Parents renewed their pitch last week for an academic string instrument program in the Northville Public Schools. "In a word, music supports music," Rabah Hadjit, the father of two district students, told the Board of Education at its March 14 meeting. Hadjit, whose children play the violin, argued a string program would enhance, not diminish, other district music programs, such as band and vocal music. "We know the neighboring districts have been offering a similar program for years," Hadjit said. He asked board members to reconsider officials' 2015 decision to not pursue a string program and to approve a

David Trott was red-carded repeatedly — and sometimes drowned out by shouting — as he gamely faced a combative crowd during a raucous Saturday town hall in Novi. The second-term Republican congressman from Birmingham arranged the meeting after weeks of pressure from constituents, who had said they wanted to know where their representative stood on President Donald Trump's agenda. Trott represents Michigan's 11th District, which includes many communities in Oakland County and western Wayne County. At least 450 people packed a ballroom at the Suburban Collection Showplace for the town hall, but several hundred more were left outside, during a heavy morning snowfall, erupting into chants of "Trot him

Life-saving AEDs installed in Northville police cars

Northville police officers now have a greater ability to assist people with cardiac emergencies thanks to the purchase of new automated external defibrillators that will be kept in patrol cars. AEDs, which have been used for years by the Northville Fire Department, provide an external shock to a patient's heart when it is "quivering," a state known as fibrillation. An AED can shock the heart into resuming a more normal rhythm and the circulation of blood through the body. The Northville City Council approved the purchase of five AEDs, at a total cost of $8,050, in December and attorney Joe Corriveau, who practices in town, offered to pay for one of the units.

Cat rescued from hunter’s trap loses limb

hometownlife.com

Bucky the cat is alert and recovering from surgery after being snared by a leghold trap. “It takes a period of time for them to recover from the physical and emotional trauma. It’s been quite an ordeal,” said Peter Barnes, practice administrator at Veterinary Care Specialists in Milford, which is caring for the young, male cat. “The trap had been on for a bit of time. The leg was severely infected.

“It was probably the kind of trap you’d use for a coyote. These are dangerous traps. They are indiscriminate and pressure-sensitive. They generally are secured down with something, but this one wasn’t. The cat was dragging the chain.”

Barnes said a staff member at Henry Ford Medical Facility last week saw Bucky struggling with the trap near a wooded area behind the facility on Milford Road. She called the Milford Police Department and Officer Christopher Lipari responded. He delivered the injured, frightened cat to the veterinary hospital.

“We immediately worked on sedating the cat and it took two or three people to open the trap and extricate the leg. Initially we bandaged it and started a course of antibiotics to start getting the cat stabilized for surgery,” Barnes said.

Barnes

Veterinary technician Whitney McGinnis checks in on the injured cat, Bucky, at Milford’s Veterinary Care Specialists. Bucky Barnes (named after a Marvel comics and film character that has one arm) was rescued from an animal trap, but his left arm was too wounded to save.

Barnes, who co-owns the veterinary hospital with Julie Haas, a veterinarian and director of medicine, has experience with three-legged cats. He rescued a cat with a “mangled leg” from a construction site in Detroit. Its limb also was removed, but it survived and lived with Barnes and his wife for several years.

Bucky, who has black, short fur and is estimated to be about one year old, likely is homeless and feral, but Barnes can’t be sure until the cat has spent more time with his caregivers.

“We’ve scanned for a microchip and there is no evidence of an owner. At this point in time, it’s not 100-percent trusting of anyone yet. It will be some time before its true behavior and personality come out. Even a domestic cat would be reacting in a self-defense, self-preservation mode.

“Every cat is an individual and responds differently.”

Barnes praised Milford police for rescuing the cat and bringing it to Veterinary Care Specialists. Officers have done that in the past and dropped off everything from injured swans to stray dogs. The hospital is open around the clock.

Bucky will spend some time living at the hospital, although the goal is to give him as normal a life as possible.

“Ideally, the next move is to a permanent home,” Barnes said.

Hillside’s Reader Raiders take first in Battle of the Books

The Northville District Library hosted its 11th annual Battle of the books reading competition Wednesday, March 15, at Northville High School. More than 150 Northville middle school students competed on 30 teams to answer questions about seven books they read as a team for this fun reading competition.

The Reader Raiders, a team of sixth- and seventh-graders from Hillside Middle School, won first place, scoring 260 points out of a possible 280. Team members include Siddharth Tirumala Kanduri, Ved Muthusamy, Aditya Pundhir, Aarav Shah, Aaria Shah and Chris Timlin. The team was managed by Viji Velayutham and Muthu Sivanantham.

Second place was awarded to The Bookworms, from Meads Mill, including Nathan Hayes, Pranav Jayaprakash, Jude Louria, Isaac Lee and Nathan Leonard. Third place was awarded to the Meeps, from Hillside, including Zachary Hoshaw, Vansh Kapoor, Adhi Kunju, Sohan Madishetty, Alexander Milojevic and Aryan Shah. Fourth place was a tie between Da’ Travelin’ Tacoz from Hillside and Meads Mill, including Ava Chang, Ellie Lin, Jennie Wei and Carol Wu, and The Secret Service team from Our Lady of Victory, including Ava Camaj, Kiersten Hein, Emily Kuebler, Eve Martin, Lauren Mullan and Maggie Newell.

“It was great to see the enthusiasm of over 150 middle school students who competed in this year’s competition,” said Natalie Molnar, Teen Services librarian. “Our goal is to make this a fun experience, while at the same time encouraging as many middle school students as possible to read a variety of types of books. The competition is set up so that not only avid readers, but also those more reluctant readers, can have fun participating together as a team. This event brings middle schoolers into the library to check out not only Battle books, but to utilize our online homework help databases, and to participate in teen special programs.”

The library has two fun teen programs scheduled in April: Hamiltunes for Hamiltunes 6-8 p.m. Wednesday, April 12, an evening packed full of “Hamilton” sing-a-longs and a trivia showdown, and a teen craft DIY: Upcycled Book Safe from noon to 1 p.m. Saturday, April 22. “Teens will hollow out an old book into a disguised storage space,” Molnar said. “Our Teen Summer Reading program, including prizes and special programs, begins Friday, June 16.”

Library staff would like to thank the faculty and staff of Meads Mill, Hillside, Our Lady of Victory and Northville High School, as well as all team managers and volunteers. The Friends of the Northville District Library sponsor this program each year and help to make it a success. Complete Battle of the Books scores and photos can be found at the library’s website on the teen page at www.northvillelibrary.org.

Kids can develop green thumb at Thayer’s Corner Nature Area camp

Friends of Thayer’s Corner Nature Area is offering a gardening camp for kids and teens (ages 10 years and older) at Thayer’s Corner Nature Area, 8250 Napier Road. The adventure includes planting and nurturing a garden, as well as receiving nutritional guidance and cooking classes incorporating their produce, led by a registered dietitian.

Participants will plant, nurture and harvest their produce, learning about their nutritional value and preparation strategies along the way. This will be a lifelong learning experience that an organizational meeting at 6 p.m. at Thayer’s Corner Nature Area. The camp will end Oct. 1. There will be weekly gardening sessions, plus five nutrition/cooking sessions.

The camp is limited to 20 participants at a cost of $150 per person. Participants can expect a total of 15-weekly sessions (weather permitting), plus five two-hour nutritional/cooking sessions. The 20 participants will be broken into teams of five, with each team tending the garden once per week from 10 a.m. to noon. All participants will plant the garden from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, May 20-21, weather permitting.

Each five-person team will meet at the park once a week to water and weed the garden. Times will be adjusted for the end of this school year and the beginning of the fall school year to make sure participation does not interfere with school hours. Summertime hours will be scheduled on different days for each team, so the garden can be properly tended and to provide flexible schedules for the participants. Participants will take home the fruits of their labor to share with their families.

For more information or to sign up for the gardening camp, call Marjorie Banner at 248-348-5102. Reservation deadline is April 15. No refunds will be offered.

Two-hour nutrition/cooking sessions will be held on the following days, and include:

6 p.m. Wednesday, May 24

- » Introduction to cooking and nutrition: What are we growing and why?
- » Produce of the month: asparagus
- » Basic cooking skills: introduction to kitchen tools (measuring cups/spoons, pots, pans, etc.) and knife skills

10 a.m. Wednesday, June 28

- » Produce of the month: dark, leafy greens, herbs, radishes and berries (may vary based on what has ripened)
- » Discussion of nutritional benefits
- » Pick, wash and utilize produce in various recipes

10 a.m. Wednesday, July 26

- » Produce of the month: beans, zucchini, cucumbers, kale (may vary based on what has ripened)
- » Discussion of nutritional benefits
- » Pick, wash and utilize produce in various recipes

August – date and time to be determined:

Northville Art House: Kate Paul exhibition

The Northville Art House will present IM-PRINT — Kate Paul: A Retrospective, featuring more than 40 works, including paintings, etchings, sketches, sculptures and prose, by Livonia artist Kate Paul. The exhibition opens with a reception 6-9 p.m. Friday, April 7, with gallery talk at 7 p.m., and runs through Saturday, April 29, during Art House hours, noon to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and noon to 4 p.m. Saturday at the Northville Art House, 215 W. Cady Street.

The Northville Art House will donate 15 percent of artwork sales from IMPRINT to the Michigan Ovarian Cancer Alliance.

IMPRINT — Kate Paul: A Retrospective is devoted to the late Paul, whose described style of “whimsical surrealism” often reveals in her works a balance between abstraction and representation. The exhibition presents a unique opportunity to study the artist’s evolution over the last decade, beginning with her early works, influenced by her background in theatrical scenery painting, and concluding with her final works, transformed by her introspection and perseverance after being diagnosed with ovarian cancer in 2010. Northville Art House exhibits director Ryan Kaltenbach brings together more than 50 works, featuring paintings, etchings, sketches, sculptures and prose, by this self-taught artist who left an indelible imprint on the regional arts community.

Represented among her early works, are Rock of Ages, a diptych painting completed in 2007, as well as imagery from Staircase Mural, installed at the Royal Oak Public Library in 2009. Later works include the brooding Rust & Bone from 2013 and the celestial Dancing on the Milky Way, one of her last paintings created in 2016. Also presented are Paul’s largely unseen sculptural work, including Saint Joan of Arc (Jeanne d’Arc), sketches and etchings that often served as sources for larger studio paintings and powerful written prose that reveals her deep-rooted passion to understand, create and live life to the fullest.

Submit entries

The Northville Art House invites contemporary artists to submit entries to The Graded Wash Juried Watercolor Exhibition, Aug. 2-26.

Artists, ages 18 and over, may submit a maximum of three original works of art in watercolor, gouache, egg tempera and casein on any surface, created within the last two years and not previously exhibited at the Northville Art House. Artists will be competing for $650 in cash awards and entry selected by our juror, Jill Stefani Wagner.

The entry fee is $25 for members and $35 for non-members. Deadline for submissions is May 26. Accepted work will be listed on the Art House website and artists will be notified by email beginning June 12.

Exhibit information, submission guidelines and entry forms can be found at www.NorthvilleArtHouse.org. For questions, contact 248-344-0497 or email exhibits@northvillearthouse.org with The Graded Wash as the subject line.

The Graded Wash opens Wednesday, Aug. 2, with a reception 6-9 p.m. Friday, Aug. 4, and 7 p.m. awards presentation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Journey has ended

To all of you out there who helped the Save The Depot drive, whether by donations, purchases or working with our group, I thank you. I am sad to say our journey has come to an end. We have fallen short of our goal to save the depot. We haven’t enough money to continue.

It is a sad commentary to our town when a project like ours was ignored by many who could have helped us. It was deemed not important enough, just one more old building. We had great plans to make it a place of interest for people to visit, groups to rent, school children to learn about history.

I’m disappointed that condos or apartments seem to be more favorable because of the money factor. Just another way to teach our children about our materialistic society. If it weren’t for our little 1871 depot and the railroad, Milford wouldn’t even be here. So again, thank you to all of you who believed. We really tried to make this happen, but without the help from big donors, it didn’t happen. Just one more thing fades into history.

Sue H. Horn
Milford

Pay to play

So Rep. David Trott finally held a public meeting for citizens of the 11th District at the Novi Showplace. Why were many concerned citizens who were there at the scheduled time left out in the snow and cold?

With all that has been done by local and state Republicans to hand tax subsidies to the Showplace, you would think we would get better than that.

If it had been a Republican fundraiser, I bet no one would have been left out. I believe that is what is called “pay to play.”

Chuck Tindall
Novi

Trott doesn’t get it

After more than 600 days without a face-to-face meeting with citizens, Dave Trott, Republican 11th District, scheduled a one hour meeting at 8:30 a.m. on a Saturday morning. Leaving Plymouth at 7:30, driving on treacherously slippery roads, four of us arrived at the Suburban Collection Showplace in Novi at 8 a.m. when doors were to open. The line was long, stretching along the sidewalk and around the building.

The room reserved for this meeting was dramatically inadequate and most people remained locked outdoors in the snow and cold. We were told we could “just stand there” if we wanted to, but we would not be admitted. After 45 minutes of wet snow and no movement, we left.

We want our views and interests included in policy decisions. We were motivated to attend to have our voices heard on education, the environment and public health issues such as nutrition and weapons. Will only the donor class be represented? Does our congressman know that his call is to represent us all, even in our tortuously gerrymandered district? It does not seem that he does.

Kiki Farrow

Thank you to township police

I just read the article about Officer Kristen Romac receiving the Officer of the Year award. I think it is a well deserved award. After reading all she does and has accomplished, I don’t know where she finds the time to do everything. She has been quite instrumental in excelling our police department. Quite a bit on her own time. Bravo.

Since moving here 10 years ago. I really believe we have one of the best police departments in the state. Thank you again to all the police officers of my township.

Craig Knapp

Trump weaknesses exposed

For the second time in the last two weeks, a federal judge has blocked Trump’s Muslim ban. U.S. District Judge Derrick Watson ruled yesterday, just hours before Trump’s new Muslim ban was to take effect, that this second ban also was unconstitutional.

Judge Watson ruled Trump unconstitutionally restricted travel from Somalia, Syria, Libya, Yemen, Iran and the Sudan. Iraq was dropped in this second Trump Muslim ban as Trump was informed/reminded that Iraqi troops were fighting along side of American troops to defeat ISIS in Iraq. Twelve other states were poised to issue that same federal order to halt Trump’s second Muslim ban attempt.

Trump claims overreach of activist federal judges and claims they have weakened America. The reverse is true and Trump weaknesses have been exposed as federal judges have twice now asserted that the U.S. is a country governed by law. ISIS has used and will continue to use Trump’s unconstitutional Muslim ban as a recruiting device.

First the state of Washington and now Hawaii has shown Trump our birth certificate. It is called our U.S. Constitution.

Picking up the pieces

On March 8, millions of residents witnessed a monster windstorm the governor called the most damaging weather in Michigan’s history. Power for a million people? Trees? Mailboxes? A thousand utility poles? The violent wind ripped it away.

For us – a company that disposes of household waste from across southeast Michigan – the wind ripped a lot of that away, too. Plastic bags. Papers. Small pieces of cardboard. It wasn’t pretty.

We at Arbor Hills are proud of what we do. As women and men dedicated to carefully disposing of southeast Michigan’s waste – and as sensible people who took what we thought were sufficient proactive measures to limit the day’s damages – it was painful to see what the wind ripped away from us and cast into nearby trees, bushes and fields. We took it to heart. And we immediately got to work cleaning it up.

When the wind was still full-force, we were gathering a dozens-large team to pick up the debris. And since the strongest winds stopped, save for a snowy delay early this week, we’ve had a team of between 15 and 30 people picking up litter.

We’ve made substantial progress, collecting windblown waste in the historic cemetery, around the Thayer Nature Preserve and fields in the northeast corners of Six Mile and Napier. We’ve gone into subdivisions with residents and local officials. We’ve also cleaned our public-facing fences and lines of trees, which are designed to catch wind-blown debris but which our neighbors deserve to see clear of such matter.

We’re grateful to those who have given us helpful input, shown us through their neighborhoods and recognized our workforce picking away through long days in sub-freezing temperatures. We’re humbled by some who have even offered their own efforts.

Like everyone in Michigan, we’re picking up after the storm. We’re still going. We’re still doing our best. And we promise to keep at it until the job is done. Because we care for our community and take pride in our work – and no wind can rip that away. Arbor Hills Landfill is at the southwest corner of Napier and Six Mile roads. For updates on cleanup efforts, go to www.arborhills.info.

Farmington resident Maria Taylor was one of the early arrivals and was able to get in. But she said hundreds of people, many of whom had driven a couple of hours or more "from all corners of our gerrymandered district" only to be shut out when organizers closed the doors 10 minutes after opening them.

"I think the town hall really served to underscore the disconnect between citizens and some of these Washington officials," Taylor said. "It opened at 8 a.m. and they closed the doors at 8:09 and wouldn't let anybody else in, even though there were literally hundreds of people waiting outside. People were standing out there in the snow, in the middle of a March blizzard, locked out of the town hall -- literally locked out of democracy."

Trott, answering submitted questions read aloud by Novi Mayor Bob Gatt, took issue with some of Trump's plans, saying, for example, he would vote against the White House's budget in its current form, but he also backed the president on several points.

Dozens in the crowd raised red cards to show their displeasure with his answers, something that happened more often than not.

"For all of you who are booing," Trott said after answering a question about health care reform, "if you don't agree with the premise that the Affordable Care Act is collapsing, you're not going to agree with anything I say."

Questions about the ACA, and the Republicans' plan to replace it -- "Trumpcare" as some shouted when Trott mentioned it -- were pressing for several people Saturday.

"Commit to me and my friends that our families will have better insurance," said Ed Weberman of White Lake Township, standing to ask his question despite the forum's rules. Weberman said he had tried several times to meet with Trott with no success.

"The answer is yes," Trott said. "Of course, yes."

Weberman said his son Alex was diagnosed with a lymphatic-system cancer when he was 22, had graduated from college, but had no insurance. The ACA, he said later, saved his son's life

At one point in the town hall, Ed Weberman stood up and yelled a question to U.S. Rep. Dave Trott. Weberman wanted Trott to know that his son Alex, 24, who he said came down with non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, needed more than $400,000 of treatment. Weberman wanted to know if Trott supported allowing young adults like his son to stay on a parent's policy and whether there should be lifetime caps on access to care. Trott said that he would meet with Weberman either in Washington or in his district office.

Amber Barbieri held up a photo of her son and confronted U.S. Rep. Dave Trott in a long protest at one point. She wanted the congressman to know that the Affordable Care Act had helped her son.

by providing coverage through his parents' insurance. Trott raised a stir when he said he supports increased military spending and asked the crowd to name a place in the world that's better off since Barack Obama's presidency. "Everywhere!" someone shouted before the crowd began chanting, "U.S.A.! U.S.A.!" Trott said that North Korea, China and Iran pose threats that need to be countered with a strengthened military.

There was extended booing when Trott mentioned Betsy DeVos, the U.S. education secretary, and his support for a voucher program to help parents pay for private schools.

"We've been spending a lot of money on education and the numbers don't move," he said.

Trott also: » Said Trump's refusal to release his tax returns "certainly raises questions."

» Agreed that there had been interference by Russia in last year's presidential election. "I agree with what President Obama said, which is that there are going to be consequences," he said.

» Said "we have to keep studying climate change," but that he sees room for cuts in the Environmental Protection Agency budget and that "President Obama was so extreme with his (environmental) regulation stand."

» Said he's "not as bothered as some" by Trump's repeated weekend trips to Florida because "he appears to be a workaholic." Trump is sometimes using Twitter at 3 a.m., Trott added, so "he's up doing something."

» Trott did, however, add he was troubled by the expense of Trump's Florida visits, which are estimated at $3 million per weekend.

» Said he wishes Trump would "Google more than tweet" and use more care when tweeting about foreign policy matters. "I don't think it's productive," he said.

» Said "we have to secure our southern border" with Mexico, but that Trump's proposed wall along the border is "a bit of a gimmick." Trott said a wall would take decades to complete because of the legal process involved in seizing land for it.

Taylor felt as though Trott held the meeting "just to appease" people and didn't really say a lot she'd hoped to hear.

"There were a few things, like protecting the Great Lakes," Taylor said. "He also said he believes that universal health care is a human right, which is interesting because he's set to vote against the Affordable Care Act, which would cause tens of thousands of people to lose health insurance in his district alone."

After the town hall, Weberman said he was disappointed at the length of the hour-long meeting. "We worked to hard to get it and he gave us an hour of his time," he said.

World Autism Day shines a light April 2

Ewa Omahen
Guest Columnist

On April 2, we will celebrate World Autism Awareness Day. Our son has just turned 15. With every birthday, we come a step further in understanding his neurodiversity and in our acceptance and appreciation of who he is and how far he has come.

When we embarked on this journey, following the autism diagnosis around Patrick's third birthday, things were so different. There was no Autism Awareness Day, no iPads with communication apps and no programming in our home district for students as involved as Patrick is. Today, he attends a program for students with autism in our neighborhood middle school, Hillside, where he not only receives outstanding services, but gets the benefit of community inclusion with his typical peers. As a family, we have the support of wonderful organizations, like the Autism Alliance of Michigan and the Arc, and can access outside services, thanks to autism insurance in our state.

It is reassuring to know how far we have come, not only as a family, but as a community and society at large, when it comes to awareness, acceptance and services for those impacted by autism spectrum disorder. Yet, many issues remain. One of the more pressing ones is dispelling many stereotypes and misunderstandings that are still all too common.

A common misconception is that people with autism tend to lack empathy and may shy away from interpersonal relationships. One of the basic human needs is the need to belong, to be accepted and to be embraced by others. The relationships with family are a given for children living with autism. However, the scenario is often very different when it comes to relationships with their peers.

Thanks to the insightful intervention of the Northville Public Schools' bus personnel, Patrick has met a very special friend, Mario, who attends the high school. The boys met at an outing to Friendship Circle two years ago. They ride the same bus, but at different times.

Be wary: Main Street Elementary changes are in the wind

Where are the neighborhood fliers? Where is the community-wide heads up? Where is Historic District Commission consternation? Major changes are in the offing for Northville's Old Village/Main Street Elementary School, yet the only inking this historic district resident had was from an involved, concerned neighbor.

Why is it that the powers that be, in this case Northville Public Schools and the builder/developer it is trying to court, appear to choose a path that will offer the least resistance to their plans by making a concerted effort to disseminate as little information as possible? Why does it seem a red carpet is being laid out to an entity that will forever change part of the character of this town, with the prospect of increased property tax revenues suspiciously factoring into that deal-making?

For readers who don't know, Northville Public Schools is proposing a three-fold change to the

GUEST COLUMNIST

Main Street buildings that currently house its board offices and Early Childhood Preschool Program.

First, NPS wants to renovate the circa 1917 Old Village School, a compelling historic edifice worthy of preservation, but for an as yet undetermined sum. That grand old building would be repurposed as the NPS relocated board offices, as well as house the preschool classes that presently occupy the elementary school.

Second, NPS wants to do away with the elementary school entirely. Personally, even though that building is considered historic (erected in 1936, with a rear addition added some five years later), I would not quibble with the desire to demolish it, as its vintage is far younger than the Old Village School and utterly fails to evoke "Victorian."

Third, NPS intends to sell the land on which the elementary school sits. And this is where the builder/developer comes in. Like any such profit-motivated construction firm, the goal is to purchase said property for the cheapest price possible, then cram as many outsized homes onto it as it can accommodate. On a Wednesday, March 8, tour of the Old Village/Main Street Elementary School complex conducted by NPS Superintendent Mary Kay Gallagher, it was revealed that the purchase price for the elementary school property — prime Historic District land that extends to the school's parking lot to the west and parking lot to the south, as far back as Cady — would be sold to said firm for a paltry $1.62 million. That would make the per-lot price for each of the seven houses slated to be erected there only $230,000. This when a lot on Cady recently went for $320,000 and another presently listed as lot/land (with structure targeted for razing) at 309/311 N. Center having an asking price of $379,500.

The problem is, if the players in this transaction get real with their figures and NPS comes away from this sale with a more realistic value for such coveted property, the developer is going to have to build some pretty spectacular houses to make a respectable return on his investment. Houses of the type that will provide this kind of return are sure to clash with extant homes.

With prudent Historic District Commission guidelines and feedback from district homeowners, the new housing would have to hew to surrounding architecture and scale. I, for one, do not wish to walk downtown from my home and pass an out-of-sync, nouveau clique-borough that is conspicuously anachronistic to its surroundings. If the houses in this proposed development mimicked the look of the latter-day Victorian at 230 Fairbrook, a residence whose architect was obviously interested in blending in to the point that no one would question the home's age, then I would have less to say in opposition.

But beyond considerations of the appearance of authenticity, there is the problem of congestion. Parking lots that must be annexed to make way for these houses will leave remaining parking at a premium. How will this play out — in addition to the coming and going of residents of the new tract — with the traffic on Main and Cady? How will such an increase in congestion affect the students who are transported to and from the preschool? Indeed, the above cited neighbor made several pleas to NPS to provide a bus stop at Old Village School, but was rebuffed with the explanation that "there is too much congestion at Old Village and Main Street Schools." Really? And plans NPS and the developer have hatched for the site will improve the situation?

And what about questioning the very presumption that it is acceptable to throw houses onto property that has been designated non-residential for as long as any of us can remember? Perhaps that very premise should be challenged. Ramifications and consequences have been given little consideration or discourse. There seems to be an impetus to move things along.

I say we slow down and give this long-ranging issue the time and deliberation it merits before handing the developer his anxiously awaited title. A meeting of the Northville Historic Commission at 7 p.m. April 19, at which NPS will make its pitch for the Old Village School renovation, Main Street Elementary School demolition and subsequent housing development, is the opportunity for all residents impacted by these schemed changes to make their voices heard.

Forbidden Art

Forbidden Art, a collection of images of artwork created by concentration camp prisoners while imprisoned by the Nazis during World War II will be on display at the Wixom Public Library through April 6. The exhibition is made up of 20 large color photos of drawings and sculptures made by inmates of the Auschwitz, Buchenwald, and Ravensbrück concentration camps. Each photograph is accompanied by a historical commentary and narrative account as to why the piece was created.

The exhibit opens with an almost-black-tie reception at the Wixom Community Center on the evening of Sunday, March 19. The reception will open with author, historian, and distinguished lecturer Teresa Wontor-Cichy of the Auschwitz Birkenau State Museum of Poland who will deliver her powerfully emotional interpretation of the art and artists featured in this exhibit. Following the introduction, guests will mingle while enjoying music of renowned violinist Sonia Lee, wine and a wide variety of elegant appetizers provided by local sponsors. Guests will also be treated to a private group 45-minute viewing of the exhibit. Tickets for the reception are $20 prior to March 1 and $25 thereafter and can be purchased on-line at the City of Wixom website.

BECKER

CAPT. ANDREW CHRISTOPHER December 4, 1983 – March 14, 2017
Capt. Andrew Christopher Becker, USAF, devoted husband, son, brother, uncle, and Airman died March 14, when his U-28 aircraft crashed during a 318th Special Operations Squadron (SOS) training sortie near Clovis, New Mexico. He was 33 years old. Becker attended Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University where he earned a Bachelor of Science degree in meteorology. Upon graduation, he was commissioned an Air Force officer through the ROTC program. He completed pilot training in 2009. Assigned to the 34th Special Operations Squadron at Hurlburt Field in Fort Walton Beach, FL., Becker quickly established himself as a skilled pilot and reliable squadron mate, participating in six overseas deployments with the 34th SOS in support of counterterrorism operations. A rising star in the special operations aviation community, Becker was hand-selected in 2013 to help reactivate the 318th SOS at Cannon AFB. While there, he participated in three additional overseas deployments and was slated to begin training the next generation of Air Force navigators at Naval Air Station Pensacola, FL. He will be posthumously promoted to major. Loyal and optimistic beyond measure, Becker was an enthusiastic supporter of his wife and friends, and brightened every room he entered. A consummate handyman and analytical thinker, there was no home improvement project or work assignment too daunting for Becker to tackle, and he loved being able to share his knowledge with others. Becker’s passion for flying extended beyond the confines of Earth’s thin atmosphere; he was pursuing a Master’s Degree in Space Studies at American Military University, and had begun writing a thesis titled “Defining the Limits of Outer Space.” Becker also was an animal lover who donated time and efforts to animal welfare causes and charities, and he opened his heart and home to many four-legged creatures over the years. Becker, known to his friends and family as Andy, will be fondly remembered for his generosity, kindness, and especially for his room-filling laughter—a jolly, booming, contagious laughter that brought joy to all who heard it. He is survived by his wife Shelly Klosterman Becker; parents Gary and Stacey Becker; sister Betsie Becker and her daughter, Cate; brother G.R. “Skip” Becker, Jr., his wife Mandy, and their sons Zephan and Mack; and his beloved rescue dog, Cheyenne. Funeral services, open to family and friends, will be held March 25 at 3 p.m., at Ward Presbyterian Church in Northville, MI., near Becker’s hometown, Novi.

JULE March 14, 2017.
Reunited with his wife of 65 years, Sylvia, who preceded him in passing on March 15, 2008. Survived by sister, Barbara (George Brancato). Beloved father to son Terry (Terri), daughters Sandy (David Davies), Cindy (Shaun Mattes), Gary (deceased/Sue), and Larry (deceased). Grandpa’s passing leaves behind his adoring grandchildren, Matt, Ken, Eric, Scott, Danielle, Cory, Collin, and many extended family members. Kind and compassionate, Jule’s love of family contributed to his longevity, as his life was one of consistent sacrifice in putting the needs of others before his own.

POLICICCHIO

JANE CATHERINE 95, of Lower Burrell, PA, peacefully passed away at Edward Hospital in Naperville, IL surrounded by her loving family. Jane was born June 12, 1921, in Vandergrift, PA, to the late James and Saveria Salvino, and had lived in Lower Burrell since 1953. Throughout her life, Jane enjoyed volunteering in several community organizations and was an active member of her church, including various church choirs and the Catholic Daughters of America for 65 years. Jane was very involved with her community, volunteering at her local polling place for more than 30 years. Jane spent her early life focused on her studies as a member of the National Honor Society and in her local library where she read nearly every book in circulation. She married the love of her life, John, upon his return from WWII. In retirement, Jane and John would spend weeks at a time in Michigan and Illinois watching their grandchildren grow up. Jane instilled family values and traditions into many generations and cherished the holidays where her family laughed, shared stories, and played cards together. She enjoyed a close relationship with her children and children-through-marriage, especially Michon Policicchio, who married her beloved son Paul. Following the passing of her husband, Jane made a new home living with Sara and Gil in Naperville, IL. She was very proud to see her children and grandchildren enjoy happiness in all of their endeavors and formed a special bond with her great-granddaughters, Gemma and Julia. She was a wonderful listener with a warm soul and a selfless heart whose beautiful voice and cheerful laugh will be missed by those who knew her. Jane was preceded in death by her late husband John Policicchio and her dear son Paul Policicchio. Survivors include children, Sara Jane (Gil) Phillip, of Naperville, IL and Michon Policicchio of Novi, MI; grandchildren, John, Joseph and Jeffrey Policicchio, Mark (Hannah) Phillip and Nicole Phillip. Jane Marie (A.J) Portelli; great-granddaughters, Gemma and Julia Portelli; sister, Betty Barisone, of Leechburg, PA; sister-in-law Jean Policicchio, of Bridgeville, PA; brother-in-law C. Armond Policicchio, of Vandergrift, PA; sister-in-law, Mary (Henry) Gee, of Novato, CA; many nieces and nephews, including Cindy Gatto (Ken) Donaldson; and close friends Jane Bronson and Nancy O’Malley of Naperville, IL. Besides her parents, she was preceded in death by her sister Angie Gatto and brothers Domenico Ciardulli and Joseph Salvino. Friends will be received from 2 to 4 and 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, March 24th at the RUSIEWICZ OF LOWER BURRELL FUNERAL HOME, 3124 Leechburg Road at Alder Street, Lower Burrell, where a parting prayer will be said at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, March 25th, followed by a Catholic funeral Mass at St. Margaret Mary Church. Burial will follow in Greenwood Memorial Park, Lower Burrell, PA. Memorial Service will be at St. Raphael Catholic Church, 1215 Modaff Road, Naperville, IL., on Saturday, April 1st at 11:00 a.m. followed by a reception hosted by her family. Arrangements entrusted to Friedrich-Jones Funeral Home, 44 S. Mill St., Naperville, IL 60540. For more information, please call 630-355-0213.

JoANNE Of Johannesburg, Michigan; passed away peacefully in her sleep on January 11, 2017. Born in Detroit on May 2, 1941 to James Joseph McAleer and Virginia Gertrude (Knaupe) McAleer. She attended Southfield High School and graduated from Michigan State University. A long-time resident of Northville, Michigan, JoAnne was a caring and thoughtful homemaker who always had an open door to friends and family in need. She is survived by her husband, Ellis; brother, Derek (Sandy) McAleer; son, Todd (Mailin) Van Hoosear; daughter, Rebecca (Robert) Blascyk; and grandchildren, Ann, David, Boniface, Urban, Lillian, and Genevieve. A private memorial service was held. Donations in her memory can be sent to the COPD Foundation.

Mario kept asking about Patrick, so the bus monitor suggested that he write him a note. The note was delivered that day by the bus personnel to Patrick.

Here we are today, two years later, and following multiple exchanges of letters — via the school bus — between two special friends. Mario writes to Patrick about his interests, school, family, weather, dog and plans. I respond on Patrick's behalf — he does not write — and with his help in the form of stickers and drawings.

The boys have met and took an instant liking to each other. They enjoy hanging out and jumping on the trampoline or shooting basketball. The excitement and joy on their faces, whenever they are together, are priceless. Mario is the most considerate, caring and genuine young man one could meet. We feel so lucky that our son can have such an awesome friend. The boys are very different, yet so much alike in so many ways. Their joy in the simple things and their ability to live in the moment are truly contagious and so inspiring to us as their parents.

Friendships and relationships come in all varieties. The special friendship between Mario and Patrick was initiated by the caring transportation personnel. They recognized and nurtured the need for these boys to be connected, to communicate and to have a friend. We all need to have meaningful relationships with others. For some of us, it may take extra steps, unique ways and caring people to facilitate it. The end result is a beautiful friendship between two amazing boys who could teach us all a thing or two about what it takes to be a true friend. May April 2 be a celebration of the precious gifts — like Mario's and Patrick's friendship — these children bring to our world and a recognition of the special people in their lives. Many thanks to the educators, bus personnel, professionals, peer pals, family members and friends who help our children build meaningful relationships and feel connected.

Hillside one-act play tackles middle school life

Brad Kadrich
hometownlife.com

The Hillside Middle School Drama Club boot camp in September 2015 drew more than 50 kids interested in seeing what the club was all about.

After a highly successful play in March 2016, that number boomed to more than 80 kids in last fall's camp, run as a partnership between Hillside's club and members of the drama club at Northville High School. More than 50 of those kids stuck it out and are part of this year's play, "Middle Decades," which takes to the Hillside auditorium stage next week.

Given the burgeoning success of the program, director Jason Brooks may have to start looking for bigger digs if "Middle Decades" proves to be as popular. It's a one-act play written, as has become custom, by Brooks himself. It follows a single classroom teacher through several decades, starting in the 1980s and culminating in the 2010s, with an epilogue that takes place in 2030.

The vignettes through the play tackle both typical teenage drama such as cliques and specific issues such as dealing with technology. The play covers how the students handle such things over the years and shows how the teacher changes, too.

"Each vignette focuses on a decade-specific topic, but also on things that affect all teenagers, something every middle schooler goes through," Brooks said. "You see kids deal with these issues and you also see the teacher grow, too."

The play was inspired, Brooks said, by the reactions of his actors after last year's play, when they realized they had to tear down a bunch of sets. They complained, he said, about how often club gets a feeder program.

"This is a training ground for the high school club," Brooks said. "There's altruism involved, because the high school kids spend a lot of time working with the middle school kids, but there's also a benefit in that next year the high school has incoming kids for their program."

But that's next year's benefit. At this point, Brooks is happy to see his middle schoolers taking his words and bringing them to life on stage. It makes the writing process — the inevitable writer's block and the actual writing — worth it.

"The most satisfying aspect for me is that the kids make it better," Brooks said. "These kids are having fun and gaining this experience. Once they inhabit a character, it's better and definitely more satisfying than anything I would have imagined."

The club puts on the show for grade-level audiences Monday through Wednesday, March 27-29, and presents a show open to the public at 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 29, at the Hillside Middle School auditorium (775 N. Center St. in Northville). Admission is free, but donations would be gratefully accepted.

they had to change sets during the play and about how much they had to take apart when the show wrapped.

All that complaining inspired Brooks to write "Middle Decades."

"I knew the show had to relate to middle schoolers and, last year during our brainstorming session with the graduating eighth-graders, they were complaining about having to change so many sets," Brooks said. "So the origin of the story was really these surly teenagers not wanting to change a set."

This year's set is much simpler: A single classroom.

The show involves 53 students between cast and crew. That's after more than 80 students took part in September's boot camp, put on by members of the Northville High School Drama Club. The partnership benefits both schools; the middle schoolers get the benefit of learning about all aspects of the drama world — stage, crew, set design, lights, sound, etc. — and the high school

NOVI POLICE BRIEFS

Embezzlement costs store nearly $9K

A 22-year-old woman is suspected of an embezzlement scheme that cost the JC Penney store at Twelve Oaks Mall nearly $9,000.

The former Penney employee gave some customers deep, fraudulent discounts on merchandise and activated three gift cards, with a total value of $340, without placing money in the till, a Penney’s asset protection manager reported March 14, according to a Novi Police Department report.

The discounts had been given on both in-store and online purchases, said the manager, who had been contacted by an investigator for Penney. The fraudulent transactions, linked to the suspect’s employee number, had been flagged because the markdowns were unusual, the police report said. The transactions all took place between Jan. 28 and Feb. 21, the report said.

Police said there is video evidence of the fraud, including video showing the woman taking gift cards without putting money in the register.

Contacted by phone, the woman agreed to be interviewed by an officer, but failed to show up for the interview, police said. Police continue to investigate.

Soccer field vandalism

A “lawn job” at the ITC Community Sports Park on Eight Mile in Novi wrecked the main soccer field there earlier this month.

The vandalism — tire tracks all over the soccer field — was discovered by a Novi Parks, Recreation and Cultural Services Department employee March 8, a police report said. The damage had occurred some time after 4 p.m. March 6, the report said.

The employee estimated the cost of repairing the field at between $5,000 and $10,000, police said. The city took photos of the damage to show police.

Drunken driver

A 23-year-old man was arrested early St. Patrick’s Day on a charge of driving under the influence.

A Novi officer spotted the man’s car, a Buick LeSabre, traveling eastbound on Pontiac Trail at more than 60 mph in a 45-mph zone shortly after 2 a.m. Friday, a police report said.

Pulled over by the officer a short distance away, the driver said he’d had a couple of drinks at a bar in Wixom, police said. His eyes were bloodshot and he smelled of alcohol and he performed poorly on field sobriety tests and a preliminary breath test, the report said.

Later, at the police station, two Breathalyzer tests each measured the man’s blood-alcohol level at 0.11, percent police said. That’s over the limit of 0.08 at which a driver is considered drunk.

The LeSabre was impounded and police took the suspect’s two passengers to the apartment of one of them.

Ungrateful guest

A man who was staying temporarily with a Novi couple, and apparently upset that he had been told to either stop drinking or leave their apartment, attacked one of his hosts the night of March 12.

The male victim told police he was lying in bed when the guest walked into his and his wife’s bedroom, went to his side of the bed and began punching him in the face.

The victim said he was punched six or seven times while trying to block the blows with his feet. The attacker then left the apartment, the victim said.

The victim had a bloodied nose that was cleaned up by medics at the scene, but told them he didn’t think his nose was broken and declined further treatment, police said.

The attacker was the brother of the wife’s ex-husband, a police report said. Police checked around local businesses, but did not locate him.

The victim said the man had been staying with he and his wife since March 9 because his power was out. On March 12, he said, the man was drinking throughout the day and got upset when the husband told him he should stop drinking or leave.

Bike theft

An unsecured bicycle was stolen from the patio of a home on Summer House Court the night of March 12.

The Roadmaster-brand bike was blue with red stripes and had 26-inch wheels. It was taken some time between 9 p.m. March 12 and 7:30 a.m. the next day, a police report said.

Submit your work for Short on Words competition

The sixth edition of Short on Words is looking for aspiring authors.

Preservation Dental will again sponsor the Short on Words competition, in conjunction with Northville's annual Arts & Acts Festival. The call for entries has been issued. Michigan authors have until April 21 to enter a poem or short story – 1,500 words or less, using one of the subject photos selected for this year's competition. There are two categories: ages 17 and under and ages 18 and older.

The cash awards for each age category are: first prize: $100; second prize: $50; third prize: $25. Additional prizes may be awarded at the discretion of the judges. Criteria and complete information packets are available at Preservation Dental, Office of Dr. William S. Demray, 371 E. Main St., Northville, MI 48167; online at preservationdental.com; and at the Northville Art House.

Times have changed. But everyone still likes a good story. Children like to be read to – whether it's at bedtime with a real storybook filled with pictures or if it's grandma reading to their classroom via Skype. Book clubs are filled with members from 20-something to 90-something. They are all reading paperbacks, hard covers and e-books on tablets. In any case, the story (or the poem) is being told.

Painted lady

"I know the real story of each picture," Demray said, "But the stories of what 'could be' are incredible. It's amazing to me how the creative mind sees a simple baseball cap on a fence post and writes a heartbreaking story of a tragic bus accident. It is a privilege to use my love of photography to give lovers of words a canvas to create their art."

Northville's Arts & Acts Festival is June 16-18. Winners of the Short on Words competition will be announced at an author reception at 6:30 p.m. Friday, June 16, at Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall in downtown Northville.

More trespassing at vacant psychiatric hospital

hometownlife.com

Despite "No Trespassing" signs posted at the vacant Northville Psychiatric Hospital — destined for demolition — township police continue to be confronted with trespassers at the dilapidated facility.

At just before 9 p.m. March 12, police were dispatched to the property for possible trespassers. An officer searched the property and saw three men, who were asked to walk toward him. The men, instead, ran toward nearby woods, police said. The officer informed other police units, with another officer stationing his patrol car in a parking area at the end of the woods.

Ten minutes later, the men appeared and were detained. The men told police they ran because they knew they weren't supposed to be on the property, police said.

Two 17-year-olds, one from Novi and one from West Bloomfield, along with a 27-year-old man from Novi, were cited for trespassing and released.

In a second incident after 10 p.m. March 16, three Waterford men ages 17-19 were cited for trespassing after police reportedly caught them on the property. An officer was patrolling in the area when he saw a suspicious Chevrolet Silverado parked on the north side of Seven Mile. The officer said he could see flashlights moving away from the hospital.

The officer contacted the registered owner of the Silverado, who was the mother of one of the young men. She told the officer her son had the vehicle for the evening. The mother said her son's cellphone was off.

The officer saw the men returning to the vehicle, which left east-bound on Seven Mile. The officer also noticed an expired vehicle registration sticker. He stopped the Silverado and spoke with the men, whom he felt were being deceitful, according to a police report. The driver told the officer that they were on the first and second floors of the hospital, police said.

The men were cited for trespassing and cautioned by the officer that the hospital contained environmental hazards.

BIRMINGHAM POLICE DEPARTMENT
Forty years later, the Oakland County child killings remain unsolved.

Unsolved homicides still haunt community

Jay Grossman
hometownlife.com

Growing up in south-east Michigan, Darlene McKenzie and Timmy King didn't have much in common — except for the fact they were murdered more than 40 years ago and their killers were never caught.

McKenzie's body was found June 10, 1975, in the area of Interstate 696, east of Haggerty Road, in Farmington Hills. An autopsy revealed she died of strangulation, but it wasn't until December 2016 that investigators could positively identify the 15-year-old Detroit resident through new DNA samples.

King's body was discovered March 22, 1977, dumped in a ditch off Gill Road in Livonia. The 11-year-old Birmingham boy is considered the fourth and final victim of the Oakland County Child Killer.

The two cold cases are in the spotlight for different reasons: This month marks the 40th anniversary of the final Oakland County Child Killer homicide, while Crime Stoppers of Michigan is trying to spark new interest into the McKenzie case by offering a $2,500 reward.

Farmington Hills Police Detective Chad Double said solving a cold case homicide is never an easy task.

"They take a lot longer, because we're not getting in information like we would with a more recent case," Double said. "And the reports might get passed on to different detectives, because of promotions and retirements, but that just means a new set of eyes. We definitely try and reach out to the families and let them know we're not giving up."

'Drop ... run and scream'

It was the evening of March 16, 1977, when King grabbed his skateboard and left his house to buy some candy at the local pharmacy on Maple Road.

A serial killer was on the loose, putting all of Oakland County on panic alert. Three children had already been kidnapped and murdered over a period of 11 months.

In each of the cases, the victims were held captive for a period of days before they were killed and their bodies dumped by the side of a road.

The first two children, Mark Stebbins of Ferndale and Jill Robinson of Royal Oak, were killed 10 months apart in 1976. The third victim, 10-year-old Kristine Mihelich, was abducted Jan. 2, 1977, after she was last seen at a 7-Eleven in Berkley. A mail carrier discovered her body 19 days later on a dead-end street in Franklin Village.

Barry King and his wife Marion were eating at Peabody's Restaurant the night their youngest child was abducted.

"After the Mihelich murder, all my kids remember me telling Tim, 'If anyone tries to pick you up, drop everything and run and scream,'" King said. "But even today, if someone stopped and talked to you, you probably wouldn't run and scream — especially if you were 11."

He then shakes his head, almost as if he was trying to erase the memories.

"Part of the tragedy to me, is once Tim got into the car, he knew what would happen," he said. "That's the worst part of it all."

Tim's older brother Christopher had a baby-sitting job that evening in the neighborhood. His other brother and sister also ended up making plans, leaving Timmy alone.

King said his son was a responsible sixth-grader who did well in school and had recently taken on his own newspaper route. It wouldn't have been unusual to leave him alone at home for a short time.

"I've wrestled with that night in my mind over 100 times," he said. "We didn't do anything that evening that I wouldn't do again."

New leads

Farmington Hills investigators are more hopeful of solving the 42-year-old McKenzie homicide, now that police know the victim's identity.

Don't panic at tax deadline; ask for extension

It's that time of year again, when people are rushing to organize their tax info and to have their returns completed by the April 18 deadline. This year, because April 15 falls on a weekend, the returns are due April 18. That being said, there are some issues that are important to keep in mind. The first deals with those who are not going to have their returns completed by the deadline. The second is for those who complete their returns — it may be time to prune some of those tax records. For those who cannot complete their returns on time, there is no reason to panic. One of the mistakes many people make is that they rush to complete their returns by the April deadline and then they make mistakes. It is those mistakes that lead to IRS scrutiny; I guarantee you, no one wants that. If you cannot complete your returns on time, the best course of action is to file for an extension. The IRS form you would use to file for your extension is form 4868. An extension is automatic for six months, but what trips people up is that they need to keep in mind that it is an extension of time to file your returns, not to pay your taxes. You have to go through a process to guesstimate your tax liability to determine whether you need to make a payment with your extension. Keep in mind that if you file for a federal extension, it will automatically apply to the state of Michigan, but you may have to make an estimated payment. Many people believe that if you file for an extension, you increase your audit risk; that is not the case. Filing for an extension will not increase your audit risk. Filing sloppy returns or incomplete returns will definitely increase your audit risk, not filing for an extension. If you can't properly complete and file your return by the April 18 deadline, do yourself a favor and file for an extension. The other issue is for those who have completed your returns — it may be a good idea to prune your tax files. Without question, you should save at least the last three years returns and the backup data. The IRS can audit you up to three years after you've filed your returns. That being said, in most cases I tell people to retain their tax information for seven years. In rare cases where the IRS suspects fraud or where you underreported your income by 25 percent or more, the IRS can extend the time for an audit. That is why I tell people to retain their information for at least seven years. For anything past seven years, you are probably safe to destroy that information. One caveat to this deals with Social Security. Before you destroy records from 10 and 20 years ago, it's a good idea to check your Social Security earnings to make sure you received the proper credit for the years which you worked. If you have gotten the proper credit for your work years, then there is virtually no reason to save your old returns and documentation. It is important to keep in mind that your tax information contains lots of sensitive information, such as your Social Security number; you have to properly dispose of this material. My advice is that anything with tax information should be shredded in order to protect yourself. One last note: To make filing your 2017 tax return as easy as possible, it is also a great time of year to set up a record system for your 2017 tax returns. ## UNSOLVED

"Before, we had no clue who she was or where she came from," Double said. "So this definitely sheds more light on the case ... we'll talk with her friends and see who she was hanging out with." Authorities know McKenzie left her house in Detroit following a family argument. They also suspect the murder may have occurred in Detroit and McKenzie's body was left by the freeway in Farmington Hills. McKenzie's daughter, Carlita Ransom, 43, was an infant when her mom disappeared. She's now speaking up about the case, hoping it might lead to a reliable tip. "She's the one who approached Detroit police about reopening the case," Double said. "She wants to find closure." Farmington Hills police solved several cold cases in recent years, including a pre-meditated murder from 1993 and a botched supermarket robbery from 1979. A few years back, the department established a cold case team to help solve other past homicides. Galvanizing moment Oakland County Sheriff Mike Bouchard was a rookie police officer in Southfield Township when the serial killings took place. His former supervisor, Jerry Tobias, was one of the lead investigators in the OCCK case. "It was probably one of the most galvanizing moments in my life," Bouchard said of the four homicides. "I was very new to police work. I was a person who was raised in a loving family and I was stunned by anyone who could hurt a child, let alone do this." He was on routine patrol the night Timmy King was abducted. Through a countywide search warrant, Bouchard and other officers were allowed to randomly pull over vehicles to search for the young boy. "I was searching in the area of 13 Mile and Lahser," Bouchard said. "The drivers were totally supportive — they knew what was going on.

Barry King, 86, at his home in Birmingham. He doubts he'll ever know who killed his son in 1977.

JUNFU HAN | STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

We thought it was possible the child might be moved." Bouchard also volunteered to work the phone lines and help process the thousands of tips pouring in to law enforcement. He can't help but look back on the unsolved murders with a sense of frustration. "I'm still incredibly sad the families haven't had closure and justice was never obtained," he said. "I think it will haunt anyone who had a connection to that case. I know when Jerry Tobias died, that was heavy on his heart." Bouchard said the case prompted him to pursue a career in law enforcement and to eventually enter the state Legislature in the 1990s, where he drafted the state's first sex offender registry act to help protect young victims of crime. He has served as Oakland County sheriff since 1999. 40 years of pain King, who just turned 86, still lives in the same house in Birmingham. The family moved there 42 years ago. He was born in New Zealand, where his father met his mother while opening a factory for General Motors in the country's capital of Wellington. They moved back to the U.S. when he was nine months old. He served in the U.S. Navy during the early years of the Vietnam War and his house is filled with photographs of military vessels. Cabinets are also filled with family photos and there are portraits of Timmy around the house. At the top of his list of possible suspects is Chris Busch, a convicted pedophile who committed suicide in 1978 at his family's home in Bloomfield Township. Busch was supposedly cleared of the crimes after taking a polygraph test in February 1977. A month later, Timmy King was kidnapped. King said other people looked at the Busch polygraph and don't believe the results are conclusive. To this day, he's not sure why authorities have dismissed Busch as a suspect. "I was told the only way this case would get solved is through a deathbed confession," King said. "At this point in my life, I doubt I'll ever know the answers I'm seeking." jgrossman@hometownlife.com 586-826-7030 Twitter: @BhmEccentric

Congressional redistricting reform group holds meeting in Livonia

hometownlife.com

Jamie Lyons-Eddy believes several of Michigan's congressional districts come in some pretty strange shapes. Just look at the ones in metro Detroit.

"If you start at Campus Martius and you drive up Woodward to downtown Pontiac, you will switch U.S. congressional districts six times," said Lyons-Eddy, a presenter at a meeting regarding redistricting Tuesday night. "You'll pass through the 14th three times."

A statewide, non-partisan organization and ballot committee is looking to make some changes to the way the state handles redistricting or the process of redrawing legislative districts. That group, Voters Not Politicians, held a meeting March 14 at the Disabled Americans Veterans Chapter 114 in Livonia. The meeting, one of several being held across the state, gave the more than 100 people in attendance an overview on the process of redistricting commonly referred to as "gerrymandering," which is done to group certain populations together in order to achieve more power by a political party.

The organization has made it its goal to put a proposal on the 2018 ballot that would change the way the redistricting process, which will take place after the 2020 U.S. Census, is handled.

Katie Fahey, another presenter from the redistricting group, said many races in Michigan

Bill Bresler | Staff Photographer
Jaime Lyons-Eddy speaks about redistricting at the Voters Not Politicians town hall.

are decided well before voters cast their ballot during the elections because of the makeup of the district.

"They should be getting re-elected because their constituents like them," she said. "And because they voted for them and because they have a real option or choice of being unelected. Because when that is real, when you have a competitive election, that's when people have to start paying attention to what people actually want."

The meeting saw more than 100 people in attendance, including Livonia Public Schools Board of Education member Dan Centers. He said the division in the state would move in the right direction if the process of redistricting were changed.

"Politically, we are more divided than anytime in recent memory," he said. "Redistricting reform will stop Lansing from picking winners and losers and give that power to our voters. That is good for democracy."

Northville Township resident Pat Timmons said he's hopeful some sort of movement will take place when it comes to redistricting. He said the state's been gerrymandered and "leads to very bad government."

He said he came to the meeting to see how serious the movement was and thinks he'll get involved.

"Based on the attendance tonight, I'm a little more optimistic. I've been involved in petition drives before and it's been very hard on other issues," he said. "But I think this one will resonate with people and I think there's a chance."

Another meeting hosted by the group is scheduled to take place 7-9 p.m. March 28 at St. John's Episcopal Church, 574 S. Sheldon, in Plymouth Township.

Prom dresses going for $20 this weekend at Livonia sale

hometownlife.com

There aren't many places where 95 percent off is the norm for a sale. But for the annual 2nd Life Prom Dress Sale at Livonia's St. Paul Presbyterian Church, as much as 95 percent off is pretty standard.

"It's fun to see the kids in them and their beautiful," said Pam Phillips, a parishioner who has helped put on the sale the last several years.

The church, located at 27475 Five Mile just west of Inkster, will hold its sixth annual prom dress sale from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday. More than 1,100 dresses, tops, shoes, jewelry, purses and other accessories are available to purchase at flat prices. Prom dresses, no matter the original sticker price, are all $20 cash.

It's an event, Phillips said, that attracts girls and families from all over the region and out-of-state, too. She said they've had customers come from Ohio and Canada in recent years, looking to score a great deal on a dress.

Admission to the sale is free, though attendees will need a ticket to access the floor. Tickets will be given out starting at 7 a.m. Saturday in the parking lot of the church. Phillips said it's not uncommon to see cars begin pulling up at 6 a.m. to try to be first in line. The church will open its doors at 8 a.m. for people to wait inside before the sale begins.

"When they see us unlock the door, they come running," said the Plymouth resident and longtime St. Paul's parishioner.

It's Phillips's hope between 300 and 500 people attend Saturday.

From there, several people will be ushered into the area where the dresses are to try them on and find that special gown. There are several volunteers who can make some minor alterations, including hemming, strap alterations and other adjustments. Several dressing areas have also been constructed for customers to try on the dresses.

They come in a wide range of colors, fashions and sizes, Phillips said. Anything from size 0 to size 28 is available.

And it's not just an event for prom, either, Phillips said. There are plenty of dresses that go well for other events such as homecoming, honeymoons and other vacations. Phillips recalled one shopper way came in that wasn't looking for a prom dress.

"She was going on a cruise. And she came in and bought dresses for her cruise," she said. "We've got dynamite dresses for cruises, for vacation, summer. Summer's coming up."

And while the dresses are the highlight of the event, the funds brought in go to help the community. All the proceeds will go toward helping feed the hungry, as well as helping some students from Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church going to Alaska to build a home and the Life Remodeled project in Detroit.

"We have our food pantry where we give out hundreds of bags of food," she said. "We have given out over 8,000 pounds of fresh produce since we started our garden."

"Where our money goes, we go."

Stars & Stripes Festival moving to Novi this summer

Brian McCollum
Detroit Free Press

After a decade as a Macomb County institution, the Stars & Stripes Festival is taking its rock bands, monster trucks and carnival rides to a new home in Novi.

The Fourth of July week fest will touch down June 29 through July 2 on the grounds of the Suburban Collection Showplace to make its Oakland County premiere — and give Novi its first major fireworks display.

The announcement follows a months-long hunt by Funfest Productions for a site to replace the Michigan Lottery Amphitheatre at Freedom Hill, the festival's home since 2013. Funfest officials said they were ousted from the Sterling Heights venue by new operator Palace Sports & Entertainment; a Palace spokesman said Funfest rejected a proposal to jointly produce the fest.

Stars & Stripes debuted in 2006 as a free Mt. Clemens street fest and quickly became one of Macomb County's top summer draws, pulling tens of thousands annually for a lineup of national and local music, family events, BMX stunts and more.

Now those attractions are headed 30-plus miles west to set up shop on the surface lots and other spaces outside the Novi facility, which was selected after relocation discussions with several Oakland County municipalities, Funfest head Joe Nieporte said.

"We're excited," Novi Mayor Bob Gatt said. "We've never had a big Fourth of July event, other than a local subdivision parade. This is going to be big, it's going to be at the right place and we're happy to have them come here."

With the Suburban Collection Showplace, Stars & Stripes gets a sprawling site with festival experience: The revamped, privately operated Michigan State Fair has run there each Labor Day weekend since 2012.

"They already have the infrastructure in place to do a big festival," Nieporte said. "The landscape is plug-and-play."

The arrival of Stars & Stripes is another feather in the cap of the 12-year-old Suburban Collection Showplace, whose 320,000-square-foot exhibition center hosts annual consumer events — including boat, golf and camping shows — along with a regular schedule of trade conventions. The indoor facility is undergoing a 182,000-square-foot expansion.

"This was one of those 'happens for a reason' types of deals," owner Blair Bowman said of Stars & Stripes. "This is the direction we want to go, and they needed a place to move. I think it'll be a great long-term fit."

On the music front, Stars & Stripes has typically leaned toward classic rock, hard rock and country music, with recent headliners including acts such as Styx, Uncle Kracker, Bret Michaels and Randy Travis. With booking already underway and a full lineup to be announced next month, Nieporte said he doesn't expect a dramatic shift in programming for the fest's Novi edition.

One new feature this year will be a monster-truck "car crush" event. Fireworks will wrap up the four-day festival July 2.

"One of the things we like to do here is establish traditions — or re-establish a great tradition like the state fair — with community-friendly events," Bowman said. "So establishing a good Fourth of July program is a bonus."

Pets for Vets adoptions scheduled for March 25 in Westland

hometownlife.com

It's called Pets for Vets, but the second annual event at the Wayne-Ford Civic League is actually open to anyone seeking to adopt a dog or cat.

The difference is that veterans will have their adoption fees covered through donations from local businesses and community organizations. Pets for Vets is scheduled from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, March 25.

"These are companion animals. They aren't specifically trained for anything. We pull dogs and cats from shelters all over Michigan who are five days from euthanasia," said Terry Packer of Last Day Dog Rescue. "We get a few owner surrender animals, but we try to pull the ones about to be euthanized."

Last Day Dog Rescue takes dogs and cats from shelters to foster homes where they live with volunteers until they are adopted. "We don't want to take them from shelters to another shelter. We won't pull them from a shelter unless we have a foster home for them," Packer said.

Dogs get to visit with prospective new families at the Pets for Vets event. The second annual event is Saturday, March 25, at the Wayne Ford Civic League.

CRAIG HEBERT

Veterans can get pre-approved for a dog or cat by calling 734-469-3343. Applications will also be accepted at the event. The general public can also get pre-approved by going to lastdaydogrescue.org and completing an online application. There are no on-site adoptions.

Last year, 22 animals were adopted, including 13 adoptions by veterans. "We already have nine applications. We're ahead of last year — that's phenomenal," Packer said.

There will be trainers from Beyond the Bark offering free training seminars and answering questions about adopting animals.

Sponsored by the Last Day Dog Rescue, the Wayne Ford Civic League and Veterans of Westland, there will also be representatives on hand from Wayne County Veterans Services thanks to the efforts of Wayne County Commissioner Glenn Anderson, D-Westland.

"They will have equipment to provide veterans with ID cards. They need to bring their DD214 discharge papers," said Vic Barra, Wayne Ford Civic League president. "If a veteran doesn't have their DD214, there will be people who can help them apply to get that. There are veterans who delay getting benefits because they don't have their paperwork. People move and paperwork gets lost."

A veteran himself, Barra said that he has almost always had a dog and encouraged all veterans to consider adopting an animal.

"I have been blessed to find myself in a position to serve and support two causes near and dear to me — animal rescue/adoption and veterans needs and services," he said. "We are hoping that all veterans sign up and adopt one of these loving animals at this year's event. The adoption costs free for veterans."

Packer noted that Barra came up with the idea for the first Pets for Vets and immediately after the event was ready to get organized for the second year.

"This was a great event last year" said Tim Bennett, president of Last Day Dog Rescue. "The veterans were so grateful as many of them expressed how much having a dog in their home changed their lives."

Last Day Dog Rescue and the civic league are both 501(c)3 charity organizations. All money raised from this event, which will include raffles and drawings, will help to cover all the adoption fees for local veterans who adopt an animal. Any remaining dollars will go toward Last Day Dog Rescue and Veterans of Westland. Since 2007, Last Day Dog Rescue has adopted more than 7,000 dogs and cats.

For veteran inquiries, contact Barra at 734-637-5579. To sponsor a dog or cat for a local veteran, call 734-765-8671.

NAPLES, Fla. - When Myra Janco Daniels was young, her father asked her what she wanted to be.

Her answer: "In charge."
For much of her life, Daniels has been precisely that, as a successful advertising executive, the driving force behind the creation of the Philharmonic Center for the Arts in Naples, Florida, now Artis-Naples, and most recently as a fundraiser for the Salvation Army's new Fran Cohen Youth Center in East Naples.

At 91, Daniels has no intention of giving up her habit of taking the lead in charitable endeavors. The completion of the youth center, which will serve children who would otherwise come home from school to an empty house, is just weeks away. Now she has a few other projects, which she prefers to keep under wraps for now, on her to-do list.

"I wake up each day with something on my plate," said Daniels, who moved to Southwest Florida's Marco Island in 1979 after working in Indiana and Chicago.

She later moved to Pelican Bay, near the performing arts hall that was the culmination of her vision for a permanent home for the Naples/Marco Island Philharmonic.

She has since moved twice, each time giving up some of the art from her collection. "I'd rather see a kid go to college than buy another piece of art," she said.

Staying active is a core belief. "I don't think people should retire. You have to use your mind to live," she said.

Having obtained everything she wants, Daniels now works on a volunteer basis. "There's nothing I want for myself. I just want to be useful." It's a lesson she learned from her grandparents, immigrants from Romania.

"They taught me when you give, you get back so much more."

Giving back is part of being an American, Daniels believes. "I've been blessed. Most of all I've tried to be a good citizen."
She has advice for people looking to emulate her success. "Analyze yourself like you would a product or a plan. What are your strengths?"
And she has no plans to slow down. And to be in charge for the duration.

Q&A: MYRA DANIELS
What does it mean to you to be an American?

It means the opportunity to help build our country, the opportunity to help others. It means the opportunity to work the way I want to work. It's a freedom. The freedom of America is very important to me. My grandparents immigrated from Romania. They came and they succeeded in America in every way. They learned the language. They worked. They gave as much as they got.

What moment touched and motivated you to launch this effort?

Knowing how many children are on the streets in Naples after school. There are 10,000. They're latchkey kids. Their parents work. Knowing how much trouble they can get into. We have to support them. I think we'll take some of them off the street. We won't have all of them, but we'll have several handfuls. Some of these kids never get encouragement. You have to encourage kids. We're going to encourage them in the arts. We're going to encourage them in the classroom.

What gives you hope or what concerns you?

What concerns me is we have never had so much confusion coming out of Washington. I have hope, incidentally. I think we need to stand behind those we have elected until we see where they are going. We have to pull together as a country. We are the best country in the world, in my experience, but we have some flaws we need to fix.

What do you hope to accomplish through your efforts?

I just hope I can add something to the community. I hope I can make it a better community, a happier community, a brighter community. When you look at these kids, you have the chance to mold minds. I have a lot of help, by the way. There are a lot of dedicated volunteers working on this.

Anderson takes on CC coaching reins

Longtime assistant named as Mach's replacement

Brad Emons
hometownlife.com

Dan Anderson just recently celebrated his 48th birthday. Thursday morning, he got the ultimate present.

After a month-long search, Novi Detroit Catholic Central High announced Thursday that 10-year defensive coordinator will succeed Tom Mach as its varsity football head coach.

Anderson was introduced as the Shamrocks new coach prior to the start of classes at the Robert Santello Gymnasium before current players, administrators and staff.

Anderson succeeds the 69-year-old Mach, who retired in early February after 41 seasons. Mach ranked third among all Michigan High School Athletic Association coaches in wins with 370, including 10 state championships.

Mach's win total ranks behind only Birmingham Brother Rice's Al Fracassa and Farmington Hills Harrison's John Herrington. In Mach's final season, CC went 13-1 and reached the Division 1 state finals before losing to Detroit Cass Tech.

NOVI LOSES REGIONAL FINAL ON DISPUTED TWO-OT FINISH

West Bloomfield wins it on McAdoo last-second layup

hometownlife.com

It was an improbable finish that cried for instant replay, but a disputed call in West Bloomfield's 67-66 double-overtime victory March 15 would not be reversed, leaving Novi players, coaches and fans in a state of shock.

In a Class A boys basketball regional final at Walled Lake Northern that featured more twists and turns than an afternoon TV soap opera, Kevin McAdoo's layup at the buzzer, ruled in time by official Rodriguez Lackey, sent the Lakers (16-8) into the state quarterfinal at the University of Detroit's Calihan Hall against Troy (21-4).

Trendon Hankerson's two free throws with 12.9 seconds remaining gave Novi a 66-62 advantage in the second OT, but the 6-foot-1 McAdoo, who scored a game-high 34 points, answered with a triple from the wing just seconds later to pull West Bloomfield to within one.

Inbounding the ball with only 3.9 seconds to play, the Wildcats got the pass in and promptly coughed it up, leading to the frantic final seconds.

"We got a steal and my partner Garrett (Winn) gave me the ball, I laid it up and that was game," said McAdoo, who scored all of West Bloomfield's 11 points during the final three minutes. "There wasn't much going through my head. Once I caught it, I took one dribble, went to the left and laid it in with my right hand."

As West Bloomfield students and fans stormed the floor, Novi coach Brandon Sinawi was in disbelief charging after Lackey, who was escorted off the floor by an Oakland County Sheriff's deputy.

Sinawi was peeved he never got an explanation on the game-winning shot by McAdoo.

"When they don't explain a call like in a situation like that, that's where they are not sure," Sinawi said. "And (Lackey) was so adamant about the call and the other two officials couldn't hear it, there's no way they were going to overturn it. There was without a doubt the horn went because that was the only thing I was listening for and I was looking at the ball. And when it went, I thought we won until he comes over and starts putting his hand down."

Dream Team spot goes to Mustangs defenseman Jack Sargent

Northville's Jack Sargent was surprised to learn Sunday that he was part of Michigan's high school boys hockey royalty.

The junior defenseman was named to Michigan High School Hockey Coaches Association six-member Dream Team, which was announced at the Farmington Hills Manor.

Sargent joined the elite group, which also included Brighton senior forward Jake Crespi, who earned the Michigan Mr. Hockey Award, along with Hartland junior forward Josh Albring, Grosse Pointe South senior forward Adam Pitters, Birmingham Brother Rice senior defenseman Jack Clement and Brighton senior goalie Logan Neaton.

"I walked in and my coach (Clint Robert) held up a newspaper and, obviously, I was surprised," Sargent said. "We really hadn't heard anything because it just got released that morning. It was really cool, though. I'm honored."

Sargent was one of the major reasons Northville (22-7-1) earned its first trip to the MHSAA Division 1 state semifinals since 2004, to go along with its first regional title in 13 years.

"We did a lot better than we were expected to do," Sargent said. "Getting to the final four was huge for us. And I feel that gives us a lot of expectation for

Grand Blanc voted out of the KLAA

Bill Khan
Livingston Daily

The drive to and from Grand Blanc is an issue that area teams and fans won't have to deal with much longer.

Grand Blanc has been voted out of the Kensington Lakes Activities Association, effective in the 2018-19 school year.

The decision to remove the Bobcats was done by a 13-1 vote, Grand Blanc athletic director Jerrod Dohm said recently. Grand Blanc was the only school to vote in its own favor, he said.

"We wanted to stay in the KLAA," Dohm said. "We are extremely disappointed in their decision to remove us from the conference. Obviously, it puts us in a very difficult position. At this point, the way we're looking at it, we have to look forward. Our hope is we can land somewhere where we can hopefully rekindle some of the old rivalries we had back from the Big Nine days."

When 10 current KLAA members decided to leave the league starting in 2017-18, Grand Blanc was even more isolated from the rest of the league as its northernmost school. Hartland, which is 25 miles from Grand Blanc, is the Bobcats' closest rival. Howell is 36 miles away and Brighton is 37 miles away.

The Bobcats will play KLAA football games next fall against Livonia Franklin (59 miles), Plymouth (58), Wayne Memorial (56), Northville (53), Westland John Glenn (52) and Livonia Churchill (48).

Departing KLAA members in Milford and Lakeland, Walled Lake Central, Northern and Western, along with Waterford Mott and Kettering, were between 24 and 37 miles from Grand Blanc.

Nicole Carter, the principal at Novi High School and president of the KLAA, said the distance to Grand Blanc was the determining factor.

"The schools departing the KLAA last spring caused a geographical concern," said Carter, who recently took over for Churchill's Keith McDonald as the association's president. "That's number one. Number two, would be the cost for schools would increase by transporting students to and from Grand Blanc. Thirdly, would be the educational reason. Student-athletes should not (spend) two to three hours on busses when they have school the next day."

Grand Blanc joined the KLAA in its second school year, 2009-10, to round out a fourth six-team division when a proposed second high school in Howell never materialized. The Bobcats had been members of the Big Nine Conference since its inception in 1960-61. The Big Nine had as many as 10 members, but defections dwindled its ranks to five when Grand Blanc made the switch.

Dohm said Grand

Blanc has applied to join the Saginaw Valley High School Association and will make a formal presentation to the league on April 26. The Valley includes former Big Nine rivals Flint Carman-Ainsworth, Davison and Flint Powers Catholic.

"That's one of the things I'm excited about, if we can get into the Valley, is having those rivalries with Davison and Lapeer," Dohm said. "We've been playing Carman and Powers, because the atmosphere in our gym has been subpar in the three years I've been here, mainly because of geography. We want to see crowds like what we see when we play Carman. The students get more involved and the community gets more involved, because they obviously know each other."

Grand Blanc has been particularly strong in the marquee sports of football and boys basketball. Grand Blanc went 28-12 in KLAA West football with four championships in eight years. The Bobcats were 59-21 with five titles in KLAA West boys basketball.

Dohm said Grand Blanc had been working to persuade other Flint-area schools to join the KLAA and form a northern division, along with Brighton, Hartland and Howell. Lapeer has reportedly expressed interest in joining the KLAA, but is even farther away from the other league members than Grand Blanc.

The KLAA has solicited applications for membership. Belleville athletic director Joe Brodie confirmed that his school has submitted an application, but hasn't received a letter of acceptance.

Carter said she could not discuss which schools have applied. Ann Arbor Huron, Pioneer and Skyline, along with Saline, have also reportedly been interested in the KLAA.

In football, Grand Blanc will be in the KLAA Gold next fall with Franklin, Churchill, Northville, Plymouth, Wayne and John Glenn. Brighton, Canton, Hartland, Howell, Livonia Stevenson, Novi and Salem will be in the KLAA Black. Those divisions were based on program strength, with an attempt made to make both divisions equally competitive.

In other sports, a geographic model was used. Brighton, Hartland, Howell, Grand Blanc, Northville, Novi and Stevenson are in one division. The other consists of Canton, Churchill, Franklin, Plymouth, Salem, Wayne and John Glenn.

The catalyst for changes in the KLAA came when 10 of the 24 members decided to leave.

Lakeland, Milford, South Lyon, South Lyon East, Walled Lake Central, Walled Lake Northern, Walled Lake Western, Waterford Kettering and Waterford Mott left to form the new Lakes Valley Conference. Pinkney will join the Southeastern Conference.

COLLEGE SOFTBALL

Lakeland grads finally find themselves on same team

Brad Emons
hometownlife.com

Because they were five years apart, backyard pals Mary Armstrong and Sydney Schultz never imagined they'd play on the same team.

But the two Lakeland High graduates are together under unlikely circumstances as teammates on Lawrence Tech University's softball squad.

"We would always hang out," said Schultz, a freshman pitcher and outfielder for the Blue Devils. "I was always Mary's little sidekick. She was always the oldest hanging out with us. I remember she'd do the big girl stuff and I'd always go out with her. She was never your typical teenager that shuts little kids out and doesn't want to play with you. She always played with us until she left for college. That was awesome."

The 5-foot-10 Armstrong excelled four years at Lawrence Tech in volleyball, becoming the school's all-time career leader in kills (1,481) while earning AVCA all-region and first team all-Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference honors as a senior.

Armstrong, studying mechanical engineering under a five-year program, decided to explore the option of playing softball again after using up her volleyball eligibility. She approached Lawrence Tech coach Anna Ball and received a scholarship.

Softball calls

The last time she had picked up a bat was in the 2012 MHSAA Division 1 state semifinals, when the Lakeland senior went 1-for-2 in a 5-4 loss to Mattawan in Battle Creek.

"Honestly, I was pretty excited to play, but I feel I had a lot of work to do with my mechanics and stuff, getting everything together," Armstrong said. "I always remembered I loved the game and actually kind of forgot how much fun it is until I got into practices, playing games ... it was just a good opportunity."

Armstrong has appeared in 10 of Lawrence Tech's 23 games this season, hitting .308 (4-for-13) in limited duty.

But it took a while to adjust to live pitching again.

"It was kind of a hard adjustment at first, just because my throwing was everywhere and my batting, it took a while to get back into it," Armstrong said. "But now I feel like a pretty solid player. And I'm definitely a lot stronger than I was. Being in shape and being stronger (from volleyball) made the transition a little easier."

After Armstrong joined the Lawrence Tech softball team, she requested to wear her favorite jersey No. 7, but Ball informed her it had already been taken by Schultz. So Armstrong had to settle for her sister Anna's favorite number (10).

Backyard pals

Numbers aside, it seemed like old times again when the four Schultz siblings and the three Armstrong siblings used to form their own personal playground.

"We did a lot of kick-

ball," Armstrong said. "Me and my older sister (Anna) played catch all the time. Sydney and her sister (Chase) jumped in there. We'd all go to camps together."

Sydney Schultz, studying architectural engineering, was recruited by Ball after receiving a tip from Mary's father, Rod Armstrong. Schultz came in as an outfielder, but has been pressed into duty as the Blue Devils' spot starter after one of the team's four pitchers was lost to an injury last fall.

Schultz has posted a 3-1 record as Lawrence Tech, in its inaugural collegiate softball season, is off to a 9-14 start following a spring break trip to Tucson, Ariz.

Needless to say, the pair have spent some quality time together on the road and on the bench.

"It's a lot of fun to have her in the dugout," Armstrong said of Schultz. "She's very fun, spirited ... we've never been on a team together, so it was, 'Oh my gosh, we finally get to play together for real, not just practice or playing catch.' I personally love having her around. She's into it all the time, very funny."

Dry humor

Schultz's wit often catches her teammates by surprise, including Armstrong.

"I'm pretty easy going and I'm pretty honest and people just think it's funny," Schultz said, "and I really don't know why."

If anybody knows Schultz, it's Armstrong. The two first met as 4- and 9-year-olds.

Not only did they attend Lakeland coach Joe Alsop's summer softball camps, but they were also members of the Michigan Outlaws club softball program, but never teammates.

Armstrong and her older sister Anna, who played at Alma College, were members of Lakeland's 2010 Division 1 state runner-up team. Meanwhile, Schultz's younger sister Chase is a senior at Lakeland this spring who is committed to play softball next year at Northwood University.

And it all began when the seeds were planted in their Commerce Township neighborhood.

Roommates

Schultz remembers vividly making her first visit to the Lawrence Tech campus in Southfield as a sophomore in high school. She stayed with Armstrong, the volleyball player at the time, for an over-nighter as part of the Sibling Kids program.

"My mom is, like, 'Did you like the campus? Do you want to go there?'" Schultz said. "And I'm, like, 'No, mom. It is terrible. I do not want to go there.' It's just kind of funny to see now how the pieces came back together now that we're here."

And the thought of crossing paths again and being teammates for one year is something you can't put a price tag on.

"I never thought I'd be playing with her, because I would be a freshman in high school and she had already graduated," Schultz said. "It's kind of cool to have seen her in our backyard playing catch with me thinking, 'Wow,' she threw the ball so hard and now I'm playing at the same level together. We'll play catch together now and it's so weird."

WOMEN'S HOCKEY

Boycott won't ice World Championship tourney

Tim Smith
hometownlife.com

With about two weeks left before the United States faces Canada in the 2017 IIHF Women's World Championship, nobody knows which athletes will don the red, white and blue at USA Hockey Arena in Plymouth.

Unless there is a thaw in icy negotiations between USA Hockey and players on the U.S. Women's National Team — including defenseman and Farmington native Megan Keller — the squad that plays in the March 31 contest and in at least two subsequent games will be composed of the next best 23 players.

"We will field a competitive and fun team to watch," Dave Fischer, senior director of communications for USA Hockey in Colorado Springs (Col.) said March 15 during a telephone call. "The great news for USA Hockey is that we have a very deep player pool with a lot of talented players that can populate the ice to play on our women's national team."

But Fischer said the goal remains for "the players that we have previously announced be a part of that team and we'll see where it goes."

Fischer said plans are still in place to begin a training camp at Centre Ice Arena in Traverse City beginning March 22 before shifting March 29 to USA Hockey Arena.

It remains to be seen whether players such as Keller will take part or whether participants will be those selected from a "broad player pool" to essentially replace boycotting players.

Option B

"It's certainly not optimal, that's for sure," Fischer said. "But life is filled with many challenges and we will, again, make efforts to get to a good place with the players that we named to the women's national team and have them participate."

"But if that is not the case, for whatever reason, then we will make sure we have a team in the world championship."

According to a statement released by a law firm representing the players, USA Hockey only pays players $1,000 a month during their six-month Olympic residency period and "virtually nothing" the rest of the time.

But Jim Smith, president of USA Hockey, said in a press release that USA Hockey's role is to train and select teams for international competition and "not to employ athletes and we will not do so. USA Hockey will continue to provide world-leading support for our athletes."

Meanwhile, players on the U.S. women's national team for the 2018 Winter Olympic Games will be supported during a six-month training camp to the tune of "additional support stipends and incentives for medals that could result in each player receiving nearly $85,000 in cash over the Olympic training and performance period," the press release continued.

Still supportive

"There are differences of opinion in terms of what is an equitable way forward," Fischer said. "Those are what we're in the process of trying to resolve. We don't employ players, we don't pay players. Our role as a national governing body is to provide training and resources and select teams for international competition."

"We make efforts to help athletes, particularly the post-graduate athletes that are out of college, with a training stipend so they have some resources. Again, we support in many, many ways in terms of the best in coaching and strength and conditioning, resources for travel and training. There's much done and the premise from the current group is that we're not doing enough."

Fischer emphasized that USA Hockey remains a strong supporter of girls and women's hockey.

"We've worked hard over the course of multiple decades in the development and growth of girls and women's hockey," he added.

In addition to the United States, other countries to compete at the 2017 IIHF Women's World Championship include Canada, Russia, Finland, Sweden, Switzerland, Germany and the Czech Republic.

The opening game is Friday, March 31, when the Czech Republic and Switzerland square off at noon.

Preliminary round games involving the United States are slated for 7:30 p.m. March 31 against Canada, 3:30 p.m. Saturday, April 1, against Russia; 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 3, against Finland. Playoffs are set to take place April 4-7.

ANDERSON

Anderson said. “My head is spinning right now and it has been since yesterday, when they told that I got the job. Just a lot of happiness right now.”

Catholic Central’s search committee, spearheaded by athletic director Aaron Babicz, interviewed a host of candidates. Anderson proved to be its No. 1 choice.

“I wanted to make sure that they understood the tradition that Tom Mach had created was going to continue,” Anderson said. “There’s going to be changes, obviously, because the program eventually needs to kind of reflect my attitudes and that sort of stuff. At the same time, you never replace a legend. You try and carry on the traditions that they started and I think that’s what I tried to convey to them, that I wanted to carry on the traditions that Tom started, the family atmosphere that we have here, the brotherhood that we have here. And a lot of that Tom promoted and I wanted to make sure that they knew that was going to continue.”

Anderson said he plans to tweak a few things as CC football enters a new era.

“I don’t see the defense changing a whole lot,” Anderson said. “I’m an option guy. When I was an offensive coordinator, I was option guy. I like the flex bone and that sort of stuff. There’s a lot of stuff we have to look at, though, as far as personnel and what we can and cannot do.”

Anderson was born in Pontiac and lived in Michigan for eight years before moving to Dayton, Ohio, where he attended Kettering Archbishop Alter High School.

The former University of Pittsburgh offensive guard (1987-92), who played under Mike Gottfried and Paul Hackett, got his coaching start at Penn Hills (Pa.), where he spent one season before going to Pomfret (Md.) McDonough High, where he served four seasons before returning to his alma mater as an assistant at Archbishop Alter.

Full-circle

Anderson was the head coach for three seasons at Alter, where he was named Greater Catholic League Head Coach of the Year in 1996.

“I felt like I came full-circle getting the job at my old high school,” Anderson said. “Through a transfer, I got moved up to Michigan and then I applied to 30 different schools and Catholic Central was the first to offer me a job, so I took it and I’ve been here 18 years now.”

He became the Shamrocks defensive coordinator under Mach in 2007 after being involved with the football program starting as a freshman assistant coach.

In 2008, he was recognized by the Michigan

High School Football Coaches Association as its Assistant Coach of the Year.

In his 24 years of high school football, Anderson has coached a number of different positions.

“There was an extensive interview process for the position that provided the CC search committee the ability to interact with some great mentors and football minds from around the state, but when it came down to it, coach Anderson’s connection to the Catholic Central community clearly set him apart from the rest of the field,” Babicz said in the press release.

“One of the key factors in the search for a new head coach was the factor of the Basilian charisma of goodness, discipline and knowledge developed through authentic relationships between students and staff.”

Anderson has taught and coached at CC since 1999, serving a variety of roles at the school, including social studies instructor, dean of students and freshman basketball coach.

“We see the athletics programs as an extension of our classrooms and coach Anderson has been living the CC mission for more than 15 years,” Babicz added. “As a teacher and a coach, he will undoubtedly lead our program into the future with nothing but the best intentions for our school, our community and, most importantly, our young men.”

NOVI

A still photo taken off a video that was provided to hometownlife.com showed the clock reading 0:00 with the ball still in McAdoo’s hands.

“Without question, a terrible, terrible call that cost my kids a regional championship, something Novi’s never gotten,” Sinawi said. “And (Lackey) wants to threaten you after the game as if he’s defending himself. I’ve never seen a call like that in a situation like this, but he wanted to be the hero apparently, not my kids.”

Lackey, who officiated the game along with Joseph McCormick and Sean Bies, declined comment after the game, according to Brian Swinehart, the regional tournament manager and Walled Lake Schools athletic administrator.

The controversial ending overshadowed an exceptional back-and-forth battle between the two teams.

Novi started the game with a 9-0 run, but West Bloomfield answered by going up 30-13 late in the first half with a 27-2 run of its own.

The Wildcats then responded with a 19-2 run of their own, pulling to within two after three quarters, 34-32.

Senior forward Alec Bageris’ basket with just three minutes left in regulation put Novi ahead, 46-39, but the Lakers charged back to lead, 48-46, on a steal and layup by Winn with 46.2 seconds remaining.

Novi’s Jonny Davis then made two clutch free throws with 26.2 seconds to go and McAdoo missed a shot to win it with 0.09 seconds left in regulation.

In the first four-minute OT, West Bloomfield’s Tre Mosley somehow banked in a triple from the dead corner, followed by a Tyler Davis triple that hit off the front of the rim before bouncing high near the top of the backboard and dropping in to make it 54-48.

But the Lakers missed three straight free throws and Novi clawed back to send it to a second OT when junior guard Traveon Maddox Jr. (27 points) nailed a triple with only one second left to tie the score at 56-56.

Novi led by as many as four in the second OT, but made two costly turnovers in the final 48 seconds, opening the door for the Lakers to win it on McAdoo’s shot

“I was telling coach Sinawi out there that there was never any flow,” West Bloomfield coach Jeremy Denha said. “It was his run, my run, his run, my run.

You’d go up six and you didn’t feel safe. They just battled and the Maddox kid just made some huge plays. That three he hit to go to double overtime ... I mean, it was a hand in the face from 25 feet. What a game, though. What a way to end a regional.”

Bageris, the 6-4 senior, added 16 points to go along with some clutch rebounds. Davis and Hankerson chipped in 10 and nine points, respectively.

The Wildcats committed 21 turnovers, including eight in the fourth quarter and two OTs.

“We made some mistakes, but West Bloomfield is a good team,” Sinawi said. “They’re a well-coached team and they play hard and they capitalized on our mistakes. People think we’re senior-led, but we have three seniors and they’re all important, but we’ve got juniors handling the basketball. We’re still young to a degree and made some bad mistakes. But again, if there’s ever a game to learn from, it’s tonight’s game. It kind of tells our kids what we can get to and what the next level of basketball is. Credit to West Bloomfield. They play hard and they ended up winning the game.”

Davis added 12 and Tre Mosley finished with eight for the Lakers, who won despite shooting only 22-of-65 from the field (33.8 percent).

But it seemed whenever the Lakers needed a clutch hoop, McAdoo provided one.

“Hit the big three and was coming downhill,” Denha said of the senior’s shot with 12 seconds left that pulled the Lakers to within 66-65. “He’s been making those plays all year. He’s special, man.”

And the late steal off the Novi inbounds play leading to McAdoo’s game-winner was the final game-changer.

“Garrett Winn is just an absolute winner,” Denha said. “Gets a tip, the ball gets kicked to the middle, dumps it off to Kevin and the ball is in the hoop. Sometimes you need the basketball Gods and we had them there.”

McAdoo went 13-of-30 from the floor, including two triples.

“My strong suit is finishing and I wasn’t doing that today,” he said. “I was real disappointed in that, but I can’t stop doing it because that’s what I do. I got a little frustrated, but kept attacking, kept attacking and I got some late buckets and we pulled out the win.”

McAdoo marveled at the shot Maddox hit to send the game to a second overtime.

“With Traveon Maddox, he’s a great player,” McAdoo said. “I grew up with him. When he hit that three, it stuck us in the heart. We had to play a whole other quarter. I didn’t know how we were going to pull it out, but we did. What can I say?”

And what can you say about the way it ended for the Wildcats, who finished 18-7?

“It’s a team that I was so proud to coach,” Sinawi said. “One of my favorite teams and I’ll never forget the effort that they gave in the last three weeks. To make the run in the game tonight, to send it to overtime and that 3-pointer (by Maddox) to send it to double overtime ... we hit big play after big play, but they just had that last-second scramble that was really a toss-up. And it was in the officials’ hands and the officials gave it to them.”

SARGENT

next year. Personally, I feel like I did kind of make a big difference in my hockey career this year. I worked a lot harder than I did in the last years and, obviously, it paid off.”

The 6-foot, 165-pound Sargent, who likes to pattern his style after Red Wings all-time great Nick Lidstrom, is the first Mustang to earn Dream Team honors since defenseman Wes Gates made it in 2009.

“Sarge sees the ice so well and (he’s) very offensively talented coming from the blue line,” Robert said. “He’s a quarterback on the power play. He’s able to get pucks out of the zone. He’s pretty cerebral in the defensive zone. He’s not overly physical in the defensive zone, but he’s got good positioning and a good stick. He does a good job limiting opposition players’ opportunities in the defensive zone. In the defensive zone, his vision is good. He’s got good hands, a good shot. Just the all-around package.”

Sargent was tied for third on the team in scoring this season with 10 goals and 16 assists in 29 games.

“Growing up as a kid, I was always super defensive,” Sargent said. “And then about seventh, eighth grade, I was on the (Plymouth) Stingrays and my brother (Kyle) told me to start skating the puck and I really enjoyed skating the puck, so I became pretty offensive-minded and I just had to learn to try and put the puck in the net or get more assists. I really like playing in the offensive zone and taking the puck up the ice just to get it out of the defensive zone.”

A lot of Sargent’s success can attributed to his longtime defensive sidekick, Nick Williams.

“When Sarge and ‘Willie’ came in their freshman year, I kind of thought this could be the next pair like Wes (Gates) and Matt Kreager,” Robert said. “We thought they’d be all-state type of players. And Willie is a heck of a player, too. We thought one of these two might end up being a Dream Teamer before it’s all said and done. Willie has been a great partner for him.”

The two will return next season as seniors to once again anchor the blue line.

“Me and Nick have played together now three years now,” Sargent said. “So next year, we’re obviously expected to do great things because it’s our fourth year together. And both of us have gotten all-state nominations. Next year is got to be a big year for us.”

Meanwhile, Sargent is switching gears once again by playing right field for the Northville baseball team.

“In the summer, I work on both hockey and baseball; it’s kind of nice get to play both sports,” said the junior, who carries a 3.1 grade-point average and would like to attend Michigan State. “It kind of keeps both of them fresh.”

More all-staters

Several area players earned postseason honors from the MHSCHA, with Northville senior forward Nick Bonofiglio (20 goals, 15 assists) and senior goaltender Brett

Miller (2.14 goals against, .909 save percentage) earning first team Division 1 all-state honors.

They are joined on the first team by Novi Detroit Catholic Central junior forward Brendan West, the team’s leading scorer.

Five Catholic Central players earned second team honors: senior forwards Zachary Sprys-Tellner and Michael Considine, along with senior defensemen Austin Roell and Spencer Kimball, as well as a senior goalie Sean Finstrom.

Northville senior forward Alex Iafrate was honorable mention, while Robert earned Coach of the Year honors. The Mustangs’ Luke Skillman was academic all-state.

In Division 3, Milford senior defenseman Michael Osinski was named second team all-state, while senior forward

Josh Bauer earned honorable mention.

All-KLAA teams

The Northville quartet of Sargent, Bonofiglio, Miller and Iafrate all earned all-Kensington Lakes Activities Association honors.

Also named to the all-Kensington Conference team were Novi senior defensemen Ryan Fonda and Anthony Lugo, along with South Lyon Unified senior defenseman Matt England.

In the Lakes Conference, KLAA North Division champion Lakeland had three seniors earn honors: forward Brendan Ramboer, defenseman Dakota Racine and goalie Austin Gogola.

Milford was represented by Osinski and Bauer.

Seek out a mentor within your company

 BY MARY LORENZ
 CAREERBUILDER

No matter where you are in your career or what industry you are in, almost everyone can benefit from having a mentor. "Every successful person got to where they are due to great mentorship," says Mary Grace Gardner, a career strategist for the Young Professional, which helps college students and young professionals reach their professional goals. "Even famous athletes, singers and actors have coaches to help them get better."

While many people have mentors who work at another company, finding a mentor within your company has unique benefits, giving you better insight into the company's culture and what it takes to advance.

When seeking out a mentor within your company, Gardner advises finding one who falls outside of your team or department. "You want your mentor to be able to have some level of objectivity," she says.

Here are additional benefits of having a mentor at your company.

Get objective feedback: There may be times when you need advice on career changes or other areas where it may not feel appropriate to ask your colleagues or boss. For those times, a mentor can be a much-needed sounding board, says Gardner. "A mentor is someone whom you can confidentially bounce ideas off of and get feedback on your career trajectory," she says.

Advance your career: "One of the benefits (of a mentor) is having someone who can help you advance if the opportunity presents itself," says Laine Schmidt, a certified business and career coach who owns her own consulting company. Schmidt asserts this should never be a reason for seeking out a mentor; however, it can be a beneficial side effect. For example, if you are up for a promotion or a role somewhere else in the company opens up, a mentor can be a valuable, credible reference.

Get career-specific advice: A mentor at your company can give you advice based on experience specific to your company, industry and job, says Dr. Luz Claudio, professor of preventive medicine at a New York City medical center who has 25 years of experience mentoring students. "You can read all the books, blogs and courses, but nothing is better than getting input from someone who's 'been there and done that' and can give you feedback about the specific things you need to do to get ahead in your particular situation."

Accelerate the learning process: Oftentimes, mentors can teach us what it could take months or years to learn on our own. "Someone who has been down the path (you are) about to embark (on) can give you the shortcuts that will help you avoid common and time-consuming mistakes," Schmidt says. Additionally, mentors help you gain confidence and build your skills, "both of which add to your professional development," she says.

Discover new ideas: When you have a problem or face a challenge, you're likely to seek the advice of a friend or co-worker; however, a mentor can offer professional, impartial advice gleaned from years of experience. "Having an expert at your disposal gives you the opportunity to work through ideas with someone who will help you discover what's best for you," Schmidt says. "Instead of throwing thoughts around with those who may not be the most ideal brainstorming partners, take advantage of the wisdom of a specialist."

These benefits don't come overnight, however. "Make sure you have enough time to nurture the relationship," Gardner warns. And make sure you have a focus. "Start listing the ways you'd like to grow," she says. "To make the most out of your mentoring relationship, you have to be clear about how you want to use that time together and what goals you want to achieve."

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

WITH SOPHISTICATION AS WELL AS SOME 'ZOOM-ZOOM,' MAZDA CX-3 SHOWS WHY BRAND KEEPS WINNING US OVER

By Dale Buss

Mazda keeps zoom-zooming along, and vehicles like its CX-3 compact crossover demonstrate why.

In a U.S. market that clearly is leveling off these days, with static monthly sales comparisons with a year ago and rising levels of incentives just to gain them, Mazda keeps posting remarkable increases by comparison.

In February, its U.S. sales rose by nearly 6 percent compared with a year earlier, while for the year-to-date, Mazda sales rose nearly 8 percent versus 2015, to nearly 45,000 vehicles sold.

There are at least four reasons for Mazda's continuing success.

First is the decision by brand stewards in Japan to remake Mazda from a marque based on fun and performance – its "zoom-zoom" years – to a brand that has moved decidedly upscale. Through steadily increasing levels of sophistication and quality in its vehicles, and with the help of its Skyactive light-weighting platform, Mazda has been able to improve both the perception of its vehicles as well as their fuel economy. The strategy is beginning to pay off.

Second, so far at least Mazda hasn't wasted a lot of corporate energy on non-essentials including electric vehicles and the self-driving craze. Surely there will come a time when Mazda will have to demonstrate its chops in both areas, perhaps through joint ventures. But for now, let nearly every other carmaker get distracted by those two areas of endeavor which still have relatively little to do with today's mainstream car market; Mazda, meanwhile, will keep succeeding in meeting the needs of today's gasoline-favoring American consumer.

Third, Mazda has managed to strike a nearly perfect ratio of crossovers and SUVs to sedans – it's got three of the latter and two of the former, and each has been overhauled or made brand new in the not-too-recent past.

Throw in an MX-5 Miata that defines its own category as a sportabout, and you've got a brand that is just heavy enough in utility vehicles at a time when Americans are expressing their clear preference for that vehicle type.

And, fourth, Mazda is managing to make all of these things happen through its pursuit of perfection in individual vehicle lines, each of which supports the whole brand enterprise in unique ways.

In the case of CX-3, it has been rated No. 1 out of 10 subcompact SUVs recently by US News & World Report, beating out worthy competitors such as the new Honda HR-V.

The reasons are clear. First of all, CX-3 is very fun to drive. It demonstrates a quickness in response but also a substantive feel into and out of turns and in straight-line acceleration, no doubt partly a legacy of Mazda's driving chops and partly due to the improvements brought by Skyactive design.

CX-3's 2.0-liter, four-cylinder engine is mated to a six-speed automatic transmission that is perfect for short trips and stop-and-go traffic. Yet with 146 horsepower and a matching 146 pound-feet of torque, CX-3 can get on down the line quickly as well. Testing by Edmunds.com found a CX-2 Grand Touring accelerated from zero to 60mph in 8.5 seconds, a quicker-than-average showing for its segment.

Front-wheel drive is standard, with all-wheel drive offered as an option on all trim levels. AWD availability is a huge advantage in a compact-SUV category where not every player offers it but where most drivers have come to expect it.

Fuel economy clocks in at 31 mpg combined (29 mpg in the city, 35 mpg on the highway) with front-wheel drive and 29 mpg combined with all-wheel drive. Hitting around 30 mpg is a crucial consideration for buyers in this segment.

CX-3 also earns one of the highest safety designations available, and its kid-seat hardware in the rear is remarkably user-friendly. Bespeaking Mazda's strategic move upscale, interior materials impart an upscale feel. A sleek dashboard with a large central tachometer and integrated digital speedometer in the Grand Touring edition display sophistication above the segment level.

All trim levels get a 7-inch touchscreen interface with up-to-date graphics and an auxiliary control knob on the center console.
