Lyon Twp. Fire department plans for new station, ladder truck, staff

Susan Bromley Hometownlife.com USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Christmas came early for Lyon Township Fire Chief Ken Van Sparrentak with a $1.3 million unexpected surprise, and some other goodies, too.

Santa, aka the township board, unanimously granted two requests from the fire chief — a facilities study for a new fire station and an assessment center to hire new full-time staff. Additionally, Van Sparrentak got something he didn't anticipate — approval to buy a ladder truck, a first for the township.

"I've always wanted fire truck for Christmas," he said. "It was a good

The proposal, which would connect the high school campus at 27225 Wixom Road in Novi with a stretch of 12 Mile Road to the north, received support from the city's planning commission after being tabled earlier this fall due to issues brought up by surrounding residents.

'We are back after a two-month delay seeking approval for our project," Ed Turek, president of the high school, said during a meeting Dec. 8 at the Novi Civic Center. "We've made major concessions to the project."

Residents of the nearby Berkshire Pointe neighborhood came out en masse at a planning commission meeting earlier this fall when the plans were first publicy discussed. Many of those residents spoke out against the plans, saying it would negatively affect them. After the planning commission tabled the proposal, it gave time for meetings between the school and the neighbors to take place and hammer

Hometown Life landed its biggest interview of all time the other day.

Santa Claus — yes, that Santa Claus - and Mrs. Holly Claus happened to stop by Livonia for a pre-Christmas chat as the holiday nears. This holly, jolly couple with an international impact agreed to an interview on all things Christmas.

Needless to say, the pressure was on. We didn't want to ask them any silly questions. So, we decided to enlist a few Christmas experts to help us come up with some ideas.

Kim Mitchell's kindergarten class at See QUESTIONS, Page 3A

'We talked reindeer, chimneys, cookies, wardrobe choices — you name it. Here's what they wanted to know:

Fire destroys Milford Township mobile home

Susan Vela Hometownlife.com USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

A wrecked car and a destroyed mobile home has devastated a Milford Township family during the holidays.

About 30 weeks pregnant, Ashlee Good totaled her car when a deer crossed her path in early December. And then a neighbor in the Childs Lake Estates mobile home community broke her sleep by pounding on her window shortly before 4 a.m. Dec. 15.

When she opened her door, he screamed "Fire! Get out!"

She woke her boyfriend, their three children - 9, 6 and 2 - and other relatives in the home and they were able to approval for a new pumper truck, but was worried about the length of time it would take to arrive — likely not until 2023 - and whether the current truck would last that long.

When Van Sparrentak contacted truck maker Sutphen to see if the department could pay more to expedite delivery of the pumper truck, he learned that was not an option. However, the company did have a ladder truck that was newly completed on Dec. 6 and could be available to the township in July after being used by the company for some demonstra-

While the ladder truck did not have all the bells and whistles originally planned for by the Lyon Township apparatus committee, at just over $1.3 million it was almost $200,000 chepaer and was close to what they wanted. The truck will improve safety in a fast developing township, with a ladder that reaches 100 feet.

The purchase should improve the township's insurance score, along with the hiring of more full-time firefighters.

The township hired its first four fulltime firefighters, along with two fulltime captains, at the end of 2019 and added two more full-time firefighters in 2020. But now four of those six firefighters, along with a captain, have departed.

Van Sparrentak said four of the firefighters left to join the Detroit Fire De-

"I wish them well," he said. "They are at different stages in their career and family life. Some were on the Detroit list for more than a year and were waiting for that opportunity and when it came up, they took it."

Van Sparrentak continues to see an ongoing staffing problem that has been ongoing throughout the fire service for some time. Like other departments, he has sought to offer a good salary and benefits packages and is currently "close" to ratification of a contract with the union representing the full-time firefighters after months of negotia-

To help the chief hire four new fulltime firefighters and a captain, the council approved assessment centers to test qualifications for selected candidates, at a cost of $8,825 to find a captain from five possible candidates and $4,300 to test up to nine firefighter candidates, ultimately hiring four.

In the meantime, the department which has 23 paid on-call firefighters, has had a lot of people step up to fill in empty shifts, Van Sparrentak said.

The council also approved a facilities study to be conducted by Redstone Architects at a cost not to exceed $25,000. The study's goal is to find and evaluate up to seven possible locations to build a new fire station or possibly a public safety complex that could also house Oakland County Sheriff's Office depu-

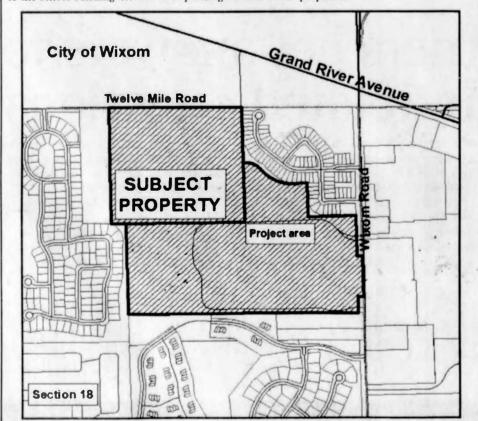

Renovations to existing fire stations are also under consideration, but a station in the quickly developing south end of the township would improve response times, Van Sparrentak said.

'We're looking at the future needs for emergency response service delivery in Lyon Township," he said. "We look at it as a master plan for the fire department, and it sets a road map for the next 10 to 20 years."

Why, Alena Lubus wants to know, is your coat red?

Red happened to be the color my mother had me in when I was found by the elves. The red is to honor my mother and the things she believed about Christmas. Why, Bailey Taylor wants to know, do you like cookies and milk? And, Mrs. Mitchell wants to know, what's your favorite kind of cookie? Back in the day, cookies were the easiest thing to make so I've always stayed with that tradition. Some people didn't like receiving gifts and not giving anything back, so I told them they could leave cookies or carrots as a "thank you." I like to eat sugar cookies with no frosting. I like to have a little extra butter so they're nice and moist in the middle, too. They're best cooked with a caramel brown on the bottom.

What do you get asked for the most?

The three most common ones are world peace, no more COVID and no more school shootings. Those are the three big ones.

Pole, but we don't. We have the elves up there doing their jobs — and we'll stop to visit them — but we're out looking for kids and adults being good. We want to promote a love-based world, not a fear-based world. So, we go out there to find those kids and adults and remind them to keep doing good.

Do you know how you stay on the good list? By being true to who you are.

How, Samantha Kartmann wants to know, do you get down the chimney? And, Farrah Ahmadi wants to know, what do you do at houses without chimneys?

It's the magic I have from the elves that allows me to do it. If people don't have a chimney, I go through the key hole. All houses have key holes.

ing the current vegetation to help buffer between the development and the homes, as well as Catholic Central adding additional trees, in addition to other conditions.

If approved and constructed, the plans call for a driveway built from the high school's parking lot that would extend through the currently-vacant field to the north of the buildings and exit onto 12 Mile Road south of Grand River.

While the audience had significantly fewer people in it than during the initial presentation of the project in October, there were some people who spoke out and said they still had issues with the plan.

One of those people was Lori Rich, who lives in the nearby Leisure Co-Operative just north of 12 Mile in Wixom near where the driveway will connect. She said she's concerned not only about environmental issues with such a development, but with additional traffic through the neighborhood.

"We're about cut-through traffic," she said. "The 50and-up

Visits with Santa Claus help a Pawsitive cause

Eric Seals Detroit Free Press
USA TODAY NETWORK

As they sit waiting, they'll notice Santa Claus on a couch with his white beard and red suit motioning for them to come see him.

Sometimes they're shaking with nerves, often looking back at Mom or Dad for reassurance, not sure what to make of him

"I have a treat bag I'll use to make them feel more comfortable," says Santa Claus, played Dan Eleson, 68, of Canton, and of all the ones he'll see, "pugs and dachshunds are perfect, they just always seem to be carefree, very loving dogs."

At the recent Novi Pet Expo at the Suburban Collection Showplace on Dec. 3-5, Pawsitive Impact for Pets, a non-profit founded to keep pets safe and healthy, used its "Photos with Santa" booth to raise funds for its organization.

In 2010, Tonya Whitehead, president and co-founder, and volunteers saw pictures with Santa as a great way to raise money for a great cause.

An emailed picture with Santa costs $10; a printed one is $25, and all proceeds go to Pawsitive Impact for Pets.

"Nonprofits like ours, other shelters and rescues focus on animal welfare. We are the last line of defense, and it takes time and money to do that kind of thing," Whitehead said.

During the three-day pet expo, volunteer photographer Joanna Poe photographed all kinds of dogs, 157 of them.

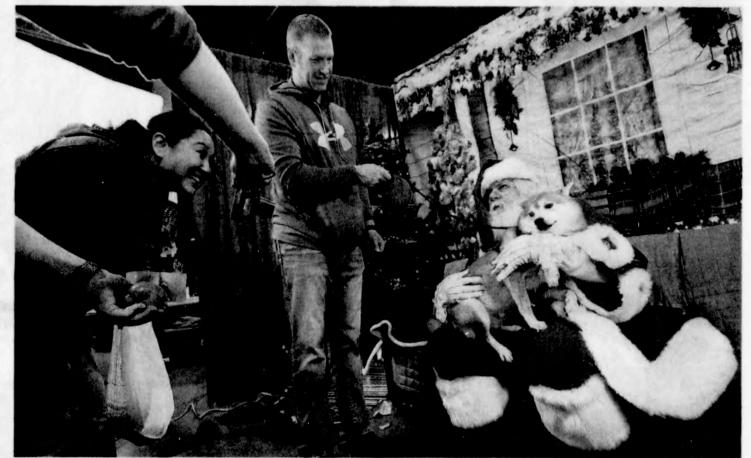

"Every dog is different," said Poe, who admits she's more of a cat person. "They all have different personalities and it's fun to see them react to Santa."

She says patience with the dogs is a must to do her job and that "my favorite moments are when we get a dog that isn't nervous around Santa and just looks happy and we'll get a good picture out of it."

For Santa, three straight days posing for pictures with of all kinds of dogs sitting on his lap or next to him does attract lots of dog hairs and smells.

Santa Eleson said he has to take great care of the six Santa suits he has.

Northville's Miss America contestant secures scholarship money in competition

Ed Wright Hometownlife.com
USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Juggling a 32-credit medical school course load while serving as Miss Michigan and competing in the Miss America pageant was equal parts exhilaration, exhaustion and reward for Northville native graduate Vivian Zhong.

"When I returned home (Friday night), I slept 16 straight hours," Zhong admitted during a Sunday afternoon interview. "Myself and a lot of my 50 sister Miss America contestants have been texting photos of ourselves waking up from our extended sleeps.

"Every day I was there we were up until at least midnight rehearsing and doing other things, and then we'd be up at 6 a.m. the next morning. After a while, you're running on the adrenaline that the excitement of the event cre-

The 100th Miss America Pageant was held at the Mohegan Sun Resort in Uncasville, Connecticut. For the first time in modern-day history, it was livestreamed on the Peacock Network and not televised live on mainstream television.

Although Zhong was not selected as a top-10 contestant during the Dec. 16 finale, she cashed in on her intelligence and wide appeal across America by securing $24,000 in scholarships.

Zhong, who performed a 90-second version of Frederic Chopan's Minute Waltz in the talent competition, won $1,000 after being named the best talent of the contestants not in the pageant's top 10. She pocketed another $10,000 in scholarship money by winning the America's Choice award, which is decided by an online public vote, and a $10,000 Women in STEM scholarship.

Each contestant also received $3,000 for qualifying for the pageant.

"I think the most difficult part of the entire experience was seeing how disappointed some of my sisters were who didn't make the top 10," Zhong said. "This is a multi-year effort to get here to this stage for many us, me included, so there is some disappointed when you fall short of your goals.

"Ultimately, though, we have to remember that the opinion of five judges shouldn't make us feel down about ourselves. Just to make it to that stage is an accomplishment we all need to feel proud about."

One of the week's highlights for Zhong was an opportunity to meet Farmington Hills native Kirsten Haglund, who earned the Miss America title in

"I was 10 years old the year Kirsten won and I remember telling my mom, 'I want to do that someday'," Zhong recounted. "Kirsten has lived in Europe since I started competing (for Miss Michigan) so this was the first time I got to talk to her. It was a surreal experience.

Zhong has been an advocate for her social impact initiative "Golden Warriors: Fight Like a Kid" throughout her term as Miss Michigan, which runs through June of 2022.

Now that she's home and break from medical school, Zhong has one goal on her mind.

"I'm going to spend a few days relaxing with my family and chilling a little after a busy few months," she said.

Emma Broyles was crowned Miss America 2022, the first Miss Alaska to win the competition.

Detroit-based jewelry enterprise opens at Twelve Oaks Mall

David Veselenak Hometownlife.com USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

Looking for a unique gift this holiday seaso. The newest shop at Twelve Oaks Mall may have that perfect item to check off the list.

Rebel Nell, the Detroit-based jewelry maker known for its pieces made with graffiti, opened a retail shop in the space formerly occupied by Michael Kors at the Novi mall.

The company is known for bringing in artists, mostly women, who come from hard situations and pays them to design and create jewelry that includes atypical material such as graffiti taken off the streets of cities like Detroit and Chicago. That desire to help others in need led her and her staff to seek expansion opportunities.

"We really want to grow our business. We want to expand; we want to tell more people about what we're doing," said Amy Peterson, CEO of Rebel Nell and a Detroit resident. "The more sales we have, the more women we can empowbel Nell began in 2013 as a way to hire women at local shelters. Once hired, these artists take elements - fallen graffiti is a signature material - and craft them into items like necklaces, earrings and even bottle stoppers.

"They're not only one-of-a-kind because of the women who had the vision, but also because of the material," Peter-

The venture has helped dozens of women, including assisting many to secure full-time employment.

It's not just graffiti that makes up the pieces. Peterson and her crew have secured material from all types of culturally-significant locations, including pieces of the original paper mache Big Heads made 80 years ago in Italy seen in America's Thanksgiving Day Parade each year in downtown Detroit. Also on sale are pieces created using paint chips from the dugout at Comerica Park.

"We try to showcase the history of the pieces with each piece," she said.

The lines have become so successful that Rebel Nell has begun to expand its collections to cultural pieces in other communities that were sold online as well. Peterson has connected with pieces in places like Chicago, Atlanta and Miami. Other material included pieces that came from Truist Park, the home of the Atlanta Braves. That line became popular this year, Peterson said, since the team won the World Series in November.

The Twelve Oaks location marks the first retail location for Rebel Nell outside of Detroit. When Peterson discovered the option to open a retail shop in one of metro Detroit's busiest malls, especially during the holidays, she knew it was a great option to have more people learn about their products and cause.

We're taking a leap of faith and this opportunity presented itself here and we thought what a great way to expand our audience and to tell more people about us outside of Detroit and this is what happened," she said.

Peterson said supporting the women she works with is a big reason she wanted to change career paths; before launching Rebel Nell, she said she worked as an attorney for the Detroit Tigers. Seeing the impact her new company has made, Peterson said, has made the career change worth it.

"I really love what I do," she said. "I love being a part of the journey, in particular for the women we employ, there's an adrenaline rush that could with that."

Selling your home to your child can be a win-win, if you're careful

Money Matters

Dear Rick

My husband and I decided to move into a senior independent facility. We have looked into a number of options and the one that we prefer requires a substantial upfront buy-in. The monthly payments are not a problem because my husband's pension and our Social Security will more than cover our costs. The only issue is the large upfront buyin; however, we figure that we can use the proceeds from the sale of our home.

Our plan was to sell in the spring. When we told our three children our plans, one of my sons said he would like to purchase the house.

Do you see any potential problems, and how should we proceed? We want to make sure that everything is on the up and up and that we are fair to our son;

but at the same time, fair to us.

Karen

Dear Karen

If done correctly, the sale of the home to a family member can be a win-win for both parties. From your standpoint as the seller, you don't have to worry about getting the home ready for sale and all the hassles that go with the sale process. At the same time, your son from the buyer standpoint is buying a home that he knows. In addition, both parties can potentially save money since you don't have to pay real estate commissions on the sale of the home. This can save upwards of six percent of the sales price. That being said, there are some minefields that can cause problems that you

I believe it is best to hire an appraiser to determine the fair market value of the home. It is important from the beginning of the process that both sides of the transaction agree on the fair price of the

After you agree on the price, I think your son should have the home inspected. This way, everyone will know the true condition of the property and if any repairs are needed. Having the house inspected keeps everyone on the same page as to the condition of the home.

In addition, I believe your son should sit down with the mortgage company to make sure that he has the wherewithal to qualify for the mortgage. After all, in this transaction you cannot do any seller financing because you will need the proceeds for your buy-in.

Once you've completed the aforementioned steps, I recommend that you hire a qualified real estate attorney to draft a purchase agreement. The purchase agreement will not only include the purchase price, but also identify who is responsible for fees and costs that will be incurred, such as title work and filing fees. In addition, the purchase agreement will specify what's included in the sale, such as appliances and fur-

The purchase agreement will ensure everyone is on the same page when it comes to the transaction.

Selling a home to a family member can be beneficial to both parties if everyone is on the same page. Having a game plan is important and avoids any hard feelings down the road, which can then be a win-win for both parties.

Good luck.

Plymouth Christian senior marks 1K career points

The chatter about Jace Petree was non-stop among the support staff at the scorer's table after Thursday's game.

"How about the freshman tonight, huh?" one person from the athletic department said. "He had 25 points? It looks like he's going to have a pretty good career here."

What Petree did in the Wildcats' 72-62 victory over Berkley as a first-year player was almost unthinkable.

But then you realize he's one of THOSE Petrees, and it all just makes Plymouth (3-0) got its first true test against a scrappy Bears squad that punches well above its weight in the Oakland Activities Association-Blue. They're not on the same level as Clark-the tougher Red division, but they have some talented kids who can play.

Namely, Tamir Runinkevich, who sat most of the opening half in foul trouble. His absence allowed the Wildcats to get ahead by as many as 18 points before halftime.

The junior came back after the break and proceeded to score 15 of his 20 points, including leading Berkley on a ston, Ferndale or North Farmington in 10-0 run that trimmed its deficit to just 46-42 with 2:45 left in the third quarter. Berkley's Ben Maurice (16 points) buried a pair of 3-pointers early in the fourth, and then Runinkevich nailed a fadeaway to make it a 57-54 score.

On the verge of giving up a complete comeback, Plymouth needed some an-

Detroit Country Day hustles to pick up win over Lakeview

Brandon Folsom Hometownlife.com USA TODAY NETWORK - MICHIGAN

The referees screwed it up.

Whatever hoop you use in warm-ups is the one you attack on offense during the first half, right?

That's not what happened at the start of Tuesday's girls basketball game Clair Shores Lakeview.

Right before the opening tip, a referee mistakingly switched around the two girls in the center circle, meaning each player was facing the wrong direction.

Lakeview won the jump ball but ultimately tapped it toward its own basket. Country Day's Jaidyn Elam quickly real-> Baffled by what had just happened, Huskies coach Joe Charrette shouted to his players to shoot at their own hoop. The shot went in, and the Yellowjackets took one of the fastest four-point leads they've ever seen in their gym.

The snafu ultimately didn't matter as Country Day had no trouble throughout the 54-39 victory. But that early hustle by Elam, despite how crazy of a start it was, is exactly what second-year coach Jerica Williams wanted to see from her Yellowing Ypsilanti Arbor Prep, an early favorite to win the Division 3 state championsnip

Led by four-star Texas A&M commit Mya Petticord (23 points), the Gators had no trouble outmuscling the Eagles to a 72-55 win.

"It was a really cool experience," the fourth-year starter said. "My family got to come to the (Schoolcraft) game, which was really cool. My friends, it was nice to have them here celebrating at our home game. After I practiced here for so many years, to be celebrated here, it was really cool. I really appreciate them. It was super nice of them to come out and watch me. I really appreciate them."

Fernandez scored 10 of her team-best 19 points in the opening quarter, and the Eagles (3-1) played the Gators tough during certain spurts throughout the night. But they just didn't have enough to keep up with Arbor Prep, which made 11 3-pointers.

"They have great talent over there," longtime coach Rod Windle said. "Basketball is a physical game, and our kids need to learn what that's like in terms of that level of play. I thought we rose to that a few times ourselves in terms of our physical play, but it was more reactionary than initiation. I felt like we felt it out more in the first half more than the second half when we just came harder, I think. We learned a lot about tough defense tonight."

Also contributing for the Eagles were Hailey Maulbetsch with 17 points and Morganne Houk with 11.

Arbor Prep kept Fernandez scoreless in the the fourth quarter.

Nevertheless, the loss will be looked at as a tool to get the Eagles ready for postseason play. It won't overshadow Fernandez's big pre-game moment. "Anna has just been a shining star for our team," Windle said. "Her personality is outgoing and infectious, and she invites others to work alongside of her in ways that make others work better, too. She has a work ethic that's really hard, and somehow she wants others to come along with her, and she does it without wearing them out. It's a fine line for captains to do that, but she's like, 'Hey, let's go! Let's get after it!' Her positive attitude and her own work ethic rubs off on other kids."

When Windle tabbed Fernandez as a varsity player in ninth grade, he was unsure where she'd fit in the rotation. It took no time for him to realize she need ed to be a starter.

"As a coach, you kind of push freshmen down a little bit," Windle added. "Then she stepped up defensively and did some things in practice that were eye-opening. Then I was like, 'I guess she needs to be starting out there right away,' because she was a true starter as a freshman.

"As a varsity coach, having a freshman, I kind of didn't let it be Day 1 and kind of pushed her off a little bit, but she showed me her tenacity and toughness. She has a gentle spirit. Sometimes that's deceptive because she has a gentle spirit about her. She's tenacious. She showed her mettle early in the practice sessions as a freshman."

Eagles benefit from playing tough competition early on

If boys basketball used the new football playoff points system to determine postseason seeding, PCA would be well on its way to hosting every game in March.

The Eagles (1-3) allowed Arbor Prep to make 153-pointers and run away with an easy 75-59 win.

But that doesn't matter. PCA scheduled the game because the Gators are a talented Division 3 program, one that's only going to make the Eagles improve at a quicker rate.

And that's been the theme for PCA. It's already split with D-1 programs South Lyon East and Livonia Churchill. It'll face two more in Plymouth and Livonia Franklin before winter break.

For a D-4 squad with an enrollment of only 178 students, it certainly has been punching above its weight.

In football, the bigger your schedule, the more you're rewarded. The EAgles are hoping these tougher tests prepare them for a deep playoff run.

"Our December schedule has already been Class A, Class A and Class C," coach Matt Windle said. "We finish out December with Plymouth and Livonia Franklin. So we build that schedule on purpose in December. December is meant for us to really break down what we're trying to work on so we can prepare for a really tough conference and a long stretch in March. As much as we misstepped on some things tonight, we learned some things and got better, which is why we schedule those games in the first place."

Jordan Scott led with 17 points, Chibi Anwunah added 14, which included a pair of two-handed dunks, Nate Pierson nailed two 3s and finished with 10 points and Cam Weller had eight points as well as a dunk himself.

The issue for the Eagles, though, was not trusting their defensive assignments.

The Gators (5-0) kickstarted many of their possessions with drives to the basket. PCA would suck in on defense and leave Arbor Prep's shooters wide open on the outside.

That must change going forward.

"Tonight we specifically talked about trusting our rim protectors and not getting sucked in on attacks," Windle added. "We got sucked in way too many times. They probably had 12 3s wide open because our guys got sucked in because that's just a natural reaction. Our job is to trust our teammates, Chibi Anwunah and Cam Weller, whose job is to protect that rim and make them shoot (inside) with two over the top vs. an easy kick outside for a 3.

'That was the big thing for us tonight: They just shot way too many 3s because we weren't playing our rules that we talked about before the game.

It got two.

First, Bilal Hajjoul (nine points) sank a 3 in front of his bench. The senior celebrated by hanging his goose-neck follow through in the air as he backpedaled back on defense with a six-point lead.

One possession later, the Wildcats swung the ball around until it landed in Petree's hands. He sank a Steph Currylengthed 3 to put them up by nine which all but ended the Bears' chances of stealing the road victory.

Berkley resorted to fouling in the bonus to regain possessions, but Plymouth made nine freebies. That included Petree going 4-of-4 down the stretch from the foul line.

In only his third varsity game, the freshman led all scorers with 25 points and made five triples in all. That included the one that gave the Wildcats their biggest lead of the night in the second quarter as well as the dagger in the fourth.

"He's been playing ball since he was a little fella," Plymouth coach Mike Soukup said. "His dad works with him all the time. He's got sisters who play Division I basketball, so he's gotten beaten up by older guys a lot and his sisters.

"So that's where he comes from. I'm glad he's on our side. I'm glad he's on our team. More than anything else, he's a good kid. He's a coachable kid. That's what I like the most about him. If you ask him to do something, he's going to try and to do it to the best of his ability, and he can definitely shoot the basketball. There's no question about it."

If you're a high school basketball fan in Michigan, a bell should have just rung in your head.

Yes, Petree's older sisters are those Petrees from Ypsilanti Arbor Prep.

Lasha, a Michigan Miss Basketball finalist in 2018, and Mahri pushed the Gators to three state finals appearances 2016-2019. That included them winning the school's first championship in 2016 under then-coach Rod Wells, who, coincidentally, now coaches across the Plymouth-Canton campus at Salem.

The sisters were hard to miss on the court back then. Like Jace, they both have smooth shooting motions, but they can also attack the hoop and score in than their ability to score was their big hair that often filled the frame of the photos they appeared in.

They both played together at Bradley University in Illinois but have since transferred to other programs. Lasha plays at Rutgers, while Mahri is at UTEP.

"I've been playing basketball since I could remember," Jace said of being around a basketball family. "Getting in the gym every single day that I can, doing what I need to do. I've been playing with older guys ever since I was little. I've never played with my age group betraffic. The only thing more noticeable fore. So it's given me that toughness and giving me that older skill set in my own game, and that's what makes me better."

So that's why Jace has the confidence, in just his third varsity appearance, to step up in crunch time and take game-deciding 3-pointers.

Soukup said Jace never gets timid, something he realized early on during a summer league game against Romulus this past off-season.

"He was just not afraid," Soukup said. "Some of the (newer) guys were a little intimidated by the athleticism and some of the other stuff, and he was just not afraid. He's still not afraid. He's a big-game guy. We're glad he's here on our side. He's a coachable kid, and his parents did a good job with him in that regard. He's very humble."

So humble, in fact, that he had few words to say about burying the game-

Once the ball swished in, the entire student section behind the basket erupted as did his teammates and coaches on his bench. It was a huge mo-

"It just feels good to please my team and get us the win," Jace said modestly. "It just feels good."

Country Day thrashed Lutheran North in the opening half.

The Yellowjackets took a 41-19 lead into the break thanks to stellar 3-point nine 3-pointers early, getting four from Nick Sanders alone) and their midcourt defensive trap drumming up steals.

Lutheran North didn't back down, though. It went on a 17-4 run to open the second half, which included the Mustangs scoring 13 straight.

Midway through the run, Bray called timeout to stop the bleeding and allow his players to regroup. Country Day didn't hear his message.

So he called timeout again with 2:28 remaining in the period.

This time the players listened

"We've got a team that's still finding itself in terms of mental toughness," Bray said. "I just told them to get back to our standards. Most of that run, we were giving them, basically, enough shots until they made one. Two or three secondshots. I just told them, 'Look, let's get back to what we had on the board to start the game.' "We did a great job in the first half, and we did a great job in the last four minutes of the fourth quarter of preventing second shots. Everybody knows, if you hold a team to one shot, you've got a chance to beat them. That's always been our mantra. If we have a team that can block out, we have a team that can compete with anybody."

Country Day cleaned up its defense, and that led to some scoring.

Out of the break, 6foot-9 forward Kareem Aburashed, who finished with 16 points alongside Sanders, scored down

Then guard Julian Scott, who scored a teambest 17, scored sixstraight to ensure the Yellowjackets a 53-36 lead entering the fourth. That included the senior scoring on a steal, making two foul shots and getting another bucket in transi-

"We always, in the second half, let our foot off the gas," Scott said. "Coach was telling us that we need to go and play a full 32 minutes hard. That's what we need to work on. It's hard when we get lazy and our defense gets out of sorts. We need to stay focused throughout the whole game

"When shots aren't falling, that's when you mentally have to tap into the game. It's all fun and games when you're making shots. But when you're missing, that's when the mental toughness needs to kick in."

The Yellowjackets let Lutheran North open the fourth on another 8-0 run, but this time they shored up their issues a lot quicker. Aburashed threw down a two-handed dunk to stop the scoring spree, and then Scott drove to the hoop for two more baskets.

"What I say is you've got to keep your head into it," Scott added. "Anybody can go out there and play hard. Playing smart

Vincenzo Candela

NORTHVILLE - Vincenzo Candela, age 81, a longtime resident of Northville, passed away peacefully surrounded by his loving family on December 10, 2021. He was born July 8, 1940 in Buseto Palizzolo, Sicily, Italy; son of Emanuele and Maria (neé Daidone) Candela. In 1955, 15 year-old Vince and his family immigrated to the United States in pursuit of the American Dream. After arriving at Ellis Island, they moved to Detroit, Michigan. Three years later, a young lady named Nancy Pearson was riding in a convertible and caught Vince's eye while he was cruising Woodward. Lucky for him (since he still spoke only broken English), her heart melted right when he called out, "Hey Baby!" and a love story lasting over 58 years began. They were united in marriage on June 29, 1963.

Vince was an outstanding and loyal auto parts salesman with Auto Wares. He built trusting relationships with his customers who quickly warmed to Vince's personality and became dear friends. He believed in the products he sold and the company he worked for. Vince retired in 2013 after many dedicated years. Vince lived the American Dream because of his vigorous work ethic and desire to provide for his family.

Vince enjoyed being outdoors, whether it be in his garden, on the water as captain of his boat, or out on the golf course swinging his clubs. He had a green thumb and enjoyed growing and tending to everything from zucchini and other vegetables to grapes, figs and beautiful flowers. He often used the fruits of this labor of love to prepare delicious Italian cuisine he gladly shared with family and friends. Bowling was another favorite activity, and Vince relished the 2 perfect games he achieved.

Above all, Vince was committed to his family. He adored and respected his wife, treating her like a queen. As evidence of the unconditional love they shared, he rarely let go of her hand. Vince was a great provider for his family and never expected or wanted anything in return. He was a proud grandfather and treasured the time he spent with his grandchildren.

Vince is survived by his cherished wife Nancy; his children, Vince (Diane) Candela, Dino (Vicki) Candela, Darren (Danielle) Candela, Maria (Derrick) Young, and Paul (Jenny) Candela; his grandchildren, Nico, Pearson, Jade, Madison, Lia, Desmond, Rosa, Sophie, Carly, and Sicily; his brother Frank (Chris) Candela; his niece Marianne "Gucci" (Dave) Smelewski; his great niece Joy, and his great nephew Evan. He was preceded in death by his parents and his nephew Mikey Candela.

In lieu of flowers and in accordance with Vince's wishes, the family would prefer memorial contributions to Michigan Donor Family Council, 14125 Terrace Court, Plymouth, MI 48170.

Gordon Byron Peterson

11/29/2021 A devoted husband, loving father and cheerful friend who always had a story, taps has sadly played for Gordon Peterson on 11/29/2021. Formerly of Hartland, Kingsville Ont, Oxford and Detroit, he was the son of Alfred H. and Elinor Byron. Gordon attended Cranbrook and graduated from Mumford High School. He is survived by his wife of over 60 years Kathy, three sons, Kurt (Suzette), Mark (Tammy), and John (Lisa), daughter Sheri (Scott), and grandchildren Mellisa, Alisha, Damian, Nolan, Connor and Blake and several cousins, nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his parents and siblings Thelma, Alfred (Bud), and Phyllis. Gordon retired from the family business Precision Spring Corporation. Gordon and his wife enjoyed living on horse farms. He was an avid Wolverine fan who relished the recent victory over OSU, a jolly Santa-like figure, Gordon marched to the beat of his own drum, always singing the fourth and fifth verse of our great national anthem. He was an active civil war reenactor of the Kentucky 9th in the Milford area. He loved all history, particularly civil war and WWII aviation. Gordon will continue to march in our hearts forever. People who knew him viewed him as a pillar in the community of Highland and Milford.

A celebration of life will be held in the spring. Please check www.ColeFuneralChapel.com for updates.

is what a lot of players can't do. Playing smart is the most important thing. You've got to match playing hard with playing smart, and that's how you become a great team."

The Mustangs made one final push at a comeback in the waning moments, even resorting to fouling Country Day players to preserve time. They finally waved the white flag after Scott took off on a breakaway and passed it back to Aburashed, who slammed his third dunk to ice the win.

Avoiding giving up long runs takes mental toughness, Bray said. He's hoping that struggling in the third quarter is something the Yellowjackets will learn from going forward.

"The first half was our best half we've played this year," he said. "We've made ergy? So we're getting there."

jackets, who picked up their first win.

A year ago, Country Day battled its way to the Division 2 final four at Van Andel Arena in Grand Rapids. It played scrappy, hard-nosed defense and had a knack for running the floor.

Williams expected to see that kind of effort again in Year 2. Instead, the Yellowjackets got outworked in blowout losses to Plymouth Christian and De-Witt to open the season. "I think I'll take that," Williams said of where the blame should be pointed. "We might have been drinking a little bit of the Kool-Aid from last year, right? I remember last year we had two months of practices (to prepare) before we had a game because of COVID pushing us back. So when we went out and played against Plymouth Christan, I was surprised at how much we didn't look ready." Country Day looked a step slower and a bit softer than its first two opponents. Williams quickly fixed that in practice over the last week. "My practices weren't as hard leading up to Plymouth Christian," she added. "After you go 0-2, it's a check for the coach, right? I knew I needed to be doing something different. So we needed to learn how to play hard. So our practices changed. We went out there and we were different."

Practices were more intense. The conditioning never stopped.

The girls even ran sprints on the football field. "I feel like for those first two games we walked in there with the mindset that this was just going to be like last year," said Elam, a sophomore who scored a game-high 22 points. "So we had to change that. We were practicing really hard. We had to make sure we were really conditioned to get the W tonight.

"We took a big turn by being more conditioned, and I feel like that really contributed to the big win tonight." It certainly did.

The Yellowjackets (1-2) put together a pair of 18-point periods. That included them going on an 11-0 run to open the fourth and shutting out the Huskies for the first half of the period.

Transition baskets started with strong rebounds from Ariyanna Wiggins (14 points) and Aysia Yokely (five), while Emma Arico (10) and Elam did well pushing the ball up the floor.

It looked like the same hustle that led them to district and regional titles last winter.

"I saw their hard work in practice and in preparation pay off," Williams said. "We've been doing a lot of conditioning. The one thing I've been leading with from our first two games is that we've been out of shape, right? So that was the . thing coming into this one: We're not going to be not conditioned. I felt it showed that we were working hard in practice leading up to the game."

Country Day has plenty of tough match ups coming up, including games against Cranbrook and Carleton Airport to close out 2021. Sweat equity will be required to successfully navigate its slate of games, especially when it comes to running the floor and scoring transition baskets.

Hopefully, for the Yellowjackets' sake, extra hustle won't be needed to clean up any future jump-ball errors to begin games. "I don't know what happened there," Williams said, laughing. "Somebody fumbled that. At least it wasn't a fourpoint game.

Small- and medium-sized companies are generating 90% of the job openings and new hires in the economy

Small- and medium-sized businesses are fueling the record-high job openings in the US economy. As of October 2021, establishments with less than 1,000 employees account for 90% of all job openings, with 9.15 million vacancies to fill. They are also responsible for 94% of the new hires made in October 2021. The hires rate for small- to medium-sized companies vary between 3.9% to 5.3%, whereas it is only 1.9% for have reported recruitment and employers with more than 5,000 employees.

The Great Resignation has not hit enterprises

Today's data show that the Great

Resignation wave may finally be hitting major enterprises. Until recently, the quits rate for the largest companies with more than 5,000 employees had been relatively stable and consistent with historical trends. The dramatic rise in resignations had been a small- and medium-sized business phenomenon only.

Today's report that suggests the largest firms can no longer be complacent. Their quit rate rose rapidly from 1.1% to 1.6%. That is still well below the 3.5% rate for midsized companies, but the upward trend should put large companies on notice.

Major enterprises will need to preserve their advantage in the current labor

Major enterprise companies retention challenges since the Covid recovery began, but they have been able to react so quickly and aggressively that their challenges hardly showed up in the data.

2. Offering better benefits and greater flexibility: Large companies have made substantial investments in employee training and career development over the past year. Many have also started offering more flexible schedules and remote work arrangements, as well as better benefits packages. For example, Macy's will now pay for employee's college tuition. Amazon, Walmart, and Starbucks are providing great schedule flexibility.

3. Data-driven human resources decision-making: Corporate giants also have an advantage when it comes to receiving market signals and detecting changing conditions quickly.

> Since they hire so frequently, they get more feedback from the market. In addition, many have made substantial investments in human resources analytics tools, which help leaders to identify retention risks and address issues promptly.

There is evidence that small businesses are increasingly adopting best practices and improving changes to working conditions to stay competitive. They are beginning to see retention improvements. Enterprises have signaled, however, that they will continue to do what it takes to hold onto their existing employees and attract new applicants. 2022 could see companies take even bolder steps to win the war for talent.

SUDOKU

Difficulty Level **

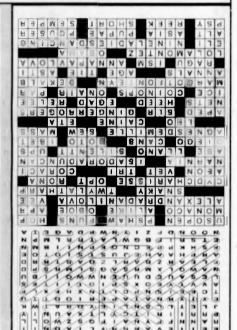

Here's How It Works Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
