 Inside the story: This story was like opening up my Northville High School yearbook. Starting with the premise that NHS graduates would be returning to town for homecoming weekend, we supplied a list of activities while they were here. And like many nostalgic brainstorms, it grew into lists of old haunts, remaining landmarks, saga updates and a list of teachers who were still teaching at the high school after 20 years. A fun trip down memory lane.

Enthusiastically pumping his fist, Northville attorney Marc Corriveau celebrates his Michigan House of Representatives (20th District) victory with his wife, Wendy, and a group of supporters Tuesday night in Livonia.

You can call it a victory for the believers.

Democratic candidate and Northville attorney Marc Corriveau stole the 20th District state representative victory — a traditionally Republican held seat.

"There was always a part of me that believed I could win," Corriveau said. "And even when I was told over and over I couldn't win ... I knew if I could spread my message about what it is I would be about and what it is I will do, I had a chance."

"I always believed, and that kept me going."

Corriveau, 35, said a door-to-door campaign reaching out to residents in the communities of Northville, Plymouth, Canton and Wayne played a significant role.

"We spent the last six months letting everyone know what I was about," he said.

According to unofficial Michigan Secretary of State voting results, Corriveau defeated Northville Township supervisor Mark Abbo by 911 votes.

Michigan voting results show Corriveau won the race with 20,051 votes.

Voters reject two school bond proposals; district officials regroup

Proposal I:

'NO' Seventh Elementary School

■ Proposal I loses decisively; parents, kids face possible redistricting

By Victoria Mitchell
RECORD STAFF WRITER

With two small children at home, Northville resident Amy Story braved cold temperatures on election day to support Northville Public Schools.

"I'm a product of Northville Public Schools, and I thought it was my duty to vote," she said. "I live in the city and my children will go to Northville schools."

But Story's Tuesday mission didn't reflect the mood of nearly 59 percent of voters cast "no" ballots for Proposal I, a $25.24 million bond request.

The district denied district officials the opportunity to purchase and develop property, construct a school, acquire and install technology, and build a playground at the site.

School officials said the proposed 92,864-square-foot school is scheduled to open for the 2007-08 school year. Doing so is now a near impossibility, they said.

Northville Public Schools Assistant Superintendent for Administrative Services David Bohm said even if the seventh elementary school bond returns and passes in August, the likelihood of a 2007 opening is slim.

Meanwhile, school officials will begin investigating alternatives to house more than 600 new Lutherans through fifth grade students expected to enter the district in the fall.

Meridith Mulcahy steps behind a voting partition Tuesday to cast her ballot on both proposals.

Proposal II:

'NO' Field house, Transportation, Renovations

■ 'No'-where to run; nearly 58 percent reject $45.43M Proposal II request

By Victoria Mitchell
RECORD STAFF WRITER

For Bryan Mass, dreams of more athletic space were squashed Tuesday night.

Time officials expired when the Northville High School athletic director heard voters turned down a $45.43 million bond proposal, rebuffing district-wide improvements, including a $17.3 million field house addition to the Six Mile Road building.

"I think it is going to be a huge impact as far as physical education," Mass said. "It will increase our class sizes and will directly affect student learning."

"We will not be able to develop an improved curriculum the new addition would have been able to do for us, so there is a big impact on student learning."

Unofficial voting results indicate 58 percent of voters cast "no" ballots in the Tuesday election.

A total of 6,928 residents voted during the election, 4,000 were cast against the bond proposals.

Fourth quarter letdown

■ Plymouth tops Mustangs 43-32 in shootout

By Jeff Theisen
RECORD STAFF WRITER

Everything was finally going Northville's way Friday during homecoming against Plymouth. Then the wheels came off in the fourth quarter.

A holding penalty called back a touchdown that would've put the Mustangs (1-4) up by 14 points. The drive stalled, and Plymouth (2-3) rallied for three minutes to win in the final eight minutes that featured a driving rain, no public address system through the last 2-and-a-half quarters and two offenses that were firing points at a rapid pace.

"We're right there," Northville head coach Ryan Hockman said. "We've got a chance to put that nail in the coffin. Unfortunately the penalty hurt us."

"We still have a chance to score a touchdown again. Our defense kept giving us the ball in a position to win that game. We're just not in control of that game. We're just not there to be able to do those kind of things yet. We're so close."

Mustang senior quarterback Mike DeLuca went down on the first drive of the game with an injury to his lower right leg.

Kreager Comes in Firing

Sophomore backup Matt Kreager came in facing a fourth-and-12 at the Plymouth 26-yard line.

Hockman didn't want to go for the field goal because of the weather.

Kreager dropped back and delivered a strike to a wide open Aaron Chew for a touchdown, eventually tying the game at eight with two-point conversion pass to Andrew Devine.

"Everybody is telling me to kick that," Hockman said. "I said, 'No way. It's a long field goal in the rain, and I've got my boy.' We're not surprised to perform. We've done nothing but that since we've had him. He's a player."

Inside the story: It wasn't the story that made this one special, it was all the things that didn't happen that set this one apart. Early in the game, the public address system started having troubles. Eventually, it just quit altogether, and right before halftime. That left the crowning of the Royal Court in the silence. But most impressively, the pom-pom routine at halftime went off without music. The panic behind the scenes to get something done was chaotic to say the least, but everyone pulled together and appeared to have a good time. It was definitely something I had never witnessed before at a sporting event.

Then came the Dreamers

How and why are local self-starters turning sweat into equity?

The first of an ongoing series profiling the Northville business community. Who drives it? What trends and issues affect it? What untold stories remain behind the deals you read about? And who's behind the counter?

By David Aguilar
RECORD EDITOR

Pati Heath threw everything she had into her new business — even a kitchen sink. Now the bubbly 54-year-old owner of Entrée Vous, who got her Northville Township franchise up and running two months ago by dipping into her retirement account, selling a vacation home and ultimately scraping together $165,000, is hoping people just give her a chance.

And why wouldn't they? she said. At Entrée Vous, time-strapped patrons can mingle while putting together family meals they'd dare not try at home. Why not? Because, Heath said, for many people it's simply too much fuss to hunt down secret recipes, shop for hard-to-find ingredients and clean up a tangled kitchen mess.

But for $120 and no more than two hours, she can charge all that. With a little help from Entrée Vous staff and pre-mixed ingredients, patrons schedule a reservation and meal menu online, show up at Heath's storefront kitchen, then spend time putting together six or more family meals while enjoying the company of friends and family.

Meanwhile, their home kitchen stays clean. "It's a cozy atmosphere," Heath said.

Rebecca Stempien, owner of Moon & Me baby and toddler boutique at 115 E. Main St., started her own business following college.

Inside the story: Who are the real people behind Northville's business facades? What challenges did they face prior to opening their doors? What have they learned? What are their dreams? What sacrifices are they making? How are they just like me? What does it take to survive in today's fickle economy, when all the odds seem stacked against them? Luckily, I found four Northville business owners — Nicole Jaskulka and Alexandra Papasifakis (Duetto), Rebecca Stempien (Moon and Me) and Pati Heath (Entrée Vous) — who embodied the guts, tenacity and creative thinking all successful business owners must cultivate and refine. None of these women were "established Northville" business owners, which to me added to their story because they did not — and could not — simply rely on pedigree and local name recognition. They were forced to make a name for themselves. Anyone can dream about starting their own business; few have the requisite guts to put their money where their mouth is. Behind some of Northville's simplest facades are many of its greatest stories — and most interesting people. (In truth, I knew that. But revisiting those places was quite refreshing.)

"When people come in here, they say 'Pati, this is cool. I feel like I'm in my own house.' Yet they're not drying their own kitchen. 'What I'm offering is really cool, and it makes your life better'."

A better mousetrap

Is it a recipe for success? Who knows? But Heath joins many Northville business owners who've shunned aside corporate climbing, comfortable titles, college degrees and in some cases six-figure salaries to go it alone, instead in a dream and be their own boss.

What kind of guts does it take? Heath remodeled her home, borrowed money from her parents, soaked money out of her 401K when her accountant wasn't looking, spent a portion of her savings and tapped a $100,000 Small Business Administration loan to get started. Even her tax refund check is being poured into the business. Maybe it's not the way they do it at the Wharton School, the acclaimed University of Pennsylvania business school. Then again, this is the real world.

Heath's resume looks like this: earned a teaching degree, though she's never used it, returned to Eastern Michigan University when she was 38 to become re-accredited while her two boys, then 6 and 9, attended school, worked once as a perfume spray girl before getting promoted a short time later to area manager, former aerobics instructor who's first class began with barely a murmur because she was too afraid to speak into the microphone, 10-year car sales professional at MacDonald Ford in Northville, then later Bull MacDonald Ford in Novi, who originally landed the job by walking into MacDonald Ford on July 26, 1996, with no experience and having never bought a car on her own. She simply asked the owner "Hey, have you ever had a woman salesperson?"

"Well, it's really hard," he told her.

"I'd like to get a chance at it."

"All right, then," she said. "Go sell a car."

And so she did, knowing the profession would hold her interest for only 10 years before the next looking for another challenge.

On Aug. 4, a decade later, she signed the Entrée Vous franchise agreement, traded in her company car and bought a used car — her first-ever car purchase — and swallowed hard as she walked away from a six-figure annual income.

Did the "devastating" divorce Heath went through 17 years ago trigger her relentless ambition? (She got "dumped," she said.)

Maybe. Then again, Heath has always searched for a challenge.

Either way, she's open for business, gleefully writing checks she can afford to have receipts cash.

"I have to do this," Heath said. "I will sell my soul to make it work."

Inside the story: For years, I'd been wanting to take an unconventional look at religion — beyond scripture and rote rituals. As Easter approached, the notion of taking a look at three non-mainstream churches — big and small — and searching for "faith" in unfamiliar places was terribly intriguing. Was faith truly the common denominator between all religions? Should the size and style of a church really matter, if faith is what matters most? There are plenty of unconventional religious foundations in the Northville area — and plenty of people who divine faith and drink deep from the holy water they provide.

freely the only thing she had left in the world, faith.

She was so sure God was there, so sure she was going to be all right. Young said two weeks ago, slumped in a hallway chair, awaiting the second

Saturday evening service at Northridge Church, a 120,000-square-foot non-denominational church located on the northern edge of Plymouth Township,

"I'm looking to have that same faith."

It hasn't been easy. Since she was 19, the 35-year-old Saline resident has had an on-again, off-again relationship with God. That's when her mother died, despite Young's prayers begging she be spared.

Now believing again is an uphill push.

"I know there's a God. But who do I turn myself over to?" Young said. "It's tough."

Two years ago she began attending Northridge. But give it up when life got in the way. She didn't hit rock bottom, she said, but "my priorities were all screwed up."

Now she's trying to put all the puzzle pieces back together. It's a slow process, she said, borne of personal curiosity and private wanting, tempered by a humani-tie inclination toward self-doubt and an unrelenting thirst for protection.

"I have a lot of questions,"

Young said. "I know I need to have faith. I always knew I needed to pray. But I prayed when it was convenient."

Young will join millions worldwide this weekend as they celebrate Easter Sunday, a day when Christians traditionally renew their faith by recalling how,

according to the Bible, Christ offered his own life for crucificion, then later rose from the dead that week.

The 54-year-old Northville

Township resident said she spent much of her early life questioning

God and doubting her faith, pushing both made in favor of wild peries and personal satisfaction.

"I just knew I wasn't loving the life God wanted me to live," Gates said Sunday, following service at Mill Creek Church, a 10-member congregation which for eight years has been meeting inside a small, restored church within

Historic Mill Race Village in downtown Northville.

Today Gates feels right at home in church, sitting in the front row and ascended into heaven.

But amid raucous religious celebrations and heart felt bowlers, many do wonder what all this faith, and contemplation the foundation upon which it has been built is.

What's the allure of non-denominational churches?

Make the right call at "last call"

It's three days before New Year's Eve.

Americans are in the midst of one of the most joyful times of the year — but it's also one of the most dangerous.

Drunk driving fatalities peak during the holidays. The celebrations are seemingly non-stop, and office and family parties and simple get-togethers with friends almost always feature alcohol.

The results are a definite buzz-kill. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said 45.2 percent of accidents were alcohol-related on New Year's Eve in 2004, the most recent figure available.

In other words, almost half of the accidents on New Year's are the direct result of someone having an extra few drinks.

So what does this mean?

It's simple. Be more careful. If you've had a few too many, call a cab. Catch a ride with a sober friend. If necessary, crash on someone's couch. It's definitely more comfortable than a jail cell.

It's the holidays. It's unrealistic to think people aren't going to drink.

But by using common sense, that gaudy NHTSA accident total could shrink considerably.

The term accident is a bit of a misnomer. Accident implies that something just happened, almost beyond control. Driving drunk is most definitely a choice.

Don't make "last call" a fatal decision.

Schools: A new year

January will mark an interesting time for Northville Public Schools. Trying to resolve teacher-contract negotiations and cautiously watching speculated mid-year state funding cuts, will leave district administrators beginning the new year without time for nostalgia.

Are the two issues related? More than likely so. After all, many would argue it is hard to arrive at an equitable contract when you don't have a reliable revenue source. But does that mean issues can stay in flux? Probably not, especially when teachers are threatening "Crisis mode."

We hope the new year resolution of both sides is to keep children's best interests in mind.

Ready ... set ... go!

Students in teacher Katie Pinkleman's fourth grade class at Moraine Elementary School take off in a relay race the day before Christmas break. The kids were racing outside in what they called the "snow gear race" to see who could put on their outdoor clothes the quickest — a nice break from indoor activities.

School boards make a difference

The month of January marks the annual observance of School Board Recognition Month, a time to salute the work of school board members and celebrate public education. The theme of this year's celebration, "School Boards Make a World of Difference," reflects our combined commitment to leadership and accountability assuring that all children succeed.

In the Northville Public School District, school board members must develop policies and make tough decisions on complex education and social issues which impact the entire community. They bear the responsibility for an operating budget of $63 million, over seven-thousand students, one-thousand employees and thirteen buildings. They carry out the truest form of representative governments in our democracy, volunteer public service, and preserve the core of our democratic land, public education.

I invite you to recognize and celebrate the work of your school trustees. Invite them over for coffee. Ask how you might support your local neighborhood schools. Drop off cookies at January's board meetings. Write you school board members a thank-you note. Let them know you appreciate what they do for kids in the Northville Public Schools.

The men and women serving Northville Public School District and their years of service are: Mr. Kenneth A. Roth, President, 4.5 years; Dr. Marilyn Price, Vice President, 3.5 years; Ms. Libby Smith, Treasurer, 3.5 years; Ms. Joan Wadsworth, Secretary, 13.5 years; Ms. Judy Handley, 9.5 years; Trustee, Dr. Karen M. Paciorek, Trustee, 4.5 years; Ms. Judith Wollack, Trustee, 6.5 years.

Hunting within city limits

In response to Dan and Nancy Lorigan's letter, "Hunting in the City?" in the Dec. 14 issue, I agree that it is shameful that a couple would even think of hunting deer in Rural Hill Cemetery or anywhere near these sacred grounds. This shows absolutely no respect for the deceased or the families that have loved ones laid to rest there. With that said regarding respect, it appalls me to think of weapons being utilized within the city and township limits of Northville. This is a serious concern for the residents' safety, surrounding businesses. This is definitely a violation of laws as well as a respect issue. I sincerely hope the authorities of Northville and the Department of Natural Resources will address this violation and assure the community that it will not happen again.

Making "green" off of China's dirt

Quick, name three things that Michigan has that China does not? No, the correct answer is not the "trinity" of Oakland County Executive Brooks Patterson, Wayne County Executive Bob Ficano and the larger than life Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick.

It is clean air, clean water and a pristine environment.

Certainly, we have yet to reach any "environmental nirvana" as any Michigan environmental group will be quick to point out. However, by nearly any measure, we have come a long way.

If you have traveled in China recently, your burning eyes will testify that, along with their economic boom over the past quarter of a century and double digit economic increases on an annual basis, economic development has come with a stiff environmental price — polluted air, rivers, streams and lakes.

China's environmental problems are not just limited to their political borders. Air and water pollution do not stop at the artificial political boundaries marked on world maps. When we talk about "China's rise" it is more than just their economic mass, it is also pollution that is rising as well.

Clearly China's economic rise has come with a heavy and choking toll on the environment. The factories that are producing much of what will under your Christmas tree this year are fueled by dirty coal spewing out soot and fouling the air and water.

Further complicating the problem is growing auto pollution. It is predicted that the Chinese auto market is expected to surpass the US market in ten years and there will be seven times the number of cars on China roadways in 2020 than there were in 2004.

China's energy needs are as great or greater than their environmental needs as they continue to emerge from the horrors of the Cultural Revolution and other ill-gotten national policies that held the sleeping dragon back for much of the 20th century. The Chinese will need to invest in energy production in an environmentally sensible way. According to the Lawrence Berkeley National Lab, the Chinese will need to invest nearly $2 trillion in new power plants and transmission by 2030. Will the energy be clean? Can Michigan clean up by helping the Chinese meet these two mounting demands?

Many reports coming out of China point to the fact that Chinese leaders are recognizing the huge problem of pollution and encouraging new green technology to address these issues lest they choke off the economic dragon that is lifting many Chinese out of poverty and providing the stability the Chinese Communist Party will pay any price to maintain.

America remains number one in two categories today: economic output and the world's leading emitter of greenhouse gases. However, according to the International Monetary Fund, by 2040 or sooner, China could surpass us in both categories.

There is an economic doom and gloom hanging in the Michigan air like a smoggy day in Beijing. With the daily barrage of bad news from the auto industry and the continued loss of manufacturing jobs polluting our minds, it is easy to lose the forest for the trees.

Yet, China's problems could and should be seen by Michigan's leaders and entrepreneurs as our opportunities. China is sitting on an escalating energy and environmental crisis in addition to as much as one trillion dollars of foreign currency, much of US currency, seeking investment opportunities. Can Michigan help build environmentally friendly power plants, clean the air, help purify the water and put our people to work cleaning China's environment?

Michigan has a recent rich history of protecting our drinking water, reclaiming our rivers, streams and lakes while fueling our industrial needs. Through our creativity, innovation and can-do spirit we have the ability to take Michigan off economic life support and export our knowledge and products to the global stage.

Michigan must set the goal of becoming the brain bank of the world when it comes to auto technology, alternative energy and environmental entrepreneurship. The state that protects our streams, air and stands tall as the protector of the Great Lakes needs to seek ways to export this knowledge, technology and products to China.

How is that for clearing the air with China?

DEXTER DOMINANCE

By Jeff Theisen
RECORD SPORTS WRITER

Northville capped off an amazing run with just one loss in the 2006 calendar year after winning the Dexter Invitational tournament.

The Mustangs (4-0) beat Havlett 64-45 Dec. 19 and capped the tournament with a 73-51 win against Willow Run on Dec. 21.

"It's one of the goals that we set every year is to win the Christmas tournament," said Darrel Schumacher, Northville head coach. "We were very happy. Both teams were tough competition."

The Willow Run Flyers pushed the Mustangs in the title game, trailing Northville just 35-32 at the half.

The Mustang defense took over in the third quarter, as the Flyers managed just two baskets and six points for a 42-34 lead heading into the fourth.

One of the defensive adjustments came during halftime.

Willow Run had a player that was consistently hitting threes until the coaches decided to move Steve Anderson from one side of the floor to the other. The shooter had trouble getting off his shots, and the Mustangs went on to win the title in a blowout.

"I was real pleased with the defensive efforts in the second half," Schumacher said. "At this time of the year you're still trying to figure out who is going to do what."

Fouls, fouls and more fouls paced the fourth quarter. The Mustangs sank 17 of 21 free throws to pull away to earn the second consecutive Dexter tournament trophy.

Senior guard Alvin Storrs finished the final game with 33 points. Junior forward Dan Kirkpatrick scored 14 points, and Greg Hasse added a career-high 12 points.

Having three players score in double digits was a nice luxury for Schumacher. Storrs is the leading scorer on the team, but he's looking for other kids to step up and take advantage of defenses focusing on him.

"The key is that we can't stand around and let one person carry it," Schumacher said. "That really is the part that we have to work the hardest on."

Looking forward to '07

Northville gets a small break, getting back on the floor Jan. 5 at Churchill.

"We've got a lot of work ahead of us. We start league in January," Schumacher said. "It's going to be a whole new ball game."

"I think we're gaining confidence. I'm really excited. They're a great bunch to work with."

The team has been overhauled after graduated most of a senior-dominated team, but the regular season winning streak continues under a mostly new regime that features 11 juniors.

Schumacher said a lot of skill combined with luck and timing make up such a streak.

"Everything has to go right and lucky," he said. "Those are the goals every year. We don't dwell on the past, we look to be future."

We only lost one game in 2006. It probably won't happen like that ever again. I'm just honored to be a part of it."

Big Kickers!

Two Northville girls helped propel their U8 girls soccer team to a regional tournament title Dec. 3. The team is now qualified for the National Indoor Tournament in Wixom and Fraser the last weekend in February.

Mustangs 2nd at relays

By Jeff Theisen
RECORD SPORTS WRITER

Northville went into the WLAA Conference Relays down a couple of swimmers but still pulled out a second-place finish Dec. 22 at Salem.

Livonia Stevenson won the meet with 276 points followed by the Mustangs (246). Walled Lake North (185) and Salem (176).

Northville's lone swimming win came in the 200 freestyle relay. Kyle Adams, Jim Mammiano, Jake Lane and Colin Smith finished in 1:37.59.

Divers Steven Kruse and Will Fankell combined to beat the field by more than 75 points.

Northville head coach Rich Bennetts wanted to thank the efforts of three freshmen — Nathan Lunn, Ben Schonek and Anthony Adamowicz — for filling in and competing well at the meet.

"Overall I was pretty pleased," Bennetts said of his team. "We realize early on that it's not going to be easy."

The Mustangs are off until Jan. 5 when they host Brother Rice.

Home Owners...Do you use your fireplace?

If you do read this article for helpful information and gaining knowledge.

TRADITIONAL FIREPLACES - The fire burns in a firebox lined with firebrick (or newer metal liners). The heat creates a draft that pulls smoke up through the throat to a smoke chamber then up the flue, which is brick, tile, or a metal liner inside a masonry chimney. A flue damper regulates the draft and keeps air from escaping up the flue when the fireplace is not in use. The smoke shelf behind the damper stops backdrafts of outside air that could push smoke into the living area. Most draw air from inside the house - a grate holds the logs so that air can stoke the fire from underneath - while others draw air from the outside through an air intake. An intake damper seals the intake when the fireplace is not in use. A heat-circulating fireplace produces some radiant heat, but mainly warms air that circulates around the firebox. Some have a fan that increases the air flow. They achieve a high efficiency by enclosing the fireplace with glass doors and are equipped with an outside air intake.

FIREPLACE GAS INSERT - These units can fit into an existing fireplace. They operate at efficiency levels of 30 to 50% compared to a traditional fireplace. The space around the unit must be covered with a cement grout or mortar. A flue liner must extend from the unit through the top of the chimney. This improves the draft, keeps the gases hotter, which reduces creosote building up, and reduces the risk of flue gases seeping back into the house.

Randall Patterson

WOOD STOVE

A modern wood stove is more efficient than a standard fireplace. Some only radiate heat while others also heat air passing around the firebox in convection currents. Advanced systems create conditions to burn combustible gases without the use of catalysts. With catalyst stoves, a catalytic combustor (a ceramic honeycomb) extracts heat from flue gases. Pellet stoves use moist, cut pellets that are fed into the combustion chamber by a timed screw auger. Clearance Requirements from Walls and Floor: Wood stoves must sit on a non-combustible hearth which must extend at least eight inches beyond the sides and back and 18 inches in front of it and be at least 24 inches from side walls and 30 inches from back wall (check with your local building or fire codes). Only black steel stovepipe (24 gauge min) should be used between a wood stove and chimney. The overall run of stove pipe should be under 10 feet with no more than two 90° elbows.

RECOMMENDED MAINTENANCE ITEMS:

CLEAN THE CHIMNEY - creosote can start fires, chimney should be cleaned when chimney buildup reaches 1/8 inch thickness

FIREBOX AND MASONRY REPAIRS - any cracks can pose a fire hazard and should be filled with refractory masonry, repoint masonry joints and replace broken bricks.

SAFETY TIPS
• DO NOT BURN TRASH OR CHARCOAL IN A WOOD-BURNING UNIT

Total Sports Complex

Wixom facility now offering drop-in art and art classes, inflatables — in addition to standard athletic fare

By Kate Phillips
SPECIAL WRITER

Total Sports Complex in Wixom has long been known as the best place for sports. There's something for the entire family, with sports leagues, lessons and field rentals.

Now that a new drop-in art studio and art classes are starting up, Total Sports is the place for total family fun.

"We are now more just sports," said Laura Hicks, event coordinator.

Creative Arts Studio, formerly located in Novi, has opened up a fine art studio inside Total Sports. There will be all sorts of drop-in art classes available.

Sports capital

Recreational and competitive sports leagues and classes abound at Total Sports Complex. There are both adult and children's leagues in nearly every sport, including — soccer, lacrosse, softball, baseball, flag football and roller hockey.

With professional staff and experienced instructors, kids can get a good start on the sport they love. Classes and leagues are offered during the day and evening seven days a week and to fit every schedule and every skill level.

To take the workout one step further, professional training is available at the Total Performance Training Center. Trainers can work with everyone in the family to increase core strength and enhance performance by gearing the workout specifically to a particular sport.

Art for everyone

Now kids can spend time creating art when they come to Total Sports. The drop-in studio is open seven days a week for art projects. It's perfect for siblings that come to watch a game every week. Now they'll have a couple hours of enrichment as well.

A variety of art projects are available to suit every age level — from toddlers to teenagers, and even adults. And the types of art offered are meaningful creations that parents will want to keep forever, or kids can make as gifts for grandparents and other family members.

Everyone will love giving painted plates and mugs they've designed. And kids and adults will have the chance to make glass fusion bowls that are colorful works of art right out of an art gallery. Even toddlers will enjoy create-a-bear workshops. Special holiday workshops will allow kids the chance to make beaded necklaces for mother's day, and special creations for Valentine's Day, Easter and Father's Day.

Birthday parties

Total sports is the perfect place for birthday parties. Kids can get their energy out on the field — instead of cooped up inside a house, and mom doesn't have to worry about anything.

Kids can choose a birthday party with either art, science, soccer, inflatables or baseball. The sky is the limit.

The party assistants will keep the kids busy and make sure that everyone has a super time. Everything is taken care of, and when the party is over, there's no mess to clean up.

Prices are actually lower at Total Sports than other nearby venues. Planners can help fit an awesome party into any budget.

"This is the best place for a birthday party," said Laura Hicks. "We have everything you can imagine — and stuff you would never think of."

Memorable corporate events

Those planning a company picnic or corporate team building event will be surprised by the possibilities at Total Sports Complex.

"Our planners can come up with an event that suits your corporate needs," said Hicks.

Event planners have creative minds that can turn an ordinary event into something unforgettable.

The Total Sports Bar and Grill offers delicious food, from steaks and burgers to fruit and sandwiches. The grill can customize a menu to fit each event. And adults can enjoy beer, wine and full bar services.

Once spring arrives, picnics will abound at Total Sports. Company parties can be held in the beautiful park-like setting. Plus, if there is a thunderstorm, the whole party can be moved inside without changing any of the planned activities.

Many companies come every summer for a softball game with beer and burgers afterwards.

Or gala affairs can be held under a tent, with a scrumptious buffet and inflatable bouncers for the kids.

And it's the perfect place for adult birthday parties, anniversaries and other special occasions. A sporting event makes a retirement or 40th birthday party more fun. And ladies are in heaven at an artsy bachelorette party, where they can paint pottery while they celebrate over wine and appetizers.

Start with Lil' kickers

Even toddlers and preschoolers can get active with Lil' Kickers classes. They're the perfect chance for little ones to get exercise while learning soccer basics in a fun, non-competitive environment.

The class was actually developed by a child psychologist so that it nurtures the young children and provides skills in movement. And mascot Hoppy the Bunny gets kids really excited about playing.

"It's a child development program that teaches kids life skills through soccer," said Lil' Kickers Coordinator Jen D'Annunzio. "It helps with coordination, social skills, learning how to take turns and wait in lines, plus showing respect for the other players and coaches."

Families can try out the first Lil' Kickers class at no charge, and can start the ongoing class at any time. Kids as young as one and a half can play with help from a parent, or youngsters through age eight can play independently. Classes are available during the day on both weekdays and weekends.

Big kids love day camp

During spring break and summer vacation, there's nothing kids would like better than to go to sports camp. Parents can have the peace of mind that their children are being well cared for while they work, and kids can spend time somewhere they love — instead of feeling like they are in daycare.

What child doesn't want to go to sports camp? Even parents that don't work send kids to the skills camps.

Kids can choose one sport for morning, one sport for afternoon, or they can also try art, science, music and dance. It's perfect for a child that wants to improve their game in a favorite sport, like soccer, but also learn something new, like lacrosse. And with all the selections, each sibling will find something they like so parents can bring all their children to one camp. The large grounds mean that kids can spend time indoors and outdoors in the sunshine, without leaving the facility.

The camps are half-day or full-day, with lunch. Latchkey programs are available before and afterwards to fit the schedules of busy parents. Kids can come for a fun-packed week or can spend the entire summer learning and playing at Total Sports.

Awesome facility

Total Sports Complex in Wixom is the largest sports complex in the country, and has been leading the industry since it opened in 1997.

The 220,000 square foot indoor facility includes four soccer fields, a roller hockey rink, in-line skating track and three batting cages. The facility also includes instructional space, a training center, party space and a full restaurant. The outdoor area includes softball and baseball fields, soccer field and large picnic space.

With new turf installed earlier this year, the indoor fields are covered with a softer surface that wards off injuries and knee problems. And it works well with all types of cleats and athletic shoes. Owners continue to invest heavily in the facility, keeping it constantly updated so that it is a safe, state-of-the-art play area and work-out facility.

To get started call Total Sports Complex at (248) 669-9817 or go to www.totalsportscomplex.com.

Take action to rein in vicious animal

Q. I am concerned about one of our pets in our condominium being somewhat vicious and the board not willing to do anything about it. What can we do to insure our protection?

A. Write the board and insist that it enforce its condominium documents including insuring that the co-owner who has the pet has adequate home-owners insurance and is otherwise taking adequate measures to protect the residents and guests from the animal. Point out to the board that if the bylaws allow the board to seek the removal of the animal, if it is in fact dangerous, that it has an obligation to do so and may be vulnerable not only to persons damaged or hurt by the pet, but from the co-owners who have a right to pursue the board for failing to enforce reasonable condominium restrictions.

Q. I have recently read about the problems with the "big dig" in Boston and the traffic problems it has created. I am interested in renting an office space in the downtown area for my business which is moving to Boston but I am wondering what your thoughts are in regard to that type of investment opportunity.

A. Having just visited Boston, I can tell you that the traffic problems created by the closure of one of the big dig tunnels is horrible and I believe it will no doubt have a substantial effect on the retail and commercial areas surrounding the downtown district when word gets out about the traffic jams which now occur, particularly to and from the airport. The market in general in Boston is softening in terms of residential and commercial and if you are going to be conducting a retail or com-

John Russell as the Lawman

Q Back in the 1960s, there was a TV show called Lawman. The star had a bit part in Clint Eastwood's Pale Rider. Do you know who he was?

—Elaine Gibbs, Springtown, Texas

John Russell played marshal Dan Troop in Lawman from 1958 to 1962 and appeared in Pale Rider in 1985. He had roles as well in two other Eastwood movies, Hombre and The Outlaw Josey Wales. Russell was 70 when he died of emphysema in 1991.

Carla Gugino was TV's Karen Sisco.

Q I loved the show Karen Sisco and the actress who played her. She looks familiar. Has she been in any other TV shows or movies?

—Joan Murphee, Middleburg, Fla.

Florida-born Carla Gugino, who played sexy, brainy U.S. marshal Karen Sisco in the short-lived 2003 TV series of the same name, made her performance debut as a teenager in a TV episode of Who's the Boss. A niece of the Let's Make a Deal "prize model" Carrol Merrill, Gugino, 35, also has appeared in the movies Spy Kids, Sin City and Michael, and the TV shows Spin City, Chicago Hope and Threshold. You can see her in the new Ben Stiller movie comedy Night at the Museum.

Ring in the New Year with CMT!

Ring out the old and ring in the new over New Year's weekend as CMT presents episodes of family favorites Mama's Family and Hee Haw—plus a New Year's Day marathon of high-spirited hijinks from Bo, Luke, Daisy, Uncle Jessie, Boss Hogg and the rest of the rowdies on The Dukes of Hazard. Check local listings for exact times and dates.

Q My all-time favorite actor is James Garner, excellent in any kind of role. What's he doing now, and has he written an autobiography?

—Joe Copeland, Oak Ridge, Tenn.

The prolific and likeable actor, 78, has not written an autobiography, but perhaps he should—it would be a good read! He sold men's clothing, modeled bathing suits, worked at a gas station and received a Purple Heart for his military service in Korea—all before finding stardom in the TV shows Maverick and The Rockford Files. Earlier this year, Garner returned for a triumphant homecoming to Norman, Okla., where he was honored with a bronze statue, a street named in his honor and an honorary high school diploma.

Actor James Garner

Rick Springfield is back on the concert trail.

Q What happened to Rick Springfield?

—Barbara Schafeldt, Brookings, Ore.

The "Jessie's Girl" singer and actor took time off from show business in the 1990s to raise his two sons. But now that they're grown, he's back touring with his band and appearing occasionally on General Hospital, reprising his '80s TV role of Dr. Noah Drake. If you can't catch him in concert, check out his new DVD, Rick Springfield Live in Rockford, recorded at the Coronado Theater in Rockford, Ill.

Santa's helper Donnie Cain spreads Christmas joy in Seneca, S.C.

A stranger comforted Maria Griego after a dreadful automobile accident in New Mexico.

By MARTA W. ALDRICH
Contributing Editor

Acts of Kindness

Each year, American Profile publishes a collection of stories about ordinary people doing remarkable deeds for others without expecting recognition or acknowledgement in return. Here are a few favorites sent in by readers this year:

Saint Santa

Donnie Cain says he is shy by nature, but you'd never know it when he dons a red suit, grows a full white beard and becomes Santa Claus' No. 1 helper in Seneca, S.C., (pop. 7,652) each Christmas season.

Cain, 55, and his Santa suit stay busy on nights, weekends and even his lunch break—visiting schools, churches, nursing homes, hospitals and businesses—to bring the spirit of Christmas to people ages 1 to 92. He does not accept payment and sometimes uses his vacation time to accommodate all the requests.

"He's so popular that we have to take appointments to get everyone in," says his wife, Jean.

Cain first portrayed the jolly fellow in 1990 for elderly residents at Seneca Health & Rehab Center, where he is maintenance director, and was hooked by the smiles and laughter that his holiday antics elicited. He says he is equally at ease with children, who "just seem to take to me."

Guardian angel

Maria Griego doesn't know his name or where he lives—only that a short, dark-haired, middle-aged stranger with a soothing voice held her hand through her cracked car window while they waited together for an ambulance after a near-fatal crash on a rural road outside of Santa Fe, N.M.

The 23-year-old sales associate was driving home from work in November 2005 when an oncoming car pulled in front of her. "I remember my car spinning across the highway and I was injured pretty bad," she says. "My head hit the windshield and shattered it, and my legs were trapped under the steering column. I was bleeding, and I had glass in my mouth."

The other car's driver checked on her, but it was an anonymous passerby who came to her rescue. He called the ambulance and police and, at Maria's request, used her cell phone to call her parents, who were vacationing in Albuquerque. "I asked this voice if he was a police officer," recalls Maria's mom, Martha Griego. "He said, 'No, but I stopped to help your daughter and I won't leave 'til I know she's OK.'"

The stranger was true to his word, and left only as Maria was being put in an ambulance. She suffered severe whiplash, cuts and bruises, but thanks to her seatbelt and months of physical therapy, is OK today.

The whole Griego family still wonders about the stranger's identity. "We never got to personally thank him, but we consider him our daughter's guardian angel," says Martha Griego. "We keep him and his family in our prayers."

Our annual tribute to ordinary Americans doing good deeds for one another

Nature's medicine

Around Thurston Woods retirement center in Sturgis, Mich. (pop. 11,285), Susan Cook is known as the "flower lady."

The former elementary school teacher motors around in her electric wheelchair placing vases of fresh flowers in the rooms of fellow residents, at the nurses' stations, on dining room tables—anyplace that could use a little bit of nature's beauty.

"You go in with a big smile and leave fresh flowers. It's better than medicine," says Cook, 65, who doesn't let her multiple sclerosis overcome her desire to brighten someone's day.

She gets flower donations from friends, grocery stores and, last year, teamed up with retirement center resident Phil Cary, 88, whose family operates a gladiola farm and brought in bucket loads of freshly cut flowers.

"The residents love it," says nurse Carol Eagan. "These flowers go to a lot of people who are alone. Sometimes it's the only thing they ever receive."

Rescued trophies

At 86, Frances Foster was throwing away her garbage when she noticed a pile of trophies in the dumpster of her apartment complex in Washington, Ill. (pop. 10,841). Determined to recycle them, the great-grandmother used the crook of her cane to fish out the trophies one by one, rescuing more than two dozen of the shiny statues.

With the salvaged trophies in her back seat, Foster drove to Central Illinois Riding Therapy, a nonprofit horse riding camp for people of all ages with disabilities. For their shows, the East Peoria group awards its riders refurbished trophies as a cost-cutting measure. She was greeted by a barrage of teenagers and children who unloaded the boxes of trophies. "They were so excited, saying, 'Look at this one!' and 'It's beautiful!' I just bawled," Foster recalls.

Dumpster diva Frances Foster found a home for recycled trophies.

Camp director Judith Kruse says trophies are one of the best items people can recycle. "Getting a trophy means a lot to these kids—some of whom can't ride a bike or do other sports. It means a lot to their parents, too."

Foster jokingly refers to her November 2005 dumpster encounter as the day she became a "bag lady," but is proud of the outcome. "I grew up in the Depression in a southern Illinois town, the oldest of six children," she says. "We learned the hard way about saving and using old things."

Making Baking a Jiffy

by MARTI ATTOUN Contributing Editor

Mabel White Holmes, Jiffy's mastermind

When Mabel White Holmes saw the hard-as-rock biscuits that a single father had baked for his sons in 1928, she set about finding a fix. For two years she experimented in her kitchen in Chelsea, Mich., until she had combined the perfect proportions of flour, shortening, sugar, salt and baking soda into America's first prepared baking mix.

For the first time, a homemaker could simply add milk to a packaged mix, and with little fuss or chance of failure, bake a batch of delicious, fluffy biscuits.

Seventy-eight years later, Holmes' grandson and his 350 employees continue to churn out more than a million boxes of Jiffy baking mixes daily at the Chelsea Milling Co. in Chelsea (pop. 4,398).

"Grandma thought, 'Wouldn't it be neat to invent a product that would taste great and be so easy that a man could make it?'" says Howdy S. Holmes, 58, company president. "The whole idea was to provide a service to homemakers."

Initially, Mabel puzzled over what to call her new product. Inspiration struck while she was behind the wheel of a car on a trip with her husband, Howard. She nearly wrecked in her excitement, Howdy says.

"My grandma remembered that when she was a small child, the lady helping in the kitchen would say, 'Mabel, you run and tell your daddy that those biscuits will be ready in a jiffy.'"

The first boxes of 40-ounce Jiffy all-purpose baking mix cost 28 cents—and sold like the hotcakes they made. Homemakers spread the word about the time-saving mix and to this day, the company relies on word-of-mouth promotion. The savings in advertising is reflected in the $1.49 price on the 40-ounce box and the smaller 8.5-ounce boxes, which sometimes sell for three for a dollar.

Loyal customer Harriet Humphrey has stocked her cupboards with Jiffy mixes for 49 years. "The cornbread is an old standby," says Humphrey, 71, of Pittsford, Vt. (pop. 3,140). "I couldn't keep house without it."

The Holmes family has been selling baking ingredients to homemakers for nine generations. The family began milling flour in 1802, bought the Chelsea flour mill in 1887 and introduced its popular Jiffy mix in 1930.

Six years after launching America's baking mix industry, Mabel assumed the role of company president when her husband died in a grain silo accident. The couple's 23-year-old twin sons, Howard and Dudley Sr., ran the company and the Jiffy line continued to grow with a pie-crust mix in 1940 and a corn muffin mix in 1950.

Today, Chelsea Milling Co. fills 1.6 million Jiffy boxes daily with biscuit, cake, frosting, fudge brownie, muffin, pizza crust and pancake mixes. From the start, the company has been a do-it-all manufacturer—from milling its own flour to making its own cheery, blue boxes. With its gleaming white silos, the Chelsea plant—nicknamed Jiffyville—is a downtown landmark and favorite destination for tour groups. Visitors end tours with free samples of hot fluffy biscuits or muffins.

While today's Jiffy boxes look nearly identical to the originals and carry the slogan, "Quality and Value since 1930," Chelsea Milling Co. has endured by changing with the times.

When Howdy retired as a race-car driver and returned to the family business in 1988, he modernized the plant, built a $4.5 million warehouse in 1996 and introduced commercial-sized mixes to cater to restaurants and hospitals.

Still, he admires the perseverance of his flour-milling forefathers and cherishes the ingenuity of his grandmother. "Grandma had a simple idea and followed through," Howdy says. "She wanted to save people time and money in the kitchen."

Those basic ingredients are still valued by America's homemakers. ☆

A soldier's autograph

The Wilson family was vacationing at Disney World when, on a bus ride around the park, 8-year-old twins Drew and Adam found themselves sitting beside a man with a walking cane. As they spoke, the children learned he was wounded as a soldier during the Vietnam War.

"One of my boys asked us for a pen and paper, and then asked the man for his autograph," says Timothy Wilson of Georgetown, Ohio (pop. 3,691). "We had spent the day surrounded by Disney cartoon characters with hundreds of kids standing in line for their autographs, but this was the autograph that Drew wanted . . . because this man fought in the war. The man, along with my wife and me, were in tears as he proudly signed his name and rank for my boys. One of those proud parent moments!"

A job for Jackie

While munching on his lunch at a McDonald's restaurant one day in Alton, Ill. (pop. 30,496), Jackie Morris noticed an elderly couple nearby and offered to take their trash to the waste can. "My parents and grandmother taught me to be polite to people," explains Morris, who suffers from a mental illness and has cared for himself since his parents died in 2001. He didn't realize anyone noticed his act of kindness until the restaurant's general manager, Mike Bold, approached to ask if he worked for him. "I said, 'No, but I'm looking for a job,'" Morris recalls.

Bold told him to come back to the restaurant on Friday and they'd fill out the paperwork and, as Morris says, "the rest is history." The 47-year-old has worked at McDonald's for three years, sweeping floors, wiping down tables and making sure napkins, straws and lids are stocked on the condiment table.

"When Jackie called to tell me he'd gotten a job offer himself, I was surprised," says Kelly Schillinger, his job coach at Challenge Unlimited, a nonprofit organization that helps people with disabilities find work. "But when he told me what he did that led to the job, it didn't surprise me at all, because that's just Jackie. That's how he is. He's a person with a good heart."

The effects of Morris' simple goodwill gesture didn't stop there. Four McDonald's operated by Bold's family have since hired 15 other people served by Challenge Unlimited, and Bold has received regional and state awards for his willingness to hire people with disabilities. "It's been a huge ripple effect," Schillinger says. "It just shows how a simple act of kindness can affect other people's lives. Because of Jackie and his kindness, a lot of other people have found jobs, too." ☆
