Green light

■ Wayne County says high school will get traffic light

By Tracy Mishler
RECORD STAFF WRITER

Dennis Colligan is no longer worried about the struggle to place a traffic signal in front of Northville High School.

The high school principal is very anxious to see the light go up in the next few weeks.

"This is the conclusion to an effort made by a lot of people," Colligan said. "Our hope is for a safer environment, and this is a huge visual for people to be alert."

The five-year $40,000 project will be paid for mostly by the Northville school district.

Assistant Superintendent David Bolitho said the district will pay for the light and labor.

"The district then asked Wayne County to take care of all electrical usage each month and any maintenance needed," Bolitho said. "And they agreed."

Traffic lights are installed due to warrants indicating the number of vehicles using the road and accident history.

Patrick Hogan, director of Wayne County roads, said it's not unusual for a high school to need a traffic light.

"Northville High School has met those warrants," Hogan said. "Now we're just waiting for DTE to come and provide the electrical service to the area."

Bolitho expects the light to be up and operating by the time kids head back to school Aug. 25.

As for future problems with traffic in the area, Colligan said the light will be most useful during arrivals and dismissals.

"It may slow down dismissals, but I'll take that if it means the students are safer," he said.

■ Northville resident finds ancestors aboard historic journey

By Tracy Mishler
RECORD STAFF WRITER

Allan Harding Rauner may not be a famous name, but his ancestors sure are.

Recently inducted into the Society of Mayflower Descendants in Michigan, Rauner, 54, of Northville, has spent the past two years searching for evidence proving his relation to several famous faces.

Rauner's journey started when he and a cousin found the names John Akden and Stephen Hopkins, two men who voyaged on the Mayflower in 1620. Akden and Hopkins were among 26 men who signed the immortal Mayflower Compact.

Although Rauner said many people are skeptical about his findings, Rauner has documents stating the truth.

In order to become a member in the Society, generations of documents have to be sent in to the society historian and checked.

"You have to send in birth certificates, death certificates and marriage certificates of every generation found," Rauner said. "There are 13 generations between me and the Pilgrims. Akden and Hopkins were considered the first."

"There are millions of people related to the Pilgrims and I am one of them."

Among others, Rauner has found inventor Benjamin Franklin in his bloodline.

Although not proven completely, Rauner said his grandmother, Mary Folger, is the great aunt of Franklin. "Benjamin Franklin is my teeth

Also related to Rauner, and proven, are Jane Fonda and former president Warren G. Harding.

"People have asked me if I can find any criminals in my history, but I can't say I have," Rauner said. "I think the most sinister character would be President Harding."

Rauner claims Fonda is distantly related on his mother's side.

Courting sobriety

■ Former drunk drivers graduate court program with new outlook

By Aileen Wingblad
GANNETT NEWS SERVICES

Northville resident Christy Collins was 18 years old when her alcohol use started catching up with her.

That was two years ago.

Her troubles began with a minor in possession charge. White Lake Township police officers had pulled over the car she was driving and determined she was drinking. She was underage, so she was cited.

She ended up on probation, required to live at her mom's Highland Township home and follow house rules. When Collins chose to stay out all night, her mother reported her to police. A judge later ruled Collins' indiscretion was a probation violation and sent her to the Oakland County Jail for five days.

It wasn't enough. Collins was not about to change.

She violated probation six times during the next several months, didn't fulfill her court-ordered community service requirement and continued to drink. She racked up another minor in possession citation, and then a drunk driving charge in Wixom. She was sent to a drug and rehabilitation facility for 90 days.

Still, she didn't change. She was kicked out of the facility three weeks later for kissing one of the male clients there. That earned her a 30-day jail stint.

Still, she didn't change. It was an eventful year, indeed, for the gregarious, fair-haired teenager.

Collins' turning point came eventually, however. Her impetus: Sobriety Court.

Another chance

On the verge of being released from the county jail, Collins was offered the opportunity to participate in Sobriety Court through 52-1 District Court in Novi. The program, created four years ago by Judge Brian MacKenzie, is an alternative approach to dealing with repeat drunk drivers.

Rather than heading to jail, selected defendants may voluntarily agree to participate in the program, subjecting themselves to a 72-week program that includes intense supervision, drug testing, counseling, involvement in a 12-step program and regular visits with a district court judge.

For many, it's a last-ditch attempt to make a crooked road straight again.

Last week, more than 30 defendants emerged from the program's first phase — the most demanding 36 weeks Sobriety Court has to offer — and were publicly recognized during a graduation ceremony held at the Milford Civic Center.

It was the first time Milford hosted the twice-a-year event. MacKenzie was there, along with fellow 52-1 District Court Judges Robert Bondy and Dennis Powers. Also in the crowd: probation officers, 52-1 staff and family and friends of the graduates who overflowed into hallway.

Collins was there, too.

She sat proudly in the front row, nervous. When they called her name she stood up, walked to the podium and received the inspirational plaque chosen especially for her by her probation officer.

Collins has been sober 14 months. But she's hesitant about giving herself too much credit. "I'd like to say it was something in me — that I did it by myself — but I didn't," she said. Her family's support played a big role, she said. But it was the Sobriety Court that got her clean — and kept her that way.

"I decided I was done with drinking and that I needed to do something about it. And the program just worked."

Christy Collins

"I decided I was done with drinking and that I needed to do something about it. And the program just worked," she said.

Collins said Sobriety Court's separate features have added up to personal success: a strong connection with her intensive probation officer, Alex Black; monthly visits before a district judge; daily alcohol screening of her urine, required use of a breathalyzer before driving and a weekend retreat — all at her expense.

"The program is definitely worth it, and the people I've met through Sobriety Court and through the 12-step program have just been amazing. But you have to be committed," she said. "And you have to have your heart in it."

A common thread

During the graduation ceremony, graduates referred to the program as "an adventure," "a kick in the teeth," "a blessing" and "tough, but for good reason." Judges and probation officers were lauded. There were tears and laughter, handshakes and hugs.

Former graduates also attended. Mike Adler, a Milford resident, was part of the first ever Sobriety Court, held in 2001. Since his successful completion, he said, he hasn't touched a drop of alcohol — and he has attended nearly every graduation.

"It does my heart good to see somebody else who has gotten some benefit from the program," he said. "It helped me, and now it's helping others to recognize what alcohol and alcoholism are all about."

Going through Sobriety Court was the first time he truly recognized he had an alcohol problem

Statistics

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, drivers with high blood alcohol levels are implicated in half of all fatal accidents that occur in the United States each year, and also cause serious injuries and property damage, leading to medical expenses, insurance costs and court costs. Statistics from 1997 show drivers killed in car crashes involving alcohol were seven times more likely to have a prior drunk driving conviction.

Adler said, and the recognition came quite quickly.

"At first, I thought it was just a way to stay out of jail, just another one of 'those programs.' But then I saw how seriously (the court) took the program. And as each day went on it became more and more apparent that these guys were trying to do something," he said.

One of last year's graduates, Maureen Dublin of Commerce, said she, too, initially thought Sobriety Court was simply a way to avoid a jail cell. Dublin started drinking at age 13. Her daily preference for vodka and Gatorade lasted 26 years.

In May 2002, Dublin was driving drunk when she rear-ended another car. To "save time," she said she drove to the Milford Police Station to report the collision, rather than waiting for an officer to arrive.

"I figured they wouldn't smell the vodka on me, wouldn't know I was drunk. I was like that every day of my life — a constant buzz," she said.

Police administered a breathalyzer test; she registered a blood alcohol level of a .327 percent. The legal limit for drivers in Michigan is .08 percent.

She was sentenced to probation and an alcohol awareness class. But she showed up to the class drunk, she said, and was put in jail for 21 days.

"Then Alex Black came and asked me if I wanted to take Sobriety Court. My first opinion was I'd do it as long as it kept me out of jail," she said. "But the truth is, I knew I was an alcoholic and I wanted help, but I wasn't one to ask for help."

Dublin had a few setbacks, but made it through the program. She's been sober for 16 months.

"I wouldn't have a life without Judge MacKenzie and Alex and Dave (Campbell, another intensive probation officer)," she said. "I am so grateful for the program, and that they saw something deep in me that Northville resident Christy Collins shakes hands with 52-1 District Court Judge Brian MacKenzie during a recent Sobriety Court ceremony held in Milford.

I didn't know about myself — that I could do this."

Now Dublin works a job she loves, has learned to be a "real mother" to her two teenagers and has developed a great relationship with a man whom she plans to soon marry.

"Now, life is good," she said. "Life is really good."

Why it works

Of the 1,200 drunk driving cases that each year come through 52-1 District Court, 36 percent are repeat offenders, according to court officials.

Since Sobriety Court was established, the recidivism rate is less than 2 percent. That's a statistic MacKenzie celebrates.

"I never expected the program to be as successful as it is," he said. "When you start out knowing first-time offenders go on to get second offenses and then third offenses, and then you see this group — all with serious problems — and they're not repeating, and not getting arrested again, that's amazing."

MacKenzie said he developed the intense, positive-reinforcement program based on consultations with the director of the University of Michigan's Center for Substance Abuse and Research.

"For people who think Sobriety Court is a way to stay out of jail — that's not it. It's an unusual sentence. And people embrace that sentence," he said. "And for many of these people, this is the first time they've succeeded at anything."

Judge Robert Bondy agreed. "It can make a difference, but we don't force it on people. We take people who want to be in it, and we don't take everyone."

"The bottom line is people have to do it for themselves," Bondy said. "It's successful because they get treated with dignity and respect, but it's not a cake walk. And it's a little extra work on our part — but it's a lot more rewarding (than imposing a jail sentence)."

Attorney Richard Lippitt has many current and former clients who are in Sobriety Court or have graduated from the program. He also sits on the Sobriety Court Advisory Board and considers it his "pet project."

"Sobriety Court, albeit rigorous, is a series of incremental steps that are very achievable," he said. "And there are many, many, many of them. But you really have to have your heart and soul in — and be ready to make a change — for it to work."

Northville well-ness plan

■ Recognizable public spring still pumping after all these years

By Michael Melvin
SPECIAL WRITER

For the last 32 years Rojean Massard has been getting her water from the same source, the Silver Springs Rotary Well.

"She uses it for drinking and for cooking," said Suzette, her daughter, who takes care of her mother in town. "She's even got me drinking it now. But I drink it straight. She filters some of the iron out through a paper towel."

The free water has been flowing for over 100 years.

"I asked someone, 'Is this water any good?' and he said, 'Oh yeah, it cures this and it cures that and it makes my plants grow,'" said Bruce Turnbull, an 85 year old Northville resident.

Becky Dozier of the Department of Public Works said, "People come from all over to sample the water. Once the city made a brewer magazine because home brewers claimed it made their beer taste that much better."

Found as a bubbling spring in the 1900s, the free-flowing water was utilized by a local bottling plant owned by the Silver Springs Water Company.

"Silver Springs Mineral Water" and "Silver Springs Pop" were served to restaurants, gas stations, hotels, trains and businesses as far as the Hudsons building in downtown Detroit.

"I remember the trucks going out of Northville and they had these big jugs of water beside them," Turnbull said.

"And when the trains used to come through Northville in those days they had a big sign up saying 'We serve only Northville Silver Springs Water' to try to entice people to come into the dining cars for dinner since the water was so popular."

Dry Well

Hundreds of gallons of water were sold everyday, but in the 1920s the spring went dry. For a short time, water was drawn from Detroit.

"So people were coming from Detroit to Northville to get Silver Springs Water," Turnbull said, "and they're getting Detroit water and hauling it back to Detroit."

After a new spring was tapped water kept flowing until 1963 when construction of the Highland Lakes subdivision depleted its supply.

The Northville well on South Main Street provides drinking water for area residents.

The Northville Rotary Club led a restoration project for the spring and had a deep well driven in 1968. Reaching down 47 feet the pump hit a water source which is still being drawn from today.

Staying online

Jan Reef, a Northville Rotarian, attached a fund to his estate in the early 1970s that would continue the well's maintenance for future generations, despite rising costs.

"On a quarterly basis, the city's Department of Public Works has the well sampled and tested to make sure it is safe for public use," said James Gallogly Director of Public Works.

Tests include checking the well water for nitrates, nitrites, organic solvents, bacteria, chloroforms and arsenic, which comes from the old cemeteries within the well's vicinity.

The constantly pumping well now runs 65 feet deep and serves as both a reminder of a bygone era and a valuable community resource for when modern systems fail.

"Nearly two years ago during the power outage the well continued to pump because we had outfitted it with a generator during the Y2K crisis," Gallogly said. "During that time people were lining up to get water since they knew that it would be good and high quality."

Turnbull concurred saying "there are still people coming down and getting their Silver Springs water, which is as good, if not better, than what you can get over at the drug store or grocery store. It's good, old-fashioned water."

Red carpet treatment

American Carpet strives to put customers first

By Kim Kovelie
SPECIAL WRITER

When the Eadeh brothers open their Northville Township carpet store, they say customers won't easily find flooring made on foreign soil.

Manager Jack Eadeh said with the exception of Brazilian hardwood, nearly every product at American Carpet Center would bear U.S. manufacturers' stamps.

"I'm big on the United States and America," Eadeh said. "The quality control is immense."

The new business, located in Highland Lakes Shopping Plaza, already is stocked with vinyl, laminate, ceramic and wood swatches.

From Berbers and twist to plush and flat styles, carpet samples include Mohawk, Beaulieu, Everfresh, Laura Ashley and Domco.

Eadeh said the goal is to offer residents affordable variety, expertise and a new service.

"We wanted a place where we could make a mark and where a community needs such a store," the 31-year industry veteran said. "This is no-pressure sales."

Business principles were an Eadeh family focus. Growing up in commercialized Ramallah, Palestine, Eadeh said his gunsmith father managed his own store.

"We learned the work ethic from my father," Eadeh said. "We learned that if you have a commitment, you fill that. Without that, you couldn't succeed."

At age 19, Eadeh began work-trial for brand-new places, too. "The trend's in home fashion," he said. "When you're building a home, you want it to look like a palace. People have opted right now to use hard surfaces."

In foyers, kitchens and outdoor patios alike, easy-to-clean ceramic has been hot, he said. Shag and plush carpet fads have faded, but Eadeh recommends variety.

"The popular color in America is beige — the unfortunate color, because people feel safe. I recommend that they buy color. It gives character to the room," he said.

American Carpet Center's doors will open once the anchor store's exterior renovations are complete, Eadeh said, but so far, those who have walked in out of curiosity have been pleased.

ing at New York Carpet World in Southfield, mastering sales and management. He soon helped younger brother, Joe, land a job there, too.

After both Carpet World and later employer Carpet Center & Floors folded, the tables turned. This time, Joe offered Jack the chance to open a business.

"As brothers, we love each other and we support each other. It came from the family values," said Jack Eadeh, now living in Dearborn with his wife.

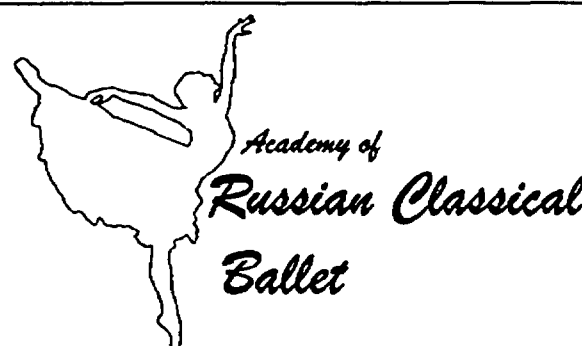

With a 5,000 square foot store, Eadeh said personal service will be easier.

"We want to cater to everyone," he said. "We are striving to have mid price ranges."

For instance, he said carpet averages $3 a square foot, including padding, warranties and installation by one of seven subcontractor crews. Costs vary based on the type and manufacturer's incentives, which can lower prices.

American Carpet Center's main focus will be floor replacement in homes and businesses, though Eadeh said there's poten-

Remote starter triggers car fire

■ No one injured, but at least three cars damaged

By Maureen Johnston
RECORD STAFF WRITER

Bill Grimshaw saw the steady stream of people rushing past the window of his Poole's Tavern dining spot.

Then he saw the dark smoke rising up from the Dunlap Street parking lot where about 100 people gathered last Friday to watch as a 1996 Cadillac Eldorado went up in flames.

Grimshaw, a freelance photographer, immediately grabbed his camera as 15 Northville firefighters arrived on the scene.

"I saw a lot of people running by," Grimshaw said. "I'm a freelance photographer, so my first thought was to get pictures."

Fire officials believe the car fire was caused by a faulty remote car starter. The Eldorado, along with a Jaguar parked next to it, were damaged heavily. A third vehicle was towed away.

No one was injured.

"(The vehicle) had some kind of mechanical malfunction under the hood — that's what caused this," City of Northville Fire Department Lt. John Bourne said. "It seemed like a fuel-fed fire. We had some pretty good heat there."

In the meantime, firefighters worked with police to locate vehicle owners, keep gawkers at a safe distance and clear the mess.

People attending the city's annual sidewalk sale and weekly clock concert packed the city parking lot.

"The fire was knocked down rather quickly once the crews were on the scene," he said. "The whole front end of the vehicle was completely wiped out. The Cadillac is probably a

POLICE REPORT

Behind bars

A Northville man, convicted of bilking investors out of millions of dollars is now behind bars. Todd Snively, 43, was sentenced Aug. 4 to five years in prison after stealing from over 845 investors. Snively, president of Commodity Consultant International, Inc. and Future Wise Trading Group, Inc. engaged in an internet-based trading scheme soliciting investments funds from the general public and turning around to invest in other commodities. After using his companies for illegal acts, Snively was shut down by Commodity Consultants and arrested.

Not found

A 42-year-old Northville Township man parked his red Chrysler Sebring in his carport at the Park Place Apartments and noticed it had been stolen Aug. 3. The man said his car was locked and had no valuable items inside. Police found no evidence at the scene and have not recovered the car.

Unidentified scammer

A Northville Township man allegedly tried to scam Home Depot and ended up in a world of trouble. The 49-year-old man attempted to steal several items from the store on Seven Mile Road, then proceeded to lie about his identity according to the arresting officer. The man was arrested and was told if he wasn't truthful about his identity he would be fingerprinted. The man stated he used his brothers name because of an outstanding Oak Park arrest warrant. He was issued a citation for larceny and obstruction of justice and his court date was set for Aug. 18.

Broken heart

After a bad break up ending two-months ago, a 62-year-old woman showed up at her ex-boyfriend's home unannounced and threatened her 63-year-old former boyfriend. Northville Township police said. According to police, the woman told the man she would shoot and kill him before his 65th birthday and she would find him wherever he went. The man called police asking for a personal protection order. He told police the woman does have a gun, but does not want to prosecute.

Turning blue

A 38-year-old Northville Township man is washing blue paint off his home after it was shot up with paint balls the night of Aug. 3. The man wasn't sure who vandalized his home, but he did tell police the home behind him had several parties during the past week. He said the owner of the home was out of town and a friend of the family was staying there without permission. The man said there was no damage done to his home. Northville Township police are still investigating.

Mystery fire

Police are still investigating the cause of a Northville Township Aug. 3 garage fire. According to reports, the daughter of the homeowners noticed the fire as she was placing items in the family's recycling bin. No one was injured. Police have ruled out foul play.

Strike three

A 29-year-old Toledo man is facing felony drunk driving charges after his July 31 arrest by Northville police.

The driver's blood alcohol level registered .23 during a preliminary breath test. He was arrested for drunk driving and driving with a revoked license and transported to the Northville Township Police Station.

He was arraigned Aug. 1 and assigned an Aug. 12 preliminary hearing date at 35th District Court in Plymouth.

Graffiti damage

The manager of an East Dunlap Street store reported $400 worth of damage caused by black and green graffiti paint on his building

■ Portable skateboard park open and free to the public Saturday

By Maureen Johnston
RECORD STAFF WRITER

Skateboarders, bring on your grinds, tricks and aerial maneuvers.

Saturday the Northville Parks and Recreation Department is hosting an "eXtreme," free skateboard park experience.

The noon-4 p.m. event will be held at Millennium Park, across from Northville High School on Six Mile Road.

"It's just a chance for the kids to use a skate park this summer," said recreation supervisor Nichole Passmore. "It's a chance to get outside and get moving."

Modern Skate & Surf in Novi's Fountain Walk is sponsoring the event. The indoor skateboard facility, along with Zoup! and Baha Fresh will provide give-aways and prizes for participants, Passmore said.

Modern Skate park manager Ryan Nielsen said the free, portable park is a great opportunity for skateboarders to try a different arena.

Statistics show more kids today are picking up skateboards than baseballs, he said. There needs to be more places to go.

"Every city should be constructing safe, well-designed facilities," Nielsen said. "Times are changing. The benefits are endless."

Matching skateboarders with an appropriate facility cuts down on damage to private property, as well as providing a healthy alternative to drug-related activity, he said. Nielsen, 29, is an 18-year skateboarding veteran.

The series of portable, curved ramps Northville Parks and Recreation is setting up is smaller scale than Modern's 53,000-square-foot playground, Nielsen said, but sampling different venues is part of skating's allure.

"It's not quite as technically advanced, as large or as elaborate," he said. "A lot of the fun of this is improvising and doing different things when you can." Those who show up Saturday at Millennium Park will be able to ride four quarter pipes, metal coping bars and platforms for transitions, rollups and most importantly, speed.

"I've skated it many times," Nielsen said. "(Skateboarders) are really open-minded. We'll skate it."

"Kind of like, 'If you build it, they will come.'"

Skaters are required to wear safety gear: helmets, knee and elbow pads and wrist guards.

"We want to provide a positive experience for the kids that's acceptable for everybody," said parks and recreation

"A lot of the fun of this is improvising and doing different things when you can."

Third and fourth grade students learned some of the bad aspects of cliques (gossipy, excludes people) and good friend groups (people stick up for each other, anyone can join, and there's no judging).

Northville students filled the high school this summer hoping to gain an emotional edge for the fall.

Area children enthusiastically participated in two programs July 25 through Aug. 5 hosted by Northville Youth Assistance and Northville Public Schools.

Powerful Kids offered elementary aged boys and girls a two-week opportunity to build resiliency skills through exercises and workshops.

The inaugural program offered kids a chance to feel more confident and handle life situations.

Workshops focused on goal setting, avoiding destructive decisions, self defense, nutrition, developing social skills and examining friendships, cliques, peer pressure and bullying.

The Pillar Program focused on strengthening and building confidence of incoming freshman with special emotional needs set to enter Northville High School later this month.

Participating students learned strategies for combating extreme shyness, struggles with grades and uncomfortable social situations.

This was the second year the Pillar Program was offered.

Water under the dam

Township awaits inspection deadline, state action

By Tracy Mishler
RECORD STAFF WRITER

Chip Snider said he won't let residents in Northville Township down.

The township manager said though Northville is not responsible for the failing dam at Maybury State Park, "we do have responsibilities."

Township trustees have given contractors a 60-day notice to finally fix the dam, after it flooded in July. The dam is funded by the state.

"We're about 30 days in and we do intend to go in and inspect when the 60 days are up," Snider said. "If they don't fix it, then we'll threaten to sue. It's all a question of integrity."

According to the last progress report Snider received, he said an 11-acre lake in the park was being drained in order to start dam reconstruction.

George Tsakoff, project manager for the township's engineering firm, Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May Inc. said, there was a July 8 meeting to discuss the dam and construction.

Several parties were present at the meeting, including the Novi Planning Department, project managers for Northville Township and Novi, Wayne County Permits, Wayne County Road Commission and representatives from Maybury Park.

"This is when we learned about the DNR lowering the water level to repair the timber stop logs and reevaluate them," Tsakoff said.

Tsakoff said the issue is the natural drainage area running through both Northville and Novi.

So far, the wetlands downstream from the pond have been able to absorb the water without flooding

Local seniors turn 'menopause' into a Gem

By Michael Melvin
SPECIAL WRITER

Jeanie Linders' idea for a musical came in between a hot flash and a bottle of wine.

The writer/producer wanted to show women that going through menopause was just another of life's stages.

Nearly four years later her show, "Menopause the Musical," is playing all over the country and being translated into numerous languages. At 74 weeks, it is the longest running show in Detroit history.

Next Tuesday, some Northville seniors will be attending the show. For many, it won't be the first time.

"This is the sixth or seventh trip that we've gone," said Dennis Smith, program director at the Northville Senior Community Center. "It's just a really popular show amongst women and they keep asking for it ..."

The musical mocks hot flashes, memory loss, mood swings, wrinkles, night sweats and eating binges while being set to popular songs of the 1960s and 1970s with a twist.

Such hits as "Puff, the Magic Dragon" becomes "Puff, My God, I'm Draggin'," or "Looking for Love in All the Wrong Places" is "Looking for Food in Too Many Places."

"If we think it's going to be interesting we give it a try," Smith said. "We like to make trips to the Gem, the Fischer Theater and the Purple Rose and basically make a night of it."

For most events, 21 seniors is the most that can be transported to an individual event. For "Menopause," a second bus has been rented.

Smith said this may not be the last trip.

"I always tell seniors that if you have any ideas, call the center and tell us," Smith said. "We want people to know that if you've got something you'd like to try, let us know."

Michael Melvin is a journalism student at Albion College and a Northville Record intern. He can be contacted at (248) 349-1700 ext.122 or via e-mail at mmelvin@ht.homecomm.net.

Sidewalk sale is fun in the sun

Sun shines on merchants' revamped event

By Maureen Johnston
RECORD STAFF WRITER

Pam Boughan scooped up a discounted wine bottle holder and a set of coasters Sunday.

The Plymouth resident and her sister Jo Summers were among the bargain hunters who enjoyed the sunshine, music and reduced prices during downtown Northville's annual sidewalk sale this weekend.

In addition to her Kitchen Witch finds, Boughan mentally took home with her the changes in retailers since her last visit to downtown Northville.

Boughan said she plans to return.

It's the dividends downtown businesses were hoping their revamped version of Northville's annual three-day sidewalk sale would pay: cash sales and increased customer awareness.

In contrast to the formerly titled "Shopping Jubilee" sidewalk sale, many fewer outside booths lined the streets in front of the downtown businesses. Event organizers this year upped the cost for vendors to participate from $25 to $200.

That change of format altered the ambiance of the event, said

Ronnie Cambra, who owns the Kitchen Witch. She said her sales were brisk Friday and Saturday but trailed off Sunday.

"It doesn't have the feel of a big event," she said. "The whole atmosphere is different."

Live bands at the corner of Main and Center last year prompted people to dance in the street; the disc jockey Sunday afternoon selected CDs in a vacant gazebo.

"It's like we went from one extreme to the other," Cambra said.

Christine Shelters, who purchased Edward's Catering in March, said she felt the weekend went well as an opportunity to acquaint people with her business' offerings. Her booth near the gazebo, offering lemonade and shopping bag lunches, was the first time the 116 E.

Dunlap St. store was in the middle of the action.

"It was amazing how many people who live in Northville who didn't know where Edward's is," Shelters said. "For us, it was great."

Sobriety Court: sobering success

Saving a life is hard work.

Thanks to the Sobriety Court program held at 52-1 District Court in Novi, several lives, including a few from Northville, have been rescued from the abyss better known as substance abuse.

More than 1,200 drunk driving cases pass through the 52-1 courtrooms each year; 36 percent are repeat offenders.

What should that tell us? At the very least, it should tell us that for a significant number, conventional punishment isn't working.

For some, the real problem — substance abuse — is neither being addressed, nor solved. Court time, fines and community service are for some simply not enough of a deterrent from making the same mistake twice.

And when more than a third of the offenders are revisiting the courtroom for the same reason — miraculously without having killed or harmed themselves or someone else — we should all get a clue.

Sobriety Court, begun as a pilot program at the hands of

52-1 Judge

Brian MacKenzie and adopted by his fellow judges, Dennis Powers and Robert Bondy, is a solid example of making a difference.

The program requires selected repeat offenders to comply with stringent policies: screening, supervision and counseling.

For many, it's an olive branch they dare not refuse, because their alternative is jail. The program strives to accomplish big things — turn-around wayward lives and make a societal difference.

Those who make Sobriety Court work — judges, probation officers, police officers, dedicated participants — deserve a hearty thanks.

Because without a program designed to address serious problem and root them out from beneath life's comfortable couch cushions, no lasting solution will ever be found.

Currently, Sobriety Court's recidivism rate is 2 percent. The goal is zero. That will require hard work.

Then again, when has saving a life required anything less?

CITY OF NORTHVILLE

Merchants take center stage

The three-day sidewalk sale downtown merchants hosted last weekend looked markedly different from the same event in recent years. Some said the streets looked vacant, others said they were merely uncluttered. Bottom line: local merchants were the main attraction, which was the intention of the revised format. Outside vendors certainly add variety and interest to public events such as the annual Sidewalk sale, but they should never overshadow those who ply their trade downtown all year around.

NORTHVILLE TOWNSHIP

Snider deserves public praise

Northville Township Manager Chip Snider deserves praise for staying after the state bureaucracy responsible for repairing a Maybury State Park dam which has broken twice during the past year and flooded Beck Road yards, just south of Eight Mile Road. Snider said though the township does not have the jurisdiction for making necessary repairs, it does have a civic responsibility for serving as a watchdog on behalf of residents whose tax dollars pay his salary. Such an outlook is refreshing. And one every public official should emulate. Now keep it up.

NORTHVILLE ATHLETICS

Be wary of specialization

With the recent announcement from Northville's Charlie Thomas regarding his athletic future only pertaining to baseball, many athletes are possibly considering a similar decision to specialize in just one sport.

Don't. Thomas is a unique player, capable of taking his ability to the next level. Most players aren't. Those athletes who play multiple sports should continue to do so.

Quite Handy

■ Township volunteer devotes time, refinishing skills to Goodwill

By Kim Kovel
SPECIAL WRITER

As a teenager, Linda Handyside's passion for scouring, caning and refinishing furniture spun into life through an old wooden Victrola phonograph.

With her dad's guidance, the longtime Northville resident rejuvenated the antique.

"It took about six months all together," she said. "It was just the satisfaction. I just got a little bug to work on that kind of thing."

Handyside married her refurbisher's thumb with a love of helping others about 10 years ago.

Every Tuesday, she heads to Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit to help the non-profit organization's Junior Group restore donated furniture.

Sold in an annual Goodwill Antiques Show, her work ultimately funds literacy programs, housing, and job training for those in need.

"I'm a volunteer," Handyside said. "I love it. It's just a great feeling to get things done."

Since moving to Northville Township 28 years ago with husband Tom and two small sons, she's done plenty, starting with Northville parent-teacher associations.

Her boys were often spotted hanging up purple "drug-free" ribbons and handing out pamphlets in downtown Northville.

It was the same example set by Handyside's own mom, who took the family to church to help with potlucks, choirs and cleaning.

"She's inspiring," Handyside said. "I think what I learned from her is everybody is equal."

"When you can reach out and help, you should."

Other kids became family too.

Tom mentored a child with the Northville Youth Assistance. Linda became a Northville Mothers Club mainstay.

"It was a very satisfying result," said Handyside.

While her mother had worked as an assistant city treasurer, Handyside chose a part time job as a family practice medical assistant.

Goodwill entered the picture when Handyside attended one of the group's antique shows.

With kids moved out and a golf buddy to get her connected, Handyside was ready to put her old skills to work for a good cause.

"This group is just individuals who volunteer their time like I do," she said. "They're very receptive and just the greatest group of people."

tables with Tom, Handyside was ready.

Gathering in Detroit and Grosse Ile, her fund-raising team revives donated mirrors, oil paintings, chairs, tables and more.

Most pieces are rough upon arrival — like a 10-chair, carved wood dining set caked with grime.

"It was tedious, but by the time it was done, we realized it was black walnut," Handyside said. It fetched close to $2,000.

Currently, the team has about 20 pieces in the works.

"We actually have two large trucks that take everything to the show for us," Handyside said.

She also found volunteer opportunity in another family pastime — golf.

On June 6, Handyside helped co-chair her sixth Goodwill Golf Classic at Northville's Meadowbrook Country Club.

Auctions raised $50,000, she said.

Approaching retirement age, Handyside said she won't likely be at her three-day-a-week job much longer. But turning old furniture into new dreams is another story.

Annual garage sale has become a community tradition

■ Girl Scout garage sale starts today

By Maureen Johnston
RECORD STAFF WRITER

Clara Stockhausen, Morgan Dahl and Emily Smith love to tell the sailboat bidding story.

For seven years, the three members of Girl Scout Troop #132 have hosted a garage sale fund-raiser at the Stockhausen house on the corner of Dunlap and High streets. The fun officially begins again today.

As soon as people see the scouts putting tables out and pulling off tarps, they start to walk up, Dahl said.

"We're a quarter of the way unpacked and they say, 'This is a huge garage sale!'"

Three years ago, someone gave the scouts a sunfish sailboat to sell for the cause. During simultaneous phone calls, the girls parlayed interest from numerous shoppers into a higher price. The final sale: $1,000.

sories, jewelry, books, holiday decorations, appliances: there will be a little bit of everything available for sale.

"There's always something special that comes in," Dahl said. Apart from the sailboat, the girls have sold a bamboo aquarium, antique dressers, a dog house, a doll house, golf clubs and many, many sofas.

Life lessons

Seven years ago, the event raised $3,000; last year they topped $6,000.

"It's a real good lesson in resourcefulness for the girls," scout mom Carole Jean Stockhausen said.

The teenagers' reward for lug-ging boxes, transporting furniture, sorting and bartering has been numerous cultural and travel opportunities to Savannah and England.

"Because we're willing to pick up, people are really willing to give," Stockhausen said. "People will buy, then turnaround and come back with stuff to sell."

"People will come back each day because new things keep coming."

Stockhausen said she and her husband, Bill, are known in some circles as the "garage sale people." Passers-by have knocked on the door during summer months asking, "When is the sale?" she said.

"This is a good location - we have a following," she said. "I guess it's a fixture in Northville. It's a little crazy."

In transition

This is the first year the sale will be a joint fund-raiser for the scouts and the Northville Historical Society.

This year's historical society profits will help pay to publish a how-to book on Children's Christmas Workshop projects. Proceeds from the book sales will go to the historical society.

The scouts said they enjoy the bagging and the profits. They also find treasure.

"Every year we seem to go home with a bag full of stuff," Smith said, like clothes, jewelry or CDs.

Clara Stockhausen has a personal policy: for every item she picks up at the sale, an item has to leave her room.

■ Garage sale info

To shop or make a donation, visit 218 W. Dunlap. Sale hours are: 8 a.m.-9 p.m. Thursday-Saturday, Aug. 11-13.

■ Garage sale tips

- Have plenty of change on hand - silver and paper money.
- Advertise place, date and hours.

- Items in big demand: antiques, baseball cards, lawn mowers, camping articles, tools, coins, old books, aprons, salt and pepper shakers, needlework, jewelry and dishes.

- Have electrical outlets nearby to plug in small appliances to show people they work.

- Price drinking glasses, dishes and cups as a set; bundle books, magazines and other similar articles with one price.

THE HEAT IS ON

■ Mustangs adjusting to new coaches, football program

By Sam Eggleston
RECORD SPORTS WRITER

Northville senior Ryan Smith gulped down a mouthful of cold water and wiped his mouth with his forearm.

Then, he went back to a sweltering August afternoon football practice to sweat away the precious fluid.

"It's definitely warm out here," he said. "But that's football."

And football it was. Smith was joined by his fellow grid-ders in the first day of football practice as they ran drills, did push ups and up-downs and ran sprints. With the first weeks of August comes the first days of football, three days of mandatory conditioning prior to the use of full pads.

"They looked like they were in really good shape," said Northville athletics director Bryan Masi, who coached at

Innovative idea

No one can say Mike Yassay doesn't think ahead. With gas prices still on the rise, the junior quarterback found a new use for a brand-new plastic gasoline canister.

He filled it half full with water, froze it over night and then filled the rest with cold water before heading off to practice. It held three gallons of the precious liquid, was made out of a durable material and stayed cool throughout the blistering-hot practice.

The question is, does it come in orange and black with a Mustang painted on the side?

Northville High School from 1993-2000. "Right now they're adjusting to new coaches and a new program."

The program will be run by first-year Northville coach Ryan Hockman and his staff of coaches that includes three former National Football League players and a few familiar faces like Matt Laddach.

The team is expected to use a spread-style offense as they prepare for the opening game against Saline Aug. 27 at Eastern Michigan University.

Game time will be noon and tickets are already on sale at the high school's athletics department.

The Mustangs wore white and black jerseys for offense and defense, respectively, and took several water breaks during the two-a-day practice session.

Hockman stopped practice to criticize his players' lack of running and assistant coach Reggie Brown found himself lecturing his defensive corps as they did push ups and up-downs for the same offense.

"We can make this as hard as you want," he said. "I'm really not trying to be mean."

But push ups and up-downs mixed with sprints weren't a punishment. They were a tool.

"I think it's all part of the learning process," said Masi. "The kids and the coaches are adjusting to each other right now."

And discipline is something every team needs to instill in their program. Even Novi's Tab Kellepourey, who has made the playoffs all six seasons as a head coach at Novi, knows the value of it.

"You've got to have discipline, especially as a new coach," he said. "It's a big part of football."

Sam Eggleston can be reached at (248) 349-1700, ext. 104 or at seggleston@ht.homecomm.net.

Bound to be a few bumps in the road

Ryan Hockman shook his head in disbelief.

"Right now this looks like an O-9 practice," the new Northville head football coach said. "You've had a practice and a half and you're already walking."

A sea of orange helmets, shining like shells packed tightly together on the beach, tilted almost in unison toward the ground. Players had beads of sweat rolling off their foreheads, assaulting their eyes. The helmets were heavy, hot. None of the Mustangs bothered to pop them off.

"We'll survive," said Ryan Smith, a senior this season who was one of the unlucky defensive players wearing black on the sweltering day.

The defense definitely wasn't as fortunate as their white-wearing offensive counterparts. They walked a few too many times, prompting one of the assistant coaches to put them into sprints, up-downs and plenty of push-ups.

One player pushed until he couldn't push any more. He stayed down while the others slowly clambered to their feet. They were exhausted and there was still plenty of practice ahead of them.

"I don't know the meaning of sympathy," one coach said.

He wasn't being mean. He was just being honest. The Northville coaches may have seemed hard in the eyes of some of the parents who gathered at the southern end of the practice field, but they weren't.

Sure, practice was difficult and plenty of sweat, a little blood and maybe even a few tears were shed, but it was all for the growth of a football team.

The Mustangs grit their teeth and pushed on. It was the groundwork of countless players and a handful of dedicated coaches who had laid the groundwork beneath them. It helped them stay steady and true to their course.

A few complaints popped up here and there, some even dirtier than the grass-stained practice jerseys the kids were wearing. For the most part, everyone just buckled down and kept working.

They had followed the groundwork of generations of football players who had come before them, but this year's Mustangs know they're the ones responsible for continuing to build on that program.

"They're working hard," said strength coach Steve Mandregger. "I like seeing the enthusiasm these kids and these coaches have out here. I think we're going to be just fine."

Some recognizable names were missing from the line-up — even a returning All-Area quarterback. No one bothered to tell Mike Deluca or Mike Yassay. They showcased their talents in hopes of earning the nod in that key position.

Dittrick Williams was as speedy as ever, blazing a trail from the backfield during the pad-less practice. Chris McGuire, more commonly referred to as C-Mac, was even more impressive than he was last year in the opening-day drills.

The Mustangs were read the riot act on more than one occasion, but they kept trudging on. This was a season of new hopes and new dreams, built on the road of players who have come and gone and most who have been long forgotten.

A few scrapes, a few bruises and a lot of yelling wasn't enough to stop these Mustangs. They knew better. There's bound to be a few bumps while helping pave the road to the future of Northville football.

Mustangs' starting QB calls it quits

By Sam Eggleston
RECORD SPORTS WRITER

It took Charlie Thomas nearly an entire summer to make a decision about his athletic career.

The choice was a doozy.

Thomas, a senior who was an All-Area and All-Division selection as a quarterback last season, has decided to hang up the helmet in favor of pursuing another dream — collegiate baseball.

"It wasn't an easy decision," Thomas said Monday. "There were a lot of reasons, small reasons. Ultimately, it came down to the fact that I didn't feel it was fair to the coaches or the other players to have me play when my mind and my heart aren't in it 100 percent."

Thomas cited several baseball showcases that will require him to be out of town on critical football days — namely Friday nights — that would have him only being able to play part-time for the Mustangs.

His choice came after an injury that stopped him from playing as much baseball as he would have liked this summer. The months between a player's junior and senior year are the most important for a baseball player looking to be recruited by college scouts.

Thomas missed much of that recruiting period and he hopes to make up for lost time with several showcases this fall.

His absence doesn't mean he won't long for the thrill of the game and the Friday night lights.

"Every Friday night I know I'll miss it," he said. "I thought long and hard about this and I don't think I'm going to regret it."

Thomas said he hopes his fellow Mustangs understand, much as his mother, Catherine, and his father, Dan, have.

"That kind of support is what I've gotten from many of my friends and former football teammates," he said. "That's the sign of a true friend because they unconditionally support your decision even if they like it or not."

"The people who hate my decision or don't like me because of it obviously don't know me well enough to understand my decision and support it. They aren't true friends."

But Thomas, and his parents, will still be staunch

Charlie and the quarterback factory

The Northville Mustangs football program has always been blessed with a strong leader at the quarterback position. Last year it was Charlie Thomas and the two years before that it was Division I athlete Mark Sorensen. Drew Herpich was the starting quarterback for two years before him.

This year could prove no different with juniors Mike Yassay and Mike Deluca fighting for the starting spot. Both quarterbacks are tall and boast plenty of throwing ability.

supporters of the football program.

"If I'm in town, I'll be at the game," Thomas said. "I've got to support my friends, like (Mike) Deluca. He's my boy. I've got to help him out any way I can."

Sam Eggleston can be reached at (248) 349-1700, ext. 104 or at seggleston@ht.homecomm.net.

What a great championship game!

Starting Gate No. 1 went up 7 - 1 in the first two innings before their opponents, the Patriots, roared back to make it a more even contest, 7-6. The Starting Gate players wouldn't be denied though, tacking on one more to make it 8-6 only to have Patriots score two to tie the game. The Patriots put on a great rally, with manager Larry Wyland jumping up and down on the sidelines as his team took a commanding lead, 13-8. But lo and behold, not to be outdone, Starting Gate scored six runs in the bottom of the seventh to win their first-ever Northville Men's Softball Championship, 14-13. A great exciting finish to the league.

MONEY MATTERS

Pell Grant eligibility changes make free money rare

As if the financial and academic demands of college weren't tough already, students who receive federal financial aid may have to work more, borrow more, or tap into alternative sources of financial aid to cover the rising costs of higher education. That's because the Department of Education is changing the federal formula used to determine eligibility for the Pell Grant — the nation's largest federal gift-aid program. With new eligibility requirements in place, some one million needy college students could see a reduction in their Pell Grant awards, while an additional 90,000 students could lose their eligibility altogether.

About five million students receive Pell Grants each year in amounts ranging from $400 to $4,050, with the largest awards going to students whose families have an annual household income of less than $15,000. The Pell Grant eligibility formula takes into account a family's income, size and tax burden, among other things. Previously, the tax table used to calculate the amount of state tax a family pays was based on tax data collected in 1988. The revised formula will use a new tax table, one that includes more recent data. This change will likely put many families in a lower tax bracket — theoretically increasing the amount they can contribute to their child's education, and thus reducing the amount of free money the student can receive from the federal government.

Costs continue to rise

According to the College Board, a non-profit association of more than 4,500 institutions of higher learning, annual tuition and fees at four-year private universities rose 10.5 percent last year to $20,082, while annual costs at four-year public institutions went up 6 percent to $5,132. Considering that the average student graduates from college with about $17,000 in debt, the onus is on students and their parents to carefully research all of their college funding options. A good place to start is with your child's high school guidance counselor and financial aid advisors at local universities. In the meantime, here are some ideas to keep in mind.

- Look for scholarships from sources other than your student's school. Consider churches, civic organizations and your employer. Many credit unions also offer scholarships to their members and their children. Try your local library for other scholarship sources. To conduct a virtual search, visit www.collegeboard.com. Beware of Internet scholarship search companies that tout a "we guarantee a scholarship, or your money back" policy or charge you a fee for a scholarship. They're probably frauds.

- If your student's financial aid award package isn't what you think it should be, consider other schools. Your student's financial aid package will be much more attractive from a school that wants him. If his high school grades aren't up to par, he may want to attend a community college for a year, study and make good grades. Volunteer work and community service are also scholarship-worthy accomplishments.

- Attend a local community college and then transfer to a four-year institution. Tuition and fees at a community college cost about half as much as they do at a state four-year school, and thousands less than tuition for a private institution. Two-year colleges often have what are called articulation agreements with four-year schools. An articulation agreement spells out which community college credits a four-year college will count toward a baccalaureate degree. It also specifies what kind of grades a student must achieve to be accepted at the four-year college.

- If your student is interested in an agricultural or industrial course of study, look into programs at land grant institutions—colleges and universities that have been designated by the state to offer these courses of study. The cost will likely be cheaper than similar programs offered at other schools. Michigan State University is a land grant institution.

Advanced dancers demonstrate their technique in a Level 5 class at the Metropolitan Ballet Academy at the Sports Club of Novi.

Impressive dance, ballet academy find success locally

A unique approach to dance can be found at the Metropolitan DanCentre and Metropolitan Ballet Academy and Theatre. Located in the Sports Club of Novi, the Metropolitan DanCentre offers a complete range of dance classes in jazz, tap, hip-hop and lyrical for students of all ages ranging from two through adult and beginning to advanced levels.

The Metropolitan Ballet and Theatre offers students the highest quality ballet education in the metro Detroit area. Classes are taught in the Russian Vaganova technique at all levels from age 5 through pre-professional. "We want people to know that high-quality dance programs exist at The Sports Club," said Lisa Boltes, director of the Metropolitan DanCentre. "When people hear 'sports club,' they don't think of dance, but being located in this facility has its advantages."

While some family members are taking dance classes, some can be involved in other activities at the Sports Club of Novi including gymnastics, swimming, martial arts, tennis or a workout in the fitness center. Dance students also are able to incorporate the club's gymnastics training, Pilates instruction, and swimming facilities into the dance curriculum — all benefits that other dance studios cannot offer.

Students do not need to be members of the Sports Club to participate in the dance programs offered by the Metropolitan DanCentre and Ballet Academy, but receive a discount on tuition if they are members.

"The quality of our dance programs and caliber of instructors are the best in the area," said Michelle Streicher, administrative director of the Metropolitan Ballet Academy and Theatre. "Having a premier ballet training academy and a full-service dance studio under one roof makes us unique."

The Metropolitan DanCentre offers a full complement of classes, including a pre-school program that incorporates songs, rhythm exercises and dance that are available in mornings, afternoons and evenings. All students, beginner through advanced, can find fun and challenging classes within their age group. Special classes are offered for boys and adults.

"We pride ourselves on creating a caring environment where all students receive the same high level of individual attention, and correct technique whether they are recreational or competitive dancers," said Lisa.

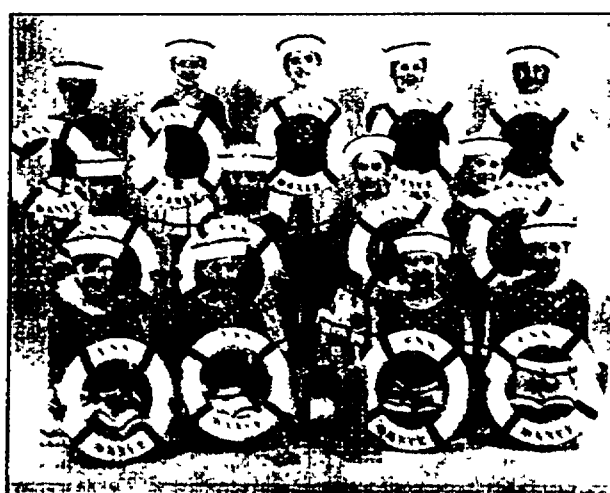

Professional instructors, who love to teach the art of dance, provide quality dance instruction in a positive, inspiring and fun atmosphere. The dance studio has seven professionals on staff with many years of experience in dance education.

"Classes are designed to allow students to gain confidence and build self-esteem while learning technical dance skills," Lisa said. "Our classes are structured with a progressive syllabus that encourages all children to excel. We pride ourselves on having age appropriate choreography, music and costumes for all our dancers."

In addition to a full recreational dance program, the DanCentre has five companies. These dancers attend dance competitions, have additional performance opportunities, and attend an intensive dance workshop each year.

"We bring in highly acclaimed master dance teachers and choreographers from New York and L.A. to teach an intensive two-day workshop for our students with one-on-one attention and feedback for individual students," Lisa said. "We believe this provides our dancers with a unique experience."

The recital dance program runs from September through

The 2004-05 Metropolitan DanCentre's Pre-Company students display several of the awards they received in competition.

May and culminates with a spectacular recital in May to showcase the talented dancers.

The DanCentre also offers non-recital programs throughout the entire year. These sessions allow dancers to experience classes without the commitment of a year-end recital. Specialty programs and camps, such as hip-hop and pom-pom camps, are run during the summer and holiday breaks.

The Metropolitan Ballet Academy (MBA) offers students the highest quality ballet education in the area for beginners through pre-professional dancers. MBA's training program comprised of eight levels is a progressive and systematic study of the Vaganova Technique with yearly examinations, demonstrations and level graduations for ages eight to 18. Open teen classes are available to students who are just beginning to study ballet.

The classes and programs are open dancers of all ages and levels. Boys are welcome and encouraged to enroll. Ballet teaches discipline, posture, self-esteem, body conditioning and life lessons for students of all ages, according to Michelle.

The faculty is led by the husband and wife team of Victoria

Stocki-Kim, executive director, and Jay Kim, artistic director, both of whom recently retired from professional careers in ballet. Victoria is originally from West Bloomfield and returned to Michigan with her husband, Jay, to head the Metropolitan Ballet Academy and Theatre.

Both attended the Kirov Academy, were soloists with the Universal Ballet Company of Seoul, Korea, and also were soloists and principals with several companies including the Dayton Ballet Theatre and Tulsa Ballet Theatre. The Kims co-owned and directed the Art Ballet Center in Seoul.

The Metropolitan Ballet Theatre (MBT) is a pre-professional ballet company, which is open by audition to intermediate and advanced students of the ballet academy. It provides dancers with a more intensive program of study and performance opportunities throughout the year.

The Ballet Theatre company presents at least one full-length ballet each season, such as the Nutcracker at Christmas and either a mixed piece or another full-length ballet in the spring. The Nutcracker will be performed this year on Dec. 17 at Novi High School.

EASELS

An easel is an essential piece of basic equipment, as it provides a secure platform for your artwork. When purchasing an easel it is important to look for qualities that best suit your personal work style. If you're new to art, it's advisable to buy an inexpensive easel and plan to replace it in a year or so, after you've gained some experience and have a better idea of what you need. However, in the long run it is to your advantage to buy the most versatile and sturdiest easel you can afford. Sometimes, more than one easel may be necessary to suit all of your styles.

Q Did Rita Coolidge get married recently, and to whom?

—Janne R., Virginia

Grammy-winning singer Rita Coolidge, 60, got married last year to Tatsuya Suda, a professor of computer science at the University of California, Irvine, whom she met on an airplane about three years ago. Coincidentally, that's also how she met her first husband, singer/songwriter Kris Kristofferson, with whom she has a 31-year-old daughter. Best known for her hits All Time High, Your Love Is Lifting Me, Higher and Higher and Fever, the Nashville, Tenn., native has a new jazz album called And So Is Love. "I've loved jazz all my life. Peggy Lee was my greatest influence," says Coolidge, who lives in Fallbrook, Calif. (pop. 29,100). In November she'll perform in the show Billie and Me, about Billie Holiday, in cities such as New York, Washington, D.C., and Chicago. "To me, this seemed like a natural course." She's ecstatic with the direction her life is taking. "I feel like a little kid—new record, new husband, new granddaughter. Isn't it fabulous?"

Q I would like some background on Larry the Cable Guy.

—Kathy L., Indiana

Larry the Cable Guy (whose real name is Dan Whitney) was born in Pawnee, Neb. (pop. 1,033), and raised in West Palm Beach, Fla., where he worked as a hotel bellhop. Larry later launched his stand-up career on a dare at a local comedy club and soon earned spots on a Tampa Bay, Fla., radio show. But his break came when fellow comedian Jeff Foxworthy discovered his talents and asked him to join the Blue Collar Comedy Tour, which has since been released as a movie and CD. Its sequel, the Blue Comedy Tour Rides Again, was released last year, as was a sketch comedy television series on the WB Network titled Blue Collar TV. He's released two comedy CDs and a live DVD and has written a book that debuts this fall. His voice will be heard in the upcoming Disney/Pixar film Cars. Larry, 42, was recently married and does not have children.

Q I was wondering how Harrison Ford got that scar on his chin.

—Nancy W., Ohio

Chicago-born Harrison Ford got his notable scar in a car accident more than 35 years ago. Ironically, he was putting on his seat belt while driving and lost control of his car, crashing into a telephone pole. An emergency room resident stitched him up. That isn't the only accident the action star has weathered. During a Gunsmoke episode in the early 1970s, Ford fell on his gun and knocked out his four front teeth. He's broken his nose several times, yet the imperfections didn't stop him from becoming People magazine's Sexiest Man Alive in 1998. The 63-year-old actor, who dates actress Calista Flockhart, still is considered sexy leading-man material and is the midst of making his fourth Indiana Jones film, due out next year.

Q Whatever happened to actor Ron Glass of Barney Miller fame?

—Elizabeth O., Massachusetts

Ron Glass, who was raised in Evansville, Ind., has remained very busy since he played police Detective Ron Harris on the TV series Barney Miller, which aired from 1975 until 1982. He's had guest roles on TV series such as Friends, All in the Family and Amen. Glass portrays Shepherd Book in the movie Serenity, which is based on the science fiction series Firefly and due out in September. Glass also can be heard as the voice of Randy Carmichael in the TV show Rugrats. When he thinks back to Barney Miller days, he says not one specific incident comes to mind, but "the happiness I feel when I recall the creative process by which Harris evolved from a generic black guy into a full-fledged, full flushed-out characterization that we created together," says Glass, 60, who has never been married—"although I've come close." You can write him c/o Mitchell K. Stubbs and Associates, 8675 West Washington Blvd., Suite 203, Culver City, CA 90232, Attention: Sean. ☆

Bringing the

Dozens of audience members quietly settle into their seats as the theatrical production of Profiles: Famous (and Infamous) People, gets underway in Salado, Texas (pop. 3,475). If the actors seem familiar to the eager crowd, it's because the performers are their neighbors. If the cozy surroundings seem inviting, it's because the show is taking place in their neighbor's living room.

Watching the production unfold is Raymond Carver, the mastermind behind the in-home theater company known as the Living Room Theatre of Salado (LRTS). The idea came to Carver, a former drama professor at Angelo State University in San Angelo, Texas, in 1996 when he retired to Salado with his wife, Barbara. Although the town was without a theater venue, Carver was determined to put on a show.

He envisioned something that would bring neighbors together as actors and writers, and productions without the bother of costumes, sets and lighting. In doing so, he enlisted the help of the late A. C. Greene, a renowned author, and his wife, Judy. Carver adapted two of Greene's short stories for himself and Judy, who then persuaded friends to host productions in their living rooms.

Elizabeth Silverthorne's book was adapted for the show.

LEANNA SKARNULIS

What started out as a one-shot event instead launched the first season of the LRTS, which begins its 10th season this fall. Three shows are produced each season, and each production is performed three or four times for a total audience of 125. Tickets are $5, which covers the cost of mailing performance announcements and other production costs. Each performance—no longer than 90 minutes—is staged in a different Salado home and includes light refreshments after the show.

Carver is the theater's energetic producer/director, adapting novel excerpts, memoirs and other material and recruiting neighbors to read from scripts much like old-time radio actors. His recent production of Profiles: Famous (and Infamous) People took place in the living room of Paul and Mary Jean Boston. After helping with last-minute buffet preparations, Mary Jean took the stage, where she exhibited her wry humor by reading the part of former Texas Gov. Miriam "Ma" Ferguson.

The vignettes were adapted from published biographies written by resident Elizabeth Silverthorne, who watched as Salado High School Spanish teacher Barbara Harper took on her first role, portraying Pancho Villa's widow.

"He encouraged me," Harper says of Carver, who coached her for the role. "He has so much to offer. I've seen other people in these shows and marveled at the way he brings out talent in people who have never acted."

Mingling during the social hour after the performance, Harper is surrounded by admirers. One wonders aloud what Carver's secret is for coaxing performances out of amateurs.

"Raymond has fantastic intuition when it comes to casting," says Charles Barrier, who portrayed Ashbel Smith, founder of the University of Texas, during the show. Barrier says the key to the Living Room Theatre's success encompasses many things. "It's the selection of plays, brilliant casting, the social hour and the feeling of community when people are packed in together."

Carver, who has cast more than 120 people in the shows, explains that he typecasts and works only with people who are willing to perform. "Everyone has behaviors or characteristics that can work in a particular context," he says.

A few weeks prior to each show, he coaches actors individually on interpretation and timing, then holds a full rehearsal.

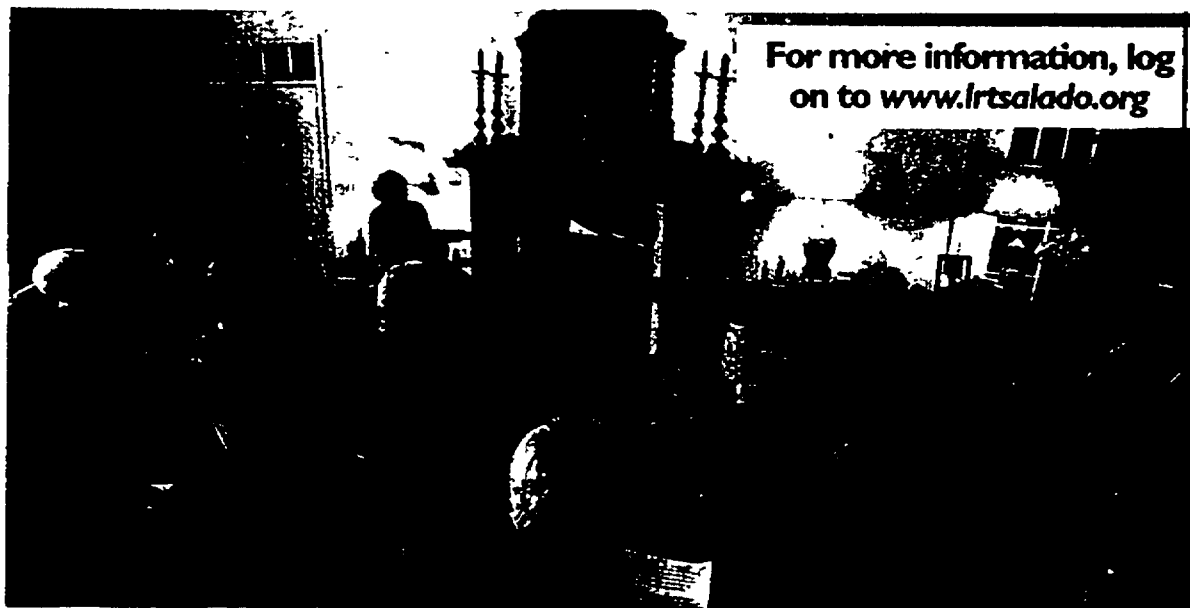

Of course, there's another success factor to the shows. Judy Greene, who played a small part in the show, says: "It's Raymond's kindness. He makes you think you're a star."

Harper agrees. "Raymond has done an incredible job. Actors and audience members are grateful to him for opening new avenues, developing talent and making us part of a community." ☆

Students trade work for tuition at six U.S. colleges

At 20, Travis Leaming is an old hand at grilling pork chops and whipping up mashed potatoes for a table for two or a banquet of 300. When he graduates next May from College of the Ozarks in Point Lookout, Mo., he'll have four years of solid work experience and a degree in hotel and restaurant management—without paying a penny in tuition.

"When I graduate, I won't have any debt at all," says Leaming, of Berryville, Ark. (pop. 4,433). "Fifteen hours of work a week for a college education? I'll do that deal any time."

Every biscuit that Leaming bakes in the student-run restaurant helps him earn his tuition at the private Christian college, nicknamed Hard Work U.

Working for an education has been the tradition since the college's founding in 1906 by the Rev. James Forsythe, who believed that a deserving student should receive a quality college education even if he can't afford one. Since 1965, the college has offered four-year degrees and none of its 7,000 graduates has paid any tuition.

Hard Work U's 1,348 students earn their keep and support the college by grinding grain, baking fruitcakes, growing orchids, raising hogs and dairy cattle, and staffing the college's airport, radio station, print shop, museum and fire department.

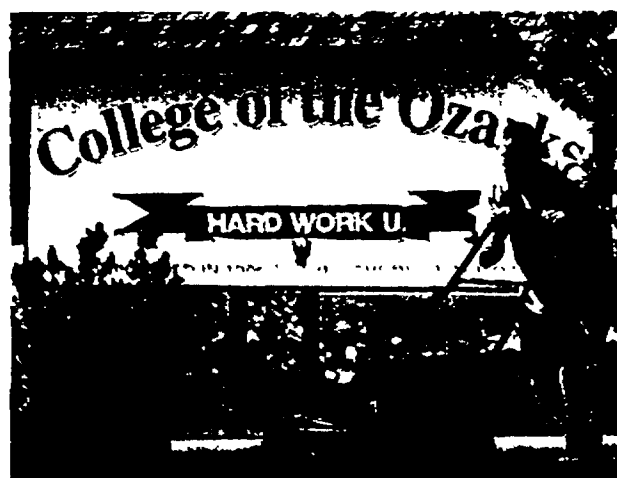

"A student has to learn time-management here," says college President Jerry Davis, recalling one student's apt description of his College of the Ozarks' experience: "He said it was pretty simple. You go to class, you go to work, you go to chapel—or you go home."

Shea King, 21, an education major from St. James, Mo. (pop. 3,704), chose Hard Work U because she wanted to put herself through school. "I didn't want to rely on my parents," she says.

Travis Leaming studies hotel and restaurant management.

A student mows the lawn at Hard Work U to pay his tuition.

Brigitte Buffa, 20, an English major from Kansas City, Mo., works in the college's greenhouses, tending 20 varieties of orchids and making floral arrangements for school functions. "We have supervisors, but the students take care of everything," she says. "I've learned how to work with other people as a crew."

Twins Kari and Kristi Lee, 19, from Seymour, Mo. (pop. 1,834), room together and work together in the fruitcake kitchen. The college began baking fruitcakes in the 1930s for gifts to donors. Fruitcakes are sold, along with other student-made products, including apple butter, woven baskets and rugs, and stained-glass lamps.

"This was the only college I considered," says Kari, sorting pecans by size. "I knew I couldn't go otherwise."

College of the Ozarks always has given preference to low-income students from Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. Acceptance is highly selective—only one in 10 applicants is chosen—at the college that annually ranks among America's best liberal arts colleges by U.S. News & World Report.

Students are graded on their work, says Davis, and graduates are in high demand.

"The late Sam Walton told me, 'We will always hire graduates of your school first because they know how to work.'" Many graduates work in management for Wal-Mart, the world's largest retailer headquartered in nearby Bentonville, Ark. (pop. 19,730).

Other work colleges

Labor and learning go hand-in-hand at five other private four-year colleges in the United States. Two Kentucky colleges also are tuition-free: Alice Lloyd College in Pippa Passes (pop. 297) and Berea College in Berea (pop. 9,851). Three colleges provide reduced tuition for mandatory student work: Sterling College in Craftsbury, Vt. (pop. 1,136); Blackburn College in Carlinville, Ill. (pop. 5,685); and Warren Wilson College in Asheville, N.C.

"Work is part of the educational philosophies of these colleges," says Dennis Jacobs, director of the Work Colleges Consortium, established in 1995. "We believe that all work has dignity, and the colleges design the jobs so that learning opportunities are built in."

At Alice Lloyd College, the mission since 1923 has been to provide an education for Appalachian Mountain students. "Alice Lloyd knew the leaders were here," says Trina Radliff, the college's assistant work director. "They just needed a place to shine."

Lloyd, a Boston journalist and social reformer, is said to have typed 60,000 fund-raising letters to open the school.

All six of the nation's work colleges still depend on the generosity of donors.

"We're in a remote area of Kentucky and the majority of our students wouldn't be able to attend a four-year college," says Ratliff, the third generation of her family to graduate from Alice Lloyd.

The college's 492 full-time students are required to put in 160 hours of sweat equity each semester for a degree. The work is a crash course in responsibility, says Roy Handshoe, 19, a business major who keeps track of hours worked by his fellow students.

"You have more weight on your shoulders than just getting up and going to classes," he says.

Responsibility learned at college is good preparation for the real world, says Albertina Niilo, 35, a junior nursing student from Namibia who attends Berea College. She leads campus tours of the broom, woodcraft, wrought iron and weaving shops.

Niilo searched the Internet for a college scholarship and found Berea, which has welcomed a diverse student population since its founding by abolitionists in 1855. Seventeen percent of the college's 1,500 students are minorities and 8 percent are international students.

Crops and crafts

At Sterling College in rural Vermont, all 100 students cut and craft wood and tend an organic vegetable and herb garden in exchange for reduced tuition. The college uses draft horses in farming and its maple sugaring operation.

"I want to farm with horses because it's really important not to rely on so much petroleum," says Princess MacLean, 22, a sustainable agriculture major. "I've learned as much working on the farm as learning in class."

Erik Hansen, the college's dean of work, says the school is modeled after a New England farm "where everyone pitches in to help."

"We turn out students who care about the environment and each other," he says. Students take a required woodworking course in which they must complete a project that uses at least three kinds of wood joinery. Students have made banjos, jewelry boxes and coffee tables. Each student also makes his own canoe paddle for a required canoeing course.

In addition to working on campus, students at Warren Wilson College in Asheville, N.C., are required to do 100 hours of community-service work during their four years.

"You hope you can do many things well," says Phillip Roop, 22, who graduated last May with a psychology degree and did volunteer work for the American Red Cross. "Someday you'll have a job, family and other tasks and being here helps you learn time-management."

An industrious student removes a sidewalk at Blackburn College.

"You learn about consistency and fairness and responsibility."

—Travis Neel, 22

Students remove a drainage pipe during cleanup of the Swannanoa River, which flows through the Warren Wilson College campus.

At Blackburn College, students also learn to manage people—their fellow students—by making hiring, disciplinary and management decisions. In addition, students maintain plumbing, painting, landscaping and all facets of the Illinois campus.

"You learn about consistency and fairness and responsibility," says Travis Neel, 22, a history major and one of the college's two general managers. "You learn about your character. Will you be able to write up your best friend?"

The character-building lessons and time-management skills that students learn while earning their education are as valuable as being able to graduate with little or no debt.

"They're not just passing us through college here," says Buffa, who will graduate from Hard Work U in 2007. "We're building a lifestyle." ☆

Popping a Tasty Tradition

PART SEVEN

Celebrating the American Farmer

The familiar mouth-watering fragrance of popping corn wafts from the fire hall in North Loup, Neb. (pop. 339), where volunteers are turning a ton of golden kernels into a fluffy white snack and simultaneously honoring local farmers who have grown the crop for more than a century.

Visitors who arrive for the town's annual Popcorn Days celebration have no need to ask for directions to the 104-year-old event; they just follow their nose to the free bags of freshly popped corn.

Popcorn Days, which was started in 1901 by North Loup businessmen as a way to celebrate the important local crop, is the longest, continuously running celebration in Nebraska.

For nearly 40 of those years, Chuck Lundstedt, a retired mechanic, has helped run the event's natural gas-operated popping machine and used scoop shovels to mix giant batches of popcorn, butter and salt. "I just enjoy popping the corn," Lundstedt says. "Otherwise, I wouldn't have helped out this long."

During the three-day event, scheduled Aug. 26 to 28 this year, between 20,000 and 30,000 bags of free popcorn are handed out to thousands of popcorn lovers, says Terry Christensen, last year's Popcorn Days Association chairman. The celebration also features a talent show, music and dances, a carnival on Main Street and a huge parade.

"Back in the '50s, I remember being paid 10 cents an hour to sell ride tickets for the Merry-Go-Round during Popcorn Days," recalls longtime volunteer Darrel Cox, who now books musical acts for the dances and live performances.

Both the celebration and the crop are time-honored traditions in the fertile Loup River Valley, where farmers have grown popcorn since the 1890s. Chuck Zangger's family has grown popcorn since his grandfather planted their first crop in 1924. In those days, North Loup was considered the Popcorn Center of the World.

"There's still about 1,500 acres of popcorn grown around here," Zangger says of the North Loup area. "There are quite a few farmers who are second- or third-generation popcorn growers." Today, Nebraska is the nation's top popcorn producing state, with more than 326 million pounds produced in 2003.

The weather and soil in the valley are perfect for growing popcorn, Zangger says. "In August, we have cool nights that allow the plant to convert sugars to starch," making for kernels that pops better. Zangger not only raises popcorn that he sells to processors for food, but he also developed his own hybrid popcorn seed that is planted by farmers around the country.

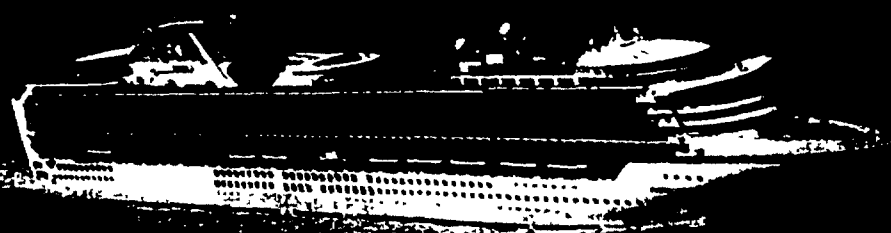

Chuck Zangger's farming family has grown popcorn since 1924.

Having popcorn growers so close to home is good news for Mormac, the town's only popcorn processor. The company, which donates the tasty treat for Popcorn Days, purchases popcorn from growers and distributes it to movie theaters and other food companies, which repackage it as microwave popcorn and products such as caramel corn and cheese corn.

A tradition for residents is to vote during the first day of the event for a Popcorn Days Queen. When North Loup celebrated its Popcorn Days centennial in 2001, most of the living former queens returned home for special recognition.

Finally, a Shine That Lasts

Miracle Polish Ends Struggle With Tarnishing Metals. By D.H. Wagner

Lately, I have noticed quite a few newspapers and magazines praising a polish formulated by a homemaker. The articles report that Donna Maas grew frustrated with rubbing and scrubbing her silver, brass and other metals only to see them quickly become dull and tarnished again. Determined to put an end to her constant battle with tarnish, Donna formulated a metal cleaner - and it's transforming the industry.

Anita Gold, nationally syndicated columnist and expert on the restoration of antiques calls MAAS (named after its inventor) "The best and most amazing polish in the world." Ms. Gold wrote in her column, "A truly miraculous polish referred to as 'miracle polish' that'll turn the most disastrous pieces into the most de-brightful is MAAS Fine Polishing Creme For All Metals, which cleans, restores, preserves and polishes to perfection any brass, copper, chrome, silver, stainless steel, aluminum, gold or any other metal with amazing results - no matter how badly stained, spotted, discolored, flood-damaged, weathered, dirty, dingy, drab, or dull they may be."

Since I had an old brass lamp in desperate need of restoration, this journalist decided to put MAAS to the test. The lamp had been stored in the garage and was in far worse condition than I remembered. I was flabbergasted as I watched the polishing creme wipe away layers and years of tarnish. Never have I used anything so easy. The lamp actually looks better than when I purchased it. Better yet, months later it's still glowing!

The creme worked so effortlessly, I thought I would try to refurbish my mother's collection of antique brass and copper cookware. The badly stained pots and pans developed black spots that had been impossible to remove. MAAS wiped away the years of built-up residue even from the most discolored pieces.

While polishing the pots and pans, I noticed MAAS applying a shine on the stainless steel sink. So I cleaned the entire sink with the creme. WOW! The shine is unbelievable and although I wash dishes every day, the shine keeps-on-shining. And it's no longer covered with ugly waterspots - water just rolls off the protective finish and down the drain.

In a November issue of Good Housekeeping magazine, MAAS is recommended for restoring heavily tarnished heirlooms. The Institute's Report calls MAAS a standout stating, "MAAS cleans best and gives lasting results." The Miami Herald announced "Polishing product can renew old silver." And The Chicago Tribune headline sums it all up by proclaiming "One Amazing Polish Is The Best At Everything."

How did a homemaker come up with something the industry's experts couldn't? The reporter in me had to find out.

During our interview Donna explained, "I enjoy the warmth that beautifully polished metals add to a home. However, not the hours it took to keep them tarnish free. The harsh cleaners always left my hands dry and burning - one instant silver dip smelled so bad I felt sick. When I read the label, I discovered it contained cancer-causing ingredients. I never realized I was using a dangerous substance on my silverware - I serve food with it! That's when I became determined to find a safe and better way to care for the metals in my home."

And that she did. Her formula developed in conjunction with a chemist friend has a mild scent and feels like a hand cream. Made with a base of ultra-refined jewelers rouge, it gently lifts tarnish. The creme is non-flammable and the highly concentrated formula leaves a deep, rich one-of-a-kind luster beyond anything I've ever seen.

"To my surprise," Donna reveals, "the formula far exceeded my original goal. I soon discovered MAAS not only restored every metal the polish also restored most non-porous surfaces. It completely renovated a sun-damaged fiberglass boat, removed residue from glass fireplace doors, polished up clouded crystal and glass vases, wiped scuffs and stains from linoleum and plastic lawn furniture - it even reconditioned a Plexiglas windshield. The restorations were so remarkable everyone suggested that I sell my invention on television".

Donna sent samples of her polish to televised shopping channels. As soon as the buyers saw how remarkably MAAS transforms metals along with an amazing array of other surfaces both QVC and The Home Shopping Network asked Donna to personally appear on TV to demonstrate her invention. Within minutes of Donna's first appearance the phones lit up with hundreds waiting on line to place their orders. As soon as viewers saw how effortlessly MAAS removed tarnish, stubborn spots, and stains from the piles of badly oxidized metals on stage - MAAS hit big time. Approximately 17,000 viewers called during MAAS' debut and encore performances quickly brought a million dollars in record-breaking sales.

Leona Toppel, an actress whose credits include Dennis the Menace, A League of Their Own, and ER said she was about to throw away a brass chandelier. She said no amount of elbow grease had been able to shine it up. After hearing about MAAS, she decided to give it one last try before buying a new light fixture. "With very little effort (a big plus for me because I suffer from arthritis) that chandelier looks like new. It's been years since I polished that brass chandelier with MAAS and to everyone's surprise it's still glowing."

Ame Powell wrote to Donna saying, "I just finished using your wonderful Polishing Creme for All Metals, for the first time, to polish some silver for a dinner party I am giving Saturday night. It is truly remarkable - my silver has never been this clean! It is a marvelous product and I cannot wait to get more myself and tell all my friends how great it is. The dining room just sparkles, thanks to you!"

Sheila Oetting in Florida said, "Thank you, thank you for a wonderful product! Now family treasures with 30 years of tarnish, grime and corrosion are gleaming. I had tried other product without success and thought the items were beyond saving; in fact I even threw some things away. I'm on my second tube and am so thrilled to see the beauty that had been hidden all those years."

James Malecki from Florida said, "Upon buying my Grady White boat the salesman gave me a tube of your product to use. It's simply great stuff! We are in a tough salt air environment and I have actually received compliments about how good the stainless on my boat looks." Boating magazine calls MAAS magical on fiberglass, glass, and metals.

Boeing and McDonnell Douglas tested and approved the polish for use on jet aircraft. The United States Air Force, Army, Navy, Coast Guard and Department of Defense worldwide order MAAS. If every branch of our military is using this polish to pass inspection, imagine what it will do for your home.

Motorcycle Consumer News tested 28 metal polishes. Their report states, "MAAS Polishing Creme has no equals in all around polishing performance..." MAAS retained its shine longer than every polish tested.

"MAAS outperforms every cleaning product I've tried", Donna beams with satisfaction. "So if you're as tired as I was of cleaning metals just to see tarnish reappear a few weeks later, MAAS it!"

The 1966 queen, Susan Hudson Traudt, now lives in nearby Grand Island, Neb., but she brings her family back to the celebration every year.

For Traudt, it's a family affair because her sister and her aunt also were queens. "It was an honor to be chosen," Traudt says, "being from a small town and picked by the people of North Loup."

Formerly, Popcorn Days was held mid-week. "Classes were called off at school so the kids could help with activities," Christensen says.

In recent years, officials turned the event into a Friday through Sunday festival, although classes still are dismissed on Friday to allow students to participate. "When you live in a small community, everyone pitches in together," Cox says. And no one goes home hungry. ☆

- The oldest ears of popcorn were found in Bat Cave in New Mexico; they were 4,000 years old.
- The first electric popcorn popper was invented in 1907 and the first home popper was introduced in 1925.

Italian Biscotti

1 pound butter, softened
4 cups sugar
8 eggs
1 tablespoon baking powder
2 teaspoons vanilla
4 tablespoons anise seed
6 ounces almonds, chopped
8 cups all-purpose flour
1 bag dried cranberries
1 cup pistachio nuts, shelled

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Mix butter, sugar, baking powder, vanilla, anise seed and eggs until well blended. Stir in flour gradually. When smooth, stir in dried cranberries and pistachios. The dough will be sticky but not difficult to handle. Divide dough into four equal parts. Shape each section into a loaf about 15 inches long and 4 inches wide. Bake loaves for about 45 minutes on a baking sheet with sides. (If dough begins to spread and become too flat during baking, reshape with hands.) Remove loaves from oven, and allow to cool. When cool, cut each loaf into 1-inch thick slices back on baking sheet and bake for 15 minutes, until golden. Makes about 100 cookies.
