Clerk gets papers March 11 from residents on former state hospital property

By Parn Fleming STAFF WRITER

After months of speculation about the possible annexation of the former Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital township property to the city of Livonia, residents on the property filed the paperwork last week.

Northville Township Clerk Sue Hillebrand notified Chip Snider, township manager, Tuesday morning that she had received an e-mail from the Wayne County Clerk's office that the annexation papers were filed in Detroit at 9.56 a.m. March 11

"I think that the developer's distownship is sad but predictable at this juncture," Snider said. "I think it reflects on their character." This is a deliberate attempt by REIS to control local politics through intimidation." have to sign. Since only eight people live on the property, seven signatures was than more enough. The State Boundary Commission would then consider the matter. The annexation would have to be approved by Livonia voters on a primary or general election ballot, and a proposal could appear on a Livonia voting ballot as early as August Northville Township residents, by law, would have no vote in the matter.

Snider said county officials were scheduled to verify signatures at 10 a.m yesterday of the seven renting residents and registered voters who signed the petition

They want to review the voter registration cards on file at the township," Snider said

Copies of the residents' drivers licenses, which have new address stickers on the backs, showed that were Huntington Woods, Plymouth and Livonia. An affidavit as to the residency of the eight adults was submitted to the clerk's office by Grant Trigger, an engineer and attorney who works for REIS

Silver Springs first-ever event a success ... in ANY language

By Pam Fleming STAFF WRITER

Did you know that Spam, the brand name for that famous spiced, canned ham, is a staple of the Hawaiian diet?

Although it's not a foreign country, Hawaii's culture is unique. So, our 50th state was included as one of the displays at a cultural diversity celebration last Thursday at Silver Springs Elementary School.

The first such event, "Connecting Cultures, Connecting Families" was the brainchild of art teacher Debra Pares and Spanish teacher Suzanne Ender.

Students and families were invited to taste food from different countries, watch performances by Russian, Irish, Indian and Arabic dancers, listen to music from around the world and learn a little about various countries. Students from Miss Harriet's Dance Studio in downtown Northville provided a portion of the entertainment.

Ethel Tanner, grandmother of Silver Springs fourth-grader Joseph Tanner, said she came to Michigan from Hawaii around 1957. Her son, also named Joe, explained that the Portuguese brought Spam to Hawaii years ago, and it is still one of the state's most popular foods.

"They even have it at their McDonald's." he said.

"We have so many different nationalities, countries and cultures represented here at Silver Springs," Pares said. "When I teach art, that's something I incorporate - the art of different cultures. I thought it would be valuable to have different cultures and families share their customs.

We want our students to become aware of the multicultural aspects here at Silver Springs, Ender said. "We wanted to publicize it and celebrate it."

"Northville is a very diverse community," said Veena Reddy, a Silver Springs parent from India. "I think this is a wonderful way to introduce the topic of diversity to students and families."

Other displays besides Hawan included Mexico, the Czech Republic, Slovakia, Serbia, Scotland, Switzerland, Finland, Italy, China, Japan, South Korea, the Ukraine and Poland

Students were issued makebelieve passports and received a sticker of the country's flag for each exhibit they visited

Families created the displays themselves, with some of them working in groups. Pares said

Pares said the event focused on teaching students about the various cultures.

"A student may have a classmate or friend of a different nationality and have no idea about the country they're from," Pares said. "That's not what kids talk about But they can learn a lot at an event like this."

Scott Snyder, Silver Springs principal, who is Jamaican, said although it wasn't connected to the school's event, the district recently conducted a survey on diversity. (See story below left.)

A member of the Diversity Core Council, Snyder said, "We are studying what some of the perceptions and attitudes are regarding diversity. This function does tie into that."

Last month, the school had more than 20 students say "Hello" to the student body in their native language.

"I think there are more than 40 different languages spoken in the district," Snyder said "The idea behind our event was to raise awareness of the cultural diversity we have here at Silver Springs and to connect the different families. We want people to learn about the rich differences at our school."

"It's nice that the families worked together on the displays."

Cultural diversity awareness survey recognizes important role of families and schools

While survey results show Northville school parents believe increasing cultural diversity awareness is primarily the responsibility of families, they also recognize its importance in creating a successful learning environment and the cntical role played by school leaders

Northville Public Schools surveyed 8,200 school parents and staff in December 2007 and January 2008 regarding their perceptions of cultural diversity awareness in the school district. Nearly 1,600 people responded to the survey.

Some of the parent survey findings include:

81 percent of the school parents who responded said they are aware of the range of cultural diversity in their child's school.

80 percent of parent respondents said increasing cultural diversity awareness is a student and family responsibility and 75 percent said increasing a school's cultural diversity awareness is a community responsibility.

77 percent said cultural diversity awareness is an important component of a successful learning environment for their children and 66 percent said encouraging cultural diversity awareness is an important issue when considering their children's education.

Northville's Kristine Volk coordinates program on U.S.S.Roosevelt

By Aleea Hibbein SPECIAL WRITER

Northville resident, Kristine Volk, gets up-close and personal with the real Top Gun, not once, not twice, but six times and counting. Volk, a CPA and business development manager by vocation, volunteers as coordinator of the Distinguished Visitor outreach program, where she selects business and community leaders to sail aboard the U.SS. Theodore Roosevelt, a nuclear powered aircraft carrier.

Pifty-100 miles off the coast of Norfolk, Va., Volk and 11 Distinguished Members experience "a day in the life" of Navy sailors. And. literally, they are given about a 24- to 30-hour period to learn all they can about the hardships of a sailor. The group tours the ship room by room, asking the sailors questions about their jobs while watching them work.

"It's a life-changing experience to watch these kids work so hard to keep us safe at home," said Volk.

The purpose of the program is two-fold: to show civilian support to Navy sailors and to educate the public on the professionalism and dedication of the 19-year-old men and women.

"When the tour is over, the D.V.'s [Distinguished Visitors] will become ambassadors for the Navy back here in the Midwest," said Volk.

John Lindow, a Northville resident and vice president at Masco, and Min Howard, of Novi, were chosen to sail on the active ship for a tour that took place on March 3-4.

"I was really amazed by how disciplined the Navy crew was in operating the ship," said Howard. "It was cool to watch flights land and take off from the ship, but if you look closer, you see the guys down below who are navigating the ship and feeding the crew."

The nuclear-powered ship, which can stay at sea for 25 years without refueling, will deploy in September for active duty to points unknown to civilians. But Howard suspects the 5.500 Navy sailors will be headed somewhere in harm's way.

Meanwhile, pilots take off and land all hours of the day and night. The sailors, dressed color-coded according to job function, work like a well-choreographed ballet. But in this act, one false move and a pilot's life is over.

"The pilots are putting their lives in these kids' hands," said Volk. "There is no room for error"

But then, war never sleeps. The Distinguished Visitors have too much adrenaline running through their veins to get any shuteye, and besides, they don't want to miss a thing. Each D.V. only gets one shot at the ride of a lifetime. Sleep is for home.

Volk, who took over the coordinator position in 2005, said she has the best volunteer job in the world. A pilot herself, Volk likes to stand on Vultures Row, a safe overlook high above the deck. This is where she can hear the thunderous roar of the aircrafts through a layering of earplugs, goggles and an Emilia Erhardt-looking helmet. Volt and her awe-stricken friends will be perched until 2 a.m., watching a fleet of pilots learn how to be proficient in landing and taking off on a moving ship.

a moving ship. Volk, who has taken CFO's and educators on board the ship, said that it's not the prestige of the job that gets a person selected, it's the breadth of their network.

"We show support by telling our story to anyone who will listen about what these sailors go through, how organized they are, how hard they work." Howard said.

"I'm so impressed with the sailors' dedication and commitment to doing a great job under very stressful conditions." said Volt. They have so much pride in their work, and they make very little money. It's really a life-changing experience to see these sailors in action," she said.

Independent 'mad at both parties' challenges McCotter

By Hugh Gallagher OBSERVER STAFF WRITER

Ted McAvoy is mad at both major political parties.

"I think they've failed the American people," he said. "We prop them up after they have failed. Political parties maintain their own agendas, not ours." "That's why McAvoy is running as an independent in the contest for the lith District Congressional seat. Incumbent Republican Thaddeus McCotter is seeking a fourth term. Former Novi Čity Manager Ed Kreiwall and Tom Spencer, a minister and Air Force veteran, are competing for the Democratic nomination.

McAvoy, 30, who works in private security, was inspired by the longshot run of Texas Congressman Ron Paul in the Republican presidential primaries. McAvoy saw Paul in a rally last October and became involved in his campaign.

"What he said made sense about our economy and our foreign policy," McAvoy. "What really set me in tone to get involved in politics was seeing so many young people there and they were as inspired as I was."

McAvoy, who served in the U.S. Army, said he is opposed to the war in Iraq and McCotter's foreign policy positions.

"He supports our foreign policy. the war, maintaining our empire, deployments in Kosovo. Bosnia," McAvoy said. "When you see a man say it's OK to spend all these billions of dollars on people overseas, then turn around and oppose sCHIP. I didn't agree with everything in sCHIP but fundamentally I thought it was the right thing to do at this time in our history." McCotter voted against expanding coverage when the state Children's Health Insurance Program came up for renewal last year.

McAvoy said he served in Kosovo during Bill Clinton's administration and said a short term mission there has stretched into years of involvement.

"I think for many years we had global influence that was positive. We were viewed as positive," he said. "We've passed over the threshold where we are trying to force people to live how we want them to live. Once you do that you lose credibility and that's what we are doing in all these nations.".

He said the United States would be better off providing an, example to the world and helping countries in need. He said Cuba is an example of diplomatic failure.

"I don't think we should do anything to help the regime down there, but does anyone seriously think that if we had free trade, with our influence on their economy, that he (Fidel Castro) would have stayed in power all these years," he said.

McAvoy said he shares some of Ron Paul's libertarian views, but not all.

"With Ron Paul, I agree with what he says on the federal level. States should be deciding a lot of these issues themselves and shouldn't be dictated to by Washington," McAvoy said. "We have a few differences. I think the government has an obligation to educate. Children are our future. That's something I'll stand by forever.' For McAvoy the No. 1 issue for Michigan is "unfair trade practices.

"I think a lot of these politicians who are saying your old jobs are gone and get a new one are wrong. That job was here for 70 years, why is it not here now," he said. "If we attack these unfair trade policies, it will come back."

He said raising taxes is not the answer, but he is opposed to making the Bush tax cuts permanent when they expire.

"It's unfair. The only way I would support a tax increase or decrease is if it's fair," he said.

"It's hard to say how you would vote or not because of the way legislation is written. In the current form, no. 1 wouldn't support it. On immigration, McAvoy said it is a pressing issue. He said he supports a program that would bring forward people to be documented and issued short-term work visas. He said he is opposed to allowing illegal aliens to become citizens, but he also opposes rounding up people and deporting them, which he said would be impractical.

On health care, McAvoy said he is opposed to a government health program but favors some government assistance to low-income families to pay for private health insurance.

McAvoy realizes his chances of being elected are slim. He will be going door to door and he has a Web site. He has received some contributions.

"The real issue is that my issues that I feel we need to address will come forward and that Thaddeus McCotter will have to address them at some point, in an interview or perhaps we'll have a debate," he said.

"I would like to see him change on some of these, but I don't see that happening."

bers of the Great Lake, Great Michigan coalition, environmental experts, lawmakers and residents.

Speakers were Bob Thorsen. Trout Unlimited: Patty Gillis, Voices for Earth Justice; Cyndi Roper, Clean Water Action; James Clift, Michigan Environmental Council; and state representatives Marc Corriveau (D-Northville). Rebekah Warren (D-Ann Arbor) and Kathleen Law (D-Gibralter).

Outside of the budget. "There's no bigger issue to Michiganders than the diversion of water, the Great Lakes and our environment," Corriveau said "Water is one of our major assets."

The Michigan House and Senate are currently holding legislative committee hearings on competing packages of water legislation.

HB 4343 ratifies the Great Lakes Basin Compact, a multistate and international agreement crafted to set specific statutory standards to protect Michigan water from abusive withdrawals and diversions.

Other House bills on this issue are HB5065-5073. Senate bills include SB721-729 and SB 860.

While the Great Lakes, Great Michigan coalition supports House Bills 4343 and 5065 and Senate companion bills 721-729, it has a number of concerns with Senate Bills 212 and 860.

Opposition to the Senate bills

Opponents of SB 212, say that platform, require large water users in sensitive areas to obtain a permit, place our groundwater in the public trust to ensure public control of our water and make sure that local residents, not multinational corporations, have a say in approving large water withdrawal proposals.

Trout Unlimited's mission

"Our mission is to protect, conserve and restore cold water fisheries, which happen to be sensitive to water withdrawal," said Thorsen. "We think it's very important to protect our cold waters. They are really true gems of nature."

Clift, who presented an overview of the competing legislation, said the Senate bill would allow enough water to be withdrawn that could impact up to 5 percent of fish and up to 25 percent of water in streams.

The House bill would allow withdrawals that would impact less than 1 percent of fish and up to 12 percent of stream water.

"We are allowing 12-13 percent of available water to be taken out," Clift said. "It's not all or nothing. State oversight and community involvement in decision making will lead to better protection of our water resources

"These are public waters, and we are advocating for public control," Roper said.

Gillis explained why faith-based organizations are interested in prowhile it also ratifies the compact, it tecting our waters "We see this as

What legislation could provide

All the Great Lakes states want to enter into the great Lakes Basin Compact so that eight states can have specific standards for making sure we're protecting our water.

The compact would strictly limit water diversions outside the basin to straddling communities. The key is to not have diversions that produce any significant individual or cumulative impact on the environment.

Now, the city is becoming a hub for health care as major medical facilities are popping up throughout the city alongside others that have been entrenched in the community for years.

Rob Casalou, president of St John Providence Park, said the region between Interstate-275 and the Brighton area has become a prime location for new medical providers because of population growth and need

"Health care is still a growing part of the economy. It's still employing a lot of people. In the southeastern Michigan economy, Novi has thrived at a time when a lot of communities have declined," he said

Mandarin Chinese among offerings in Northville's Summer School Program

Mandarin Chinese, online credit recovery for math and English courses for high school students, and the opportunity to begin earning high school credit for incoming freshman are some of the offerings in this year's Northville Public Schools' Summer Connections program

Also back by popular demand this summer are Fun Friday enrichment classes for elementary school students Classes include Animal Adventures I and II, Mad Scientists I and II, and Claying Around I and H

The expanded summer school program is offered at three levels through Elementary Summer Connections, Middle School Summer Connections and High School Summer Connections Registration for all three programs begins May 12 and ends June 23 Brochures and registration forms are available now in each school building and on the district's web site at northville k12 mi us/summerschool asp Classes are June 23-July 24 for high school and middle school students and June 23-July 23 for elementary students. All classes take place at Northville High School.

Summer School Principal Bob Boshoven said the school district has expanded the program to include new enrichment opportunities, as well as to give high school and incoming high school students the opportunity to fulfill some of the new Michigan Ment Curriculum requirements over the summer, freeing up space on their schedules in the fall to explore elective courses.

"We are excited to be able to offer such a wide variety of learning experiences." Boshoven said "Students can build skills in key academic areas, get a head start on the Michigan Merit Curnculum requirements, as well as explore new areas through our enrichment classes."

The most exciting new offering is the Mandarin Chinese 101 class being offered in partnership with Schoolcraft College. The college level course, open only to high school students, will cover basic grammar patterns, and build competence in all four skill areas - speaking, listening, reading and writing. Northville High School students will earn college (and possibly high school) credit for successful completion of the class. Registration for this course is available only through Schoolcraft College. The information packet for the course, including registration materials, is available on the district web site.

Summer Connections also is offering Michigan Virtual School Student Direct courses for high school students in Algebra I. English 9 and English 10. The online courses are an additional credit recovery option for students who have previously taken the course as part of their regular academic schedule and need to recover credit or improve their grade. These classes are student-directed, selfpaced and entirely online with support from a mentor teacher.

Incoming ninth graders can get an early start on their high school career by earning credit for successful completion of Algebra I, American History or Physical Education over the summer. Current eighth graders considering this option should be passing all of their eighth grade classes and receive a recommendation from one of the Northville middle school principals who will consider the student's overall GPA, class selection and general school performance.

Middle School Transition (for current fifth graders entering middle school) and High School Transition (for current eighth graders entering high school) classes are being offered again this year through Summer Connections. The courses build confidence and self-esteem by strengthening academic, organization and study skills. Student also have the opportunity to meet classmates from the other elementary and middle schools and get answers to questions about social issues, lunch hours and other components of the middle and high school day.

Registration for Summer Connections classes, which begins May 12, also is available in person at the Board of Education offices, 501 West Main Street (three blocks west of Center Street), or by mail. Parents are encouraged to register students early to ensure classes are not canceled due to lack of registrations.

For more information, call (248) 344-8447.

An English Language Learners class also is offered for students completing grades 3-5, 6-8 and 9-

Other classes offered through Summer Connections include:

Elementary Summer Connections: Students entering first grade can continue to build reading/writing readiness and math skills through the First Grade Development class. Other classes include Reading and Writing Workshop I (Foundations in Language Arts) and Investigations into Math and Science I for students who have completed first or second grade. Reading and Writing Workshop II (Constructing a Complete Language Arts Learner) and Investigations into Math and Science II are available for students who have completed third or fourth grade.

• Middle School Connections: Math and English classes are available for muddle school students. The math class will help students who wish to enhance their math competency. The English class provides language arts enrichment and reinforces spelling, process writing, grammar and literature skills.

• High School Connections: A variety of credit classes are offered to high school students including English Nine and English Ten, Algebra I. Biology, Earth Science Essentials, American History, Civics. International Issues. Economics, Physical Education and Seminar

Cassis' SAVE the Children bill now heads to Michigan House

Bill would help students who have problemsin early learning

By Pam Fleming STAFF WRITER

State Sen. Nancy Cassis (R-Novi) said a bill she sponsored on the SAVE the Children program, now headed for the Michigan House of Representatives, is one of the most critical pieces of legislation of her career.

"I really think this might be one of my lasting legacies as a state legislator," Cassis said.

Recently, the state Senate unanimously passed SB 1039 that would help prevent early learning problems and give students skills they need to succeed in school and life.

"This program has transformed students and teachers through its holistic approach to overcoming learning obstacles," Cassis said. "By intervening early, we help ensure long-term academic and life success.

The bill would empower school districts to identify problems early, intervene before students begin to struggle and give students skills to success.

It would allow intermediate school districts to develop and make available to constituent districts and public school academies a model early intervention program for students in kindergarten through third grade.

Under Cassis' proposal, each district's SAVE program would instruct teachers and support staff on how to monitor student learning and provide support or learning strategies as early as possible to reduce inappropriate referrals to special education.

Related bills already passed

Dr. Robert Sornson, former director of Special Services for Northville Public Schools and current president and founder of the Early Learning Foundation in Brighton, said two related bills passed years ago.

One bill authorizes sites based on an early learning initiative he created in conjunction with other teachers when he was with Northville schools. The bill

She knows of what she speaks

State Sen. Nancy Cassis (R-Novi) said as a former school psychologist, she can really see the benefits of an early learning intervention program.

This is not something new," Cassis said. "This goes back to my formal training at the University of Michigan under the late Dr. William Morse, professor in the combined education and psychology program."

Cassis said Morse, who also served as a consultant to Livonia schools in the 1970s, developed one of the first early learning intervention programs in the state.

The bill she sponsored that's now in the Michigan House of Representatives will allow intermediate school districts to develop a model intervention program and make it available to individual districts. It would also place this "permissive language" in the school code permanently.

These children become can-do learners, and it's really remarkable," Cassis said. "The goal is to catch them (struggling students) and catch them young. The teachers are really sold on this program."

passed but was then cut from the state budget mid-year.

"Essentially, we created a pilot site and developed a model to support children struggling in their early years," Sornson said.

Program saves schools money

Through this pilot program, Northville schools were able to significantly reduce the number of students referred for special education.

This has saved the Northville district $7.3 million, directed to other uses, since the program was initiated in 1996. A school district can spend $70,000-$100,000 on each special education student's K-12 education

This is money that Northville schools didn't have to theoretically spend over a 10-year period," Sornson said.

While the state average of children in special education is 14.2 percent, Northville's is now only 5.3 percent.

This is not only good for kids but society in general," Sornson said.

"By the time a child reaches the end of third grade, learning patterns are formed as well as their self-image and self-concept as a learner," he said.

Sadly, Somson said an article in the Detroit News recently reported the graduation rate for city of Detroit students in grades K-12 at only 32 percent.

Teachers know which students are struggling," he said. "Yet. in most cases, there are not adequate support structures to help these children.'

Last year, a bill passed to place language in the school aid funding bill for intermediate school districts to provide such programs.

The current bill would place permissive language into the school code that would allow districts to use some of their budget for these types of programs.

Northville schools Superintendent Leonard Rezmierski said Northville started its early intervention program at Silver Springs Elementary in 1996.

"The next couple of years, all the elementary schools endorsed it," he said.

'Our current program is a credit to the planning and support of the Board of Education as well as the teachers and principals who have tweaked it." Rezmierski said. The program is offered in grades K-5 in Northville. "We're excited about this possibly being offered district-wide," Rezmierski said.

Cassis said her bill will be assigned to the House Education Committee.

believes the program sells itself.

"Any school district that has used it has seen successful

Police were dispatched to S. Main Street and Doheny Drive about a vehicle in the river north of the Stitching Post at 200 S. Main St. at 12:05 p.m. March 1. The black, 2003 Chevrolet Avalanche was lying on its driver's side with the front end pointing upstream in 1-2 feet of water. The driver, a 53-year-old Northville Township woman, told police the vehicle went out of control when she turned onto northbound Main Street from Seven Mile Road, accelerating rapidly with all electronics activating and warning lights flashing. She could not shut off the vehicle but was able to shift into neutral and steer it into a snow bank in the hopes of stopping it before injuring anyone. The snow bank, sloped against a guardrail, acted more as a ramp, launching the vehicle over the guardrail. The driver had minor lacerations on her hands and face and was transported to St. Mary Mercy Hospital in Livonia. Later, a DPW mechanic was not able to get the vehicle started, but reported that the radio, turn signals, hazard lights and headlights would turn on and off on their own accord despite switches being in the off position.

POLICE BRIEFS - CITY OF NORTHVILLE

Woman's car spray painted

A 26-year-old Northville woman reported that her vehicle was vandalized between 9:30 and 10:30 p.m. March 15 while it was parked in a city lot near Poole's Tavern at 157 E. Main St. The woman told police she parked her car, a black 2006 Jeep Grand Cherokee, went to Poole's for dinner, and when she returned, she noticed that someone had spray painted the passenger side of the vehicle with yellow paint.

The vehicle was parked on the south side of the lot in the row against the patio area for Great Harvest Bread Company.

The woman said she saw two male juveniles with skateboards leaving the area near her vehicle as she approached it. She also heard one of the juveniles say to the other. "Now you owe me five bucks."

The paint began at the rear passenger door of the vehicle, including the window and extended forward to the front panel just above the front passenger tire.

More spray painting

Jeff Moon, an employee of the Northville Parks and Recreation Department, reported that someone spray painted a picture on the back steps of the Northville Community Senior Center at 303 W. Main St. between 11 p.m. March 5 and 11 a.m. March 6.

Moon reported that he found more graffiti on the south entrance to the recreation hall that was a picture of a man's face.

He also discovered two more pictures spray painted at Ford Field near the stairs on the west side of the field. The pictures appeared to be from some type of stencil.

Theft at Planet Fitness

A 37-year-old Livonia man reported that his cell phone was stolen between 6 and 7 p m March 15 while he was at Planet Fitness at 235 E. Main St.

The man told police he went into the men's locker room and hung his coat on one of the coat hooks, with his cell phone in the right, front pocket.

He knew that it had been in his coat because he remembered switching the audio to vibrate before hanging up the coat.

The man left the workout facility about 7 p.m. and went to Meijer's. While in the store, he reached into his pocket and realized the phone was missing

The phone was valued at $250.

The initiative provides resources for districts to identify problems early so students may become successful learners.

We have seen first-hand how it has promoted early learning, saved districts money and kept children from being placed in special education programs erroneously.

During Northville's implementation of early intervention and identification programming, the district dropped to near 6 percent special education rate, compared to the state's rate of 13.9 percent at the same time.

When Northville began training of its early educators, its special education rate was at 10.2 percent

Last Tuesday's Detroit Free Press headline - "City's residency rule could cost millions for charities" - provide the world with yet one more example of the depressing myopia gripping the City of Detroit's leadership.

I am referring to the Detroit City Council resolution which may prevent millions in federal dollars from being spent by honored charities such as Focus Hope and the Detroit Rescue Mission, unless a majority of their board members live in the City of Detroit.

Our metro area is full of people who still love the city of their birth. and our metro downtown. Yet, the Council sees only a syndicate of social imperialists, out to damage Detroit, apparently, with their freely-given talents, their love and their good works.

Why, when the long-suffering people of the City of Detroit call out for a life preserver, does their leadership always seem to throw them a cinder block?

Energy legislation

Michigan desperately needs energy legislation to install more efficient use - the best bet per dollar spent - and spark investment in renewables. Both will create good jobs here and stop the hemorrhage of billions of dollars a year for out of state coal.

Far cheaper in the long run than coal or nuclear, renewable energy is our only real hope of achieving energy independence and mitigating the effects of global warming. Renewables are an investment in a bright and secure future; their value as energy is far greater than any fossil fuel or nuclear option can ever

A process called Integrated Resource Planning (IRP), which measures the real and sometimes hidden life-cycle costs of each alternative is the only way to ensure consumers the most benefit for their dollars.

Current legislation in the House is close to fulfilling the promise of energy efficiency and renewables by requiring IRPs. Don't be duped by utility shills like Cox: coal and nuclear will cost you far more, even if they don't kill your kids - slowly.

Control our water

While Michigan is struggling with many economic challenges, we are fortunate to have natural beauty and valuable resources afforded by our waterways. The lakes, steams, and rivers in Michigan are something to be cherished and protected. At this very moment, our precious water resource is in play in our state govemment. It's a topic that should not be taken lightly by Michigan residents.

The Michigan senate has proposed a weak water bill that would allow large percentages of our water to be taken without any permit. With little to no government oversight and no opportunity for public input, that water would be gone forever. The water bills coming out of the House are closer to what we need - more stringent requirements for permits and public review of large volume water-takers. Please don't let the Senate give out unchecked access to our precious water ways. We struggle to keep companies from exporting jobs; let's at least control the export of our water.

Which 'bag'?

Viewing the candidates like three people carrying their own individual brown paper bags. One, a fresh, compelling, slow-speaking candidate suggesting something called hope and dancing hyperbole carrying no concrete evidence of achievement. The second one toting a bag, holding claims to extraordinary experience and solutions - but a bag large and heavy with air alone. Then comes the uncomplicated older guy carrying a bag with only simple facts, blunt but honest talk, personal characteristics of unique quality and a background of experience with problems actually solved. In such an important national lottery, which bag will the public choose to risk its future?

Real life is hard to maintain with a bombardment of the easy political promises toward the self interest of Americans. Not wholly unlike the optimism about promised leadership in Michigan, the downside was invisible until the potholes showed up. A specific pothole of support of political aimlessness will be a forthcoming horror caused by the rush to com-based ethanol with ignorance of the reality of its energy-intense production requirement; as a fuel, a terrible effect on the environment. The worst will be the price paid by all in the cost of the American public's food supply. The food costs will expand public misery, coupled with additional "investment" tax plan cards still remaining covered up by tin horn politicians. Then, the scramble for faultfinding will be again something to behold.

Future fueled by education

One of Michigan's major handicaps has been the profound ignorance most families have about the vital importance of higher education to their children's future

Fortunately, a solution may finally be in sight

But now, as for decades, the prevarling culture scandalously disrespects learning. The single most depressing statistic I've seen was ina Detroit News statewide poll last year. That survey found that only 27 percent of Michigan families believed post-high school education and training was vital to the success of their children

That means nearly three-quarters of adults in this state families feel getting a high school diploma sets their kids up for life!

That might have been true 40 years ago, when they could hope to catch on with, as the workers put it. "Ford's" or, "Generous Motors" But nobody who knows anything about today's financially interconnected flat world believes this any more.

The sad fact that so many Michigan families still think that way shows the continuing power of our "assembly-line culture," that had endured for generation upon generation. In that world, a brawnbased 10b on the line is the fastest and swiftest route to financial secuntv

But that world is as gone as the tail fin. So what's going to change this deeply rooted, deeply dangerous habit of thought? It won't be speeches, sermons, even newspaper columns like this one

It will take something that affects directly thousands and thousands of Michigan families. Fortunately, there's something on the horizon that can do that. It's shown in an important study prepared by the Center for Automotive Research and sponsored by the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation The bottom line. After a decade of downsizing, the auto companies are going to start hiring again The big question What kinds of skills will they require?

Let's peer into the future. · Over the next eight years, Detroit automakers plan to hire

77,000 new workers in the U.S. 46,000 of those in Michigan Within the next four years, the automakers should hire around 36,000 workers in Michigan. 24,000 for hourly production jobs: the rest salaried.

• This hiring will come on the heels of continued massive job losses in the auto industry. The auto industry, which already has downsized by hundreds of thousands. will cut more than 14,000 jobs over the next four years and around 20,000 jobs through 2016.

. Then why are they hiring new workers? Simple. Their new contract with the United Auto Workers union makes it worthwhile. New non-assembly jobs will pay $14 per hour, about half what they used to pay, and won't include retiree health care or pension benefits

Result: It's plaunly in the companues' interest to get nd of expensive older workers and hire less-expensive new labor.

The Detroit car companies are expected to hire around 19,000 hourly workers in Michigan next year. That's enormous --- a number equivalent to one-sixth of the expected total graduation class from Michigan high schools.

The crucial question is this:

About Phil Power

Former newspaper publisher and University of Michigan Regent Phil Power is a longtime observer of Michigan politics and economics. He is also the founder and president of The Center for Michigan, a centrist think-and-do tank. The opinions expressed here are Power's own and do not represent the official views of The Center. Power welcomes your comments at ppower@thecenterformichigan.net.

What kind of education level and work experience will the auto companies require? If they demand tudes education credentials and skills well beyond just a high school diploma, they'll be making a direct attack on Michigan's long-established and backward cultural disrespect for learning. A small precedent already has been established. Chrysler's successful engine plant in Dundee, which is a joint venture with Mitsubishi and Hyundai. Workers there must have at least an associate's degree from a community college to get a job. Unfortunately, the plant only employs around 500, not enough to affect attitudes in thousands of Michigan families.

However, if the automakers do collectively hire some 19,000 people in this state next year, that is a number big enough to achieve critical mass in changing public atti-

What Michigan needs to realize is that the auto industry has transformed its manufacturing basis from a brawn-based to a brainbased model. It's no longer enough for a new hire to get to work more or less on time and not get into fights with his or her foreman.

Today, auto workers need high levels of literacy, math, computer and communications skills. They'll need to be able to learn on the job, to change as the technology changes. And they'll have to have an open attitude toward learning to survive.

All this offers Michigan a terrific chance to attack our long-standing cultural bias against learning after high school

The auto companies themselves would find it in their interest to launch an initiative with the high schools and community colleges to urge young people to keep learning. Mike Flanagan, Michigan's smart and sensible Superintendent of Schools, should convene a toplevel meeting with human resource leaders to send the message to Michigan families. In turn, the Michigan Economic Development Corporation (MECD), Governor Jennifer Granholm and the leaders in the Legislature should reach out to the media and advertising industries to promote the necessity of lifelong learning.

We've got a terrific opportunity staring us in the face, right now, to start changing the generations-long, harmful attitudes that have helped to cripple our state. So let's grab it!

Curves shines

The Northville Curves earned its Shining Star club designation, given to clubs that meet rigorous standards in their business practices, service quality, and adherence to the Curves methods.

Clubs applying for Shining Star status must complete a lengthy checklist of items in a number of different categories, and then submit it to their area director. Shining Star Club status is given only after all documentation is reviewed and approved by corporate.

"Becoming a Shining Star Club wasn't easy." said Leslie Rosaen. Northville Curves franchise owner. "But the process helped us to identify areas where we could improve and also highlighted areas where we were already excelling. We are proud to be a Curves Shining Star club."

Shining Star clubs receive many benefits from the designation. including window decals, Web site identification, staff ID pins, and special recognition at corporate events.

Programs are available to franchises to help them become Shining Star Clubs, including the Mentor Retainer program and the 2-Day Tune-up.

Also, Curves of Northville will be participating in the Curves Food Drive to benefit local food banks. Curves is offering a discounted service fee of $30 for any new member who brings in a bag of non-perishable groceries and commits to a 12-month CD membership between March 3 and March 15. Last year, a quarter of a million new members joined Curves during the food drive.

Others wishing to donate may drop off non-perishable food items at Curves Monday through Friday during business hours through the month of March.

This year's food drive includes a twist: a weekly theme that gives people fun options and helps them pick healthy foods to donate. The schedule includes: Week 1-Empty Your Pantry of Healthy Staples: Week 2: Foods From Around the World: Week 3: Souper Suppers: Week 4: Family Friendly items including healthy snacks for kids and baby necessities.

Brenda Hallberg is a living testament to the fact that a person's career can take some interesting turns.

Trained as an emergency department nurse, she changed gears and decided to become a baker.

On March 11, the Royal Oak resident opened the Rustique Bakery in Northville Township in the new Heslip's Corner shopping center on the south-east corner of Seven Mile and Napier roads.

Hallberg is also a part-time baking instructor at Schoolcraft College in Livonia's Culinary Arts Program and does case management for the emergency department at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak on a contingent basis.

She even found the space to lease at Heslip's Corner through her Schoolcraft College connections.

"One of the girls I work with at Schoolcraft's son is a construction worker and did some work on this building," she said. "The construction workers were all looking for a place to eat lunch in the area, and she told me, 'You should open your place there.' I looked at the building, and I liked it."

Guests can dine at one of four small tables in the business or carry out food. Hallberg and her assistant, pastry chef Heather Moore, also provide catering services.

Moore was a student at Schoolcraft College and served as Hallberg's sous chef for a semester as well as the college's pastry chef for a couple of years. Specialty cakes for special occasions, including wedding cakes, are also provided.

"Eventually, we're going to offer cooking classes once we get a rhythm here on how things are going to go." Hallberg said.

One day when making cupcakes for a bridal shower while a student in Schoolcraft College's Culinary Arts Program, Brenda Hallberg saw a description of cupcakes in Bon Appetit magazine in which frosting was palette-knived on, then garnished with fresh flowers.

Break-a-Thon

Greg Martin spearheaded a "Break-a-Thon" with his Northville PKSA karate school students on March 3. In just over one week, the students raised $1,590 for teacher Lorna Rootare, whose Webster Elementary classroom (Livonia) was destroyed by arson fire last month. Rootare is a Northville resident to two children active in karate. Martin runs a wonderful martial arts program for many Northville students and this is just one example of their focus on great qualities like honor, respect, discipline, community service and teamwork," said Susan Krygler, whose son Brennen is shown ready to break a board held by Martin.

International program builds self-esteem in pre-teen girls

By Kelly Murad STAFF WRITER

As a mother of an 8-year-old girl, Lisa Baumbick feels it's never too early to start dealing with the issue of self-esteem.

"There's never not a good time to deal with raising self-esteem for a child," Baumbick said. "My daughter, she's in third grade, I think it's a perfect age when they're becoming more involved with sports, more involved with friendships

It's reasons such as Baumbick's rationale the program Girls on the Run International was founded to educate and prepare girls for a lifetime of self-respect and healthy living.

The non-profit organization is designed to help pre-teen girls deal with issues such as society. peers and parents, while training for a 5K (3.1 mile) running event

"It's to enhance the self-esteem of these young girls," said Mallery Wethers, recreation coordinator for the Novi Parks. Recreation and Forestry Department "It combines training for a 5K race with doing uplifting workouts "

The Novi Parks, Recreation and Forestry Department has partnered with Girls on the Run International to offer this empowering program to local girls. grades three to five.

"It fits into our goal here to promote healthy active lifestyles." Wethers said. "Physical fitness can help (girls) in more ways than just getting their body the way

"With the media out there, they get negative images in their mind of how they should look and act. It's to not only be conscious of their physical appearance, but to help them build on emotional and social skills"

The international program has made a positive impact on the mental, social, emotional, spiritual and physical health of thousands of preteen girls.

"I think this is a great program." Baumbick said "It's not only about the athletics of it, it's about self-esteem."

For Bailey Baumbick, 8, it's the physical and social aspects of the program she's excited for.

"I'm looking forward to meeting new friends and getting to be able to run with my mom (in the end)." Bailey said "My mom is always the one who gets to run and play with my sisters when I'm not there so it gives me a chance to do something she likes to do."

Lisa recently began running and believes Bailey will benefit from training with girls her own

"I've never run in my whole life and l've never been a very athletic person," Lisa said. "But when you start and feel better about yourself, it releases endorphins I want Bailey to enjoy it as well

Although Bailey is actively involved in sports, this will be her first 5K running event. On the contrary, 10-year-old

"I'm running 5Ks with my mom, and I want to get better," Quinn said. "I'm excited to do the next 5K with (her) so I can see how much I improved."

This will be the first time Quinn has ever trained for an event.

Get involved

The Girls on the Run Program is open to Novi residents, as well as non-residents.

The deadline for registration is today, and the session begins March 31.

The girls will meet twice a week, for 10 weeks to discuss common preteen issues and participate in team-oriented training.

According to the Girls on the Run International Web site, the objective of the program is to reduce the potential display of atrisk activities among its participants. The goal is fewer adolescent pregnancies and eating disorders, less depression and suicide attempts, as well as fewer substance and alcohol abuse problems and confrontations with the juvenile justice system.

The program will end with a 5K race June 7, joining together the girls from the Oakland and Macomb county programs.

Wethers, who was a volunteer coach for the program while attending Central Michigan University, said they are still looking for coaches.

"It can help these adults bond with these girls," she said.

Milford's Klancy's to feature new mmm-menu

By Aileen Wingblad STAFF WRITER

Klancy's is taking on a brand new flavor.

Within the next few weeks, the Milford restaurant will be adding plenty of menu items for customers - from breakfast skillets and specialty salads to roll-ups and new dinner selections

"We're keeping the favorites, but jazzing up the rest," said Dave McManamon, who coowns Klancy's with his wife Amy McManamon bought the restaurant in 1994 and sold it 10 years later to his manager. Last June, he said, ownership returned to him Since Klancy's is a franchise, McManamon for many years was limited on altering the menu. That all changed recently when he was given the go-ahead to try some new things.

And everything will be made in-house, he added.

With Milford's competitive restaurant scene, McManamon said he's looking forward to offering the new choices for customers. "Klancy's has been around a long time, and people have their favorites. But also, people want to try different things, too," he said. McManamon is also happy to say he'll soon be returning to Milford to work every day at Klancy's. Right now, he spends most of his time at his White Lake restaurant, Dave and Amy's. "I want people to know I'll be coming back full-time, ' he said. Klancy's is open every day from 7 a m. to 9 p m. Who signed the petition?

These are the eight residents and registered voters living in four security trailers on the former Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital property in Northville Township on Seven Mile Road who filed the Petition for Annexation of the property:

- Randolph P. Koltyk
- Abigail F. Kołtyk Brian G. Hodge
- Amanda Parzen · Richard Daley
- Tammy Brown
- Dale Hilden -

One of the eight residents on the property,

Natalie Miller, did not sign the petition.

Petition to annex filed

Petition for Annexation due to federal judge Sean Cox issuing a gag order on the board during the pending litigation.

"The gag order is still in effect, so members of the board of trustees cannot comment on the property," Snider said.

It has been rumored for some time that when the developer, REIS, a partnership between Real Estate Interests Group and Schostak Brothers & Co, moved eight people into four security trailers on the property that they had annexation of the property to neighboring Livonia in mind.

Prior to the annexation talk, REIS filed a $100-million lawsuit against the township when the township's board of trustees failed to approve the developer's plan for Highwood, an $800-million, mixed-use development on 414 acres. The township board of trustees did approve a plan that included concessions to ordinances in the first quarter of 2007, but REIS never responded.

REIS wants to build a development with houses, condominiums, apartments, senior housing, commercial, retail, a medical complex and a school, but the developer claims it needs a higher density than the township allows to make it a viable plan. Township leaders say the developer must follow their ordinances.

Livonia mayor comments

Livonia Mayor Jack Kirksey said he just learned about the annexation petition on Tuesday.

"We want people to realize that we've not been involved in the controversy between the officials of Northville Township and the devel-opers," Kirksey said. "Our highest hope is that their differences can be resolved and that property can be developed. That will add to the excitement and the vitality of that 'golden corridor' along Haggerty Road."

Kirksey said he knows people on both sides of the issue and wants it to be "negotiated and resolved."

"Bob Schostak is held in high regard," Kirksey said. "He has put up high-quality developments in Livonia and has been a good corporate citizen."

Kirksey cited Schostak's recent $100-million investment in the redo of Wonderland Mall at Plymouth and Middlebelt roads.

"We've had good experiences with him, and if we did annex the hospital property, we would be looking for it to be developed to its own best potential," he said. "It's up to the voters. We're watching with great interest."

Citizens respond

Laurie Marrs is a member of the steering committee of Citizens for Northville, a grass-roots organization that has endorsed the modified plan that township officials approved more than a year ago.

"I am so incredibly angered, because all along we knew that's what they (REIS) were planning." Marrs said. "We knew when they put those trailers on the property and drove those residents to the township to register to vote that they were planning an annexation. They acted like they were innocent, but let's be realistic. Why did they put bathrooms and living quarters into a security trailers?"

Fred Shadko, another member of Citizens for Northville, said, "It wasn't too long ago that REIS was claiming that they had no intention of annexing that property to Livonia. I'm disappointed that REIS would not come back to the negotiating table and work out a development with the township that would best serve our community and the entire region."

"I think it really shows that's why they (REIS) put those people on the property," said Carol Poenisch of Citizens for Northville. "That was their real intent. It wasn't for security like they claimed. We do want the property to be developed, and we want the property to remain in Northville Township."

Poenisch said a ballot question committee called Michigan Jobs Now has been formed by the people living on the former hospital property.

Marrs said Citizens for Northville's plans now are to start a letter-writing campaign that will continue to urge the passing of annexation legislation in the Michigan legislature, and soon, State Rep. Marc Corriveau (D-Northville) and Sen Bruce Patterson (R-Canton) have both introduced legislation currently being considered

If the legislation passes, the property on Seven Mile Road would be affected as the legislation was introduced before the Petition for Annexation was filed 'My question is, 'Why does

REIS want that land to go to Livonia?" Marrs asked. "Are they planning a big box retail store because they can't get it here in Northville? Can we believe anything they say? Their words are now challenged What else will they he about to Northville and Livonia?

How credible are they?"

An Evening with Douglas Danielak

Calling Ryan Waugh simply a winemaker would not do justice to all the work he does. Better to call him a brand ambassador. Ryan spends most of his time when not in the vineyard. on the road, hosting wine dinners and tastings at some of the finest restaurants in the country. It is here that he spends time with customers old and new and shares with them his experiences in winemaking and connects them through the unique joys of wine drinking.

Serious wine enthusiasts don't need an introduction to Michigan native Douglas Danielak. He has distinguished himself as a world class winemaker at White Rock Vineyards, Jade Mountain Winery, and the esteemed. Paras Vineyards. Douglas has degrees in Viticulture and Enology, has interned at top estates in the Cote D'Or and has exceptional winemaking experience in the Napa Valley. His enthusiasm for winemaking makes this a special wine tasting event.

Blickle capped off his career as part of the state-

American swim with the 400 freestyle relay team and a second- and third-place finish in individual events.

"He leaves as an All-American, which is pretty cool for him," Bennetts said.

While naturally gifted, that wasn't all that Blickle relied on. Hard work in practice helped, but Bennetts saw one more thing in him. "When he steps up on the block, he just refuses to be beat."

Bennetts said he and Blickle didn't always see things eye to eye, but this past year was the best as far as understanding and working together.

Wildcat Johnson uses versatility for top honor

By Jeff Theisen RECORD SPORTS WRITER

Novi's Caroline Johnson is the girls basketball player of the year after wearing many hats for the KVC co-champion Wildcats.

"I think the thing that makes her special is she's versatile," Novi head coach Bill Kelp said. "She can play all five positions.

"Sometimes she even played the two extreme positions point guard and center — on the same possession."

Versatility was huge for the Wildcats as they had to deal with injuries and illnesses that kept Novi from practicing with a full team all year.

"What's amazing is she showed up and was consistent every night, especially when all in a single season at Lakeland. He also moved up to sixth all-time on the career scoring list with 719 points.

"In the past there have been a few weaknesses to his game, but this year you really couldn't say anything bad about his game," said Brugger. "He improved in a lot of areas and did a lot of the little things like diving for loose balls and taking charges. He is a complete player and he brings a lot of the intangibles to the game."

First Team

Northville's Dan Kirkpatrick makes the All-Area First Team thanks to his success on the court despite playing multiple positions throughout the year. He averaged 12.9 points a game with 9.5 rebounds and 5.3 assists.

He played out of position because the team needed him to," Northville head coach Darrel Schumacher said. "He was outstanding at point guard all year."

Rounding out the rest of the First Team selections are Nonthville's Dan Kirkpatrick, Novi's Caleb Dean and Chris Bellamy, Catholic Central's Tim Dezelski, South Lyon's Zach Short and Lakeland's Blake Heiman.

the teams we played know her and gameplan to slow her down," Kelp said. "When she doesn't have all her teammates around her because of the injuries and illnesses, they can focus on her even more.

"I guess that's what made it even more special for her."

Johnson led 17-4 Wildcats in several categories: 10.6 points, 5.5 rebounds, 21 blocks and 26 threepointers. She also snared 37 steals.

"She was our go-to player." Kelp said. "I think the one asset about her that all great players have is that she makes everyone around her better, too."

The coaches of the KVC awarded Johnson with the league's Player of the Year honor.

"I think they saw what we see every day," Kelp said. "They recognized how versatile she is."

With Johnson just a sophomore. Kelp is excited to see how much her game could grow in her junior and senior seasons.

What's going to be fun is the future and watching her hopefully become more of a team leader." Kelp said

First Team

The All-Area First Team is made up of Northville's Sarah Stern. Novi's Katie Chaklos. Lakeland's Maghan Kunze and South Lyon's Danielle Gotham.

Stern ran the offense as well as provided the quick hands needed to play defense. She led the team in assists (3.2) and steals (2.5) and finished second in scoring

Sarah Stern makes the All-Area First Team.

Chelsea Atzinger makes the All-Area First Team.

"Sarah sees the court extremely well; her quickness and athletic ability allows her to create scoring opportunities for her and her teammates," Northville head coach Pete Wright said. "Her contributions to Northville girls basketball over the last four years have been outstanding

Second Team

Northville is also represented on the All-Area Second Team by Chelsea Atzinger. She is joined by Novi's Chantel Hill, Milford's Brittini Hutton and Lakeland's Laura Ward and Hanna Stocker.

Atzinger led the Mustangs in both scoring (10.0) and rebounding (5.9), using an inside-outside combination to scoring As one of the taller players on the team. she was needed inside but also hit a team-high 15 three-pointers. "Chelsea's versatility and ability to play all five positions allowed us to do many different things both offensively and defensively." Wright said. "She can shoot from the perimeter, slash to the basket or post up

"Chelsea's tremendous work ethic and sound fundamentals have made her a great all-around player"

Who Knew Vegging Out Could Taste So Great?

Vegetables: The More the Merrier!

ating vegetables is one of the most important things you can do for your health. In fact, a growing body of science shows a vegetable-rich diet can help you control calories and lose weight, and also may help reduce risk factors associated with heart disease. diabetes and some cancers

Yet nine out 10 U S. adults aren't meeting the daily recommended intake for vegetables and fruit.1 Why? Some of the most common barriers are convenience and taste. In fact, a recent survey reveals that nearly 60 percent of respondents said that if vegetables tasted better, they would likely eat more each day 2

The good news is that a little creativity can go a long way in making vegetables taste good One of the latest innovations from the makers of V8 vegetable juice, which has been delivering vege-table nutrition for 75 years, is V8 V-Fusion — a unique blend of vegetables and fruit that delivers a light, sweet taste. Each 8-ounce glass provides a full serving of vegetables and a full serving of fruit, plus antioxidant vitamins A, C and E That's great news for more than half of the women surveyed who said they prefer the taste of fruit over vegetables 3

Also consider new and innovative options like a mango and avocado salad, a refreshing granita, or sneak extra vegetables into favorites like pasta or lasagna

Vegetable guru and best-selling cookbook author Mollie Katzen says the sky's the limit when it comes to ways to enjoy eating your vegetables. "There are hundreds of ways to make vegetables flavorful and fun Experiment with all different types and combinations to find something that tantalizes your taste buds

Here are some tips to get you on your way to eating more veggies!

stews, meatballs and more. One 8-ounce glass adds 2 servings of vegetables.

FAMLLY FEATURES

- Fuel Up on Flavor: Enjoy one of the flavorful varieties of V8 V-Fusion, which provides a full serving of vegetables and fruits in each 8-ounce glass in unique, on-trend flavors include Acai Mixed Berry, Pomegranate Blueberry and Peach Mango!
- Keep It Simple: Grab and go with a bay of precut baby carrots or celery for a healthy snack or lunch accompaniment Choose frozen vegetables to add to sauces or eat as a side dish
- Creative Cooking: Add vegetable juice to chilis, Be Adventurous: Try new vegetables in new ways! More than 200 types of vegetables have been categorized around the world, with about 75 types growing throughout the United States.4 Mix and match with your favorite fruits and other foods for something you'll enjoy.

By Sally Rumme! SPECIAL WRITER

hile most people look at a child's smile and see teeth. Dr. Stephen Hershey's vision for that child is far deeper.

growth and development for 30 years, Stephen Hershey, DDS, MS, LLC, can literally look into the future and see the positive possibilities when they meet a child for the first time. They can look down the road of treatment and envision a huge change in that child's hfe

It's also the reason that they devote their entire practice exclusively to the treatment of children and adolescents and dento-facial orthopedics.

Dr. Hershey now brings his specialized orthodontic practice to the Highland/Milford decades.

Serving as associate orthodontist is Dr. Mark A. Bieszki, who is trained in the most recent advances in orthodontics. "His skills add to our practice's ability to deliver leading-edge treatment," says Dr. Hershey. Highland Station Orthodontics opened in October, 2007 and recently held a Grand Opening to introduce the practice to the community.

MORE THAN TEETH

"Having successful orthodontic treatment is a life-changing experience for a child," Dr Hershey said.

"It's not just about fixing their teeth," he added. "It's all about creating confidence and self-esteem. Your child is more than just a smile to us --- that's why we take such pride in making orthodontic treatment both fun and beneficial."

With an average patient age between 10 d 14. Highland tion Orth iontics offers cutting edge technology and a sleek, contemporary office design to appeal to its youthful patients area, adding a second location to the Waterford office he has maintained for three

Their new office is located at 161 N. Milford Road, just 4 mile south of M-59.

We have chosen to practice in the Highland area because we know that there is very much a need locally for these services." says Dr. Hershey. "Many residents have gone out of town for orthodontic work because it wasn't available in Highland --- until now"

He and his wife Patt, who serves as clinical director for the practice, are very excited about the future of Highland - especially the revitalization of the downtown district, where their new office is located.

We want to give a special thanks to our architect and builder, Larry Shew and his wife, Debbie, for helping us become a part of this great community development project," Dr Hershey said

The Hersheys are also very appreciative to the Highland Business Association, which has welcomed them so warmly. 'They have done everything for us," he added

The support of the Highland community has been overwhelmingly positive, according to Dr. Hershey. His ability to impact the Hand-held video games, flat-screen TVs and Kids' Club contests are just a few of the amenities that appeal to this age group.

We're just getting into text-messaging appointment dates to our young patients," Dr. Hershey said with a smile. "We have to keep up with their pace in technology."

NO FEAR HERE

Adding another youthful perspective to Dr Hershey's busy practice is the face of a former patient-turned-employee, Aaron Crook, age 25.

As a former patient of Dr. Hershey's a decade before he graduated from Michigan State University with B.A in Marketing. Crook was excited to see an advertisement Dr. Hershey had placed for an administrative position.

"I LOVED Dr. Hershey's office when I was a kid," Crook recalled "Now I've been here for almost four years and I still love it!"

That's because this office is devoted to meeting the needs of children, offering them a place where they can just be themselves, no matter what their day was like at school

HOBBIES: Playing jazz trumpet, motorcycle riding and restoration since the age of 16

PERSONAL: Married to wife, Noika.

HOBBIES: Formerly recruited by college and professional teams in baseball and hockey. Also enjoys fishing, working out and traveling.

"We have kids who come back and visit our office all the time, because they have such positive memories of their time with us," Dr Hershey said

"Sometimes kids are disappointed when they come in with their parents for an initial consultation, and find out that they DON'T need braces!" he added with a laugh

That's a real testament to the fun and friendly atmosphere Dr. Hershey's offices provide, thanks to a talented and kid-loving staff of 15 health professionals

'Most of our staff have been with us for many years," Dr. Hershey said. "They work hard to create a very upbeat, positive environment for children

For us,

CPR is a family thing.

"At age 16, I took my first CPR class from our local American Red Cross chapter. My wife and I had our second child, Jared, two years ago. When Jared was one day old, I saw him choking. He was turning blue. I gave him back blows, just like I learned from the Red Cross. Jared coughed something up, and he was fine. For us, CPR is a family thing. My wife knows CPR, and I'm an instructor. What the Red Cross teaches you, it can save lives."

-Michael Septer

Your local American Red Cross is people helping every day in this community. From immediate disaster relief to blood collection to lifesaving training, like CPR and first aid, we keep you and your family safe. Please, contact your local American Red Cross chapter to offer your financial support.

Together, we can save a life
