall of Fame will be presented.

In even of rain, the all-star game will most likely be played the following day, said Borrocci.

"We'll keep our fingers crossed because we've never been rained out," he said. 'Knock on wood."

Place milk in small saucepan, sprinkle gelatin over it and allow to soften 3 to 4 minutes, then stir with whisk. Heat over medium heat, stirring constantly with whisk about 1 minute, until mixture begins to boil. Remove from heat.

In small bowl, beat egg yolk with whisk until frothy. Add a little milk mixture to warm eggs and prevent scrambling. Add remainder of milk to egg. Heat over medium heat, stirring constantly, just until mixture begins to simmer. Remove from heat and pour through strainer into cream cheese mixture. Process until blended.

Fill each crust-lined cup with filling. Refrigerate until set, about 2 hours. Garnish each with a berry and serve. Yield: 24 mini cheesecakes

Bratwurst and Vidalia Onion Sauce Casserole The smoky taste of grilled Boar's Head Bratwurst combines with the sweet and sour flavor of Boar's Head Vidalia Onion Sauce in this easy-to-make casserole, which works both as a side dish as well as a sandwich when spooned over crusty French bread. Grill six sausages, slice to bite-sized pieces, place in a heat-proof bowl and mix with one jar of Boar's Head Vidalia Onion sauce. Reheat on the grill, away from direct heat, or in the microwave. Yield: 4 to 6 servings

Congratulations, Northville graduates

FIRST CLASS 2005 graduates shine

By Victoria Sadlocha RECORD STAFF WRITER

Exceptional? Always. Achieving? Assuredly. Giving? Absolutely.

These are words describing the Northville High School Class of 2005.

"This has been a wonderful class of students," said Leonard Rezmierski, superintendent of Northville Public' Schools. "They certainly well represent the tradition of excellence in education in Northville certainly by hallmarking their achievements as a group at the honors convocation with the awards and scholarships, which was an all-time record."

Northville High School Principal Dennis Colligan said the class included 16 National Merit Finalists and Commended Students and 289 Merit Award winners.

Out of the 427 graduating this year, 128 earned the distinction of Cum Laude, 69 Magna Cum Laude and 69 Summa Cum Laude.

Graduating Summa Cum Laude means students achieved a grade point average of 3.8 or higher.

"They were just a great group and just a nice group of kids to be around for the year, pretty easy to predict success," Colligan said.

Academics aside, other attributes attached to the graduating seniors include being good role models and pleasures of being a high a giving group.

who have exemplified giving back by their involvement in various and numerous community programs and projects from Rotary Interact to Make A Difference Day to projects they have done such as the beautification of the high school plus numerous projects in-between," Rezmierski said. "A very good and accomplished class.'

As Colligan thinks about the past four years with his students, a great group of people comes to mind.

"They have been a nice group," Colligan said, "a nice group for younger kids to model too. They have done a nice job here.

"It is fun to watch them grow from ninth grade to 12th grade. It is one of the school principal and watching them advance through all the stages of life that get so hectic in those four years."

Advice for the future? The superintendent of schools said he encourages all members of the Class of 2005 to take advantage of their fortunes.

"All the things we receive are one thing, but you don't receive an honor for what you receive, you receive honors for what you give," he said.

"It is actually quite "It is a class of students exciting the opportunities they have, but they have to be able to look inside and be fortunate enough to be afforded and how they utilize those skills to then move forward, give back, reach out, be contributing members of society wherever that is, be it Northville, be it Seattle, be it Timbuktu; they have to recognize they are a part of a greater force of people who want to make this world a better place."

> the students will excel in life.

"And I think they are prepared," Colligan quipped. "We worked hard to prepare them."

MICHIGAN CHALLENGE BALLOONFEST XXI TABLE OF CONTENTS -

Chance of lifetime: Balloonfest guests may win a ride in a hot-air balloon Watching the hot-air balloons at the Michigan Challenge is a thrill in itself. An even greater thrill is a hot-air balloon ride.

Guests at the Michigan Challenge have the opportunity to win the ultimate thrill ride — a balloon ride for two courtesy of Renaissance Balloons.

Just complete and tear off the lower portion of your Michigan Challenge Balloonfest parking pass, and bring it to any balloonfest information booth. You'll receive three chances to win one of two sets of hot-air balloon rides.

Winners will be drawn at 8 p.m. on Sunday, June 26. You don't need to be present to win.

Welcome to city of Howell and Michigan Challenge Balloonfest

Welcome to the historic City of Howell and the spectacular Michigan Challenge Balloonfest!

This event is a personal favorite of mine since so many people in our community work together to make balloonfest the wonderful event that it is and to showcase Howell as a great place to live, work and visit.

On behalf of the entire community, it is my pleasure to welcome you:

. Balloonfest is an exciting time in the city. Not only do we all enjoy this great event, but we are also pleased to show off our beautiful, historic town to so many first-time and returning guests.

We're proud to be the host community for the 21st annual Michigan Challenge Balloonfest, the state championship of hot-air ballooning. It is always a thrill to see dozens of beautiful balloons faunching into the sky över Howell.

But balloons are just one part of this great weekend. The committee has planned lots of activities and I hope you will come downtown and enjoy family entertainment planned for the weekend. Take a stroll through our beautiful neighborhoods. Visit our stores and dine in our restaurants. You'll see why we're so proud of our city.

I'd like to thank the hundreds of community volunteers who work so hard to make the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest such an outstanding special event.

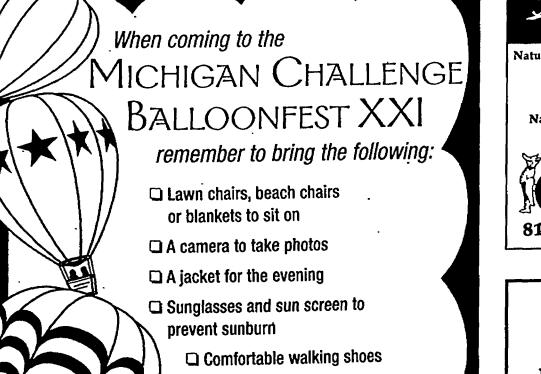

I'd also like to congratulate the many city employees who help the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce stage this huge event. It would not be possible without their cooperation and help.

Enjoy your stay in Howell and return soon. We look forward to seeing you again.

Sincerely, Geraldine K. Moen Mayor, city of Howell

Howell Area Chamber of Commerce welcomes you

It's balloonfest time!

The Howell area is delighted to welcome the many thousands of visitors who will enjoy this spectacular weekend of high-flying family fun.

This is a chance to show off our beautiful City of Howell and surrounding townships and celebrate the vibrant community that is Howell.

On behalf of the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce, host of the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest, we'd like to welcome you to our 21st weekend of balloonfest excitement.

Balloonfest is truly a partnership among all those involved — businesses, volunteers and the community.

Congratulations and thanks to the members of the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest committee, chaired by Cathy Blight, who all work so hard to bring our thousands of visitors one of the finest special events in the State of Michigan.

Our sponsors help make this event possible. Many thanks to our long-time Michigan Challenge Major Sponsor, National City bank; to our Supporting Sponsors, Citizens Insurance, Pepsi, Waste Management and Tanger Outlet Center; to Blue Cross/Blue Shield and Blue Care Network of MI for its sponsorship of the Windjammers Stunt Kite Team; to Comcast for its sponsorship of all our cable television advertising; to Krug Ford for its entertainment sponsorship; to Meijer for its sponsorship of the Rock-N-Roll K-9 Show; to Champion Chevrolet for its sponsorship of the Arts Festival, to The Livingston Community News for its sponsorship of the skydivers, to Waldenwoods Resort for its sponsorship of the Medieval Village and to Pinckney Chrysler Dodge Jeep for its sponsorship of the Antique and Custom Car Show.

Sponsors contribute to balloonfest activities in downtown Howell as well. Thanks to Saint Joseph Mercy Livingston Hospital for sponsoring Kids Day on Saturday; and to Schafer's House of Music for sponsoring Music Day on Sunday.

The help and cooperation of the Howell Public Schools and the City of Howell are key in the success of the balloonfest. We could not do it without them. The staffs of both the city and the schools are enthusiastic partners in staging this event. We'd also like to thank the many other area companies that have contributed to the success of the Michigan Challenge in countless ways, such as sponsoring individual balloons, advertising in this publication, providing product, allowing employees time off to volunteer or helping promote the weekend.

Don Cortez Howell Area Chamber of Commerce Chairman

of Commerce President

The mission of the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce is to "be a catalyst for a vital business environment and an exceptional community." We feel the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest accomplishes just that, in addition to providing great family entertainment and a weekend of memories.

Sincerely, Don Cortez, Chairman

Pat Convery, President Howell Area Chamber of Commerce

MICHIGAN CHALLENGE BALLOONFEST XXI . Wednesday, June 15, 2005

A State of the second of the Michigan Challenge XXI comes to Howell

Think summer, think fun, think of the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest. The state championship of hot-air ballooning happens in Howell June 24-26 at the Howell High School complex.

"The Michigan Challenge Balloonfest is a great way to kick off the summer, and has grown in its 21-year history to be one of the largest three-day events in Southeast Michigan," said Michelle Tokan, Michigan Challenge manager. "Many of our visitors make this part of their summer vacations and travel to Howell from across the state and Midwest."

The Michigan Challenge Balloonfest is held at the Howell High School complex, 1200 W. Grand River Ave. Events and entertainment are also held in downtown Howell, about a mile east of the high school.

The balloonfest is hosted by the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce. Major Sponsor is National City bank. Supporting Sponsors are Citizens Insurance, Tanger Outlet Center, Pepsi and Waste Management. Site host is Howell Public Schools.

Activities at the high school launch site include balloon fly-ins and launches, The Livingston Community News Skydivers, skate board exhibitions, Windjammers stunt kite shows, a medieval village, a juried arts festival, Rock-N-Roll K-9s, music, Citizens Insurance Family Fun Tent, classic cars, games, carnival rides, concerts, comedy and juggling.

Fifty-one pilots will be competing in the event this year and have traveled to the event from across the country. Mass balloon launches take place, weather permitting, on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, between 6-8 p.m.

Early birds can arrive just after dawn on Saturday and Sunday to watch the pilots compete for the title of Michigan Challenge champion as they fly in to the site after launching their craft from locations in the countryside.

Take a look at what's new

People return to balloonfest year after year — for an up close and personal view of hotair ballooning and a chance to "experience" the event. It's an event where memories are made for the young and old.

The state championship of hot-air ballooning takes offers a national presence in 2005. AARP The Magazine Road Show will be on site with displays, contests and activities.

There's more entertainment than ever including Michigan's own Three Men and a Tenor, performing on Saturday night at 8 p.m. on the launch field.

In the dining/entertainment area guests can hear a wide range of music throughout the weekend including the jazzy sounds of the Jump Cats as they perform at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

Other special activities include the E Team Skydivers, sponsored by The Livingston Community News, who get balloonfest started as they jump dressed as Elvis and take the stage to sing a few of the king's favorite songs. The E Team is presented by Paul McCowan Airshows at 5 p.m. Friday.

Saturday night glows and sparkles

It's the high point of a spectacular weekend — the Balloon Glow and Skydiving Night Show on Saturday evening. The color and spectacle make this a not-to-be-missed event.

As darkness falls, more than 20 pilots will return from their competitive flights to inflate their balloons on the launch field. It is a never-to-be-forgotten sight as the many colors of the balloons are illuminated against the night sky.

Then, from about a mile above the ground, The Livingston Community News Skydivers will perform a night jump, complete with pyrotechnics.

Relax, enjoy, and spend the day

With so much to see and do, visitors are encouraged to spend the day at the Michigan Challenge.

Come to the Citizens Insurance Family Fun Tent on Saturday and Sunday afternoon for free, hands-on activities, games and crafts for all ages.

Watch The Livingston Community News Skydivers jump from the sky during five scheduled daytime performances.

Fly a kite with The Windjammers Stunt Kite Team, sponsored by Blue Cross/Blue Shield and Blue Care Network of Michigan, who dazzle the crowd with their spectacular kite performances, choreographed to music. Travel back in time with a visit to the Medieval Village, sponsored by Waldenwoods Resort.

Rock-N-Roll K-9s run, jump and entertain

Besides being man's best friend, the Rock-N-Roll K-9s are some of the best loved performers at the Michigan Challenge.

In fact, the dog team's pet tricks make the balloonfest top 10 list every year.

These clever canines jump, bark, run, play and perform on the balloonfest launch field Saturday and Sunday at 11 a.m., 1 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. No two shows are exactly the same.

Sponsored by Meijer, the Rock-N-Roll K-9s are a pack of very talented dogs and owners who put on amazing shows of canine agility and athleticism. Dogs, from minuscule to massive, compete in contests of speed and agility. The dogs and their owners also run a specially-designed course in a 1950s theme, dashing over, under, around and through obstacles such as a giant milkshake, a juke box and a '57 Chevy.

Have you ever seen dogs play musical mats? You will at the Michigan Challenge. In the high jump competition, dogs take their turns jumping a bar that's continually raised, until only one dog is left victorious. In the flyball contest, two teams of dogs compete, relayrace style. ROCK-N-ROLL K-9S Perform on the launch field Saturday 11 a.m., 1 p.m., 3:30 p.m. Sunday 11 a.m., 1 p.m., 3:30 p.m. No two shows are exactly the same.

Afterwards, guests are welcome to come over and meet the Rock-N-Roll K-9 performers with their handlers. So if you love animals, you won't want to miss the antics of the Rock-N-Roll K-9's Performance Team.

Pilots can't steer balloons, but guests to the Michigan Challenge can picture themselves behind the steering wheel of a classic car at the Antique and Custom Car Show.

Located north of the balloon launch field, next to the Citizens Insurance Family Fun Tent, the show features classics and coupes from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday of balloonfest weekend.

To help get the launch field warmed up for evening balloon flights, cars in the show parade around the field at 4:30 p.m. each day.

"The car parade is one of the most fun events of the weekend because car enthusiasts who bring their vehicles to display get to start their engines and cruise around the launch field," said Gary Morris, car show chair. "It's the Michigan Challenge's version of afternoon drive time."

Trophies will be awarded.

The Antique and Custom Car Show is coordinated by the Livingston A's Region of the Model A Restorers Club and sponsored by Pinckney Chrysler Dodge Jeep.

Instead of letting that harmful gas escape into the atmosphere, we collect it and turn it into a renewable source of energy. DTE Energy leads the nation in landfill gas recovery. So far, we've recovered more than 120 billion cubic feet of landfill gas. What that does for our air quality is the equivalent of planting over 700 million trees. Three Men and a Tenor to perform Michigan's own Three Men and a Tenor join the Michigan Challenge entertainment lineup on Saturday, June 25, at 8 p.m. at the launch field.

The entertaining a cappella performance follows the mass balloon launch. Excitement will still fly high after Three Men and a Tenor perform. As darkness falls, balloons return to the field for the balloon glow and skydiving night show.

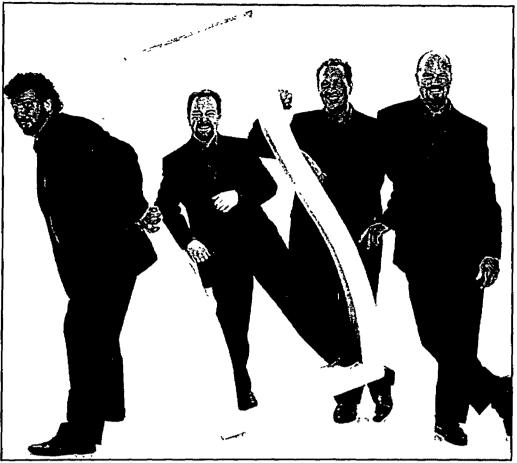

"We're delighted to have Three Men and a Tenor at the Michigan Challenge," said Michelle Tokan, Michigan Challenge manager. "The group appeals to all ages. They put on a great show that's fun to watch as well as to listen to."

Paul Felch, Chuck Colby and Mark Stiles are the "Three Men" in the group. Glenn Williams completes the group as "The Tenor."

The four men with uniquely different musical backgrounds blend together to create a sound and style that is one of a kind. The singers put a spin on classic, sing-along songs, sung a cappella.

What's so special about the group? It's hard to define. Perhaps, it's their up beat style, popular lyrics, fun loving attitude or simply the way the group came together.

In January of 1992, four members of the Michigan State University Men's Glee Club joined together anticipating singing one song for only one performance. Over 13 years later, the four college friends are still together making a career out of singing and entertaining.

World-renowned entertainers, Three Men and a Tenor, will perform Saturday, June 25.

Whatever the case may be, one thing is certain, Three Men and a Tenor's success is inarguable. In 1998, Three Men and a Tenor were named Michigan's Highest-Rated Touring Group by Michigan Touring Arts Association.

Since then, the group's agenda has been filled with commendable performances such as opening for nationally touring entertainers like Lee Greenwood, Dionne Warwick and The Beach Boys.

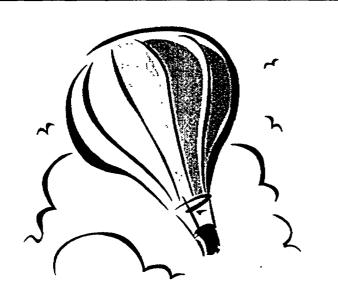

2003 was a big year for the group as they made a television appearance on a PBS-TV special titled, "Three Men and a Tenor in Concert." The special went on to win an Emmy award for "Best Live Direction of Cameras." It was also nominated for a "Golden Screen" Award for Best Live Show.

In 2004, the guys took their style outside of the U.S. with their Ten Thousand Smiles Tour. The group toured Germany visiting the schools for the children of those serving our country. Three Men and a Tenor also brought smiles to those at Ramstein Air Force Base, located in Germany.

"The Michigan Challenge attracts pilots who have flown around the world. With Three Men and a Tenor joining the event, we now have entertainment that has world-wide recognition as well," added Tokan.

A STATE AND A STAT

Balloonist Steve King fires a burst of hot air into the envelope of "Blown Away" balloon.

Learn this basket of facts

Balloon baskets are made of wicker, not just to be picturesque, but because wicker is light in weight, strong, and is a good shock absorber in the event of a rocky landing.

■ A balloon crew is typically four people — one pilot and three ground crew. Crews are essential for a safe launch and the recovery of the balloon after landing.

The most popular hot-air balloons are about seven stories tall and 55 feet wide, with an average of almost 1,800-squareyards of nylon fabric, three miles of thread and ½ mile of reinforced nylon webbing. It weighs about 500 pounds, not inflated. When fully inflated, a balloon will weigh about 2½ tons. Of course, increase these numbers substantially for the huge special shape balloons.

The multi-colored balloon part of a hot-air balloon is technically called the envelope and is made of rip-stop nylon.

The average standard-shaped balloon costs somewhere in the area of $15,000 to $30,000 brand new. Special shape balloons can cost over $100,000.

■ Balloons are registered aircraft. Pilots must be`licensed by the Federal Aviation Administration, very much like airplane pilots. You must be 16 years old to be a pilot.

Did you know these hot-air balloon facts?

■ Propane is used to fuel the burners that provide lift for the balloons. Most balloons carry four 10-gallon propane cylinders.

■ Balloon burners generate about 10 million BTUs.

■ With 40 gallons of propane on board, balloons can fly for about two hours. Most flights, however, last about 1¹/₂ hours.

Why do pilots traditionally toast with champagne at a flight's end? When the first balloon took flight in France in the late 18th century, it terrified the country folk, who thought the strange craft was some kind of monster. After the first few unhappy incidents with landowners, the pilot began carrying champagne as a sign of friendship and appeasement for the farmers.

■ Balloons hold between 30,000 and 800,000 cubic feet of air, depending on the size. Most hold about 70,000 cubic feet.

■ You can't "steer" a balloon. But pilots make directional changes by going to different altitudes where the wind may be shifting to the direction they need to reach the target.

Alex Kiers, 9, of Canton examines hanging balloon sculptures at The Doll Cupboard vendors booth in the Arts Festival during Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

Juried Arts Festival creates fun

The Michigan Challenge is colorful, eventful and artful.

Indeed, the balloonfest Arts Festival is full of handmade, original art in all media including pottery, glass, metalworking, fabric, jewelry, ceramic, photography, painting and sculpture.

Champion Chevrolet sponsors the Arts Festival, one of the most popular activities at the Michigan Challenge.

"Nearly 200 vendors exhibit and sell their works of art at balloonfest," said Michelle Tokan, Michigan Challenge manager. "It's a juried show with some of the most creative pieces designed by artists from Michigan and many other states."

Artist Karen Pugh, K P Dreams, is a decorative painter from Ohio. Her artwork includes painting on slate, wood, glass, collectible items, fabric and even ice skates.

Handmade gift bags are also available at the Arts Festival to carry home your purchases or give as gifts. They are made by Elizabeth Marchesi of Warren. She also creates matted and framed prints and note cards.

Michigan Challenge guests can find art for the outdoors, too. William Sweeney of Oscoda, Michigan makes junkscape art from old farm equipment and car parts. He welds the items together into sundials, milk can people, sunflowers and horseshoe bells.

The Arts Festival opens at 4 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday and stays open until the day's events conclude. It is located at the east end of balloonfest grounds, just south of the Howell High School — look for the big blue and white tent.

. in manual and a second second and the second second in the second s

Five spectacular balloon launches are scheduled during the Michigan Challenge weekend.

Balloon facts...

■ Who's got the right of way — airplanes or hot-air balloons? With both craft converging on the same area, the balloon has the right of way, similar to power boats that give the right of way to sail boats.

■ Balloons often fly over water. Sometimes, a pilot will do what's called a "splash and dash" when the balloon descends to touch down in the water and then take off again.

What's that rope hanging from the top of the balloon? It's used to hold the balloon down during inflation. Sometimes the ground crew uses it to stabilize the balloon during landings.

■ Each pilot has several gauges on board. There is an altimeter to register how high the balloon is and a variometer to indicate whether the craft is going up or down. The pilot has a temperature gauge to tell how hot the air is at the top of the balloon. Of course, the propane tanks have fuel gauges.

■ For safety reasons, balloons typically fly in winds no more than 12 mph. That's why you'll see balloons flying only in the early morning just after dawn and about two hours before sunset in the evening. And that's why, even though it might be a beautiful evening without a cloud in the sky, the flight may be canceled because the wind is too strong.

Major sponsor, National City offers contests and more

, National City and the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest have established a special partnership and an unprecedented tradition.

This is National City's 15th year as major sponsor of one of the premier community events in southeast Michigan.

"One of the distinct privileges I enjoy, as community bank president for National City, is the ability to develop associations that make a significant difference in our region," said Tom Lawrence.

Caring for the community is not only the right thing to do, it is the best thing National City does!

Ás a community bank, National City is not only committed to providing the highest quality products and services, it is also committed to improving the quality of life in the communities the bank serves. This includes sponsorships, community development projects, charitable giving and thousands of volunteer hours by their employees.

Working side by side with the community has been a continuous effort since National City opened its doors in 1945.

The Michigan Challenge Balloonfest, scheduled for June 24-26, 2005, is a three-day event that features the state championship of hot-air ballooning, skydiving, stunt-kite demonstraNATIONAL CITY Located next to the stage, by the cold-air balloon

The Michigan Challenge has always been an advocate of fun for all ages including senior citizens.

This year they will be able to visit AARP The Magazine Road Show at balloonfest.

The Road Show is on a 13-city tour from . May to August and offers health screenings, cooking demonstrations, massages, golf activities, samples, savings coupons, gifts and giveaways. Balloonfest is its only Michigan stop.

This is the Road Show's second visit to the balloonfest. Its first visit to the event was in 2003.

"We are pleased that the event and Howell are part of this national tour," said Michigan Challenge Manager Michelle Tokan. "Balloonfest is truly a family tradition for many of our guests. Parents who brought their children to the event in its early years are now grandparents who

MEET THE BALLOONS & PILOTS

Bill Baker from Tyler, Texas, won the Challenge last year and is back again to see his balloon on the official pin, available in the information booth. "Checkerboard" is a bright envelope with black and white with red trim. Bill's flights are sponsored by Special Editions Skateboard Shop.

Battle Creek sends us Phil Clinger who placed second last year and is also depicted on the competition pin with "The Jester." His sponsor is DTE Energy. The balloon is patterned in a tumbling block design of purple, yellow and green. His wife Tammy joins as crew chief.

Pepsi, a Supporting Sponsor, will be sponsoring Andy Baird of Stockbridge whose balloon is named "ZL Racer." He was the 2003 Champion and his wife, Anne, is his crew chief. Andy works at Cameron Balloon in Dexter and builds many of the envelopes that fly in the Challenge. His balloon is a new shape to make it easier to cut through the air to score.

Tim & Missy Midura are co-pilots from Barberton, Ohio. They have flown in 15 of the Challenges with their balloon called "Kismet." It has a yellow top with vertical, primary colored bars of different heights. This trip is sponsored by First Impression Printing & Graphics.

Larry & Sandi Novotny, also a co-pilot team, come to the Challenge every year from Allen Park. "Ditto" is light blue with rainbow colors at the equator. They are sponsored by Dr. Ismael Yanga.

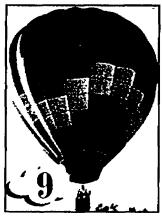

Tom Roush, from Tennessee, has brought several friends to fly with him. He pilots "D Blun" and is sponsored by U of M Health Systems.

Paul Petrehn pilots "Medalist" a bright checker pattem of primary colors with a yellow equator and a black and white diamond pattern. Since his brother has won the event, maybe the family tradition will continue this year. Paul, who is from Howell, is sponsored by Senator Valde Garcia.

Ted Gauthier of Pontiac flies the brightly colored balloon that depicts a motorcycle in the sky called "Andy." Ted is part of one of the dual generation of pilots at the Challenge. He serves as weather officer at the event.Convenience Depot sponsors his flight this year.

An instructor for the annual crew class is Brian Prokuda from Fenton. The pilots appreciate his efforts, knowing they will receive trained crew. Brian's wife Kelly is his crew chief. "Sunrise" features a wave pattern in a combination of red, orange, yellow, blue, purple and navy. Walter's Home Appliances sponsors him.

Jerry Stephan and his wife Daria both pilot "Jedami." The balloon is a vertically step-striped balloon of black, teal and bright rainbow colors with pennants to match. MacDonald's Funeral Home sponsors them. Their son Michael will soon join them as they are also a second generation team here at the Challenge.

Jan Knight, who lives in Howell, really enjoys the event with her husband Gary who is her crew chief. Her balloon, "Cloud Dancer," has a pretty gold antique design against a dark green background. First National Bank sponsors her appearance every year.

Rick Kerber is a new pilot to take on the Challenge from Wayland. He will fly the commercial entry called and sponsored by Michigan CAT. The balloon is a yellow, red and black stair-step design. The committee wishes him well on his first trip to the Challenge.

Tony and Claire Colburn, from North Carolina, are here for their inaugural flight at the Michigan Challenge. They fly "Dream Chaser," which is a beautiful array of purple, yellow and red variegated gores that are a treat to the eye. The Marketeer is their sponsor.

Great Escape sponsors Jeff Pestun, a returning pilot to the Challenge. His balloon, called "Fantasy;" is blue with yellow and orange vertical bars. His wife, Robyn, is his crew chief.

Shawn Raya, from Utica, with his wife Sandra will be piloting a brand new Cameron Z style called "Fast & Serious." He is a great competitor and this year, with the new black, white, red, yellow and blue balloon, will be no different. The Barley Family sponsors Shawn.

Best Western of Howell will again be sponsoring Dennis Belger of Smith's Creek. Dennis and his wife, Shirley, have been to the majority of Challenges and will be flying "Betsy" a red, white and blue entry.

2001 Champion of the Michigan Challenge, Paul Quandee from Elkhart, Ind . comes here with his wife Mary Grace. He is bringing "Cherrie Bomb" — a bright balloon you will not miss out on the field. Sunshine Awning will sponsor this trip.

Miller & Company, Inc. brings in pilot Bill Sterner who with his wife, Dawn, fly in Oxford. The chevron patterned balloon with white sections splashing through the chevron colors in alternating gores is called "God's Promise."

Milford sends pilot Wes Dickerson to the Challenge again. He will be flying a balloon called "Fore" which is yellow, black and red. He has great fans from Oceola Township who sponsor him every year. His wife, Carol, has also come every year to act as crew chief.

Balloonmeister Jim Birk, of Defiance, Ohio, will be piloting the "Pelo Deimos" balloon. Jim determines tasks for the competition. Spartan Tire covers Jim's trip here. Jim was the 1992 Michigan Challenge Champion.

Ron Groce comes with his wife, Jami, from Mason and will be piloting a gorgeous yellow balloon with vertical colored stripes referred to as "No Name." Town Commons Apartments will sponsor him. Ron has flown everything from huge bears to odd penguins.

"Ocean Fantasy" features a collection of scuba divers, fish and all the things you would expect to see in the ocean. Don Wertman II is the pilot and will be sponsored by his employer A & L Parts. Don is another of the second-generation pilots here at the Challenge.

Munith sends up Chuck Walz who works with his wife, Cindy, to have fun flying in various races. "Suany Trails," his balloon, is bright yellow, orange and red. Ameritrust Realty is sponsoring Chuck this trip.

Jim Lykins, of Lake Orion, flies "Boo!," which will be here to delight the kids, who can watch the trick-or-treaters walk around the balloon. Screams Ice Cream & Halloween will be sponsoring Jim. Don't miss this one during the Balloon Glow.

A regular from Milford is Gordon Boring Ilying a delightful yellow balloon, "Boynton Critters," with crew chief Margaret. Look for him to be at the top of the field soon. He is sponsored by Livingston County Daily Press & Argus.

ř

Phil Glebe flies Livingston County's Own WHMI FM 93.5. The balloon features the radio station's logo and is a hometown favorite. His wife, Jan, acts as his support team.

Ken Cramer flies while Patty measures where the markers land. "Please do not ever touch any markers you may see on the road or near a target," she asks. Their balloon, "Free For All." is colored with shapes of yellow, red, orange, burgundy and white and is sponsored this trip by Belle Tire.

Steve King lives in Midland but grew up in the Howell area, so he is excited to be flying in the Challenge. His balloon, "Blown Away," is a bright collection of blue, green and yellow with a diamond pattern. His wife, Brooke, acts as his Crew Chief. The Barnwell Team – Keller Williams sponsors Steve.

Paulson's Construction is proud to sponsor a new pilot to the Michigan Challenge. Mark Enszer and his wife, Marsha, hail from Saginaw and they fly "Celebration." The balloon has a spiral of orange, green and blue that winds its way through a field of yellow.

David Mohr, who comes from Three Rivers, will be piloting "Rainbow Twist," a

Ken Myer, a local Howell resident, will be flying "Ralphie's Ride," a beautiful midnight blue balloon with a horizontal stripe around the top of bright, primary colors. Ken's wife, Lisa, helps in flying the balloon in honor of Ken's father. Ultra Diamonds will sponsor Ken's 2005 chance to win the Challenge.

Back again for a second try is Chuck Polonowski. He and his wife, Mary, are from Rockford and will be piloting "Double Yellow." The balloon has a stair-step pattern of black, green, red and rust against a bright yellow background. Sponsoring him is McGowan's Mini Storage.

Mason sends one of its well known sons, Tom Bergeon, who flies the standard bearer "Re/Max Runner" for Re/Max Realtors, his sponsor. Tom and his wife, Mickey, have been seen flying all over the countryside and can also be seen flying in their sponsor's national commercial.

Dr. Mark Frazer who hails from Middletown, Ohio, is returning to pilot "Release." Mark's balloon is yellow with a multicolored stair-step pattern. His wife, Vickie, is in charge of the chase crew and getting her pilot to the target. He is sponsored by Citizens Insurance, a Supporting Sponsor.

Wayne Warren, of Waterford, is the event safety officer and makes sure everything is done properly on the field and during the various flights. Metropolitan Title sponsors Wayne, who has flown in every Challenge. His balloon, "Junior," has stripes of black, yellow and pink. Linda handles the ground crew.

Dawn Gauthier is another second-generation pilot at the Challenge and the committee wishes to congratulate her on her recent engagement to Mike. Dawn lives in Royal Oak and will be piloting "Daydream" a pretty black balloon with a horizontalstriped bar of vibrant colors. Dawn is sponsored by Auto One Grass Lake sends Al Smith, flying "Calypso" which is described as vertical stripes of primary colors with white banana gores in between. Al and his wife, Karen, enjoy flying together and this year Roman's Pool Supplies and Service sponsors their trip.

Livingston County Performing Arts Center sponsors Rick Kohut as he and Deb return to the Challenge from Louisville, Ohio. Their balloon, named "Wind Trek," is a teal, orange and yellow spiral.

Tim Charlwood is a world-class pilot who travels the world with his wife, Elizabeth, and wins many titles. They are flying one of the new Z-type Cameron balloons called "Skylark" and are sponsored by Your Peace of Mind.

Tennessee sends another entry in Roy Smith. He will fly a balloon called "Squirrel Hunter." The balloon has a green top, a white equator and a grey bottom. Brighton Athletic Club sponsors Roy.

One of the team pilots at the event are Marty and Rob Mihaly who pilot "Boojum," a very pretty black balloon with bright multicolored sections around its circumference. Rob and Marty hail from Lakewood, Ohio. Chem-Trend Limited Partnership sponsors their appearance this year.

Ralph J. Payne is one of the new pilots to compete in the Challenge and win the tasks. Ruth and Ralph hail from Hastings and their balloon, "Autumn Fire," has shades of orange, yellow and black in v gores to accent the colors. His trip is sponsored by Dunham Hills Golf Course.

The 1986 Champion of the Challenge, Rick Meteyer, returns again to try and take yet another trophy home with him. He has brought "Mariah" to pilot this year. Richard and Judy are from Davisburg and his balloon is a three-toned blue and white stair-step pattern. International Transmission Company sponsors him.

Another of the famous "Flying Gauthier's" is Joey Gauthier, from nearby Waterford, who will be piloting "Nudge Me" as in the morning ... to fly. The balloon is a beautiful purple and black in color. Joey and Pat have flown in all but one of the Challenges. Kuman Math & Reading sponsors his return trip.

David Seekell, who is sponsored this year by Primerica, comes from Jackson. His balloon, "Wind Dancer II" is a multicolored spiral with white horizontal bands. David's wife, Tina, acts as his crew chief when he is flying. He and his family have been coming to the Challenge for years and say they really enjoy the event.

Jeff Bartlett flies in his first Michigan Challenge. His balloon is "Tumbleweed" and is bright blue with a band of yellow and red diamonds around the circumference. Jeff and Sandy come from Sharpsville, Pa., and are sponsored by Kensington Inn.

Jim Neill from Riverwoods, Ill., will be trying to win the 21st Challenge. His balloon is called "Stellar" and is blue with yellow stars. A World of Gifts & Tutoring will be sponsoring Jim and Eileen's trip. Their son, Kelly, also flies in the event this year.

Jeremiah Fox, sponsored by Wade Shows, comes to the Challenge from North Fairfield, Ohio. He returns flying "Inspiration," an Aerostar balloon that has a rainbow pattern. Katherine comes to handle the crew.

ないしたが、ためのないので、

Kelly Neill, a new pilot in the Challenge, is the son of pilot Jim Neill and a graphic designer who designed his balloon. It is called "Pengwind." Kelly and Tammy have a new baby, who perhaps will be a third generation pilot. They are sponsored by Town Commons.

Nick Donner returns to Howell from Kentucky. He just won the Kentucky Derby Race and went to Russia on June 1 to try to become the Russian Champion. His balloon, "Bluegrass Rocket," is a green, black, blue and white combination that won't be missed in the sky. He is sponsored by The UPS Store.

and the second second

All roads lead to the balloonfest

Mapping out your Michigan Challenge weekend? It's easy to find your way to balloonfest and the city of Howell.

Howell is located midway between Lansing and Detroit on I-96 and at the western end of M-59. The Michigan Challenge takes place at the Howell High School complex, 1200 W. Grand River Ave., with entrances on West Grand River Avenue, M-59 and Highlander Way.

The best route to the balloonfest from I-96 is Exit #133 — the M-59 exit. Take M-59 east for a few miles — there are several balloonfest entrances on your right. Follow the balloonfest signs.

M-59 travelers going west can take the highway into Howell to the entrances on the left.

Coming from the north? Take I-75 to U.S. 23 south to M-59. Follow M-59 west about 12 miles to the balloonfest entrance.

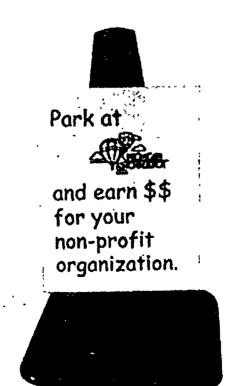

During your visit to Howell, don't miss live entertainment, special events, great shopping and restaurants in the downtown central business district. Downtown Howell is about one mile east of the balloonfest grounds on Grand River Avenue.

Balloonfest parking passes allow you to re-enter the grounds as often as you wish on the day indicated on the pass. Weekend parking passes are available and allow you access to balloonfest grounds Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The Michigan Challenge Balloonfest is a great value and an affordable weekend activity.

Parking passes are only $10 per day and provide admission for all your passengers. Weekend passes are available for $15 or $12 in advance at any National City bank office in Livingston County until June 23.

And if that's not enough to get you to balloonfest, there's more. With paid parking,

PARKING VOLUNTEERS

■ Nonprofit organizations can raise a lot of money by volunteering to help direct parking at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

■ The Howell Area Chamber of Commerce, host of the Michigan Challenge, pays nonprofit organizations for each four-hour shift worked by a volunteer in the group's name. The pay for most shifts is $20. However, a fee of $24 per shift is paid for volunteers working premium shifts. More than 500 parking volunteers are needed throughout the weekend.

Working with non-profit organizations to help park vehicles is just another way balloonfest gives back to this community," said Michigan Challenge Manager Michelle Tokan. "It's a unique fundraiser, and some organizations earn thousands of dollars."

■ Organizations interested in making the Michigan Challenge a fundraising opportunity should contact the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce at (517) 546-3920.

■ Volunteer parking forms can also be downloaded at michiganchallenge.com.

guests have a chance to win a hot-air balloon flight for two, courtesy of Renaissance Balloons. Just remove the bottom portion of your parking pass and bring it to any of the conveniently located information booths at the festival site or at the downtown entertainment site at the courthouse. When you trade it in, you'll receive three raffle tickets. The drawing will be held at the launch site at 8 p.m. on Sunday, June 26. You need not be present to win. Two lucky winners will be drawn; each will win a flight for two.

Lots of parking at balloonfest

Parking can be accessed from West Grand River Avenue, M-59 or Highlander Way.

Handicapped parking is available at all entrances of the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest. Guests in vehicles with a handicapped license plate or sticker should bring it to the attention of the parking attendant and will be shown to a special parking area where access to the launch site and festival grounds is completely paved.

For the comfort and safety of both our guests and our animal friends, the Michigan Challenge committee requests that spectators leave their pets at home.

Vendors offer food for all taste buds

Guests will find food for all tastes at the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

Food vendors are conveniently located at two areas, on the east and west sides of the launch field, and offer a taste fest of sandwiches, grilled favorites, meals, treats and beverages.

At the Arts Festival on the east side of the field, area nonprofit groups grill and serve favorites such as brats, sausage and hot dogs and serve up plenty of Pepsi products. Literally hundreds of volunteers from these groups will work the grills all weekend to keep the crowds satisfied.

At the west side of the launch field are the commercial food vendors. Guests will enjoy a mouth-watering assortment of culinary delights including traditional "fair food," such as french fries, pretzels, fajitas, stir fry roast beef, cotton candy, popcorn, corn dogs and pizza, ethic food, barbecue, apple strudel, fruit shakes, pitas and baked potatoes. And don't forget hot dogs, brats, sausage, snow cones, elephant ears, funnel cakes, steak subs and fries. You may even find some of your favorite national chains at the Michigan Challenge. In both food vending areas, you can rest and relax at picnic tables that are kept clean all weekend long by volunteer Scout groups. In addition, plenty of Waste Management containers (the official garbage man of the Michigan Challenge) are available through out the area for your convenience.

Pack up the family and travel downtown for a community picnic during the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest weekend, June 24-26.

"Since the courthouse lawn is a beautiful place for families to gather, downtown balloonfest activities have been centered around a community picnic," said Michigan Challenge Manager Michelle Tokan.

Right in the heart of downtown at the Historic Livingston County Courthouse, balloonfest visitors will have a chance to participate in many family activities including creating a community quilt.

"To further the tradition that our downtown is for families, community picnic quilts will be created," said Tokan. "Each quilt will be a picture of the Howell community." Quilt blocks can be made in advance (unfinished size 12¹/₂-by-12¹/₂ inches) and brought to the courthouse or made on site where there will be fabric paints, pens and designs available. The quilt blocks will be sewn together after balloonfest and auctioned off by the Howell Area Arts Council during its Sitting Pretty chair auction. Other activities include putt-putt golf, a bubble factory, games, chalk art, contests, a parade, pie eating contest, teen alley, live entertainment and more. Saturday, June 25, is Saint Joseph Mercy Livingston Hospital Kids Day and Sunday, June 26, is Schafer's House of Music — Music Day.

The downtown venue with shops, restaurants and entertainment — is a mile east of the Howell High School complex where the balloons launch.

Keep eyes to the sky for amazing kites

The Windjammers Stunt Kite Team will return for the 16th time to Michigan Challenge Balloonfest.

Keep an eye on the sky. Balloons aren't the only things that soar at the Michigan Challenge. For 16 years, the Windjammers Stunt Kite Team has been a featured attraction to balloonfest with their star-spangled, patriotic stunt kite spectacular.

In what could be described as "dancing" kites, the team performs on Saturday and Sunday with a routine set to the music of patriotic favorites to Motown and show tunes. The highlight of their performance is a stirring rendition of "America The Beautiful" with spectacular red, white and blue kites. And if the winds are right, the Windjammers will fly 78 kites at once. in six spectacular kite "trains."

Ever fly a kite? At the Michigan Challenge, spectators have a chance to learn basic maneuvers, join the Windjammers on the field and send a stunt kite flying. The Windjammers' kites are controlled with two or four lines, allowing them to be steered and "choreographed." Even in light winds, the graphite kites fly. Visitors will see kite formations and controlled power dives. The Windjammers are sponsored by Blue Cross/Blue Shield and Blue Care Network of MI. Members of the team are Gary Maynard. Nate Williams, James Kinsey, George Wright III, and Mike Carlisle. They've been flying stunt kites together for years.

"Since the courthouse lawn is a beautiful place for families to gather, downtown balloonfest activities have been centered around a community picnic," said Tokan.

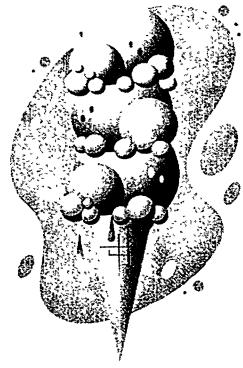

Picnic goers and downtown visitors will have a chance to participate in many family activities including creating a community quilt.

'To further the tradition that our downtown is for families, community picnic quilts will be created," said Tokan. "Each quilt will be a picture of the Howell community."

Quilt blocks can be made in advance (unfinished size 121/2-by-121/2 inches) and brought to the courthouse or made on site where there will be fabric paints, pens and designs available. The quilt blocks will be sewn together after balloonfest and auctioned off by the Howell Area Arts Council during its Sitting Pretty chair auction.

Other activities include putt-putt golf, a bubble factory, games, chalk art, contests, a parade, pie eating contest, ice cream social, teen alley, live entertainment and more. A performance by the Motor City Beat will take place in the amphitheater on Friday night. Saturday is Saint Joseph Mercy Livingston Hospital Kids Day and Sunday is Schafer's House of Music - Music Day.

The Michigan Challenge is an event to remember!

Take part in an ice cream social in downtown Howell Saturday and Sunday.

Visitors are encouraged to come early and stay late all three days to enjoy everything the weekend has to offer.

Citizens offers family fun at tent

The Family Fun Tent, once again sponsored by Citizens Insurance Company, is the perfect place for the entire family to enjoy the day's festivities. There's something for everyone — interactive games, arts and crafts, face painting and more — all at no cost to participants.

Citizens volunteers will be there throughout the weekend to join the fun, lend a hand and pass out balloons.

The Family Fun Tent will be open on Saturday and Sunday from noon until 5 p.m. The tent is located just north of the balloon launch field at Howell High School — near the Antique and Custom Car Show.

As one of the largest employers in Livingston County, Citizens is committed to improving the quality of life in the community by supporting local organizations, school programs and events like balloonfest. Citizens is also proud to welcome visitors from all over to this annual celebration and encourages newcomers to experience all that the Howell area has to offer.

Event makes night sky glow

BALLOON GLOW

Saturday as darkness fall

The Saturday night balloon glow at the Michigan Challenge is a must see part of balloonfest.

In anticipation of each glow, the crowd shouts out the count: five ... four ... three ... two ... oneGLOW!

As darkness falls, more than 20 balloons will inflate on the launch field, their colors glowing against the night sky. Announcer Tom Maynard leads the crowd in a countdown to the first "all glow"— and all the balloons simultaneously ignite their burners presenting an almost overwhelming display of color and light.

"Twinkle" glows will also be announced as spectators marvel to one balloon glow after another. It's a sight that outshines any stars in the night sky.

"The balloon envelopes light up like luminaries in the darkness," said Michigan Challenge Manager Michelle Tokan.

And then, from nearly one mile above the earth, The Livingston Community News Skydivers perform a spectacular nighttime jump, complete with pyrotechnics.

Make sure you're at the launch field on

A LEVEL MARKET AND A LEVEL
Watch as skydivers jump from sky

The Livingston Community News Skydivers, presented by Paul McCowan Airshows, join the Michigan Challenge for many spectacular jumps throughout the weekend performing precision skydiving maneuvers.

"All eyes look up, waiting to catch a glimpse of the skydivers as they descend from the sky and gracefully land on the launch field," said Michelle Tokan, Michigan Challenge manager.

Since jumps are scheduled at 5 p.m. each day, The Livingston Community News Skydivers have become the opening act for the evening mass balloon launches.

The team's first jump is at 5 p.m. on Friday. A special performance by the E Team skydivers, who jump dressed as Elvis, is planned followed by a few favorite songs from the king.

Other memorable jumps are scheduled throughout the weekend including the spectacular Skydiving Night Show on Saturday evening during the Balloon Glow.

During the night show, the team will exit their aircraft a mile above the earth, each with custom-designed special effects pyrotechnics strapped to their bodies. After the canopies open and the ignition systems are armed, the fireworks display begins. Multiple system control modules electronically launch rockets, blazing comets, Roman candles and shooting stars across the night sky. Brilliant strobes illuminate the canopies as the jumpers execute their final approach for landing.

The gigantic flag is escorted by two jumpers patriotically displaying red and blue pyrotechnic smoke. And when they're not jumping, the team members love to meet spectators, especially children. "We always encourage people to come up and say 'hi,'" said Paul McCowan, team leader.

More than a festival, pilots compete for title

Pilots who fly in the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest are enjoying the sport of hot-air ballooning and competing for the title of Michigan Challenge Champion.

"The event is the state championship of hot-air ballooning," said Michigan Challenge Manager Michelle Tokan. "It's a sporting competition where pilots receive points for national ranking from the North American Balloon Association."

Although popularly called "races," competitions such as the challenge have nothing to do with how fast or how far a balloon travels. It's all a matter of skill.

The competition is based on how well pilots can use wind currents and altitude to steer their balloons to a specific target. Pilots toss a numbered "baggie" onto an "X"shaped target and aim to be as close to the center of the target as possible.

"Once people realize the Michigan Challenge is a sporting event, watching the competition can be as exciting as watching a playoff game. The winner is not determined until the last baggie is dropped," said Tokan.

The competition takes place in the early evening and just after dawn because that is when the winds are the calmest. Winds over 12 mph, rain or lightning will keep the balloons grounded. "Once people realize the Michigan Challenge is a sporting event, watching the competition can be as exciting as watching a playoff game. The winner is not determined until the last baggie is dropped."

> -Michelle Tokan Michigan Challenge Manager

If the weather is favorable, after the launch, the pilots will try to find the right wind currents to take them close to the target. Each pilot will toss a numbered baggie onto the target, usually a large "X" shape spread in a field or at an intersection, aiming to be as close to the center as possible. Continued on page 56

Richard Mikula, Mark Atkins and Rick Steffens calculate the score for a pilot by determining how close the baggie comes to the target. Atkins is holding a baggie, which is made of rip-stop nylon, weighted at one end, with a long nylon tail that streams behind as it descend. If you see one of these, do not touch it.

Competition exciting to watch

You can easily watch this competition during morning flights at the Michigan Challenge when the "X" is located right at the launch field and the pilots take off from various spots out in the countryside

A baggie is made of rip-stop nylon, weighted at one end, with a long nylon tail that streams behind it as it descends. If during the competition you see a baggie on the ground or if one lands near you, please don't touch it. The scoring officials will need to accurately measure its distance from the target.

Balloonists will compete in various events during the competition.

Judge Declared Goal — a goal, perhaps a target or road intersection, declared by the balloonmeister.

■ Hare and Hound — the hare or lead balloon leaves the field first and the hounds, the remaining balloons, try to follow and throw a marker.

■ Watership Down — balloons fly into the main launch field and follow a hare out that takes off at a predetermined time.

■ Convergent Navigational Task (CNT) a fly in task, usually at the main launch field.

Each event will have at least one target (or task), sometimes two or three. The type of competition will depend on the weather conditions and will be determined by Balloonmeister Jim Birk. Events will be announced at the pilot briefing prior to each launch. Spectators should listen for competition announcer Tom Maynard, who will supply the details of each flight.

During Michigan Challenge XXI, balloon pilots will compete for a beautiful trophy, cash and prizes and bragging rights as the official Michigan Champion of hot-air ballooning.

Collecting pins: Start a new, hey are simply painted pieces of metal, but they are sought after by collectors around the world.

Decorative pins, featuring hot-air balloons, stamps or cartoon characters, along with those commemorating special events, businesses or organizations, are fun to collect, easy to store, and are generally inexpensive — usually around $5 each. Since they are small, they make perfect souvenirs to remember events, vacations and other exciting times.

So, it's no surprise pin collecting is one of the fastest growing hobbies in the world. In fact, a quick Google search reveals hundreds of Web sites offering to sell and trade pins. Yahoo even has discussion groups for pin collectors.

The Michigan Challenge Balloonfest has produced pins commemorating the event since 1985.

"Collector pins are a big thing in ballooning," Pam Rietsch, pilot liaison for the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest and designer of many of the festival's pins, said.

Rietsch has hundreds of pins in her personal collection — many of which are irreplaceable and all of which have stories attached. Some were given to her by friends and others commemorate special events.

Many pilots have pins made in the likeness of their balloons and they give them to members of their crew as a way of saying

Creating Michigan Challenge pins

The commemorative Michigan Challenge Balloonfest pin generally features the winners of the previous year's event.

"Each year we create a comemorative pin for the Michigan Challenge," Michelle Tokan, Michigan Challenge Manager, said.

Pam Rietsch, pilot liaison for the festival, has been designing the pins since 1988. As a graphic designer and pin collector, it seemed a natural fit and she enjoys the creative challenge.

In 1989, she began featuring the first and second-place winners from the previous competition on the pin.

When the weather cancels the competition portion of the event, creating a lack of winners, the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest Committee honors those who have done "something special for the event," Rietsch said.

For example, Bill Bettis, pilot and longtime committee volunteer, was honored with his balloon pictured on the Michigan Challenge XI pin. The committee kept the decision a secret and surprised Bettis with thanks.

Vendors often bring pins and display cases to the Michigan Challenge a special ceremony and the pin wrapped in elegant paper — at his office.

"He was so stunned (by the attention and honor), he didn't realize it was his balloon featured on the pin," remembered Rietsch.

The Michigan Challenge pins are sought after by visitors, pilots, crew and volunteers each year.

"The Michigan Challenge pins are collector items and a very affordable souvenir of the event," Tokan said.

A few years ago, Rietsch said one vendor was selling the 10th anniversary Michigan Challenge Balloonfest pin for $40. And, a complete set of Michigan Challenge pins once sold on ebay for several thousands of dollars.

Pick up this year's official pin at any of the information booths, or call the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce at (517) 546-3920. Pins from previous competitions may also be available for S5 each at the chamber or at the main information booth, located behind the stage, west of the launch field.

Balloonfest to sell to pilots, crew and visitors to the festival. — By Candy Spiegel STARTING A COLLECTION

What to collect

- Collect what interests you
- Remember, pins are only worth what someone else
- is willing to pay and may or may not go up in value

■ Where to get them

- Get involved Some pilots and organizations give them to their crew or other volunteers
- Check second-hand stores, ebay, flea markets garage sales, festivals

How to trade them

 Trade pins online or during special events, like balloonfest

How to display them

 Display them on a hat, scarf, jacket, cloth bag, board, specially designed book or in a frame

inexpensive and fun hobby

The second pin included the year of the event and the date.

The first Michigan Challenge pin is rare.

The year 1999 celebrated both Michigan Challenge 15 and the 50th anniversary of the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce, the group who organizes the event each year. To celebrate both, the 15 was gold.

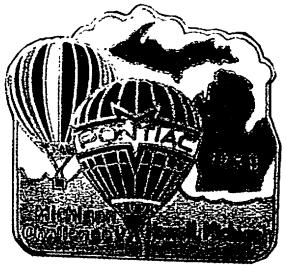

Other favorites at the balloonfest, like the Windjammers Stunt Kite Team, also have pins.

Each year, the mayor of the city of Howell has a special pin created in honor of the event. The back of the pin has the mayor's name engraved in it. Two pins are given to each pilot — one for them and one for their crew chief — as a thank you for attending the event.

The Michigan Challenge V pin was the first pin to feature the first and second-place winners from the previous year.

To celebrate the 10th anniversary of the Michigan Challenge, the 1994 pin was cut out in the number 10. This tradition continues to the other milestone years.

This year's pin features "Checkerboard," piloted by Bill Baker from Texas, and "The Jester," piloted by Phil Clinger from Battle Creek.

Pick up the Michigan Challenge XXI Balloonfest pin at the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce's information booth located behind the main stage, just west of the launch field. They are also available in the information booth near the Arts Festival. The commemorative pins sell for only $5 each.

Some pins from previous years may also be available at the main information booth near the launch field. Call the Howell Area Chamber of Commerce at (517) 546-3920 for details.

The 20th anniversary pin features "Medalist," piloted by Andy Baird of Stockbridge and "The Phoenix," piloted by Jody Leatherberry, also of Stockbridge. Baird was the winner and Leatherberry came in second at the previous year's event.

MICHIGAN CHALLENGE BALLOONFEST XXI . Wednesday, June 15, 2005. 59

We hope you enjoy the Michigan Challenge Balloonfest XXI as much as we enjoy being its major sponsor.

🖌 Can you tell me if Susan Powter, the fitness instructor, is still writing or making any new videos? -Gail K., Virginia

After a seven-year hiatus to raise her three sons, single mother Susan Powter is back with a book, The Politics of Stupid, and a video, Trailer Park Yoga, which are available through her website, ununsusanton teronline.com. The outspoken fitness guru also has a live radio show and a cooking variety show called Taste My Broth in the works. She exploded onto the scene in the 1990s with her "Stop the Insanity" campaign for physical Susan Powter has a new book. fitness. She authored six books, including three New York Times best sellers, and made nine videos and four infomercials. "Everything I'm doing now makes 'Stop the Insanity' look like a dress rehearsal," says Powter, who lives in New England. "I am now a 47-year-old menopausal woman not taking synthetic estrogen, wiser and healthier than I have ever been. I'm still a size two; I lost 133 pounds and never found them again," Powter says.

igvee My husband and I are enjoying the reruns of Everybody Loves Roymond. We especially like Brad Garrett playing Robert. What is he doing now? -Melietta E., Minnesota

Now that the popular sitcom has ended, actor Brad Garrett is contemplating new projects while enjoying a little time off to be with his children-Hope, 5, and Max, 6. "It was a great nine-year run and we're very grateful, but I thought it was the right move to stop on top," says Garrett, 45. The time on Eurybody Loves Raymond, though, was "life-changing on many levels," Garrett says. During that time, the actor met his wife of six years, Jill, and they had their two children. Garrett was born in Oxnard, Calif., brought up in Woodland Hills, Calif., and still lives in the San Fernando Valley. Roymond star Brad Garrett He's keeping busy by doing some stand-up comedy, including a stint at the Mirage in Las Vegas this summer. "I'm doing it to aggravate people," he teases. "Stand-up is hard and I love the challenge." He's also thinking about pursuing one of his dreams to do Broadway. "Im picky and I'm not in demand," says Garrett, laughing. "It's a brutal combination."

Can you please tell me if country artist Buck Owens is the father of country singer Dwight Yoakam?

-Dorothy S., Texas No, Buck Owens, 74, is not Dwight Yoakam's father, although they became great friends in the 1980s after Yoakam claimed him as a huge musical influence. After they sang Owens' Streets of Bakersfield together on a CBS TV special, Yoakam persuaded Owens nor only to go on tour with him, but to record the song together. It became a hit in 1988 and won his Crystal Palace in Bakersfield most Friday and Saturday nights. His three volumes of DVDs, Buck Ovens' Ranch Shows, are available through his website, uuu:buckouenc.com. "I'd like just to be remembered as a guy that came along and did his music, did his best and showed up on time, clean and ready to do the job, wrote a few songs, and had a (heck) of a time," Owens says.

What is Sidney Poitier doing today?

-Florence L., New Mexico

Sir Sidney Poitier, who was knighted in 1968 by Queen Elizabeth, has officially retired from the entertainment business. The 78-year-old actor, producer and director holds a dual ambassadorship-one from the Bahamas to UNESCO (United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization) and another from the Bahamas to Japan. Poitier, who was born in Florida and raised in the Bahamas, has four honorary doctorates as well and has written two books. The Oscar winner currently resides in Los Angeles with Joanna, his wife of 29 years with whom he has two daughters. He also has four daughters from a previous 15-year marriage.

When the big screen at Hull's Drive-in remained dark in the summer of 1999, moviegoers were disappointed. After all, Hull's had been showing films off Route 11 north of Lexington, Va. (pop. 6,867), for more than 40 years.

Heroes

"It was disheartening," recalls Sam Newcomer, 51, a longtime fan of the drive-in theater. "I'm very nostalgic and this was something I could relate to my childhood—happy times. No matter what was going on, I felt I could come to Hull's and slow down."

Members of Hull's Angels saved and purchased America's only community-owned drive-in theater in Lexington, Va

Con Carles the Content of Content

The fate of the theaterowned and operated by Sebert Hull and his wife, Effie, for four decades-became uncertain when Hull died before the drive-in opened for its 1998 season. At first, locals were encouraged when Effie sold the business to W.D. Goad whose auto body shop is adjacent to the drive-in. Goad kept the drive-in going that summer, but the following year, the cost of needed technical upgrades prompted him to close the theater and look for a buyer who would run the business in the family-friendly way of Sebert Hull.

Enter Eric and Elise Sheffield. The Sheffields moved to Lexington in 1993 and Hull's, Elise says, "was our weekend date." In their 30s, the Sheffields had a new baby and Eric had started a woodworking business. The drive-in, with its $4-a-person, double-feature tickets (children under 12 free), was affordable entertainment.

In June 1999, the couple organized a meeting to see what could be done to keep the theater open. More than 50 people—from all walks of life—attended. Sharing a fondness for Mr. Hull and a love of the outdoor theater, they formed a non-profit organization called Hull's Angels and re-opened the theater on July 7, 2000.

E-mail your friends this story at www.americanprofile.com

At first, the group leased the theater from Goad. But after two years of fund-raising, Hull's Angels—today composed of 700 dues-paying members—amassed $75,000 to renovate and purchase America's only community-owned drive-in theater. With an annual budget of $175,000, the drive-in pays the bills primarily through ticket and concession sales, but also raises money with $5 memberships, raffles, and the sale of T-shirts and hats.

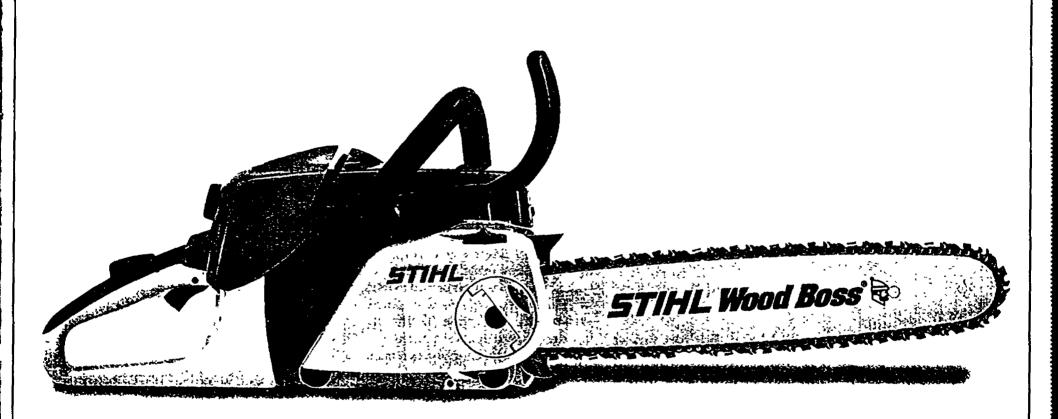

"Mr. Hull had quite a following," says Eric, who along with Elise are members of the elected board that administers the drivein. "He was very down-home."

Preserving that spirit is important. Though tickets were raised to $5, concession prices remain low with 75-cent popcorn and 75-cent sno-cones. On an average weekend, the theater sell 500

Small towns are home to some of the best golf in America

by ALAN ROSS

Groundskeeper Michael Reaves

pauses from his daily work on the 7th-hole green of Pinehurst No. 5 to watch the majestic sunrise over the world-renowned golf resort. The greens and fairways in and around Pinehurst, N.C. (pop. 9,706), have produced many champions—and countless dreamers—since the village's first course was built 108 years ago. Reaves is among the newcomers pursuing his own dream of golf celebrity.

"The main reason I moved here was to one day play on the pro tour," says Reaves, 37, a former truck driver who relocated to Pinehurst in 2003 from Spring Lake, N.C. (pop. 8,098).

"He's got his goal," adds Reaves' wife, Gabriella. "We'll keep doing what we're doing until he makes it. We'll never give up."

Golf dreams are being pursued on thousands of small-town courses across America, from Pinehurst to Gaylord, Mich., to St. George, Utah, and beyond. Where cow pastures, forested hills and barren deserts once prevailed, meticulously groomed and challenging golf courses now reside for the enjoyment of both professionals and amateurs.

While greens fees ($345 for 18 holes) on famed Pinehurt No. 2 have outgrown the pocketbooks of most golfers, affordable rates still can be found on dozens of courses in nearby Aberdeen (pop. 3,400), Pinebluff, (pop. 1,109) and Southern Pines (pop. 10,918). And a $20 bill buys a round of golf at many smalltown links around the country.

Playing Pinehurst, the site of the U.S. Open June 13 to 19, wasn't always so expensive; at one time it was free, though less refined. When the health-based winter resort opened in 1895, guests hit "little white balls" in a cow pasture, until a local dairyman took offense. By 1898, the resort's first nine-hole course was completed.

Fortunately Pinehurst's fees remain within Reaves' financial reach. He uses his employee discount to hone his game—and pursue his dream—on the resort's legendary courses during his off-hours.

Greens in the desert

In the high desert region of southwestern Utah, the sun-seared, red rock landscape has been transformed into a year-round golf utopia over the last two decades. The St. George (pop. 49,663) area features 10 courses, including the original nine-hole, Dixie Red Hills, developed by the city in 1965.

"In the late 1980s the boom really began, with Green Spring opening in 1989 and Sunbrook in '90," says David Terry, the city's director of marketing. "At that point we finally had two top quality golf courses open to the public."

Michael Reaves pursues his golf dream in Pinehurst, N.C.

The highly popular Entrada at Snow Canyon course, designed by former PGA Tour great and current golf commentator Johnny Miller, and Sunbrook's Black Rock course each possess one of golf's more intriguing challenges: three holes in which prehistoric lava fields substitute for ordinary rough. It commands a golfers' attention. A ball hit wide of the fairway has the possibility of bouncing anywhere within a 360-degree radius once it lands on lava.

"You hope you get the one in a hundred that hops back in the grass," Terry says. "It doesn't happen very often."

At 2,800 feet elevation, the area is blessed with a dry, moderate climate, though keeping the desert green poses a challenge that requires plenty of irrigation water.

"Up here, we get it right out of Quail Creek Reservoir," says Glenn Evans, 37, course superintendent for Coral Canyon Golf Club in nearby Washington (pop. 8,186). "Each course has its own little microclimate, as far as where they get their water supply. We're pretty blessed here, but water's not free anywhere."

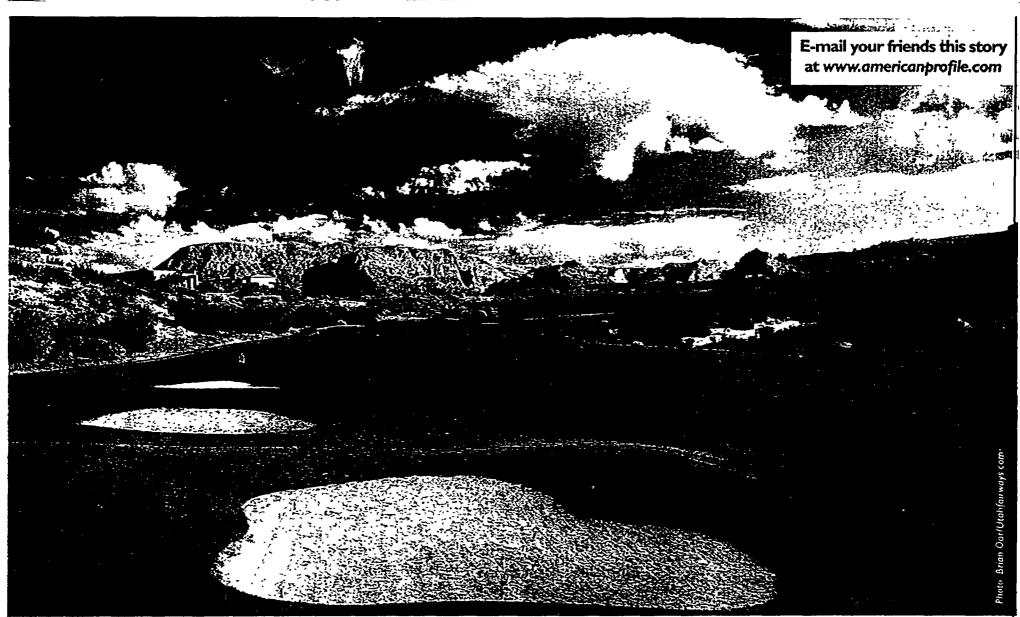

The cost of water norwithstanding, Evans' private slice of heaven enables him to resist the temptation of climbing the ladder at other golf havens. "I could be happy here for the rest of my career," he notes. "A lot of guys every year want to be somewhere different and move up, up, up, and then eventually they retire in a place like this. There's a little less stress; there's no TV tournament. With tournament courses, there's high demand and a lot of scrutiny."

Pinehurst of the Midwest

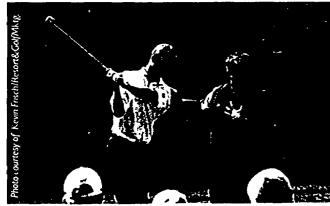

In the rolling woodlands around Gaylord, Mich. (pop. 3,681), golfers can play on beautifully contoured, championship courses, some of whose fairways meander alongside scenic ski slopes.

"We have a 10-month season now, because we have skiing in the winter," says Rick Smith, co-owner and managing partner of Treetops Resort, which offers four championship courses and joins 23 other area courses that comprise the Gaylord golf mecca.

In 2002, Smith and a consortium of partners purchased Treetops and its adjoining 4,000 acres. The resort is host to ESPN's Par-3 Shootout and was rated No. 39 by Golfueek in its 2003 America's Best Resorts course list.

Southwestern Utah's red rock landscape contrasts with the vivid green turf at Entrada at Snow Canyon Country Club, one of 10 golf courses in "Color Country" around St. George.

Rick Smith coaches students at Michigan's Treetops Resort.

"It's probably the finest collection of golf courses that you can find out here," says Smith, 47, a professional golf instructor who counts 2004 Masters champion Phil Mickelson among his pupils. "You can call it the 'Pinehurst of the Midwest."

Though northern Michigan might appear an unlikely location for a golf mecca, more than 350,000 rounds are played annually from late April through mid-October on Gaylord area courses. In 2003, the golf industry contributed $18.2 million to the area economy.

Although golf drives the mecca today, it was skiing and other winter sports that were the focal point of area business in 1983 when Harry Melling purchased Sylvan Ski Resort and determined that a championship golf course would attract summer visitors to the resort, which he renamed Treetops. To that end he lured one of the world's elite golf architects to Gaylord.

"Robert Trent Jones Sr. designed the first of the Treetops courses, back in 1986," says Paul Beachnau, executive director of the Gaylord Area Convention and Tourism Bureau. "That really helped our marketing efforts. Since then, things have really taken off."

But Jones Sr. was not the inaugurator of golf in Gaylord. His masterpiece course at Treetops was preceded by the Gaylord Country Club course in mid-1920, followed by the Otsego Club's original nine-hole course in 1950s, plus several others.

"Places like the Otsego Club, Treetops and Boyne Mountain built golf courses to help bolster winter trade," Beachnau says, "and that's how things really began to shake out in terms of interest in Gaylord as a golfing destination."

Still, the destination isn't the only source of inspiration for amateurs such as Reaves. Often it's the pursuit of a dream, like those envisioned by countless golfers who play on hometown courses across America each weekend.

When three elephants come sauntering trunk-to-tail down the streets of Baraboo, Wis. (pop. 12,134), parade-watchers burst into applause. Young onlookers stare as a tapir and two lions in separate antique, horse-drawn circus wagons roll by.

In all, more than 60,000 people witnessed last year's Great Circus Parade, a procession of clowns, marching bands and dozens of satin-costumed riders astride wellgroomed horses in downtown Baraboo. The scene, however, didn't come as a big surprise to residents, who have quite literally grown up in the shadow of the town's big top heritage.

Clowning around at the Great Circus Festival.

The annual two-hour parade--scheduled June 25 in Baraboo-is part of the Great Circus Festival, presented by the town's landmark Circus World Museum.

The museum's location once served as the winter home of the Ringling Bros. Circus from the late 1800s until 1918, the year before it merged with the Barnum & Bailey Show. Incorporated in 1954 by John M. Kelley, a longtime attorney for the Ringlings, the museum has welcomed more than 7 million guests since opening to the public in 1959.

Today, the museum's 39 buildings house more than 1 million artifacts, including well-worn trapeze artist costumes, oversize clown shoes, rare circus posters and handcarved circus wagons.

"We are not a closet of curiosities or an artic where artifacts are squirreled away," says Larry Fisher, the museum's executive director. "The museum preserves circus tradition and performance."

Museum employee Karen DeSanto can attest to that. She relocated to Baraboo after spending 13 years as a clown for the Ringling Bros. and Big Apple circuses. She and husband Greg, who also is a clown, now work at Circus World Museum as an act in the Big Top Circus, an actual working circus held on the grounds. "When we moved to Baraboo, we bought a home with no wheels on it," says DeSanto, laughing.

The museum's Big Top performance season runs from late May to Labor Day. In preparation, Boy Scouts from all over Wisconsin camp at the Sauk County Fairgrounds and volunteer their time getting the outdoor grounds ready for the summer season. They raise the poles on the big circus tent, learn circus knot work and pound stakes to hold the ropes.

Besides the DeSantos' side-splitting act, museum visitors can see elephants, goats and horses perform tricks, and Russian magicians change costumes in the blink of an eye.

Baraboo's circus kgacy began in the late 19th century when more than 100 traveling tent shows, including the Ringling Bros., spent considerable time in the area. The town owes much of that circus legacy to Baraboo residents Marie Salome. Katherine and Mary Juliar, three sisters who met and married three young men with future big top connections, August Ringling, Gottlieb Gollmar and Henry Moeller. The Gollmar Brothers, cousins to the Ringlings, formed their own circus. Moeller's business included making wagons for the circus. "The Juliar sisters really created the circus empire," says Paul Wolter, president of the Sauk County Historical Society's board of directors.

August and Salome Ringling's eldest son, August Albrecht (known as Al), convinced his brothers, John, Charles, Otto and Alfred T., to join him in creating an entertainment organization that became known as the Ringling Bros. Circus, and made Baraboo its seasonal home in 1884.

More than a century later, the Ringling presence still is evident in Baraboo. Before his death, Albrecht spent $100,000 to build the palatial, 874-seat Al Ringling Theatre as a gift to the town. Traveling shows and local productions still use the facility and films are shown there regularly.

"Drive around Baraboo and you can see the hand of the Ringling Bros. at work," Fisher says. In fact, Albrecht's former home in Baraboo is now the local chapter of the Elk's Club. A stone wall running the perimeter of the Sauk County Courthouse square memorializes circus performers. Even the local cemetery has big top links as the final resting place for many circus notables.

"Baraboo is a great place," DeSanto says. "It's a gem. When people see it, they can't believe it's here."

A classic car pulls into Hull's Drive-in just before dusk. pounds of french fries, according to Frank Kulesza, part-time projectionist and executive director of the citizens' board running the drive-in. The staff at Hull's is a mix of paid and volunteer workers. Board members often are behind the concessions counter on busy weekends, which can see up to 315 cars spread across the venue's five acres.

Hull's still shows mostly family-appropriate movies and on summer nights, kids, some already in pajamas, play and catch lightning bugs on the grass in front of the screen.

Newcomer, who greets moviegoers while manning the ticket booth, says the drive-in is much the same as it's always been. He recalls his aunt piling a bunch of kids into the car and taking them—and him—to the drive-in. "It was how I knew it was summer, when the drive-in opened."

Theater board member Peggy Payne, 47, recalls the decision to save Hull's as an outpouring of community determination. "Twe often since thought of Margaret Mead, who said: 'Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed people can change the world. Indeed, it's the only thing that ever has."

But it is a familiar bit of the world the people of Lexington have saved. At dusk, Kulesza announces over the microphone: "Okay, folks, it's show time. Who wants a movie? Let's hear those horns." A chorus of honks and beeps rise from the grassy berms and into the starlit sky and, with a flip of a switch, the giant outdoor screen lights up once again. \Rightarrow

Cool Summer Treats

Dessert and kids go together like summer and sunshine. If you're looking for a cool summer treat for a pool party or outdoor gathering where children—or children at heart are present, you might consider one of this week's recipes. Both are packed with yummy fruit flavor.

The raspberry cream pie recipe submitted by Sandra Lippowiths of Caro, Mich., combines tart raspberries, creamy cream cheese and cool whipped topping into a scrumptious dessert.

"I wanted to make a raspberry dessert similar to one we had tried in a local restaurant," Lippowiths says. "I started experimenting and came up with this."

If you're looking for something a little "cooler," break out the ice cream freezer and try the recipe submitted by Ferne Tremelling of Wills Point, Texas. It's certain to be a hit with grape-loving youngsters.

"This recipe is just a little different," Tremelling says. "It was always a great hit with our church kids."

As always, American Profile looks forward to receiving—and publishing—your favorite recipes each week, and sharing them with our millions of readers across the nation. $\stackrel{\checkmark}{\rightarrow}$
