New salaries set for elected leaders in Northville Township

Joanne Maliszewski
Staff Writer

The Northville Township Board of Trustees — including supervisor, treasurer and full-time clerk's position — will receive salary increases in the new term of office: Nov. 20, 2016 through Nov. 20, 2020.

The board March 17 approved increases for positions, which are set with every new term — every four years.

The supervisor's part-time position will increase to $35,000 from $25,000. This position has not been adjusted since 2000. The treasurer's part-time position will increase from $17,000 to $25,000. This position was last adjusted in 2004. The clerk's full-time position will increase to $85,000 from $82,000. Trustees will receive $11,000, up from $9,000. In 2012, trustees' salaries increased from $6,000 to $9,000.

"It is hard to compare salaries," said Clerk Sue Hillebrand, referring to other townships.

Northville Township is rare in that it operates with a full-time manager, who is not elected. Most townships have an elected full-time supervisor and treasurer. "We go to Oakland and even Macomb (to find salary comparables)," Hillebrand said.

The review of salaries was established in 1992 during which it was decided to set salaries for the each following four-year term.

The economic recession in 2008 led to salary cuts and freezes on salaries. "In 2012, we didn't adjust salaries, we cut them," Hillebrand said. Additionally, township-provided cars for certain positions, such as supervisor, were also dropped.

While trustees lauded Supervisor Bob Nix, who is part-time, but is heavily involved in township business, he added, "we need to evaluate the position. Forget me."

Originally, the supervisor's position was proposed at $48,500, but was decreased by board motion last week to $35,000. Nix referred to staff decreases as the 2008 economic recession left its impact. "We've done everything we can to pinch every penny."

Trustee Fred Shadko added:

Valdez on committing murder: 'I never expected it ...'

David Veselenak
Staff Writer

Throughout the halls of the Women's Huron Valley Correctional Facility, Lakeshia Valdez is known as inmate No. 855914.

That's the number she's been assigned while serving time for the murder of Redford resident Matthew Olivarez, whom Valdez stabbed and killed in 2011 during an argument at a house off Garfield Street, south of Six Mile, in Redford.

"We got into it. I grabbed the knife and I stabbed him," she said in an interview at the prison, located off U.S. 23 in Washtenaw County's Pittsfield Township. "He was talking to me. I stabbed him again. And I stabbed him again."

The house, along with Olivarez's remains, were later set on fire and several of his items were taken before Valdez left to go back home downstate. Some jewelry and other items were later recovered from a pawn shop in Toledo.

Valdez, 24, of Adrian, is serving 40-80

IN THEIR OWN WORDS

In our first installment of Women Behind Bars, ex-school teacher Nancy Seaman reflected upon a marriage that ended in murder. Now we hear from Lakeshia Valdez, a young mother of two who was just 19 years old the day she repeatedly stabbed her former boyfriend, then set his body on fire with the intent of evading justice. Reporter David Veselenak, who covered the original crime, found a more a hardened Valdez this time around.

These words greeted me as I completed paperwork earlier this winter to gain visitor access to the Women's Huron Valley Correctional Facility in Pittsfield Township. A guard at the desk uttered them to me as I completed the initial visitor paperwork, adding to the intimidation factor of being in a place containing the state's convicted female felons.

Nothing to make me feel better about my first trip visiting a prison.

I thought a lot about what a trip to the prison would be like for several weeks prior to actually going. What would the

“We have an exceptional talent in Bob Nix.”

The treasurer’s position, recommended at $28,000 was reduced by motion to $25,000. Trustee Mindy Hermann noted that “it’s hard to find a part-time (township) treasurer anywhere.”

The board, however, did not adjust the clerk’s recommended increase to $85,000. “It’s a lot less than other comparable communities,” Hix said.

Treasurer Marjorie Banner referred to Hillebrand’s “excellent reputation,” adding “she earns the salary.”

Referring to trustees’ newly set salaries, Hillebrand said, “$11,000 is very competitive. We want to draw good people.”

The new salaries will not go into effect until after the November general election, after a new board of trustees is seated. All existing board members, including supervisor, clerk and treasurer are up for election this year.

Holy Week: Public invited to walk a labyrinth

If you have never walked a labyrinth, especially during Holy Week, the First United Methodist Church of Northville invites you to join its members in a week-long prayer outreach.

The church, 777 W. Eight Mile Road, at the corner of Taft Road, will offer guided Labyrinth Walks, as well as a Prayer Vigil Center, during Holy Week. The church’s entire Fellowship Gathering Place will be decorated with palm trees, special bench seating, meditative music and spring plants to create a peaceful, prayerful space. Stephen Ministers will be present as guides, said Veriditas certified labyrinth facilitator Norma Peltz, a church member.

First United Methodist Church in Northville invites the public to walk the labyrinth during Holy Week.

“This is a special deal,” Peltz said.

A labyrinth is a bible tradition documented in the Old and New Testaments. It is a single winding path that allows participants to have a meditative walk to the center and back out again. It is also an ancient circular pattern found in many cultures and civilizations dating back more than 5,000 years.

At the First United Methodist Church, the canvas labyrinth is 40 feet in diameter and weighs 110 pounds. “It is sacred geometry and is found in 23 Gothic cathedrals,” Peltz said.

Peltz said walking a labyrinth is a practice that “integrates the body with the mind and the mind with the spirit.”

A labyrinth, which is not a maze, is for pilgrimage, walking prayer, centering prayer, spiritual retreat, self-discovery and a union of the body, mind and spirit, Peltz said.

Visitors may take as much time as they wish on the labyrinth. Hours at the church March 21-25 are:

» Maundy Thursday, March 24: 1-7 p.m. followed by worship at 7 p.m.

» Good Friday, March 25: 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., followed by worship at 7 p.m.

SELCRA deal with schools pending

Noe Hernandez
Michigan.com

Brighton Township and Green Oak Township, two firm believers in the adult and youth sports program run by the Southeastern Livingston County Recreational Sports Authority, have taken the bull by the horns to help determine the agency’s future.

On March 8, some SELCRA board members attended a Brighton Area

Schools Board of Education meeting to try to get to the bottom of a proposed four-year joint operating agreement, known as a JUA, they consider critical to the agency’s solvency.

As a result, Brighton schools Superintendent Greg Gray is expected to meet with SELCRA officials, including Director Derek Smith, to discuss the revised JUA.

“We were prepared that the school board would say they weren’t going to do anything, but that’s not the way the school board went,” said Rich Everett, Green Oak’s SELCRA liaison.

“I’m cautiously optimistic that we can still work something out.”

Green Oak Supervisor Mark St. Charles, Smith and Brighton Township SELCRA liaison Patrick Michel also attended the meeting to possibly find out if board members were going to approve, negotiate, revise or reject the revised JUA.

Brighton Mayor Jim Muzzin and Councilman Kristoffer Tobbe attended the meeting as well. Genoa Township, the other municipality with a stake in SELCRA until June 30, did not have a representative at the meeting.

If approved by the SELCRA and school boards, the agreement would expire in 2020.

Curry Crushers win Battle of the Books

The Curry Crushers, a combined team from Meads Mill and Hillside middle schools, took first place, scoring 252 points out of a possible 280 at the 10th Annual Battle of the Books reading competition March 16.

Winning team members included Isha Gupta, Tejas Kakunje, Simran Panjwani, Zach Wang, Ava Woolfolk and Jeffrey Xiao.

More than 130 Northville middle school students competed on 26 teams to answer questions about seven books they read as a team for the fun reading competition.

Second place was awarded to The Digamma Readers, a combined team from Hillside and Meads Mill, including Josh Harless, Justin Masters, Krishen Patel, Santhosh Sankar, Ben Steinig and Jason Zhang.

Third place was awarded to N.E.R.F. (New Expedition Reading Forces), a combined team from Hillside and Meads Mill, including Jonathon Barringer, Andrew Creighton, Brady Fuller, Alex Martin, John Smith, and Jacob Stathas.

Fourth place went to the Reader Raiders from Hillside, including Farzeen Fazil, Nilan Nandish, Ved Muthusamy, Aarav Shah, Mehmet Tascioglu and Siddharth Tirumala.

"We are proud to reach this milestone of 10 years hosting Battle of the Books. Over 1,600 students have participated in Battle since we began in 2007," said Suzanne Schimanski-Gross, Teen Services librarian. "Our goal with this fun event is to get more middle school students interested in reading — not just avid readers, but reluctant readers too."

"This event brings middle-schoolers into the library to check out not only the Battle books, but to utilize our online homework help databases, and to participate in teen special programs like our Games Unplugged on Saturday, May 7 from 2-4 p.m., to play board and card games to help celebrate Screen-Free Week," Schimanski-Gross said. "Our teen summer reading program, including prizes and special programs, begins Friday, June 17."

Library staff would like to thank the faculty and staff of Meads Mill, Hillside, Our Lady of Victory, Northville High schools, as well as all team managers and volunteers. The Friends of the Northville District Library sponsor this program and help to make it a success.

Complete Battle of the Books scores and photos can be found at the library's website on the teen page at www.northvillelibrary.org

N'ville Chamber Choir to perform at arts fest

Katy Baetz-Matthews
Contributing Writer

Five large ensemble choirs from across Michigan automatically qualify to perform on the distinguished Michigan Youth Arts Festival stage each year. Northville High School's Chamber Choir secured a 2016 spot after a stunning performance at the State Solo and Ensemble Festival on March 19.

Judges at each of five Michigan sites send one large ensemble directly to MYAF. Following the Chamber Choir's performance, a judge provided immediate feedback, as is customary at such events. A few minor suggestions were offered for the group's first piece. Reflecting upon their second selection, the judge enthusiastically said he found it flawless, and could not offer a single criticism or recommendation.

Junior Madison Green was selected as a MYAF alternate soloist, based on her strong performance.

The performances of as many as five additional large ensembles per site will be further critiqued. Up to 14 ensembles from across the state can be then chosen to pack their bags for MYAF at Western Michigan University on May 12-14. Based on "superior" ratings on State Solo and Ensemble stages, Northville's TrebleMakers (ten-voice women's a cappella group) and BackBeat (nine-voice men's a cappella group) remain under consideration for trips to MYAF's annual spring celebration of high school fine arts.

Choirs from across Michigan also vie for the chance to sing on a Michigan School Vocal Music Association stage. For three of the past four years, the Northville Chamber Choir has done just that. On Jan. 22, the group was again warmly welcomed to the Michigan Music Conference MSVMA Choral Hour in Grand Rapids.

Chamber Choir is a mixed ensemble of 20 singers. Director Mark A. Krempski said the students' success in song "is a testament to their adept voices, attentive ears, artistic minds and amiable hearts. Music means the world to them, and it shows when they perform. What truly talented teens! Why, when these wonderful whippersnappers warble, even the birds stop to listen." Krempski is president-elect of MSVMA.

NHS boasts over 430 students in nine choirs. Again this year, it is Michigan's largest high school vocal music program and consistently one of its most revered and innovative. All choirs will be showcased at the school's spring concerts on May 18-19 at 7 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Thornton Creek's chess club attracts students

Danielle Alexander
Staff Writer

Chess Club is a popular after-school activity for Thornton Creek Elementary students of all grades.

"We had to add a second session each week because of the demand," PTA president Lori Leneschmidt said.

Throughout the past 10 years, the club has been run by parent volunteers; however, new this year, Michigan Chess Academy's Alla Tabak leads the club and even assigns homework.

According to michess.com, the program includes lectures, tournaments, game analysis and other components of chess training. The objective of the program is to give students the opportunity to study basic chess principles while having fun playing chess and competing in a friendly environment. Three Hillside students named essay winners

Three Hillside Middle School students have been named winners in the 47th annual America & Me Annual Essay Contest, sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance.

Claudia Phillips took first place, Paige Jensen second place and Benjamin Leavitt third place. The students received certificates for their achievements. As the first-place winner, Claudia's name will be engraved on a permanent plaque at the school. Her essay will now be included in the state competition, from which 10 essays will be chosen.

The top 10 state winners will be announced in April. Each of the winners will receive a plaque, a medalion and a cash award of $1,000. The winners will be honored at a state banquet in Lansing, will meet with top government officials and will be guests at a Lansing Lugnuts minor league baseball game in their honor.

Several thousand eighth-graders from more than 400 schools participated in the contest, which had "My Personal Michigan Hero" as this year's theme. The contest encourages students to explore the greatness of America and its heroes.

Expert says Seaman case fits domestic abuse pattern

Aileen Wingblad
Staff Writer

Some batterers take the physical route: pushing and shoving, pinching, hitting, kicking, slapping, punching, choking.

Some take the psychological route: intimidation, threats and other manipulative tactics.

Some use both — yet the goal is the same.

“The batterer will do whatever works,” said Cara Lynch, LMSW.

Lynch calls it “intimate partner violence,” a form of abuse inflicted by one’s current or former spouse or partner. And as a therapist at HAVEN – Help Against Violent Encounters Now, which helps victims of domestic violence and sexual assaults – Lynch deals with it every day.

“This is controlling and/or assaultive behavior that one partner uses against another partner to have all the power and

FOR HELP

HAVEN – Help Against Violent Encounters Now – is Oakland County’s only comprehensive program that assists victims of domestic violence and sexual assault.

The nonprofit organization, based in Pontiac, offers sheltering, counseling, advocacy and educational programming. Crisis counselors are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week at 238-334-1274 or toll-free at 877-922-1274.

control in a relationship,” she said.

The “low level” abuse, as Lynch calls it, is more common. Of course, it doesn’t always stay at that level. And the longer one remains in an abusive relationship, the more likely the abuse will escalate, she noted.

“That’s a very common pattern that we see,” she said.

Minimizing the abuse

Lynch calls the victims “survivors.” Whether they hide their suffering or seek help, they often share a similar response to the abuse: downplaying what has occurred.

When a battered woman, for example, reaches out to HAVEN, at her initial meeting with a crisis counselor she’ll often try to diminish what’s she’s gone through, Lynch said. She’ll attribute it to the batterer having too much to drink or say “it really wasn’t that bad” or offer another excuse.

Sometimes, it’s because the victim is embarrassed. But often, Lynch explained, minimization of the abuse is part of the acceptance pattern adopted as part of a survival mechanism.

“It’s their thinking, ‘If I accepted the reality of the situation, it really is this bad.’ That could mean they would then feel they would have to leave and they might be afraid to do so,” Lynch said. “But if they lessen (the problem) in their own mind, that keeps them going.”

And a survivor often loves the batterer, despite the suffering they’ve endured. “They just want them to stop abusing,” Lynch said.

‘Common pattern’

That apparently was the story for Nancy Seaman, sentenced to life in prison for murdering her husband Bob in their Farmington Hills home in 2004. Lynch said she never met Seaman nor was she familiar with her case. But when told of Seaman’s claims during and since her murder trial, Lynch said those certainly are among the hallmarks of intimate partner abuse.

The same goes for Seaman’s portrayal of Bob, especially the positive traits that many knew of – and led them to years for second-degree murder after taking a plea deal in November 2012. At minimum, she’ll be locked up until 2051, when she will be 60 years old. If she serves the entire sentence, Valdez will be 100 by the time freedom beckons from beyond the prison walls.

She was originally charged in 2011 with first-degree murder, arson, larceny in a building and tampering with evidence after being picked up by police less than 24 hours after killing Olivarez. She remembers being at her Adrian apartment and being told police were arriving outside.

“The moment I looked out my window and they surrounded my house, I knew what it was,” she said.

A plea bargain

The legal system churned slowly — at one point Valdez’s roommate testified that Olivarez was killed so his belongings could be sold to help pay rent. Valdez and the roommate also both had children and Christmas was approaching, the roommate said.

The evidence against her was strong, advised her attorney, and the brutality of the crime would play a factor in court. Valdez turned down an initial plea offer of 45 years, believing it was too long. Facing mandatory life without possibility of parole, Valdez decided against risking a first-degree murder conviction and took a plea bargain before the trial began.

Olivarez, who was also from Adrian, was remembered by friends and family as a loving man.

“I just feel she should do life in prison for what she did,” Olivarez’s uncle, Frank Olivarez, said during the sentencing hearing in 2012. “He had two good boys. He was a good father.”

Valdez recently said the claim that she killed Olivarez for his items wasn’t accurate. She said they had been involved romantically, but she decided to break it off. They continued to sell drugs together after the relationship ended and she would sometimes spend the night with Olivarez in Redford. She said the murder weapon was in his room and they got into an argument, prompting her to grab the knife.

“That just never crossed my mind. I never expected it would go as far as it did,” she said. “I did kill him, that’s what it boiled down to.”

History of issues

Valdez, who lived in Adrian most her life, said she wasn’t always the best-behaved. She first got into trouble at age 11, when she was caught stealing from a local JC Penney. She also faced other criminal charges in Lenawee County, including receiving and concealing stolen property, disorderly conduct and retail fraud, according to the Adrian Daily Telegram.

She admitted to being wild during her teenage years.

“I messed with guys, who gave me whatever I wanted,” she said. “I just had a good thing going.”

She got pregnant at 15, an experience she said calmed her lifestyle somewhat, though she still got into trouble.

She fled to San Antonio when she was in her mid-teens with her child, taking a bus south and planning on staying there. It was her mother, a woman whom had never been in trouble a day in her life, who convinced her to come back to Michigan for Mother’s Day. Valdez decided to remain in Adrian and didn’t go back to Texas.

She gave birth to another child several years later and wanted to make sure they were cared for. The arrangement with Olivarez followed.

“I never wanted to be without. I just lived my life,” she said.

Prison life

Today, Valdez is one of about 2,200 women serving out their sentences at the facility in Washtenaw County. Classified as a Level II inmate, she shares a cell with a woman she originally met while in the Wayne County Jail during the year before her sentencing.

Serving time in jail, she said, was much worse than prison. Jail fights were more common in downtown Detroit, she said.

“I felt out of place in the Wayne County Jail,” she said. “Wayne County Jail is much worse than here.”

She has worked maintenance in prison, taking out the trash and removing snow, though that status was on hold in January due to a misconduct ticket issued by a guard. The job pays $1 an hour.

Valdez also attends school, with the intent of earning her GED this spring. She tries to stay active, only spending time in her cell during count or at night.

Keeping busy, she said, passes the time quickly.

“It’s nothing like the movies,” she said of prison life.

She doesn’t spend a lot of time dwelling on killing Olivarez. She sorted that out years ago in a series of dreams about Olivarez.

“It made me at peace with what I did,” she said, of those nights in Wayne County Jail.

At the sentencing, Olivarez’s mother, Brenda Shead, addressed Valdez, telling her she hoped her actions would resonate with her for the rest of her life.

“Just know that every time you close your eyes, it will be him you’ll see,” Shead said in 2012. “She deserves everything she gets — and then some.”

Shead said in a message to the Observer & Eccentric that the pain of running into people involved got to be too much in Adrian, a small town of about 21,000 just north of the Michigan/Ohio border. She moved out of state several years ago.

“We are forever changed; it affects a person deep inside,” she said. “And unless you have experienced it, you could never really understand.”

“As for me, my heart will forever be broken, but I continue to smile through the tears for the love of my son Matthew and the ones that he loved and left behind.”

Not likely to be released early

Valdez arrived at the prison in 2012 and was at first taken aback by the barbed wire, guard towers and correctional officers.

“I’m just like, ‘Damn, 40 years of this (expletive),’” she said. “For real?”

In all likelihood, she’ll be here at least another 36 years.

In 2013, the Michigan Court of Appeals rejected the merits of her appeal. Valdez has not appealed to the Michigan Supreme Court.

Because of truth-in-sentencing laws, approved in 1998, inmates who committed crimes after 2000 are required to serve at least their minimum sentence, eliminating good behavior and disciplinary credits. Valdez hopes to apply for a commutation of her sentence, something the governor can approve and allow for the minimum sentence to be changed to time served, allowing her to go before the parole board for a hearing for possible release.

That’s a route, Valdez said, she may take in several years after living straight in prison, including finishing her GED and other programs.

“I’ll get a certificate for everything I did,” she said. “I want to be a better person.”

Getting her sentence commuted is something that’s statistically not likely to happen. Since 1969, only 320 commutations have been granted by Michigan governors, according to the Department of Corrections. Since Gov. Rick Snyder took office, only five commutations have been granted, all for medical reasons.

A total of 2,581 inmates have applied to have their sentence commuted since Snyder began his first term in 2011; the rate of approval is 0.19 percent.

Valdez believes even convicted murders deserve a shot at redemption if they’re willing to work for it. One inmate she knew served 28 years and found two jobs after being released from prison, she said.

But that will have to wait. She’s got decades to serve behind the barbed wire fencing that separates prisoners from the rest of society.

And deep down, she knows she has to serve her time.

“At the end of the day, you did kill this man,” Valdez said.

PRISON

atmosphere be like? What would talking to someone convicted of murder really be like? How would I be treated?

Plenty of stereotypes exist surrounding prisons. Popular culture is riddled with references, be it movies such as “Escape from Alcatraz,” “The Shawshank Redemption” or, more recently, the Netflix series “Orange Is the New Black.” Most people’s exposure to penitentiaries is strictly through their television sets.

So was mine until January. But with all those depictions fresh in my mind, I left the facility after my interview with a slightly different outlook.

From the outside

Prisons are isolated by nature. Some inmates never see the other side of the double chain-link fence once they get there. But I couldn’t help feeling the two worlds weren’t completely disconnected. After all, inmates walking the yard can see the staff’s vehicles parked just feet from the fence. I could envision some inmates looking at those cars and being in awe of their design, since some have been locked up for decades.

DOC
The Women’s Huron Valley Correctional Facility is where Lekeshia Valdez has serving her sentence as a convicted murderer.

The visiting area at Huron Valley isn’t difficult to access, once clearing security. Two sliding doors controlled by a guard and another set of locked doors are all that separate inmates from the outside world.

There was a sense of normalcy that must have slipped through those doors into the prison. Save for my initial meeting with Lakeshia Valdez, the inmate I interviewed for this series, I never felt horribly uncomfortable in the room filled with convicted felons. It was a feeling I didn’t expect to have throughout this experience. I saw smiles, heard laughter, even saw a mother reading a book to her young daughter who had come to visit her. Is that how it always is? I doubt it. But it certainly wasn’t what I expected.

The only difference this had from a hospital visiting area was the DOC guard watching the area from one side of the room. Despite any feelings of normalcy, there was always a lingering reminder that you were in prison with those who had lost their freedom. There was no escaping it.

Everyone has a story

Inmates are assigned a number upon arrival. Behind those numbers, I’ve learned, are stories.

Valdez, who took a plea deal on a murder charge where she stabbed and killed a Redford man in 2011, talked of her hope of being released early on a commutation of her sentence, a rarity. Only a few hundred inmates have received one the last 45 years.

Despite this normal interview, it was important to keep the facts straight: This is a story about a prisoner, a person who committed a crime so heinous that she’ll most likely never see freedom again. She spoke of missing her children, who are growing up without their biological mother.

It can be conflicting: How can one be so emotional about another person, when the reason they’re locked up is because they took away someone else’s child? There’s a reason people say two families suffer when someone is sent to prison for murder; not only is the family whose loved one died affected, but the inmate’s family is affected, albeit in a different way.

At the end of our conversations, we said goodbye, knowing our paths probably wouldn’t cross again. I told her I hoped her time in prison was productive and reflective on the horrible thing that she had done. As I left the room, I thought about this prison experience and other interviews I’ve done in my career.

I’ve interviewed political leaders, business owners, and everyday people. I added “convicted felon” to that list earlier this year. It’s certainly not the most high-profile interview subject, but it is the only one I’ve done that required me to take off my shoes and socks.

Battered woman defense gaining more attention

David Veselenak
Staff Writer

When it comes to battered woman syndrome, Cindene Pezzell said it's important to know it doesn't just affect women.

In fact, the legal coordinator for the National Clearinghouse for the Defense of Battered Women said it can happen in any type of intimate relationship and affect anyone in an abusive relationship.

It's an area of legal study that seems to be gaining more attention in legal circles across the country, though Pezzell said there's still a lot of work to be done.

"We're seeing less push-back around it being an illegitimate field.

"I can't understand the failing of the justice system. I can't understand how they can just let me die in here," Nancy Seaman said of her life sentence.

There's so much science and research," said Pezzell, a Philadelphia resident and Michigan native. "At least some of this stuff is getting in, when it wasn't before all the time."

The issue of battering is brought up in court-houses across the country during cases where a defendant may have been the victim themselves against a domestic partner. In Michigan, typically expert witnesses can testify about signs that could point to a victim as being battered or threatened by retaliation by a partner, though oftentimes cannot make direct connections between a defendant and that person showing signs of being battered, said Carol Jacobsen, a University of Michigan professor and director of the Michigan Women's Justice and Clemency Project.

This is the defense former Farmington Hills resident Nancy Seaman has claimed caused her to kill her husband more than 10 years ago. She's claimed in appeals her attorney did not do enough to show she was abused in the relationship that led to the confrontation. She was convicted of murder and sentenced to life in prison, though she has appealed her case through state courts and eventually in federal courts. A U.S. Court of Appeals panel of judges ruled in 2012 that using a defense claiming she was battered was not "a defense under Michigan law."

Jacobsen said there's been an increase recently in the amount of testimony brought in by defense attorneys to show some defendants were acting in self-defense because of the fear of retaliation, compared to older cases dating back decades in Michigan.

"Especially those earlier people, they did not present much evidence," she said. "Even today, it's not presented effectively by defense attorneys for the most part. It's really awful."

Each state different

Jacobsen hopes more state courts begin accepting fewer restrictions when it comes to testimony from experts, hoping for changes that would benefit women that show signs of being battered by partners.

"We felt, too, that Michigan's law is too restrictive on expert witnesses," Jacobsen said. "They do not get understood as acting in self-defense."

Pezzell said each state is different in how it approaches the topic, either through court rulings or legislation. While there have been Introducing the New 2017 Continental, Lincoln's newest addition to its already stellar fleet of vehicles. The smooth features of the Continental, such as the innovative e-latch door handle that opens with a single touch and its seamless one-piece grill with iconic star mesh, lend to a bold style that is distinctly Lincoln. With available twin-turbocharged 3.0L GTDI V6 engine, efficient horsepower-per-liter output and an available AWD powertrain, the Continental is already proving to be the vehicle to beat in 2016 and beyond.

The announcement was made that the 2017 Lincoln Continental was named the 2016 North American International Auto Show's Best in Show at a Detroit Economic Club annual luncheon with Detroit Mayor Mike Duggan, Wayne County Executive Warren C. Evans, Macomb County Executive Mark Hackel and Oakland County Executive L. Brooks Patterson.

defenses mounted showing those on trial have been battered in courtrooms in all 50 states, Pezzell noted, she believes many places, including Michigan, don't need specific laws put into place to define battering.

Interpretation of current laws should be enough, she said, to protect those who have been battered and are on trial. Adding specific regulations could make it more difficult to defend someone who has been battered.

"What we don't want to see is efforts to exclude people, rather than include," Pezzell said.

'More education required'

Those who argue against those cases where battering is introduced tend to want to show that the defendant wasn't, in fact, battered, Pezzell said.

"The prosecutor can possibly argue that there's zero evidence that the person is battered," she said. "Sometimes the evidence is just too strong to do that."

If that doesn't work, she said prosecutors will work to show juries that the battering was not relevant or there was no imminent danger to the defendant at the time of the incident.

Jacobsen said teaching more individuals about the effects of battering is an important step to take, so the issues can be more thoroughly discussed not only by the common public, but by those in the legal system.

"I think there's a lot more education required of judges and prosecutors and defense attorneys," she said. "It's an epidemic in this country."

Even with education, it can be difficult to relate to issues facing these individuals, Pezzell explained. It's easy for someone to say they know what they would do in a similar situation, but actually experiencing and going through it can be difficult to understand.

"There's so many things about it that the average person on the street doesn't know," Pezzell said. "People think they know. People think they know what they would do in any given situation."

doubt he was ever the violent, controlling bully that she said he could be behind closed doors.

"Charisma is a very common characteristic (among abusers)," Lynch said. "Often they are considered awesome on the job and among their friends and can appear to be good parents and good partners. That can really play into the power-control dynamic. And they tell (their victims), 'Nobody will believe, nobody will care.'"

Seaman's personality type also appears to be akin to some who endured abuse, possibly – and unwittingly – drawing abusers into their lives, Lynch said.

"In her case, it sounds like an abusive partner could exploit her," Lynch said. "We all probably have something someone could exploit, but a batterer really takes advantage of someone with a big heart, who doesn't believe in divorce, who ascribes to traditional gender roles, those kinds of things."

Lynch also noted she wasn't surprised to hear Seaman was reportedly planning to leave the marriage when the couple's final fight occurred.

"It's a very, very common pattern," she said. "Sometimes, it's the actual leaving or, sometimes, the batterer just senses that he's losing control, that (the partner) is pulling away. That certainly can escalate the violence, as the abuser exercises his power to do something to make it stop."

A fateful choice

To this day, Seaman said she regrets the plan she had chosen to move from the home she shared with Bob and to start a new life on her own. She waited until she felt financially independent and until her sons were grown. Then – rather than leaving right away – she stayed in a pseudo husband-wife relationship, while secretly packing away her belongings and storing them elsewhere until her new condominium was ready.

Lynch said crisis counselors at HAVEN never tell someone when or if they should move out of their home, but offer a listening ear, support and other resources to help with whatever course of action they decide to take.

"I'm not here to tell someone what to do – I haven't lived their life. But you can bounce ideas here, to figure out what makes sense to you," Lynch said. "If you decide leaving is what you'll do, we can help you find the safest ways to go about this. And I will say, even though we want that perfect time to do something, there tends to never be a perfect time for anything in life."

Seaman, however, doesn't hesitate when asked what she would say to someone suffering abuse at home: "You can't stay. The first time he lays a hand on you in anger, you have to leave. You can't let people talk you into staying, you can't be shamed into staying. You have to leave."

Over the years, Seaman said, she has regularly received mail from across the globe – letters from people who stand by her and say they hope that somehow, someday, she's successful in her appeal and is released from prison, plus letters from people who recount their own experiences as victims of domestic violence.

She answers them all, she said. And to those who are suffering the way she said she did during her 31-year marriage, her message is clear: "Don't do what I did, waiting and packing and staying," she said. "Looking back now, it was, 'What was I thinking?' Just go. You just have to go."

Thornton Creek works to be waste-free

Danielle Alexander
Staff Writer

According to michigangreenschools.us, Michigan Green Schools is a nonprofit agency dedicated to assisting all Michigan schools achieve environmental goals. It was determined that the best way to help Michigan achieve environmental goals through its schools was to formulate 20 points of educational environmental activities.

Since Thornton Creek Elementary in Northville accomplished 15 of these points within an academic year both this and last year, it achieved official Michigan Green Schools Emerald status.

One way the school maintains this designation is through schoolwide participation in Waste Free Wednesdays. Beginning last school year, Thornton Creek students have been encouraged to bring waste-free lunches each Wednesday; however, Green Team Leader and building recycling organizer Tammy Boomer said she has noticed a carry-over into other days of the week.

Although it can be difficult at times, Thornton Creek students said they try to be waste-free as much as possible because they want to help keep the Earth clean and healthy, save custodians from having more work and prevent the possibility of animals choking on waste.

Veggies for life: Vegan pharmacist, dietician share nutrition strategies

Susan Bromley
Staff Writer

Pharmacist Paul Krause doles out medications daily to treat patients with high cholesterol, high blood pressure and other ailments, all while advocating a better, cheaper, drug-free way to stay healthy.

Most customers don't want to consider his alternative, however.

"People come in and I tell them, 'All you have to do is live a vegan lifestyle' and they say, 'No way, just give me the Lipitor,'" Krause said. "A lot of the disease states that occur are results from the way we live. If you switch to a vegetarian/vegan diet and exercise, 80 percent of cardiovascular diseases would go away, 95 percent of type 2 diabetes could be eliminated and a lot of specialists say 80 percent of cancers could be eliminated. Most of the diseases we incur and degenerative illnesses can be eliminated by adopting plant-based diets. ... Our whole health care system would be completely changed."

Krause isn't concerned about what such a change might mean for his business. He said he would happily close his store, The Medicine Cabinet in Southfield, if everyone switched to a vegan lifestyle.

The Troy resident, 69, made the change himself more than two decades ago after suffering chest pain. He was rushed to the hospital, where doctors wanted to perform an angioplasty after finding a cardiovascular blockage. Krause declined the surgical options and, after research, decided to pursue preventive measures to maintain his health.

Raised on pizza, chips, meat and dairy — or the standard American diet (SAD, as he likes to call it) — Krause set to work changing food habits and reversing the cumulative effects of lifetime consumption of animal products.

It worked.

Animal addiction

"You can be addicted to meat and dairy just as you can be addicted to cigarettes and alcohol," Krause said. "A lot of people learn to eat that way and that can all be changed. If you eat a well-rounded diet of fruits and vegetables that contains all the vitamins, minerals and antioxidants, (you get what) you would need, unless you have a specific deficiency diagnosed from a physician."

A Gallup poll from 2012 shows about 5 percent of Americans consider themselves to be vegetarians, although the survey did not define what that means. A vegetarian is commonly defined as someone who does not eat meat. A vegan takes it a step further and does not consume any animal products, including dairy.

Krause is president of VegMichigan, a nonprofit organization whose mission is "promoting awareness of the health, ethical and environmental benefits of a plant-based, vegan lifestyle."

The group is not radical, he emphasizes, but wants to educate the public on the positive aspects of veganism and vegetarianism, as well as the negative outcomes of factory farming.

The group will do that locally through a display April 1 at the Novi Public Library, as well as through VegFest Vegan Tastefest and Expo, planned for 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. April 24, at Suburban Collection Showplace, 46100 Grand River, in Novi. The event features celebrity presenters, including former Detroit Pistons player and vegan John Salley, as

Pharmacist Paul Krause, a vegan, said he believes most people could eliminate their need for medications by changing their diet.

SPROUTED MUNG BEAN SALAD

Recipe developed by Aarti Batavia MS, RDN, CLT, CFSP, IFMCP.
PREP TIME: 15 MINUTES TOTAL TIME: 25 minutes SERVINGS: 2
Mung beans (green gram seeds) are commonly used in south-east Asian cooking — India, Thailand, China, Burma, Japan and Korea. It is an excellent source of protein and is almost free from flatulence-causing factors. Because of this, mung beans are preferred for feeding babies and those convalescing. The seeds contain a higher proportion of lysine than any other legume seeds. The seeds are processed and consumed as cooked whole beans or splits (daals), sprouts, immature seeds and flour and are used in various recipes. You could sprout mung beans and use it in salads, stir fry them with vegetables or cook them as a vegetable or daal adding mustard seeds, tomatoes, turmeric and other spices with a dash of lemon. You can serve it with rice, chapattis or any millet tortilla. Mung bean vegetable soup can be consumed as a meal by itself.

Ingredients:

- 1 cup sprouted mung beans
- 1 small diced carrot
- 1 small diced cucumber
- ½ cup diced apple
- ½ cup halved grapes
- ½ cup blueberries
- 1 Tbsp. pumpkin seeds
- ¼ tsp black pepper powder
- ¼ tsp cumin powder
- ¼ tsp salt
- 2 Tbsp. lime juice
- 1 Tbsp. finely chopped cilantro (optional)

Method:

1. In a bowl add sprouted mung beans, diced carrots, cucumbers, apples and blueberries.
2. Add pumpkin seeds, black pepper powder, cumin powder, salt and add freshly squeezed lime juice.
3. Mix all the ingredients and garnish with cilantro.
4. Serve in a bowl and savor the flavor!

Variations:

- a. Add tomatoes and avocado.
- b. Instead of fruits, add onions, tomatoes, olives
- c. Add a variety of beans either sprouted or cooked or from a can (rinse canned beans)
- d. Add ¼ tsp chili powder if you enjoy spicy foods well as samples from local restaurants and bakeries, exhibits with eco-friendly products, clothing, cookbooks, food demonstrations, children's activities and more.

More than 5,000 people are expected to attend VegFest, where everyone is welcome, particularly meat-eaters. Krause encourages even a decrease in meat consumption for those not prepared to commit to being a vegan or vegetarian.

"We have cooking demos there and people can get an idea of how to transition some of their cooking habits," Krause said. "It's funny how we'll go into surgery and do all these dramatic things to our body because of our lifestyle, but consider it drastic to change our eating habits. It's not a difficult transition anymore."

Food as medicine

As a registered dietician and founder of Nutrition and Wellness Consulting, LLC, in Novi, Aarti Batavia uses food as medicine to develop individualized plans for patients struggling with allergies, diabetes, weight management and cardiovascular, gastric, hormonal and neurological disorders.

"I believe in food as medicine," Batavia said. "We are what we eat, drink, think and touch. Eating whole foods and consuming more plant-based foods provides vitality and exuberance that we need to enjoy life. Food is not just calories. Food is information for your genes. It sends messages to your DNA, regulates hormones, your immune system, bacteria in the gut, neurotransmitters and even influences mood and behavior. ... Consuming clean, less processed and unadulterated food and water, relaxation, movement, clean air and light are crucial for optimal living."

Earlier this month, Batavia stood next to Novi Mayor Bob Gatt at a city council meeting as he read a proclamation declaring March as National Nutrition Month. The proclamation, she said, emphasizes the importance of making informed food choices and developing sound eating and physical activity habits.

"Savor the Flavor of Eating Right," is this year's National Nutrition Month theme and Batavia is taking it as an opportunity to educate and encourage everyone to experiment with herbs and spices, which provide not only flavor, but also nutrients, antioxidants, minerals and vitamins, to enjoy food traditions and experiences and reduce sodium, sugar and saturated/trans fats.

Batavia believes the three biggest steps people can take to improve their nutrition are to eat mindfully, consuming whole foods, more vegetables and less processed foods while enjoying food flavors; knowing that food affects inflammation; and being aware that food speaks to genes.

The biggest mistakes people make in regards to food are thinking of it only in terms of calories; assuming that foods promoted as "low-fat" or as "diet" are healthy; eating quickly on the go without savoring food; and assuming that food is not related to mood.

Batavia is a vegetarian, but notes there is no one correct diet for everyone, as we all have individual preferences based on traditions, food availability and emotions.

"Eskimos have survived on raw fish/seafood in harsh winters, while the indigenous people of Africa have survived on root vegetables and little meat," she said. "You can be a vegan/vegetarian and still be eating French fries and ketchup, while some Paleo folks don't even consume two to three servings of vegetables."

Decrease the meat, fish and eggs

Studies show that Americans tend to consume more animal proteins, Batavia noted, with recent dietary guidelines the suggest decreasing the amount of meat, fish and eggs consumed. She suggests turning to beans and whole grains as protein sources rather than animal foods, which do have vitamins and minerals, but lack antioxidants, crucial in preventing free radical damage, which corrupts DNA and is often cited as causing cancer. Antioxidants are present in fruits and vegetables.

"If you are consuming animal-based proteins, be sure that it is antibiotic and hormone-free," she said. "The antibiotics used in animal farming do have an impact on our gut bacteria and the hormones can play as endocrine disruptors in our bodies."

Krause notes that there are products available now that are plant-based substitutes for meat that taste very similar, but without all the hormones, saturated fat, cholesterol, and antibiotics found in chicken, beef, and pork.

When people ask Krause what he eats, he finds it to be the easiest question — he eats the same as he did before he became a vegan, but substitutes plant-based products where necessary. There is no chicken in his stir-fry, but there might be a plant-based chicken substitute.

There are even various plant-based milks now, he adds.

While he doesn't dispute veganism is a big change for anyone who has eaten animal products all their life, he notes the human species "is very adaptable" and the switch will also save the cost of purchasing expensive meat, as well as cut the astronomical costs of health care in the long run.

Challenges are more to be found in family members who aren't on board and restaurants where you may need to be more specific about your wants.

Helping smallest, pickiest eaters

Children's growth is not affected by being raised as vegans, Krause said, and, in fact, they have a "head start" on healthy habits over those who begin life with a traditional diet.

To help children, both omnivores and vegans, like vegetables, Batavia suggests taking them grocery shopping and allowing them to choose new fruits or vegetables; make their plate colorful and pattern it with foods; do not force them to eat, but create positive experiences around food; and be a good role model yourself.

"You can't ask your kids to eat fruits and veggies while you're sitting with a bag of chips watching the television," she said.

Krause admits although he is a vegan, he still eats "bad" when it comes to cookies, cake and even vegan ice cream. He finds himself wanting to lose about 10 pounds.

Batavia said there is no one best way to lose weight, as weight gain has multiple causes, including poor nutrition, hormones, toxins, inflammation, food addictions/sensitivities, gut health, lack of good bacteria, decreased physical activity, stress and more.

Both Batavia and Krause agree everyone can benefit from consuming more fruits and vegetables and choosing foods that help you not just survive, but thrive.

Blind Cleaning Services, LLC Company Ratings

For Ultrasonic Blindcleaning or Hunter Douglas Certified Drapery Cleaners

What is Ultrasonic Blindcleaning?

Ultrasonic Cleaning Technology is the Fastest and Safest method to clean delicate blinds

Millions of microscopic bubbles rapidly implode on the surface of this mini blind extracting dirt without harsh scrubbing!

Ultrasonic cleaning has been used over the past 30 years in a wide range of applications and industries such as science, medical, aerospace, manufacturing and many others. In fact ultrasonics is used in many industries including the sterilization process in hospitals, dental and medical clinics. This extremely fast cleaning technology is very effective where extreme cleanliness is needed or requires penetrating complex geometric shapes to extract tightly bonded contaminants from the surfaces. Ultrasonic cleaning eliminates surface contact such as wiping or scrubbing and harsh chemicals that can cause damage to the cleaning object.

Ultrasonic cleaning is the result of sound waves that are produced in the cleaning tank by means of transducers. Due to the nature of ultrasonic's unique cleaning action no physical scrubbing or harsh chemicals are needed. As applied to blinds, the entire blind vanes, tracks, ladders and cords will come out clean.

Ultrasonic technology is able to reduce the time required for cleaning by as much as 90%. This is accomplished by enhancing the effect of chemical cleaning agents and physical removal of particles from surfaces. Consistent cleanliness is assured by the ability of ultrasonic energy to reach any surface in contact with the cleaning liquid.

What is Ultrasonics and what are the benefits

- Prolongs the life of your blinds, saving you money
- Creates a healthier work and living environment
- No matter how well you dust your blinds, you'll never succeed in removing the germs and bacteria that spread disease, nor mould, grease and insect stains that can deteriorate the materials.

COST EFFECTIVE

A: Saving the Facility Manager up to 85%-95% on expensive replacement window blinds – increasing the life span of existing window coverings. B: Saving the cost of responsibly disposing existing blinds & window coverings in an environmentally friendly fashion.

Ultrasonic Blind Cleaning Technology

An ultrasonic cleaning machine is equipped with a transducer, a generator and two commonly made from stainless steel and are manufactured to be long and narrow in order to better accommodate the shape of standard blinds and shades. An immersion tank. It operates as a water base cleaning process that utilizes ultrasonic sound frequencies provided by the transducers to convert electricity into intense frequencies that cause the formation and implosion of minuscule bubbles in a liquid cleaning medium.

The blinds/shades are put into the machine then submersed in a water base cleaning solution which is an ultrasonic conductive liquid. When the transducer introduces ultrasonic sound waves into the tank, innumerable minute and intense imploding bubbles release both energy and heat to provide a highly efficient method of cleaning both exposed and concealed surfaces of the immersed blinds/shades. There is a direct connection between how the frequency and the number of implosions which allows for a high level of control; high frequencies ideal for the removal of very small particles without harming the surface of the blinds/shades regardless of the material. The blinds/shades are completely cleaned within 1-2 minutes instantly extracting; dirt, pollen, germs, allergens and other unwanted substances.

The ultrasonic blind cleaning process can be used with all kinds of blinds/shades including metal, cloth and delicate fabrics including; mini blinds, faux wood blinds, pleated and cellular shades (duettes), vertical blinds, vignettes, romans, silhouettes, luminettes, and virtually all other types of blinds and /shades.

One Northville family's autism awareness journey

By Ewa Omahen
Guest Columnist

The arrival of spring brings a sense of renewal, hope and reflection to our family. As we are getting ready to celebrate our son's 14th birthday, we are reminded of a date to follow soon after, April 2 — World Autism Awareness Day. Patrick has autism, so the "A word" is a constant in our household and an inseparable part of our existence.

As we reminisce about the past, we cannot help but reflect on our journey with autism, including the initial shock and feelings of loss that came along with the diagnosis, navigating the unknown territory and grasping for feelings of normalcy over the years. Patrick was 3 when he was formally diagnosed with Autism Spectrum Disorder by the school interdisciplinary team. Those days, he spent most of the time at school "hiding" under the table trying to cope with sensory overload, and at home staring out the window for what seemed like hours at a time, jumping on a mini-trampoline, or riding a tricycle around the house. He had little eye contact or engagement with his family, other children and school staff.

Today, after years of schooling and intense outside therapies, Patrick no longer "hides" from the world. He is social and engaged and loves to be with other people. As a family, we got to a place of acceptance and appreciation for our "differently-abled" son. The A word no longer intimidates or scares us. We have learned to view challenges as not mere hardships, but also as opportunities to learn and grow along with our child. We still have hard days, sleepless nights and moments of uncertainty. We face daily obstacles we could not even imagine, when we anticipated what life was going to be like with our child.

Along with the hardships and challenges, autism also brings special gifts and blessings we have learned to recognize and appreciate over the years. Our son has altered our perspective and understanding of disabilities in profound ways. As we continue to learn about Patrick's gifts, we are in awe of his ability to live life to the fullest and enjoy every moment for what it is.

One of the hardest things for us to cope with was Patrick's inability to speak. It took years of specialized therapies and interventions to teach him to communicate via sign language and with the aid of an iPad/communication app. Over time, we have also learned to recognize that our son communicates in powerful ways through his actions, behavior, gestures, body language and gaze.

Patrick Omahen enjoying learning at Hillside Middle School.

Perhaps one of the greatest gifts of our child's autism is the gift of the special people he has brought into our life. In addition to the love and understanding of our family and friends, we had the privilege of meeting so many families with special needs and feel blessed to share this journey of parenting our "differently-abled" child with them.

We have found a supportive community at our neighborhood middle school — Hillside. Patrick has an amazing, very skilled and dedicated team of educators working with him daily to enhance his skills, including communication, academics, social interactions, behavior and daily living skills. In addition to the classroom staff, he is supported by caring administration, general education staff, transportation personnel and other students attending Hillside.

Our son's classmates are beautiful and amazing children sharing this journey and learning along with him. The typical peers who volunteer to spend time with Patrick and the other students with autism are the best teachers and role models for all of us. They show us how to appreciate and embrace diversity.

We have been very fortunate to have dedicated and skilled therapists over the years. Patrick would not be where he is today without years and multiple hours of therapy focused on building his communication, daily living, social and academic skills. We are thankful to have a strong medical team of experts managing our child's medical challenges that include epilepsy and severe allergies.

Over the years we came into contact and received the help of many organizations and advocates that support individuals living with disabilities. We are especially thankful to the Autism Alliance of Michigan for their efforts to improve the lives of those impacted by autism. There are many initiatives in the works, including Lt. Governor Brian Calley's undertaking to reform special education and improve employment and future prospects for individuals with disabilities, that are so inspiring and hopeful to us as "special needs" parents.

Our awareness journey has taught us that it takes careful planning, extensive collaboration among everyone involved in our child's life, and ongoing education and advocacy to navigate autism successfully. As we are getting ready for yet another Autism Awareness month, we no longer feel alone, lost or overwhelmed like we used to, when Patrick was diagnosed years ago.

Having so many caring people, including our family, friends, fellow special needs parents, educators, therapists, medical professionals and so many advocates, share autism awareness and this journey with us gives us the strength to carry on and hope for a bright future for our son. After all, Patrick and children like him are the catalysts for change, teaching us about possibilities, helping us to see the beauty of diversity and understand that we are in this together as families, communities and a society.

Shamrocks eye ultimate prize in Division 1 tourney

Northville returns veteran cast; Novi rebuilding with new coach

Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Despite a limited preseason practice schedule, two-time MHSAA Division 1 boys lacrosse runner-up Novi Detroit Catholic Central hopes to literally hit the ground running for the 2016 season. The Shamrocks, who were scheduled to open the season Wednesday at home against Grosse Pointe South, made it all the way to the championship final last June only to fall to 11-time defending state champion and Catholic League rival Birmingham Brother Rice, 16-7. Catholic Central returns slew of veteran players, led by senior face-off specialist Alex Jarzembowski, who earned first team all-state and All-America honors last season as the Shamrocks finished 16-6 overall.

Jarzembowski has signed with the University of Detroit Mercy.

Other first team All-Area returnees for the Shamrocks include senior attackers Rocco Mularoni (Hope College) and Justin Baker, along with junior midfielder Brennan Kamish and junior long stick Mike Molchan.

Sophomore midfielder Peter Thompson earned second team All-Area honors, while senior long stick midfielder

GIRLS BASKETBALL

PATRIOTS END MUSTANGS' RIDE IN QUARTERFINALS

Northville defeated, 41-29, ends season with 21-4 overall record

Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Northville's count came up a little short Super Tuesday, March 15, as Kierra Fletcher and Warren Cousino took the winner-take-all Class A quarterfinal at Southfield High with a 41-29 victory.

The Mustangs, coming off the first girls basketball regional title in school history, couldn't overcome the 25-point game-high effort by Fletcher, a junior guard who made 7-of-18 shots from the floor and 11-of-16 free throws.

The Patriots (23-4) then went on to win the first state title in school history Saturday with a 67-65 win over Detroit King following a 60-45 semifinal win Friday over Hudsonville at Michigan State University's Breslin Center.

The performance by Fletcher was presidential-like and reminiscent of Cousino's 2014 Northville Holiday Tournament win over the host Mustangs, when she scored a game-high 30 in a 57-44 victory.

"Fletcher is a just a pain and she's a kid who gets into the paint for her shot, so she's real close to the rim, so she's one step away and her length is tough to deal with," Northville coach Todd Gudith said.

Northville (21-4) trailed by as many as nine points in the second quarter and by nine again with 3:28 remaining in the third, 28-19, when Fletcher split a pair of free throws after junior forward Jessica Moorman, the team's top scorer, picked up her fourth foul.

But the Mustangs closed the third quarter with a mini 6-0 run, capped by Brook Adams' basket with 55 seconds left to close the gap to 28-25 heading into the fourth.

Fletcher started the fourth with a basket. The big shot of the night came with only 4:19 left, when freshman Kate McArthur, who had gone 1-of-9 from the field up until that point, nailed a triple to put the Patriots up by seven, 33-26.

"She's got the green light. She's got ice water in her veins, she was meant to play basketball, she was born as a basketball in her hand and you'd never know she's a freshman," Cousino coach Mike Lee said of McArthur, who fin-

Novi, N'ville boast strong lineups once again in '16

Pheiffer takes over full-time duties for Wildcats, replacing O'Leary

Brad Emons
Staff Writer

When Todd Pheiffer was offered the Novi varsity girls soccer position in February, he already knew what the expectations would be.

Pheiffer, who served as interim head coach last season after Brian O'Leary took a medical leave, is now full time after leading the Wildcats to a 9-4-4 overall record and a co-title in the KLAA's Central Division with Northville.

"It is big shoes to fill," said Pheiffer, who also guided Ann Arbor Huron to an MHSAA Division 1 state crown in 2008. "You walk into our home field and there's six (state championship) banners in front of the press box. And that's one thing these girls know, that when you come to Novi, there are expectations coming in just because of the great things coach O'Leary did when he was here and the players from

GIRLS LACROSSE PREVIEW

Mustangs hope to build upon banner campaign

Salemi leads Novi contingent that's small in varsity numbers

Brad Emons
Staff Writer

After a breakthrough 2015 season, the Northville girls lacrosse team hopes to parlay even more success entering its Tuesday, April 5, opener at Plymouth.

The Mustangs were truly a Cinderella story a year ago, going 16-2 and winning the KLAA's Kensington Conference title after finishing the previous season with a 1-13 record.

Second-year coach Amanda Asher knows the Mustangs won't be able to sneak up on their opponents season, despite after losing six key starters to graduation.

The biggest losses included three first team All-Area picks in Audrey Tatge (Stetson University), a center-midfielder who had 38 goals and 15 assists; Grace Guibord, an attacker who had a team-high 53 goals and 13 assists; and defender Shayla Croteau.

"We'll look a bit different in 2016, as 13 seniors (including six starters) graduated from last year's team," said Asher, whose team was ousted in last year's Division 1 regional opener by state semifinalist Ann Arbor Pioneer, 17-12. "But we'll reload with a talented group of underclassmen, including eight sophomores and two freshmen. The blend of key returnees and influx of skilled newcomers gives us hope for the 2016 season."

The Mustangs' top returning scorer is junior midfielder Emma Dietrich, a first team All-Area selection who had 35 goals and five assists. She will be joined by midfield holdovers Sarah Chase, a junior, and Charlotte Beaudoin, a sophomore.

Returning attackers for the Mustangs include junior Ally Blough and senior Erin Scott, while sophomore Brianna Carr and junior Anastasia Heath-Sheppard will anchor the defense.

Novi outlook

The Wildcats (12-5-1) will be a lean, but hopefully a mean, fighting machine this spring in the KLAA's Kensington Conference.

"We graduated a lot of talent, primarily Alanna Clark," second-year coach Amy Kilgore said of the 42-goal scorer and first team All-Area selection. "She could have played lacrosse and had a lot of different college options, but chose to go to U-M and focus on school."

Morgan Statetzny, a first team All-Area midfielder who also registered 49 goals, graduated as well, but the Wildcats retain senior attacker Gina Salemi, a LaSalle (Pa.) University signee who played last summer for the Under-19 Israeli National Team.

Salemi, a first team All-Area pick and Division 1 honorable mention all-state choice, was Novi's top scorer last season with 57 goals.

"She'll be a huge leader and one of our captains, along with Lauren Chapman," Kilgore said. "Our junior captains are Mariah Smythe and Katie McMaster."

Among the top returnees for the Novi girls lacrosse team are (from left) Rachel Bayer, Cecilia Hong, Mya Brown, Gina Salemi, Mariah Smythe and Katie McMaster.

Smythe returns in goal after making first team All-Area and all-KLAA.

But with only 15 varsity players to open the season — scheduled for Thursday at home against Ann Arbor Huron — depth is a concern.

"It's going to be a small squad, which will give everybody a lot of playing time and a lot of time to develop," Kilgore said. "Obviously, you're concerned about injuries, but right now we're healthy and that's great. I think we'll improve much more rapidly than if we had a large squad, because they'll have a lot of time to work and have a lot of individual attention. The concerns is just having subs and being healthy."

bemons@hometownlife.com
bemons1@twitter.com

Northville senior attack Brennan Sweeney scored 27 goals and added 33 assists last season.

LACROSSE

Andrew Caris and junior midfielder Nicholas Capatina also return.

"We'll only have three days of practices before the first game, so we'll have a lot to put in," CC coach Dave Wilson said. "I think our offense seemingly right now has high lacrosse IQ and they're pretty skilled. Hopefully, they'll share the ball and take care of business on that end. Defensively, we lost two seniors, but I think we'll be able to fill that area hopefully better than we have the past two years. That's kind of our question mark."

Northville loaded

The Mustangs (14-7) are coming off a KLAA Kensington Conference title and reached the Division 1 regional final before losing last June to Beverly Hills Detroit Country Day.

The biggest loss will be replacing Division 1 all-state and All-America choice Alec Melucci, who finished his senior year with 79 goals and 40 assists.

This Northville team will feature a more balanced scoring attack, led by first team All-Area midfielder Harry Dyson (26 goals, six assists), along with second team All-Area twins Brennan and Connor Sweeney, a pair of senior attackers who combined for 54 goals and 63 assists.

"Last year, we were more of a one-man offense, who would create and feed," Northville coach Greg Durham said. "This year, we're really team offensive oriented."

Senior Connor Wright, who also made second team All-Area, finished with 60 ground balls and 22 takeaways and will lead the defense.

Five Northville players have committed to play college lacrosse next season, including Dyson (Ohio Wesleyan), senior defender Antonio Corsi (Albion), the Sweeney twins (Guilford College, N.C.) and speedy senior midfielder Josh Bentley (Madonna University).

Durham has also revamped his coaching staff, giving the offensive coordinator job to Dylan Gelven, a 2011 Northville alum who was a two-time

NCAA Division II All-American at Seton Hill (Pa.). Gelven still holds the Northville single-season record for points with 120.

"I gave Dylan autonomy and he can run any offense he wants," Durham said. "He's running his old college offense. Dylan has a practice plan and the kids are buying in. It's great. A lot of construction, a lot of building."

Meanwhile, Pat McPartlin, who played at LeMoyné (Tenn.) University, where he won a couple of NCAA Division II titles as a player, is the new defensive coordinator. Also helping out is new Madonna coach Mike Walter.

"I couldn't ask for a better staff," Durham said. "We have a tough non-conference schedule. Our goal is to get to the regional final and win, which we've never done before."

New Novi coach

After spending two years as an assistant, Chris Johnson takes over the varsity coaching reins at Novi after Eric Hoffman was not retained following the 2015 season.

The Wildcats finished 12-6 last year, taking second behind Northville in the KLAA's Kensington Conference, while losing several key players to graduation.

Johnson, a 1997 Novi grad, played on the team's first state championship team (prior to the MHSAA tourney) in 1995.

He was able to get a sneak peak at his team during a scrimmage held Saturday and came away positive.

"We played four half-hour running clock games in Plymouth and we played some of the best teams in the state," Johnson said. "We played Birmingham (United) and Plymouth and what I saw was very encouraging. We came out really quick. For being the first time on the field as a team, we came out flying and looked like a team right away. I was really impressed."

The Wildcats, who were scheduled open their season Wednesday at Saline, will be led by junior midfielder Ian Patterson, along with senior attacker Griffin Sparling. Seniors Peter Miner and Kendrick Scherer will contest for the goalie position.

MF (second team All-Area); Andrew Caris, Sr. LSM; Hunter Braun, Jr. G; Nicholas Capatina, Jr. MF.
Promising newcomers: To be determined.
Wilson's outlook: "We'll only have three days of practices before the first game, so we'll have a lot to put in. I think our offense seemingly right now has high lacrosse IQ and they're pretty skilled. Hopefully, they'll share the ball and take care of business on that end. Defensively, we lost two seniors, but I think we'll be able to fill that area hopefully better than we have the past two years. That's kind of our question mark. We have an absolutely brutal schedule with our regular conference foes, then add (Detroit) Country Day, Brighton, Upper Arlington (Ohio), New Trier (Ill.) and Loyola (Ill.) and St. Michael's (Ontario)... I may have gone overboard. All were factored in to challenge our team to make a deep run into the playoffs."

Durham's outlook: "I think we have a great staff, have great kids, they're all buying in. They're really a tight-knit group. With 19 to 20 kids returning from last year, they all know what they have to do. I think we could win the KLAA; that's our big goal. On the other side, there's Brighton, there's Hartland, to win the whole thing. But on our side, we should be able to do that. I'm not saying, 'no problem,' but I think we have a team that can get through there. I think Canton will

It could change. That's what makes practice great. We have a little rivalry between the offense and defense. It's awesome and fun to watch."

Promising newcomers: Neil Haakenson, Sr. LS-MF; Nayan Makim, Jr. attack; Scott Latham, Jr. MF; Landon Green, Soph. MF; Jay Duarte, Sr. Def.; Kyle Kostzewa, Jr. Def.
Johnson's outlook: "It was encouraging with the amount of seniors we lost last year that we've been able to reload pretty quickly and I think we'll be very competitive this year. I think because we have new guys stepping into starting roles, we just have to learn some of the finer points. Getting the offense clicking, learning the offense a little bit better and some of the nuances there. And on defense, some of our slide packages, getting them down a little bit better. But I can see already they have a good grasp on it and it will only get better as the season goes along. We have a little bit smaller roster this year, so staying healthy for us is going to be key."

CC's Morland puts himself ahead of the curve

Division 1 171-pound state champ
a cut above for Shamrocks' squad

Brad Emons
Staff Writer

As a sophomore last season, Tyler Morland found himself on the podium at the MHSAA Division 1 Individual Wrestling Championships as a third-place finisher at The Palace of Auburn Hills. Morland, back in his customary 171-pound weight class as a junior, made the podium once again, but this time he was standing at the top as the 2016 champion with a 6-2 decision over Lapeer's Devon Pingel in the finals. The triumph by Morland, who dominated his four state matches en route to a 45-1 record, avenged his only defeat of the season back in January to Pingel at the CC Invitational.

"Ty Morland is a fantastic individual who deserved to win a state title," CC coach Mitch Hancock said. "He took the tough route and made a choice to go 171 to avenge his only loss on the year. In a day and age where student-athletes take the easy route to success, he defied that and took the more challenging route, which is impressive."

Morland, who went 27-2 his junior year, showed his versatility all season by moving up a weight class when needed as demonstrated by capturing the Oakland County championship this season at 189.

The junior captain was also an integral part of CC reaching the Division 1 team semifinals.

"He embodies the kind of person Catholic Central wishes to produce on and off the mats," Hancock said. "He carries 4.0 GPA and is an excellent classmate, humble scholar and positive representative of our community."

First team

Nick Jenkins, Sr., Detroit CC (285): After placing sixth as a junior, Jenkins became one of five CC wrestlers to win and individual state title with a 5-1 win over Dearborn Heights Crestwood's unbeaten Ali Wahab in the finals.

Wahab came in at 60-0 and had beaten Jenkins in three previous meetings.

Jenkins was also regional runner-up, third at the district and third at Oakland County en route to a 39-10 record.

"Nick is a very committed, humble and hard-working individual," Hancock said. "Nick was in the perfect David vs. Goliath situation. Nick is a perfect example of why you never surrender a belief, a goal and an opportunity for success. He continues to carry the cross with him through his journey and has made us all proud in doing so."

Ben Kamali, Soph., Detroit CC (103): The transfer from East Lansing, who became eligible second semester, finished the year 20-1, capped by a state title at 103 pounds with a 10-8 overtime win over Ann Arbor Pioneer's Rayvon Foley.

Kamali was also regional runner-up and first-place finisher at the district.

"Ben is a complete pleasure to coach and interact with on a daily basis," Hancock said. "His work ethic in the room is contagious and his smile warms the cold days of Michigan winters. Ben executed a perfect game plan against Foley, who entered undefeated, with a previous win over Ben. "Ben believed he was going to win and wanted to do so for his family and his father, who is currently serving our country overseas in the U.S. Army. Ben wasn't able to share his match with his dad until the Monday after states, which brought tears of joy to the family."

Kevon Davenport, Fr., Detroit CC (119): He finished the season 47-3 overall, with first-place finishes at the district, regional and state finals.

Davenport's final victory came in an 8-2 decision over Davison's A.J. Facundo. Davenport was also the Oakland County champion at 125 pounds.

"I don't know if I've ever seen a more confident, poised and intellectual wrestler at this young of an age," Hancock said. "Kevon works very hard and takes this sport very seriously. He makes those around him better. He believes in his support system, his abilities and in Jesus Christ our Savior, which allows him to enter onto the mat with so much confidence. His willingness to move up a weight and wrestle quality competition says a lot about him as a teammate. Kevon has a passion for life and quality relationships, which is admirable."

Cameron Amine, Fr., Detroit CC (125): Amine wound up 39-9 overall, capped by a 6-0 win in the Division 1 finals over Southgate's Donte Rivera-Garcia.

Amine, the fourth CC freshman to win a state title, outscored his four opponents at The Palace, 14-0.

"Cameron, in my mind, if awarded, would've been handed the most outstanding wrestler award at the state tournament," Hancock said. "He knocked off quality wrestler after quality wrestler en route to winning the 125-pound state title. His ability to focus and his intensity levels are unmatched as a freshman. Cam never once complained about his state draw or bumping up weight classes to wrestle tougher competition; he used it as motivation."

He took first in the district and third at the regional, while also placing first at 130 at the Oakland County tournament.

"Cameron is a phenomenal teammate, with incredible leadership qualities, that are rare amongst student-athletes at his age," Hancock said. "He is well-respected by his fellow classmates and teachers, which speaks volumes to his character and the humble way in which he carries himself."

Jackson Ross, Jr., Detroit CC (215): The captain finished 37-13 after taking sixth in the Division 1 finals following a runner-up finish at the district and third-place finish at the regional.

Ross also placed fifth at Oakland County.

"What a remarkable young man, who embodies the characteristics of Shamrock student-athlete," Hancock said. "Jack is passionate about CC, loves competition and is very committed to his brothers here at school. It's a complete honor to sit in his corner and watch the modest ways in which he carries himself. Jack had a fantastic season and capped it off by earning all-state honors. Jack is my favorite to win the state title next year at 215."

Stone Moscovic, Soph., Detroit CC (112): He placed sixth at the Division 1 finals after taking fourth at the regional and first in the district.

Moscovic, who finished 33-18 overall, also took runner-up honors at Oakland County.

"I'm very proud of Stone and all he's accomplished this season," Hancock said. "Stone had a season filled with hurdles of adversity and he overcame a lot, including injuries and other setbacks. He maintained his passion to compete, his work ethic increased as the year went on and he dug deep when it counted. Stone has the ability to win multiple state titles and I look forward to sitting in his corner over the next two years."

Aaron Rehfeldt, Sr., Detroit CC (130): The captain closed his career with a seventh-place finish in Division 1 after placing first at the district and second at the regional.

Rehfeldt, who went 33-18 overall, also placed third at 135 pounds at the Oakland County tournament.

"Aaron is a coach's dream," Hancock said. "He is a very humble, quiet and leader by example. While Aaron isn't your strongest or most athletic wrestler in the state, he makes up for it through his passion for the sport and improvement. Aaron is one of the hardest, quietest workers to step on the practice mats at CC. He doesn't need Klapac was a state qualifier, going 1-2 after placing runner-up at the Division 1 regional and first in the district.

Wagh was also runner-up at the district, fourth at the regional and fifth in Oakland County (at 152 pounds).

"Aidan had a remarkable season for a sophomore," Hancock said. "He was tested all year and responded with positivity, focus and a determination to help the team. We look forward to working with him and helping him accomplish his goals over the next two years."

"We'll have a good understanding of how good we are within the first two weeks of the season, with opening games against Brighton, Canton, Walled Lake Northern and Novi. Promising newcomers: Katrina Koomen, Sr. D; Jessica Bandyk, Fr. MF; Emmie Takada, Soph. MF; Lauren Calhoun, Fr. D.
Pheiffer's outlook: "One thing I've learned is that there's a lot of potential. We have 15 returning players, half of them were starters last year, and then we had a great group of incoming freshmen and then some sophomores who didn't play last year because they're club (players). We've got actually four freshmen on the team, so we have a big roster this year and I'm looking to have as deep a bench as we can get. What's going to benefit us come playoff time is having a deep bench and plug people in at any time. What hurt us at the end of last year was a couple key players were out with injuries and we weren't as deep last year. It should be a good year. I'm super-excited about the potential of this team."

Pheiffer, who returns 15 players, spent five years as an assistant under O'Leary, who stepped down permanently from both the boys and girls positions over the winter.

O'Leary guided Novi to five MHSAA Division 1 girls state crowns in 14 years and also had a boys state crown as well.

"It's hard enough to win one state championship, let alone six and three of them back-to-back," Pheiffer said.

"There's a lot of success this program has had. I know there's a lot of expectations in not only soccer, but every sport. This is a mecca of successful sports teams at Novi. And I'm a Novi alum, so I grew up here, so I know what it's all about. My family went through here."

It should be a seamless transition for the Wildcats, who boast four players who have already earned college scholarships, led by first team All-Area players Chloe Allen (Akron University) and Megan Riley (Central Michigan).

"We've got a lot of talent and the upperclassmen will lead the way," Pheiffer said.

League player Katrina Koomen (College of Charleston), a senior, also returns after a year's absence from the high school ranks and will help solidify the defense, which also includes returning starting senior goalkeeper Aastha Dharja and junior defender Riely Schultz, a second team All-Area pick.

Other key returnees include junior defender Jacalyn Schubring, junior midfielder Gracie Backus and senior forward Alex McAleer (Schoolcraft College).

"One thing I was appreciative of being with coach O'Leary is that we had the same philosophies and ideas and beliefs," Pheiffer said. "We have two state championships together when we were co-coaching (2010 and 2011). I think it's going to be a good transition for the team. I know what the expectations are here and they know the expectations are here."

Northville outlook

The Mustangs (16-4-5) rode the hot goalkeeping last year of Emily Maresh, who earned All-Area Player of the Year honors after allowing just 10 goals and recording 15 shutouts.

Maresh, who posted a career record to 50-6-5 with only 23 goals against and 41 shutouts, went on to star on Grand Valley State University's 2015 NCAA Division II national championship team.

Maresh's heir apparent is sophomore Carlie Castiglione.

"Castiglione has big shoes to fill, replacing four-year letterman and all-state keeper Emily Maresh, but I know she is up to the challenge," said seventh-year Northville coach Eric Brucker, who guided the Mustangs to an undefeated 2014 state championship season.

Northville will defend its KLAA Central, Kensington Conference and Division 1 district titles with a capable cast that made it to the regional semifinal before being ousted by Grand Blanc.

Among the key returnees is first team All-Area midfielder Maddy Westenberg, a three-year varsity performer who had five goals and one assist.

Westenberg, a senior, is joined by second team All-Area picks Kendall Dillon, a sophomore midfielder, Alissa Moore, a senior midfielder, and Sydney Schembri, a senior forward.

The Mustangs will have a challenging early season schedule, facing Brighton, Canton, Walled Lake Northern and Novi, all contending teams in the KLAA.

"We have a good mix of seasoned veterans and fresh new faces," Brucker said. "I feel this group of athletes will allow for a lot of flexibility in lineups and formations. This team will be in contention to defend their Central Division, Kensington Conference and Association championship titles."

CC's Mancinelli helped fuel state title run

Shamrocks forward named
All-Area Player of the Year

Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Joseph Mancinelli proved to be a valuable asset once again this season on Novi Detroit Catholic Central's forward line.

The senior, named All-Area Hockey Player of the Year, paced the MHSAA Division 1 state champions (24-7) in scoring with a team-high 21 goals to go along with 18 assists after tallying 16 goals and 13 assists as a junior. "He's obviously very offensively gifted," first-year CC coach Brandon Kaleniecki said of the first team all-Catholic and Division 1 all-stater. "He scored some big goals for us also year and was our leading goal scorer."

Although small in stature, Mancinelli, nicknamed JoJo, played his best hockey on the biggest stages during his two-year CC career, which culminated in a pair of state championships. (His brother Domenic, now a standout golfer at Grand Valley State, was a also member of CC's state championship hockey team in 2013-14.)

"He could create; he's a quick guy," Kaleniecki said. "Not the biggest guy, but he had a knack to kind of score. He found a way to get himself in good position. He was able to kind of create a lot of offense for our team and he created some opportunities for himself."

It was a bittersweet ending to Mancinelli's career, as he had to exit CC's 3-0 state championship victory over Brighton prematurely in the second period with a concussion.

"I'm sure he was disappointed with what happened, but he was able to join us after in the celebration," Kaleniecki said.

First team

Brett Miller, Jr. G, Northville: He posted a .917 save percentage and had a 2.30 goals-against average with two shutouts en route to all-KLAA and second team Division 1 all-state honors.

"When he played, we knew we'd be competitive. He had some real big games for us," Northville interim coach Jon Gates said. "The team really respected him the way he worked, the way he played. He could lift the team around him at times."

Detroit Catholic Central's JoJo Mancinelli (left) was named Player of the Year after scoring a team-high 21 goals and adding 18 assists for the Division 1 state champions.

Alex Kreutzer, Sr. D, Detroit CC: He was the Shamrocks' top point-getter on defense with two goals and 18 assists while earning first team Division 1 all-state honors.

"Alex was a real solid defenseman and made real good decisions with the puck, which led to a pretty good offensive season," Kaleniecki said. "When he was on the blue line, he always got his shot through and created opportunities for other guys to score."

Brennan Martin, Sr. D, Novi: The team MVP, he was a two-time honorable mention Division 2 all-state selection who finished his season with seven goals and 14 assists.

"He's a three-year player, a captain and everyone respects him," Novi coach Mark Vellucci said. "I honestly wish I had another year with him with the guys we have coming back next year. He wants to go to the next level. He's done everything the right way and never caused any problems. He is what a high school student-athlete is all about, good grade-point average and a great young man."

Kyle Mulka, Sr. F, Detroit CC: He made second team Division 1 all-state after posting 30 points with 10 goals and 20 assists.

"Kyle is another one of our smaller forwards, a little bit kind of a water bug," Kaleniecki said. "He moved the puck, he works hard and he's really skilled when he gets the puck. He played a lot with JoJo and, between them, they can make some nice plays. He always gave us something when we needed it."

J.P. Lafferty, Sr. F, Detroit CC: He was a second team Division 1 all-stater after ranking second on the team in points (31) with 11 goals and 20 assists.

"He's more of a north-south guy, has a very hard shot, great release," Kaleniecki said. "And he could be a real strong fore-checker. When he was moving his feet, he was strong on pucks and could create turnovers and a lot of offense. He's a strong skater, very effective on the PK. He could put teams under a lot of pressure."

Kyle Dann, Sr. F, Northville: He made all-KLAA and second team Division 1 all-state after finishing the year with 13 goals and 10 assists.

"Kyle was a third-year player for us, a senior captain who was always working hard, always moving his feet," Gates said. "He's real big and strong, a physical presence more than he had been the last two years. He competed really hard and, because of that, had a really good senior year."

Second team

Short-handed goal by Phantoms edges U.S. NTDP U18s

Tim Smith
Staff Writer

Sunday afternoon's USHL game featured an untimely momentum shift for the U.S. National Team Development Program Under-18 squad.

Just 19 seconds after Youngstown's James Winkler received a major penalty and game misconduct for slamming U.S. defenseman Luke Martin into the boards from behind, the Phantoms snapped a 1-1 tie on a short-handed goal.

The perfect shot taken by Noah Lalonde flew over the blocker of U18 goaltender Joseph Woll at 12:33 of the final period, putting Youngstown up 2-1. That's how the contest ended, to the dismay of about 1,100 fans at USA Hockey Arena.

"It was a bad turnover and we didn't support the puck very well," U.S. head coach Danton Cole said. "You know what, we got a little lackadaisical and we paid for it."

"Then we just couldn't get the next goal. Sometimes, you get what you deserve."

Team USA did have the remaining 4:41 of Winkler's penalty to do something on the power play, but the home team could not muster much of an attack.

In the meantime, the Phantoms nearly cashed in a second short-handed goal when Alex Esposito crossed the U.S. blue line and had a clear cut path to Woll.

But out of nowhere, forward Clayton Keller dove to knock the puck off of Esposito's stick.

On the doorstep

In the final minute, Keller — who scored the lone U.S. goal of the day — nearly had the equalizer.

He took a sharp-angle shot from the left side of the Youngstown net that goalie Ryan Bednard got a piece of. The puck got behind Bednard and slid close to the goal line before the play was whistled down.

"Their goalie just had it smothered up; we thought it was loose," Keller said. "But I guess it's just how it goes. They just played harder than us."

Bednard stopped all 14 shots he faced in the final period, including a glove stop on U.S. forward Kieffer Bellows that looked headed for the back of the Youngstown net.

Earlier in the third, defenseman Adam Fox wheeled in from the half-wall and clanked a shot off the crossbar.

On the board

Keller and his linemates Bellows and Joey Anderson did display plenty of tic-tac-toe passing during the contest.

A prime example of that resulted in the U.S. goal, at 8:52 of the middle period to tie the score at 1-1.

Bellows backhanded a centering pass from the right corner that Keller chipped in for his 12th USHL goal of the season. Also assisting was Anderson.

"Our 'D' made a good (play) at the red line," Keller said. "And then Joey had a nice chip to Kieffer and he threw it to the net and I got lucky. It hit off the side of my shin pad."

Youngstown opened the scoring at 4:18 of the second period, just six seconds into a power play.

Off the face-off, forward Yushiroh Hirano snapped a shot from the right point that linemate Chase Pearson tipped past Woll (26 saves).

The game was the U18s first in nearly two months at USA Hockey Arena and the team has one more home game (March 31 against Muskegon) before going to Grand Forks, N.D., for the 2016 IIHF World U18 Championships.

"We haven't lost many games here. Usually, we play real well," Cole said. "I thought we were OK, we weren't great and then you leave the game up to chance."

They'll be ready

Despite Sunday's loss, Keller said he and his teammates are gearing up for the U18 tournament, which will end the group's two-year stint together.

In the NTDP, players are brought in for the U17s and remain together the following year before moving on to college teams and other programs.

"I think we're getting better every day," Keller said. "We struggled a little bit over in Finland and we're just starting to get out of that."

"We're playing better and more simple and we'll be ready. It's a big tournament and something that we work for here in our two years. Everyone will be fired up for that."

ished with eight points. "She hates when I tell her when it's layups only, but she's got the green light until the bitter end."

Northville sophomore guard Kendall Dillon, however, answered with a triple 31 seconds later to cut the deficit to 33-29, but the Mustangs would not score the rest of the way as Fletcher scored six of Cousino's last eight points to seal the win.

"They hit a big triple to go up six and we hit a big triple to take it to four and just when you think you're close and we're within striking distance, a possession we give up when we should have had it," Gudith said.

Only four players scored for the Patriots, who shot only 12-of-41 from the field (29.2 percent). But Cousino made up for its shooting woes by going 15-of-22 from the free-throw line led by Fletcher's 11-of-16 effort.

Fletcher also demonstrated that she's not only a proven scorer, but she can delegate as well.

"Coach (Lee) has always told me to play my game," Fletcher said. "He doesn't want to try and adapt my game to them. He wants them to adapt to me and I think that's the big part about it. So when they collapsed on me, I got it out to my shooters or got it into the blocks and that's how we kept getting easy layups or 3-pointers for Kate (McArthur)."

After Northville cut it to four midway through the final quarter, Lee called a strategic timeout.

"He was just telling me to keep being aggressive and try and take the game over, because I was kind of playing a little soft," Fletcher said. "He wanted me to start being more aggressive and getting to the foul line, so we could ice the game."

Northville started out the game a bit shaky, but trailed only 10-9 after one quarter.

"Early on, part of it is nerves," Gudith said. "We were shooting foul shots against their crowd and I think it got in our kids' head a little bit. We had a couple of shots at the rim early on that we just didn't finish. I'm not saying it would have made the difference, but it certainly would have given us that boost we needed to jump-start the game."

The 6-foot Moorman, who helps bring the ball up against the press, went to the bench late in the first quarter after picking up two quick fouls.

"We couldn't be as aggressive," Gudith said. "We had a couple of our better defenders in foul trouble and those are the ones we wanted to put on Fletcher so, obviously, they were a little more hesitant. We wanted to sag off of her early in the game, because we knew she wasn't a 3-point shooter. We just wanted to make sure we stopped her getting to the lane. Late in the game, the last quarter-and-a-half, we had to start putting on a little more pressure and get the ball out of her hands and kids were a little hesitant because they didn't want to come off the floor, so that's what we were dealing with."

Adams, a junior center, finished with a team-high 14 points, while Moorman added five. Northville's three other starters combined for just six. Jasmin Prince contributed four off the bench.

Northville went 11-of-32 from the floor (34.3 percent) and only 4-of-11 from the foul stripe (36.3 percent). The Mustangs also committed 18 turnovers to Cousino's 12.

Despite the disappointing setback, it will go down as the most successful girls basketball season in Northville school history. And four of the team's five starters will return next year with Lindsey Rathsburg, a starter, and Julia Calderon, a reserve, being the team's only graduating seniors.

"It's awesome," Gudith said of playing in a quarterfinal. "Like we told the kids in the locker room after the game, we'll ride with those 13 girls all the time. We'll take them every year. It was a great experience and the chemistry is what really was the big difference this year. It was a joy to come to practice every day. It's a group that really cares about each other and that showed throughout the year."

New brewery opening this weekend in Wixom

Philip Allmen

Staff Writer

There will be another choice for craft beer aficionados starting this weekend.

Drafting Table Brewing Co. announces its grand opening, planned for noon to midnight Saturday.

Eight different beers will be on tap for the event. The brewery highlights four brews it calls on its website its flagship beers. Rezolute IPA is a west coast-style India pale ale. Kommon Kolsch is a German ale. Porter is an English-style beer with chocolate, coffee and toasted biscuit flavors. Witty Yank is a an American wheat ale brewed with oats and dry hopped with grapefruit and orange zest.

The brewery does not serve food. Instead, its owners encourage patrons to order takeout and bring the food into the brewery while enjoying a cold one.

"We are so glad to finally be opening our doors after almost a year of construction and government approvals," owner and head brewer Aaron Rzeznik said. "We will have quite a variety of beer styles and plan to start with some of my favorite recipes, such as a saison, IPA, stout and Imperial IPA, to name a few. We have been brewing day and night to make sure that we will have plenty of beer on tap."

The pub side of the operation was designed by Aaron's wife and co-owner, Kristin Rzeznik, who also works professionally as an interior designer.

"We created a blend of an industrial and natural interior by using an assortment of materials, including wood, concrete, brick and metal," she said.

"We incorporated some unique design elements, including a bar top that is a mix of live-edge wood and concrete, a drafting table top wall to house the mugs for members, hand-crafted tables, brick walls and wall art made up of drafting tools, blue prints and sketches. The space is warm and inviting, due to a blend of paint colors, brick and creative lighting."

Drafting Table Brewing Co. is located at 49438 Pontiac Trail in Wixom. Call 248-956-7279 or go to www.draftingtablebeer.com.

Family foundation supports Children's Hospital research

Every year, 40,000 American children are born with a congenital heart defect, affecting approximately one among 120 babies. Jacob Dougherty, son of Mike and Erin Dougherty of Novi, was born with a congenital heart defect and underwent successful surgery at Children's Hospital of Michigan.

The Doughertys wanted to help other families whose children face life-threatening cardiac defects. They established The Heart of a Child, a nonprofit foundation, to raise funds for congenital heart defect research and treatment. The 2016

Heart of a Child Dinner and Silent Auction, held in January 2016, raised $36,000 for Children's Hospital of Michigan Foundation. Since its inception, The Heart of a Child (theheartofachild.net) has donated more than $300,000 for research to improve cardiovascular surgery outcomes for children.

"We are very grateful for this support to expand what we know about congenital heart defects and to improve pediatric cardiac care. The Heart of a Child provides a great service for future patients and their families," said Tony Werner, president and CEO of Children's Hospital of Michigan Foundation.

Established in 2003, the Children's Hospital of Michigan Foundation is dedicated to advancing the health and healthcare of the children of Michigan. This is accomplished through philanthropic support for pediatric medical education, research, and community benefit programs. The foundation granted $5.7 million in 2014 for vital pediatric health initiatives. The foundation is an independent public charity governed by a community board of 27 directors, and is a 501(c)3

Are you ready to retire? Howell author helps answer question

Do you know your options if you lose money during retirement?

If you don't, a Howell resident's latest book might have the answers you need.

Michael Foguth, owner of Foguth Financial Group, 213 E. Grand River Ave. in Howell, co-wrote "What You Don't Know About Retirement Income Can Hurt You," his second financial planning book in the past 18 months. The book was published Jan. 25.

"You have two choices when you lose money in retirement: go back to work or reduce your income and nobody wants to do either one of those," Foguth said last week from his downtown office. "My goal is to build my clients a retirement plan that can withstand anything that happens during their life."

In his newest book, Foguth advises soon-to-be retirees to include a yearly cost-of-living increase in their retirement plan and know where their guaranteed money is coming from before they quit working for good. He also suggests having a crisis plan if they haven't given themselves enough time to plan for retirement.

In addition, his book also provides many other suggestions for an effective retirement plan.

MOVING OUT A BIT

A growing share of home buyers are millennials, and more of them are purchasing single-family homes outside of urban areas, according to a study.

Millennials often buy single-family home, study finds

A growing share of home buyers are millennials, and more of them are purchasing single-family homes outside of urban areas, according to the 2016 National Association of Realtors Home Buyer and Seller Generational Trends study, which evaluates the generational differences of recent home buyers and sellers. The survey additionally found that although student loan debt is more prevalent among millennial buyers, they aren't the generation with the largest student debt balances.

The share of millennials buying in an urban or central city area decreased to 17 percent (21 percent a year ago) in this year's survey, and fewer of them (10 percent) purchased a multifamily home compared to a year ago (15 percent). Overall, the majority of buyers in all generations continue to purchase a single-family home in a suburban area, and the younger the buyer, the older the home they purchased.

Lawrence Yun, NAR chief economist, says while millennials may choose to live in an urban area as renters, the survey reveals that most aren't staying once they're ready to buy. "The median age of a millennial home buyer is 30 years old, which typically is the time in life where one settles down to marry and raise a family," he said. "Even if an urban setting is where they'd like to buy their first home, the need for more space at an affordable price is for the most part pushing their search further out."

Added Yun, "Furthermore, limited inventory in millennials' price range, minimal entry-level condo construction and affordability pressures make buying in the city extremely difficult for most young households."

For the third straight year, the largest group of recent buyers were millennials, who composed 35 percent of all buyers (32 percent in 2014), more than the combined amount of younger and older boomers (31 percent). Generation X were 26 percent of buyers, and the Silent Generation made up 9 percent.

Financing the purchase

This year's survey underlined the challenges debt had on some buyers' ability to purchase a home. While debt delayed saving for a down payment for a median of four years for all buyers, the number of years postponed increased from three years for millennials to six years for older boomers.

Among the share of buyers who said saving for a down payment was the most difficult task, millennials were most likely to cite student debt (53 percent) as the debt that delayed saving, while credit card debt was indicated more by Gen X (44 percent) and younger boomers (36 percent).

According to Yun, student debt is likely impacting more than just the millennial generation's ability to buy a home. "Whether it's from financing their own education or borrowed for their children, it's somewhat surprising to see a higher median amount of student debt among Gen X ($28,000) and younger boomer buyers ($29,100) compared to millennials ($25,000)," Yun said. "One of the many reasons housing supply has been subdued in recent years may be because a segment of homeowners have decided to delay trading up or moving down in order to pay down their debt, including from student loans."

This year's study found that 86 percent of all buyers in the past year financed their purchase (88 percent a year ago). Younger buyers who financed their home purchase most often relied on savings for their down payment, whereas older buyers were more likely to use proceeds from the sale of a primary residence.

Overall, the median down payment ranged from 7 percent for millennial buyers to 21 percent for older boomers and the Silent Generation. Nearly a quarter (23 percent) of millennials cited a gift from a relative or friend — typically their parents — as a source of their down payment.

Characteristics of buyers

The median income of millennial home buyers in this year's survey was $77,400 ($76,900 in 2014), and they typically bought a 1,720-square-foot home costing $187,400 ($180,900 a year ago). The typical Gen X buyer was 42 years old, had a median income of $104,700 ($104,600 a year ago) and typically purchased the largest home compared to other generations (2,200 square feet), costing $263,200 ($250,000 last year).

Generation X buyers (71 percent) were the most likely to be married, younger boomers had the highest share of single female buyers (20 percent), and 12 percent of millennial buyers were an unmarried couple.

This year's survey found that the millennial generation's desire to own a home of their own as the primary reason for their purchase is increasing, up to 48 percent (39 percent a year ago). The desire for a larger home was the highest among Gen X buyers (16 percent), and older boomers (at 20 percent) were the most likely to buy because of retirement.

Searching for and buying a home

Nearly all buyers predominantly used the Internet and a real estate agent during the home search process. Eighty-seven percent of millennials and Gen X buyers used an agent, and they were also the most likely to use mobile or tablet applications and mobile or tablet search engines during their search. Gen X buyers were the most likely to visit an open house.

NAR President Tom Salomone, broker-owner of Real Estate II Inc. in Coral Springs, Florida, says buyers of all ages continue to seek the advice and guidance of Realtors. "Supply shortages, strong competition and rising home prices in today's market can make buying a home very stressful," he said. "While the Internet is the initial go-to destination to search for available listings, consumers want the expertise and insights of a Realtor® to help them find the right home within their budget."

Gen X buyers represented the largest share of single-family home buyers at 89 percent (85 percent a year ago), and younger boomers were the most likely to purchase a townhouse or row house (9 percent). A combined 3 percent of millennial buyers bought an apartment, condo or duplex in a building with two or more units (7 percent a year ago).

Among the biggest factors influencing neighborhood choice, millennials were most influenced by the quality of the neighborhood (63 percent) and convenience to jobs (60 percent); convenience to schools was most desired by Gen X buyers, and proximity to friends and family by the Silent Generation.

Characteristics of sellers

Those more likely to be trading up (Gen X homeowners) or trading down (older boomers) represented the largest share of sellers in the past year, at 25 percent and 24 percent, respectively. Millennials — also likely to be move-up buyers — stayed in their home the shortest amount of time before selling (five years).

Even though younger sellers were more likely to need a larger home or move because of job relocation, older boomers were far more likely to move further away. Sellers overall moved a median distance of 20 miles, with older boomers traveling the furthest at 75 miles.

Across every generation at 88 percent or above, sellers overwhelmingly used a real estate agent or broker to sell their home. When asked what sellers wanted most from their real estate agent, younger sellers were more likely to want their agent to help price their home competitively or sell within a specific time frame, whereas help finding a buyer was desired more by younger and older boomers.

In July 2015, NAR mailed out a 128-question survey using a random sample weighted to be representative of sales on a geographic basis to 94,971 recent home buyers. The recent home buyers had to have purchased a primary residence home between July 2014 and June 2015. A total of 6,406 responses were received from primary residence buyers. After accounting for undeliverable questionnaires, the survey had an adjusted response rate of 6.7 percent. All information is characteristic of the 12-month period ending in June 2015 with the exception of income data, which are for 2014.

Condo amenity provides for garage storage

Q: I read somewhere about a car garage condominium. What can you tell me about it?

A: The concept is interesting in that it provides for you to store your car in a garage area where it can be taken out and run on a test track with, presumably, other amenities in the condominium. Almost anything can be condominiumized, and the notion here is that people will put their specialized vehicles in a garage facility so they can take them on a test track. Of course, as in any condominium, the rules and restrictions will have to be tailored to this type of condominium development and, as is the case with any type of commercial condominium, there must be cooperation among the owners and the administration on the condominium project to ensure that the goals of the condominium are met.

Q: I have a business on a thoroughfare that has had a temporary loss-of-access and which someone has referred to as "mere circuitry in travel." Do you think I have a basis for compensation?

A: There is much litigation regarding what is commonly referred to as "orange barrel litigation." For example, if a construction project forces cars to travel an additional distance through a detour to visit a particular business, it has imposed what is called a circuitry of travel. However, the courts have said that merely causing patrons to travel the additional distance does not constitute a taking as the Fifth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution discusses which means that in the case of a taking, you would be entitled to due compensation. Simply stated, if a business is unaffected by the fact that its patrons have to take a circuitous route to the shop, then the business has generally been deemed to have not suffered an injury, much less a pecuniary or substantial injury. However, if as a result of the fact that the only route to the business is circuitous, and customers stop patronizing a store, then the store has clearly suffered an injury. You are best advised to talk to an attorney who specializes in this form of real estate law.

A late career change may be worth the risk

BY MARY LORENZ
CAREERBUILDER

Ever dreamed of leaving it all behind to open a bed-and-breakfast in Vermont? Got a hunch you'd make one heck of a Hollywood screenwriter? Many of us fantasize about quitting our jobs to pursue passion projects, but the idea of starting from scratch in a completely new career can be terrifying — particularly if you have already been in the workforce for years.

Changing careers later in life, however, is not uncommon. And as many people can attest, the risks of actually going for something you have always dreamed about are well worth the rewards.

Whether you've lost that loving feeling for your current job or just can't shake the idea that there's something else out there for you, it's never too late to change careers. Consider these tips before you do.

Find your motivation.

Before you decide to change careers, ask yourself what is motivating your decision. "When job seekers are just running away from a bad career or work situation without understanding their motivation for the next role, they not only set themselves up for being in the same situation in a few years, but their lack of enthusiasm will come through in the interview process," says Leila Hock, a career strategy coach and founder of Alignment Coaching.

Be flexible.

"Many employers are reticent to hire 'older workers' — and particularly those who do not have the experience in their particular field — for a full-time job," says Art Koff, founder of RetiredBrains, an information resource for seniors. He suggests seeking work on a project basis, part time or seasonally. Starting small is a good way to get in the door and gain experience while still leaving time to enjoy the benefits of retirement.

Do your homework.

The only way to truly know if a career change is right for you is to actually do it. But the next best thing is talking to those who have gone before you. Tap into your personal and professional contacts to "network like crazy," says Lynne Sarikas, director of the Graduate Career Center at Northeastern University in Boston. "This is a great way to learn how others have made similar career transitions and to learn about the various roles in your desired field and the key skills (necessary) for success."

Recognize your deal-breakers.

Switching careers often means making compromises.

Ask yourself what you are willing to give up to make your dreams possible, advises Whitney Johnson, author of "Disrupt Yourself: Putting the Power of Disruptive Innovation to Work." For example, are you willing to work part time or on a contract or freelance basis? Are you willing to start from the bottom? Can you afford to take a pay cut? Are you willing to take classes to gain necessary skills? "Identify where you might make the change you want on terms that would work for you," Johnson says.

Don't sell yourself short.

Switching to a career in a field in which you have little to no experience can be tough, and it's easy to get discouraged. But as someone new to the field, you have a lot to offer that is unique, so use that to your advantage.

"Focus on your transferrable skills," Sarikas says. "Don't focus on the part of the job description you haven't done before. ... Focus on your passion for the work and the skills and experience you bring to the table. Sell the hiring manager on the unique strengths and perspectives you bring to the position."

Concentrate on the rewards, not the risks.

"When you are later in your career, it can be scary to try to make a change and start over again," Hock says. Instead of focusing on what you might lose, concentrate on everything you will gain, from increased satisfaction to new experiences. Most importantly, remember that you've already proven you have what it takes to succeed in one career. "Focus on what has helped you succeed thus far and how that will propel you in your next career," she says.

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

As New Serial One Campaign Demonstrates, Honda May Be Industry's Most Social Media-Savvy Brand

By Dale Buss

Honda is in the midst of launching one of its sleekest-styled and most interesting of its newest vehicles, the coupe version of the Honda Civic. But it's also starting a new social-media campaign that goes way back to the very beginnings of the brand's presence in the U.S. market.

Now Honda is following the restoration of Serial One, the initial version of the N600 which was the very first Honda that was sold in America, in 1969. Consumers can follow the progress of the restoration with weekly updates as N600 mechanic Tim Mings brings the vehicle back to life.

It's just 122 inches long and could actually fit between the wheels of some full-size vehicles in the U.S., with an alloy engine that could reach only 81 mph -- but it was very fuel-efficient.

"We're so proud to bring the story of Honda's roots in the US to life through the restoration of this vehicle," Alicia Jones, social-media manager for American Honda, said in a release. It "really embodies the Honda Spirit."

Mings owns an N600 and has restored more than 1,000. Serial One had collected dust in a "junk pile" for almost 50 years, Honda said, but a "twist of fate" has helped bring it alive in this series.

Jones talked with me about Serial One and Honda's social-media strategy:

Of all the things that you could have done to boost the brand socially at this point, why Serial One?

Alicia Jones: We've been wanting to bring this to light for almost two years. We found the right time and the right moment and felt like it was a great opportunity to tell another Honda "Power of Dreams" [the current marketing campaign] story because there is such a tight connection between Tim's story and the car and the brand.

Compare and contrast this effort to other parts of the "Power of Dreams" campaign, like that award-winning, two-minute TV ad, "Paper," which uses paper art to tell the history of Honda.

Jones: This gives us the opportunity to have content that lives for a long period of time, in iterative stages. Restoring a car takes quite a while and we've been capturing content along the way and will be showing it for 34 weeks via our social channels. So this is a social media-led campaign, and our intention is to tell the longer, emotionally driven, personal story of Tim and his vehicle, through all these different pieces of content we're going to create through a video series, GIFs and a Serial One site.

It gives us an opportunity to drive engagement. There are a lot of passionate people who love the brand, and this is an opportunity to instill that passion.

Of all auto brands, you're definitely a leader in the variety and depth of social-media marketing that you do. Are you trying to make it a differentiator for Honda?

Jones: It's all very strategically driven; it's definitely not by accident. We work really hard to create social content on an ongoing basis that is primarily driving engagement and wanting people to comment and share. That's ongoing. But then we have these greater opportunities and we seek out these greater storytelling opportunities, that's why we seem to do things differently.

Every year, we're looking for a great story-telling-based opportunity to talk about the brand. It's a hard thing to try to communicate brand meaning, or a deeper meaning to a brand, in a 30-second spot. But this story with the personal connection that Tim has is a hook that puts people in a more emotional place with the brand.

Is this a luxury given that you've got some important immediate needs, like ramping up Civic?

Jones: We are doing socialmedia support for Civic. This [N600 campaign] is intended to support the brand as a whole. It gets to the roots of what social is all about -- our opportunity to have a direct, one-to-one relationship with customers instead of relying on them to take their Honda into a service bay.

What do you think is Honda's greatest overall need right now: to reflect on the brand or to promote some of your great new products like Civic and Ridgeline?

Jones: New product goes hand in hand with what people think about the brand. But we're in a great place with lots of fabulous new vehicles being released right now, and we've also had these great storytelling opportunities in social. You can't separate them.
