American painter of the 19th century.

Though European-born and raised, O'Keeffe emerged as a singular, if not controversial, painter who brought a uniquely American vision to the world of art. She was known for her landscapes as magnificent as those of the West.

Her death by her husband, Joseph, in 1948, is often cited as a milestone in art history.

Online Resources:
1. Art Institute of Chicago
2. Google Arts & Culture
3. PBS.org

For further information, call (248) 449-9945.

ETHEL V. WARE
Eldred V. Ware died Nov. 27, 1997 at his residence in Northville. He was 80.

Mrs. Ware was born in Medicine, Pa., on Sept. 27, 1916, to William Blaine and Grace Ethel (Higgenbotham) Higgenbotham, both of whom predeceased her in Northville since 1949. She is survived by her husband, Paul Henry; brothers and sisters, Ralph Henry of Orlando, Fla.; three sons; and six nephews.

Mrs. Ware was preceded in death by her daughter, Joseph, in March 1910, and by her brother, Roy H. Higgenbotham.

Services were held Thursday, Nov. 27, at Our Lady of Victory Church. Father Joseph Sessa officiated at the service. Interment was in Rural Hill Cemetery.

Arrangements were made by General Funeral Home of Northville.

DONALD D. SETTLES
Donald D. Settles died Nov. 22, 1997 at Providence Hospital in Southfield. He was 80.

Mr. Settles was born June 29, 1917, in Sterling, Ill., to Robert E. and Lydia (Cady) Settles. He graduated from Cornell College of Mt. Vernon, Iowa, and while there met and married Maurine M. O'Brien.

Mr. Settles worked for 37 years at General Motors in various capacities, most recently as a manager in automotive sales. He retired in 1984 as assistant manager for a major auto dealer in Southfield, serving on the board of directors at the American Lung Association.

Contributions may be made to the Donald D. Settles Scholarship Fund of Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Iowa, or to the Rev. James P. Russell Church in Southfield.

(Author's note: The obituaries were printed in The Detroit News, a Detroit media company. The obituary mentions Donald D. Settles but does not provide any details about his life or career.)

For more information, visit their official website or contact their office directly.